DON'T ENTER WAR—KENNEDY

CROWD CAPITAL FOR INAUGURAL OF ROOSEVELT

Takes Oath for 3d Time Tomorrow.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—Thousands of folks—political leaders and lesser party workers, and people great and humble, crowded into Washington today bent upon taking a spectator's part in the third inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt at noon Monday.

They thronged the hotel lobbies, from fashionable places to dollar-a-night walkups, and overflowed into the tourist camps and houses bearing the familiar sign, "tourists."

Long before nightfall it was obvious that the ever growing crowds were intent upon a gay preinaugural such as the capital seldom has seen. The city was bedecked with flags and bunting. The weather man predicted Monday would be clear and cold.

Address Will Be Brief.

The central figure of the nation's great quadrennial spectacle, President Roosevelt, the only man in the nation's history to take the oath of office three times, was busy at the White House. He received no visitors and spent the day among the ship pictures of the oval study on the second floor of the executive mansion, relaxing and preparing his inaugural speech. The address will be short, White House attachés said—not more than 12 minutes.

It was explained that the President already had expressed his latest views at length in his fireside radio chat of Dec. 29 and in his opening message to congress on Jan. 6.

It was announced there would be 26 house guests at the White House for the inauguration—many of whom already had arrived—including virtually the entire Roosevelt family, the Democratic branch of it, that is, and close family friends.

Will Attend Services.

At 9:30 a. m. Chicago time, Monday, President Roosevelt will attend services at St. John's Episcopal church. Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt will leave the White House for the capitol at 10:30. Henry A. Wallace will take the oath as vice president at 10:55. The President will take the oath of office at 11 a. m., deliver his inaugural address, and return to the White House.

A buffet luncheon for 1,000 guests will be served at the White House at noon. At 12:45 p. m. the inaugural parade will begin from the capitol. The president will receive governors at the White House at 3 p. m., and at 4 p. m., there will be tea for 1,000 guests at the White House.

Program Begins Today.

The inauguration program will begin tomorrow [Sunday]. At 1:30 p. m. Chicago time. The Lafayette square reviewing stands will be the scene of a brief interdenominational church service. The Rev. Dr. John Keating, Roman Catholic, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, the Rev. Seth R. Brooks, universalist, and the Rev. Albert J. McCartney, presbyterian, all of Washington, will participate.

At 3 p. m., Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Russia and Belgium, and now chairman of the inaugural committee and Mrs. Davies will give a reception to the governors of the states. Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt have been invited as have been Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Electoral College Dinner.

A dinner will be given at the Mayflower hotel at 6 p. m. by the Electoral college for 1,500 persons. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic national committee, will be the speakers.

At 7:45 p. m. there will be an "inaugural gala" at Constitution hall. Charlie Chaplin will deliver a speech from his movie, "The Great Dictator." Eddie Cantor, Irving Berlin, Nelson Eddy, Raymond Massey, Mickey Rooney, Ethel Barrymore, and Rise Stevens are on the program. Robert Sherwood, a friend of the President will be master of ceremonies.

BRITAIN TO ACT AGAINST UNREST IN WAR PLANTS

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The British government is about to take energetic action against disaffection in war factories, THE TRIBUNE learned tonight. Legislation empowering the government to take over and regiment all industrial labor on totalitarian lines already exists, but it is not expected that Ernest Bevin, minister of labor who is a former Trades Union boss, will be anxious to hurry its application.

A more likely course of action is the clamping down on communist agitation, which has been growing steadily here, particularly since the inauguration last week of the communist supported "People's convention." This agitation is believed to be behind the various strikes and dissensions in factories whose war production is regarded as vital to the war effort.

Communist Paper Warns.

Today's front page headline in the Daily Worker, communist organ, warns workers, "Industrial Conscription Threat Develops." Other papers, however, said that Bevin has rejected the plan for conscription of industrial labor and favors a plan of effective mobilization and the possible transfer of dock labor in coöperation with the trades unions concerned.

Editorially the Daily Worker denounces Wendell Willkie's indorsement of the demand by President Roosevelt "for dictatorial powers—powers which even the capitalist press has admitted would make him the greatest war lord of all time."

Blames "Big Business."

This "shameless farce of 'democracy,' as the men of Wall street play it, reaches a new low level" with Willkie's statement, the paper comments. "The naked swindle of this false democracy stands plain for all to see. The forces of big business unite to impose a dictatorship on the American people and drag them thus chained into a world struggle of empires for redivision and domination of the world, for a world made safe for rich men of the 'City of London' and of Wall street."

Need 23 Months to Equip U. S. Army, Knudsen Tells Congress

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—The United States will not have full equipment for an army of 1,200,000 and heavy equipment for 800,000 more until the end of 1942—more than 23 months distant—William S. Knudsen, director of the office of defense production management, told congress today.

Knudsen's admission was in contrast to the statement six months ago by the war department that it would have more than a million men fully trained and equipped to take the field with the latest type of weapons by July 1, 1941. The army today has about 500,000 men in training, without adequate equipment.

Knudsen was the first witness before the house foreign affairs committee who is not a member of President Roosevelt's cabinet. He said the defense program is progressing "fairly well."

Raps Division of Authority.

"I think we are doing as well as could be expected," he told the committee, which is considering bill 1776 to give the chief executive war dictatorship powers. Knudsen indirectly criticized Mr. Roosevelt's selection of two heads—himself and Sidney Hillman—to guide defense production.

"I am not fully satisfied with progress on the defense program," he told the committee, "but I think we are doing as well as could be expected. The real showing won't start until the machine tooling is ready. It is coming in now."

Representative John M. Vorys [R., O.] asked if Knudsen ever before had worked with an organization that had two heads.

"Where I have worked before," Knudsen said simply, "we had a chairman."

Evades Payment Question.

Representative Edith N. Rogers [R., Mass.] asked Knudsen:

"Do you believe, as an extremely successful business man, that the American people are willing to make the supplies for Great Britain without specific collateral?"

"I'm not in the finance business," evaded Knudsen. "My job is to make business."

Pressed for a more direct answer, Knudsen declared:

"It's nice to have collateral, but aren't we beyond that situation? I think we are doing this to protect the United States."

The broad shouldered, genial executive avoided efforts of minority members of the committee to draw him into a discussion of how England would repay American aid to Britain.

"The difficulty is largely that of dollar exchange?" asked Representative Robert B. Chiperfield [R., Ill.].

"I think that's so," Knudsen replied.

"Then why not just repeal the cash provision of the neutrality act?"

"Of course, you can do that," the witness answered.

"Why wouldn't we accomplish as much then, by repealing that and the Johnson act?"

Sees No Difference.

Before Knudsen could reply, Chairman Sol Bloom interrupted, insisting there is no mention of cash in the neutrality act. Finally Bloom permitted the question and Knudsen said:

"I don't see any difference, sir, between this act and your statement."

"Exactly," continued Chiperfield, "so we could then do without giving so much authority to one man?"

Mr. Knudsen drew laughter from the crowd when he answered:

"I can't answer that question, sir. That one man happens to be my boss."

Asked if British replacement of loaned or leased material after the war would not tend to depress American manufacturing, Knudsen said that would depend upon the manner in which American industry was switched back to domestic production.

"It is up to congress," he said, "to decide how the costs of the program are to be borne."

OPPOSES F. D. R. BILL; ASKS FULL AID FOR BRITAIN

But First: What's Best for U. S.?

New York, Jan. 18 [Special].—Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring ambassador to Great Britain, declared tonight that the United States can stay out of the European war and must stay out for its own good. In a long-awaited speech broadcast over a national radio hookup Kennedy also asserted that:

1. The lease-lend bill now before congress, which would give President Roosevelt dictatorial powers in disposing of defense equipment and in other matters, should not be passed.
2. Utmost aid should be given to Great Britain, but this aid "should not and must not go to the point where war becomes inevitable."
3. It is not incompatible for America to avoid war and still help Great Britain, and the final test on the issue of war or neutrality should be: "What is best for the United States?"

White House Lifts Gag.

Kennedy, who tendered his resignation on Nov. 6, had just been released from the diplomatic rule that a former ambassador should not express his views until his successor is appointed. His successor has not yet been appointed, and it was only several days ago that the White House released him from a diplomatic curb on speaking his mind.

Kennedy, a close friend of Roosevelt since the latter was assistant secretary of the navy during the world war, was a heavy contributor to Roosevelt's campaign in 1932. He was appointed to head the Securities Exchange commission when it was organized in 1934. He resigned a year later and when the Maritime commission was formed he was recalled to become its chairman. On Dec. 10, 1937, he was appointed ambassador to Britain. He left England for the United States last Oct. 23.

"To go to war is not in our best interests," Mr. Kennedy asserted in his address tonight. "Unless we are attacked the American people do not have to go to war."

Means End of Democracy.

War, he said, would destroy democracy at home, and the United States does not want "a dictatorship of either the right or left."

"This is not our war," he declared. "We were not consulted when it began. We had no veto power over its continuance. . . . We should arm to the teeth, and give as much help as we can, but do it on a basis of preserving American ideals and interests."

After detailing America's unpreparedness, the former ambassador discussed the difficulties of transporting expeditionary forces across 3,000 miles of sea—in either direction. He said he was confident the United States, by using its great energies, could be made secure against any group of powers in the world.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

The text of Kennedy's talk follows:

"Shortly after I came home from London, I spoke over the radio for the reëlection of President Roosevelt. I declared then that my sincere judgment was that we ought to stay out of war—that we could stay out of war. I urged that we give England all possible aid. I feel the same way about it today.

"Since then there have appeared many false statements regarding my views on foreign policy. Moreover, there is a growing confusion and a reliance upon emotion which strikes me as altogether unnecessary and extremely harmful.

Proposes to Reveal Views.

"Tonight I hope to set forth as clearly as possible my views on some phases of the great issue confronting the American people. It is my earnest desire that I may be of some assistance in helping my fellow citizens to form a clearer understanding of the burning issue of our foreign policy.

"The saddest feature of recent months is the growth of intolerance. Honest men's motives are being attacked. Many Americans, including myself, have been subjected to deliberate smear campaigns merely because we differed from an articulate minority. A few ruthless and irresponsible Washington columnists have claimed for themselves the right

HIGHLIGHTS FROM AMBASSADOR'S TALK TO NATION

"Nearly all the American people want to aid Britain, and practically all of the same people want to stay out of war. I think that these policies can be applied without confusion and without risk of contradiction. However, because in addition to wanting to aid Britain the American people want to stay out of war, this aid should not and must not go to the point where war becomes inevitable."

"The recent bill, H. R. 1776, called the 'lease-lend' bill, seeks to confer upon the President authority unheard of in our history. I am unable to agree with the proponents of this bill that it has yet been shown that we face such immediate danger as to justify this surrender of the authority and responsibility of the congress."

"We are a country of 130 million people with a great record for vigor, ingenuity, and bravery. I cannot understand why a great military machine 3,000 miles away should make us fear for our security."

"I quite agree that if England were to win this war we would be a great deal better off than we would if England lost. The point of argument, however, is on the question of whether to help England win the war we should get into the war ourselves, thus exhausting our own resources so as to threaten our whole civilization."

"There will be no American intervention while there continues to be free and open discussion, while the people know all the facts, and while our system of popular government functions. Unless we are attacked, the American people do not have to go to war."

"If we go to war our manpower cannot be preserved from battle. Only yesterday Mr. Churchill said, 'We do not require in 1941 large armies from overseas.' Does that mean our boys are expected over there in 1942?"

"What would be our war aims? We certainly are not going into the war just to underwrite the war aims of another country without knowing what they are."

"Are our children's and our grandchildren's lives to be spent standing guard in Europe while heaven knows what happens in America?"

"Another argument we hear is that it is our duty to go to war because England is fighting our battle. England is not fighting our battle. This is not our war. We were not consulted when it began. We had no veto power over its continuance."

"We here in America do not want a dictatorship of either the right or the left. We want to preserve our democracy. And we are not going to preserve anything by getting into this war."

"I really don't know where our army would go if we started off to fight a war. Just as I regard it impossible for a foreign power to invade this country, so do I regard it impossible for us to invade Europe."

"So far as financing the assistance we give to Great Britain is concerned, my opinion is that the British ought to make available to us all the assets we can use. If after the resources of Great Britain were used up it were still sound American policy to assist them, I would prefer that it be done thru outright gifts, since I would not expect that loans could be repaid."

Interventionists Use Case as Precedent.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—A search of naval archives today disclosed that the American navy was virtually loaned to Great Britain during the world war. Franklin D. Roosevelt at that time was assistant secretary of the navy and practically ran the department. His friends have contended that his policies were followed in the department during that period.

Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig.

The navy has never been particularly pleased with this chapter in its history which is of interest today in the light of suggestions of interventionists that American warships be loaned to Britain. The suggestions are heard more frequently since President Roosevelt submitted his proposal for war dictator powers to congress.

Argyle With Stimson.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson told the house foreign affairs committee Thursday he could foresee conditions under which it might be desirable to transfer American warships to the British flag. Lesser administration officials make no secret of their belief this is the next step in the administration's aid to Britain program.

The navy department has no desire to have its war record cited by the interventionists as precedent for a transfer as they are now seeking to do. The navy in listing its war accomplishments has soft pedaled the fact that, for the most part, its achievements in the war zone were accomplished under British command.

Under British Operation.

The American warships were British in operation and control and American only in their flags and crews. Records disclose that this was the plan of operation adopted by the high command of the American navy before the United States entered the war.

The first American vessels to go into the war zone were six destroyers, which were stationed at York river, Va., the day war was declared, April 6, 1917. On April 14 the squadron was ordered to Boston and on April 24 it was commanded to go 50 miles east of Cape Cod and open sealed orders.

Ordered to Ireland.

These orders, over the signature of Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, were in part:

"1. The British have requested coöperation of a division of American destroyers in the protection of commerce near the coasts of Great Britain and France.

"2. Your mission is to assist naval operations of entente powers in every way possible.

"3. Proceed to Queenstown, Ireland. Report to the senior British naval officer present and thereafter coöperate fully with the British navy."

Reports to British.

These orders were opened by Commander Joseph K. Taussig, senior officer of the squadron, who is now a rear admiral. Two commanders of destroyers in his squadron, Alfred W. Johnson and Arthur P. Fairfield, are now also rear admirals.

The squadron reached Queenstown May 4, 1917, and Taussig reported, according to instructions, to Sir Lewis Bayly, British admiral at Queenstown. Ten days later a second squadron of six destroyers reported to the admiral and by July 5, 1917, 34 American destroyers were under the British officer. Bayly continued to command about this number of American destroyers until the end of the war.

Ninth Battle Squadron.

A short time after the destroyers were sent to augment the British navy the 9th battle squadron, consisting of five battleships, under command of Admiral Hugh Rodman, was dispatched to join the British grand fleet which was commanded by Admiral David Beatty.

The American vessels adopted the British systems of tactics and fire control so that for all combat pur-

2 SAILORS SEIZED AFTER NAZI FLAG IS TORN TO BITS

2,000 Cheer as Tars Rip Consulate Emblem.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 18 (AP).—An American sailor ripped a huge swastika flag from its staff at the ninth story offices of the German consulate today while thousands of spectators stood in the street and cheered.

Harold Sturtevant. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The action, which Consul General Fritz Wiedemann reported immediately to the German embassy in Washington, climaxed a morning of unrest around the building at 26 O'Farrell street, just off Market. The flag was being flown in observance of the 70th anniversary of the founding of the German reich.

The sailor was identified by Police Captain Joseph Walsh as Harold James Sturtevant, 22, recently a fireman on the destroyer Craven. He and a companion, E. G. Lackey, 23, seaman first class, formerly on the destroyer Perkins, were charged with malicious mischief and held for the United States navy. Four other young men who participated were released. Sturtevant and Lackey were on shore leave, awaiting mustering out of service. They were in civilian clothing.

Crowd Keeps Growing.

The crowd began forming shortly after the Nazi emblem was unfurled when the consulate opened. As the morning advanced the crowd grew larger until 2,000 persons were gazing at the 4x8 foot flag. Police were kept busy explaining to protesting spectators that international law permitted the consulate to fly the German flag without also displaying an American emblem.

As the crowd grew a small American flag was hung from the window of a vacant office directly above the big swastika emblem. A nearby department store brought out a huge American ensign, 20 feet long and 10 feet wide.

Several young men, who had protested the presence of the Nazi flag to police, finally ascended the fire escape to the ninth floor. They entered a 10th story window and reached the empty office above the flagpole. The crowd, which by then filled O'Farrell street and overflowed into Market street, alternately cheered and held its breath while Sturtevant let himself down to the flagpole.

Flag Torn in Tug of War.

With a penknife he began slashing at the halyard. When the rope was cut he attempted to pull in the flag, but Dr. Otto Denzer and others in the consulate grabbed the bottom hem. Shouting at the Germans, Sturtevant leaned down and slashed the flag in several places.

Finally Sturtevant's companions were able to grab a corner of the ensign and a brief tug of war between stories ensued. The consulate employés got most of the flag, which was badly torn in the middle and missing a corner. The crowd let out a roar as the emblem disappeared, then continued cheering as Sturtevant climbed back thru the window.

The consul general, world war commander of Adolf Hitler, declined comment beyond saying "the facts speak for themselves."

Tug-of-War Over Nazi Flag

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

While Harold Sturtevant, an American sailor, tried to remove a swastika flag flying from a window of the German consulate in San Francisco, Cal., yesterday an official of the consulate reached out a window and grasped a corner of the ensign. The flag was torn.

GERMANY BOMBED IN 1,400 RAIDS, BRITAIN REPORTS

Aerial War Stepped Up; Ruhr Heavily Hit.

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP).—Great Britain's air force, sharply stepping up its offensive operations in the last three months, made more than 1,400 organized raids on Germany between the start of the war and Jan. 1, a ministry of information report said tonight.

Indicative of the increasing power of Britain's air arm in its rôle of staving off threatened invasion by striking at the sources of German power, the report stated that more than 500 of the raids were made since the end of last September, with special emphasis on objectives in the Ruhr district.

Ruhr Blows Stepped Up.

In "this heart of the German productive machine," as the report termed it, were more than 500 of the 1,552 objectives listed as targets of the Royal Air force during the period covered by the survey. The onslaught on the Ruhr, source of most of Germany's steel and coal, as well as many guns, airplanes and other military equipment, was stepped up by two-thirds in the last three months, the ministry said.

Railways and communications topped the list in number of bombings with 459. Munition and aircraft plants, military stores and power stations formed the second ranking category with 316 attacks.

Many Raids on Oil Plants.

There were 254 raids on oil refineries and storage tanks, 199 on airdromes and sea bases, and 25 on other objectives.

The north German port and railroad center of Hamburg was the city most often attacked—60 times, with Bremen, second in importance as a port, near the top of the list. It was attacked 52 times.

Wilhelmshaven, Germany's most important naval base, was bombed 36 times up to Jan. 1. There have been at least five more raids on it.

Kiel and Emden, two other naval and shipbuilding bases, were attacked 32 and 27 times, respectively.

Rhine Industries Hit.

Objectives in the Rhine industrial and rail center of Cologne were listed as bombed 55 times.

The ministry said that some of the heaviest attacks were those on the hydrogenation plant which produces normally about 500,000 tons of synthetic oil annually at Leuna, and the oil centers of Madgeburg and Gelsenkirchen, in central German and the Ruhr, respectively.

NAZIS BOMB TWO BRITISH AIRPORTS IN SURPRISE RAID

Strike Before Defenders Can Take Off.

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (AP).—Surprise dive bombings of two airports in southeast England today caught British defenders off guard and destroyed R. A. F. planes poised for a takeoff from both fields, informed German sources reported tonight.

They said the dive bombers were part of an air fleet which attacked a convoy off the mouth of the Thames and "repeatedly" bombed London in a daylight followup of a heavy Friday night raid on the South Wales port of Swansea. The German bombers were said to have inflicted "the heaviest damage" on the English air fields before the defenders could raise a strong anti-aircraft fire.

Ship Believed Total Loss.

A 4,000 ton merchantman, hit squarely on a hatch by one bomb, was described as probably a total loss in the low level raid on the convoy.

Only small units were said to have carried out the attacks on London.

Besides leaving a whole area of Swansea afire, setting fire to a merchantman in the harbor and four waterfront districts, German informants said Nazi raiders Friday night hit the ports of Southampton, Bristol, Plymouth, and Portland, and smashed also at British anti-aircraft gun and searchlight emplacements.

Pound British East Coast.

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP).—A string of German bombers, crossing the channel one by one, pounded the east coast this afternoon and one got thru London's antiaircraft barrage to unload five bombs on a residential area. It was London's first daylight air alarm in 12 days and the air ministry acknowledged "a small number" of dead and injured.

Altho the London bombing was attributed to only one plane, heavy gunfire could be heard. The alarm indicated that others were trying to get thru on the southeast approach to the capital, the air highway from the Dover strait.

Generally, however, bad weather forced a lull in the give and take air battle of Britain. Royal air force forays were restricted by the weather to raids on nearby German occupied waters and coasts over Friday night. Direct hits were made on four ships off the Dutch coast, the air ministry said, one ship sinking and another listing.

Attack "Invasion" Ports.

British night raiders also were reported to have attacked the German "invasion" ports of Brest and Cherbourg and two airdromes in German occupied France.

The admiralty announced that the trawlers Chestnut and Desiree have been sunk. There were no casualties, the communique said.

NAZI DIVE BOMB SQUADRONS RAID MALTA AIRFIELD

Claim Runways and Barracks Struck.

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (AP).—Large squadrons of German Stukas divebombed the airdrome on the British Mediterranean island of Malta this afternoon, informed German sources declared tonight.

The bombers, accompanied by their own and Italian fighter escorts, were said to have scored heavily with hits on hangars, barracks, and runways.

The attack lasted seven hours, German sources said. They added the British put up a "wild defense" which failed to hinder the German pilots from "plowing up" the air field and setting fires which sent up smoke far beyond the reaches of the island.

[Dispatches from Malta said the German attack lasted three hours, and that five and possibly six of the raiders were shot down.]

FORTRESS STANDS FIRM

BY LARRY ALLEN.

VALETTA, Malta, Jan. 18 (AP). — There is not the slightest sign anywhere on this British island stronghold that the heavy attacks of German dive bombers are going to succeed in what the Italians failed to do—make Malta give up.

The morale of the people of this ancient island appears unshaken, their confidence in British victory high. The whole island is a natural air raid shelter. As soon as sirens sound the Maltese calmly go to their deep stone hewn underground shelters.

Going ashore here from a British warship for the first time since last Dec. 20, I found the islanders better prepared than ever for attacking bombers and Malta showing singularly little damage.

Down More Planes.

Maltese gunners who early established an enviable record for antiaircraft accuracy daily are adding more planes to their score.. And it is almost a common sight now to see a British fighter pilot's "victory roll."

During 72 hours ashore in Malta, I watched one fight over a British airdrome in which I saw the British quickly send two of a squadron of eight German hurtling in flames to earth.

ROOSEVELT GIVES HIS BLESSING TO WILLKIE WAR TRIP

Former Nominee Called Agent of Morgan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—President Roosevelt today gave his personal sanction to the impending war survey of England to be made by Wendell Willkie, unsuccessful Republican candidate last November.

The White House announced that Mr. Roosevelt is willing to see Willkie, if the latter so desires, when he comes here tomorrow to confer with Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The secretary has received instructions from Mr. Roosevelt to give Willkie all available information on conditions abroad and a complete outline of the administration's foreign policies.

The Presidential blessing was pronounced on Willkie as it was reported in Washington that he is undertaking the inspection tour of England on a confidential assignment from J. P. Morgan, the international banker, who managed Britain's American finances in the last world war.

Parallels Hopkins' Mission.

Willkie's assignment from the banker, whose customary sources of information have been dried up by the war, according to reports, is similar to that which Harry Hopkins, former secretary of commerce and White House intimate, is undertaking for the President.

This report explains why Willkie encountered no opposition, despite his bitter campaign against the President a few months ago, from the state department or White House when he announced his intention of making the survey. In fact, the White House made the survey possible by ordering the state department to grant Willkie permission to make the trip, according to reliable sources. An ordinary citizen, such as Willkie pretends to be, would be denied a passport.

Willkie's enlistment in the ranks of war mongers and ready adoption into the Roosevelt family is seen by noninterventionists as the product of elaborate planning. The immediate object of this plan is to secure passage of the New Deal war dictatorship bill.

Brings Peace with Glass.

The war dictatorship bill has brought into the administration's war party, another frequent critic of the President. Senator Carter Glass [D., Va.], whose opposition to the third term led him to nominate James A. Farley for the Democratic Presidential nomination at Chicago, came out for an immediate declaration of war against Germany.

The 83 year old senator's support of the President's war aims brought him a place on the senate foreign affairs committee, which is to handle the war dictatorship bill. He was picked by the administration for the post because noninterventionists have a sizeable representation on the body.

The front for this movement to enact the bill is the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, which formed a meeting ground for Wall Street and the New Deal. In this committee New Dealers have forgotten their feud with "economic roylists" by making a common cause with those Mr. Roosevelt once was wont to villify.

Willkie May Direct Drive.

Morgan and his associates are sponsors of the committee, whose chairmanship was offered Willkie. It is possible that he may take the post on his return and in it direct propaganda for the dictatorship bill.

In his survey of England Willkie will see just what British officials want him to see. It can be expected that the carefully conducted tour of the embattled country will bring him back as ardent for every aid to the British cause as he was against the third term last fall.

At the same time, according to reports, he will seek to sound Britain's future trends for Morgan. The banker is said to be gravely concerned over what form of government Britain will have even if she wins the war. He is disturbed by reports that a form of Labor-Socialist state may be set up by Ernest Bevin, the Labor party leader Prime Minister Winston Churchill has brought into the cabinet in working to build a unified front against Hitler. The same fears in President Roosevelt's breast have been offered as an explanation for Hopkins' visit to England.

Seeks Bevin's Confidence.

Many informed persons in the capital believe Mr. Roosevelt sent Hopkins to England because, as a social worker and dyed in the wool New Dealer, he talks near the same language as Bevin and might be taken into confidence by that Britisher.

Morgan and his associates, as well as administration officials, also are interested in the influence and size of the peace party in Britain. It is said that a considerable group of wealthy Britishers favor a peace which would give the continent and colonies of conquered nations to Hitler on condition he leave Britain alone.

It is reported that Willkie, as the emissary of Morgan, might obtain confidential information from members of the peace group, if it exists. Hopkins also has been charged with gathering what information he can on this subject, it is said.

Finnish Family Reunited in Chicago

Mr. and Mrs. Sal Kotschack and their children, Carita, 4 years old, and Edmund, 10.

Separated a Year

A happy family scene was enacted in the North Western station yesterday when Sal Kotschack, a Finnish merchant, welcomed his wife and two children to what he said is their future home.

Mrs. Kotschack, brown eyed and beautiful, and the children, Edmund, who is 10, and Carita, 4, had been endeavoring to get passage to America since last June. They finally left their home in Helsingfors by way of Russia and Siberia and sailed from Yokohama, Japan, on Dec. 6.

"It's a year to the day since I left them," Kotschack observed. "We were all in Stockholm then, where I had part ownership in a store. We decided to start importing from America, and everything looked promising, so I came here."

Meantime, however, he lost his two stores in Helsingfors and began to try to bring his family to the United States, an arduous task, because passage was booked six to eight months in advance and sailing dates, by the Finnish route out of Petsamo, indefinite.

"It's all very big," Edmund commented in awe.

BRITAIN'S WOMEN TOLD: BE READY FOR FIRE WATCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Minister of Home Security Herbert Morrison today announced details of the government's new fire watching scheme whereby every able bodied man and woman in Britain between the ages of 16 and 60 may be called up for compulsory Air Raid Precautions service.

Tho it is intended for the present to conscript men only in certain areas where the risk of fire is the greatest, Morrison reminded women it is within the power of the government to call on them to give similar service.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 18.—Gen. Jose Maria Zelaya, minister of agriculture, announced today that on the recommendation of the United States rubber experts, two experimental stations will be started on the Atlantic coast of Nicaragua to learn if trees yielding a good grade of rubber can be grown in commercial quantities. The rubber experts, who spent a month in Nicaragua, left yesterday for Guatemala and Mexico, but are expected to return to organize the stations.

NAZIS CLAIM NEW RANGE FINDER AIDS AIR DEFENSE

Works at Night, Too, and 'Eliminates' Errors.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Germany has greatly improved her defenses against bombing raids, authorities declared today, thru new range-finding and fire control apparatus.

It is understood that the instruments, which are said to be based on acoustical principles instead of optical, and function day or night, have been introduced on a small scale in the antiaircraft artillery.

Mistakes "Eliminated."

The new range finders make use of the most recent discoveries about ultra-short waves and are so accurate, it was said, as almost to eliminate mistakes. In establishing the height of a plane flying at an altitude of about 28,800 feet, the Germans said, miscalculations are restricted to only 3.2 feet.

Heretofore, the Germans said, even the best range finder made considerable errors in measuring the altitude of an approaching plane. In calculating the height of a plane flying at 16,000 feet the mistake could amount in unfavorable circumstances to 56 feet.

New Type Efficient at Night.

The usual type of listening apparatus, the Germans asserted, is able to fix only approximately the direction from which a plane is coming.

Another great advantage claimed for the new range finder is its effectiveness at night. Instruments based on optical principles are restricted at night to the distance the beams of searchlights can carry.

Willkie Invited to Speak in London on 'Aid Britain Bill'

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP).—Col. Arthur Evans, member of parliament for Cardiff, South Wales, cabled an invitation to Wendell L. Willkie today to address members of the British group of the interparliamentary union at the house of commons on the "aid for Britain bill" now being considered in the United States congress. Willkie will leave the United States on Wednesday for a short visit in Great Britain.

GREEKS STEP UP OFFENSIVE PACE IN ALL SECTORS

Claim Third Big Italian Vessel Torpedoed.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Jan. 18.—Despite harrowing rain and snowstorms, Greek troops today were reported increasing their offensive pressure against the Italians in all sectors of the Albanian battlefront. At sea, too, the Greeks claimed a new success, reporting another big Italian supply ship had been sunk by a Greek submarine.

The torpedoed ship—the third such attack reported in two days—was the 11,452 ton Sardegna, the Greeks said. The ministry of marine declared the Sardegna was sent to the bottom Dec. 29 despite a heavy escort of warships around a convoy. The submarine Proteus, which delivered the attack, thus far has not returned to its base, the communique said.

The two other ships announced yesterday as having also been torpedoed were the Liguria and Lombardia.

Action on Three Fronts.

On land, the Greeks said, the ever increasing pressure of their troops had brought these results:

In the central sector—Italians forced back, with the Greeks bettering their position especially in the region north of Klisura.

The Italians, it was said, have had great difficulty in supplying their advanced posts along the coast south of Valona, partly because of mountains which come right down to the water's edge and partly because they are flanked by Greek mountain forces on their left.

Stream of Prisoners.

Italian prisoners continue to stream toward the rear. In addition to the 1,000 "Wolves of Tuscany" captured northwest of Klisura yesterday, the Greeks reported that they have a large section of the Pusteria Alpine division almost surrounded in that same area. Violent Italian counterattacks there failed with heavy Fascist losses, the Greeks said.

[Dispatches from the Jugo-Slav frontier said the Greeks likewise had lost heavily.]

Wherever possible, the Greeks constantly harass the Italians so as to prevent them from digging in and holding their ground. Only the Blackshirt [political] militia is given credit by the Greeks for putting up a good fight.

The Italian prisoners who stream back from the front are a sorry looking lot, tho they show no signs of lack of food or equipment.

Look Like Walking Ragmen.

They move along in all sorts of uniforms from the young Alpine officers, who are almost jaunty in their green hats and swinging capes, to others who look like walking ragmen. Some managed to be captured complete even with knapsacks. Many still wear their tin hats. Some hobble painfully on the stones of the road after the first few miles. Many wear old rags tied over their heads and many are bandaged.

They are a miserable looking lot, particularly when it is raining, and usually it is raining in this part of the world. But they manage to get cigarets along the way from Greek soldiers and in general they seem glad enough to be out of the front line.

Greek newspapers today made much of a reported statement of prisoners from the "Wolves of Tuscany" division that the Italians did not want to fight and that there were many deserters even before the troops sailed from Brindisi for Albania.

Hear Italians Mass Planes.

ON THE JUGO-SLAV-ALBANIAN BORDER, Jan. 18. (AP).—Greek sources reported today that the Italians are bringing up strong reenforcements on all sectors of the Albanian front, including large numbers of Italian planes relieved from Mediterranean services of the Germans. A concentrated Italian air attack apparently is imminent, these sources said.

Food Ship Captured

The cross marks the approximate spot where the British cruiser Asturias captured the French freighter Mendoza yesterday.

BRITISH CAPTURE FRENCH SHIP OFF COAST OF BRAZIL

Seized on Fourth Attempt to Run Blockade.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 18 (AP).—The British today captured and put a prize crew on board the 8,199 ton French freighter Mendoza, which for the last week had been trying to slip thru the British south Atlantic blockade with a cargo of food for France.

The Brazilian navy ministry said Brazilian planes, patrolling the coast, reported the British cruiser Asturias, which had been doggedly following the Mendoza for days, intercepted her five miles off Ponta Itapacarohi, state of Santa Catharina, and that the two ships later stood out to sea.

Turned Back 3 Times.

The Mendoza already had been turned back three times before she sailed from Punta del Este, Uruguay, on Jan. 15 and steamed along the coast, hugging the shore, while the Asturias followed outside territorial waters.

The freighter put in at Porto Bello, Brazil, last night and early today headed northward again thru dangerous shoal waters, making regular soundings as she proceeded.

Forced Off Shore by Shoals.

The newspaper O Globo published a report from Santos quoting radio messages heard in that port which said the Mendoza was detained "precisely where the ship was forced to get away from the coast line on account of the shoals."

A launch from the Asturias came alongside, the paper said, and sent a prize crew on board. The ship, presumably, will be escorted to a British port.

FRENCH THROW BACK SIAMESE; STEM ADVANCE

SAIGON, French Indo-China, Jan. 18 (AP).—The French Indo-China government announced today it had stemmed the Thai [Siamese] advance in western Cambodia by throwing back a complete battalion of 750 troops advancing along the road to Sisophon.

On the fronts to the north, the Thai invaders shelled Savannenakhet and bombed Pakse from the air. Earlier, 1,000 Thai troops were reported repulsed west of Pakse.

Claim French Defeat.

BANGKOK, Thailand, Jan. 17, (AP) [Delayed].—The Thai [Siamese] high command said today hostilities in the undeclared war between Thailand and French Indo-China were growing in scope by land, sea, and air, and that Thai forces had defeated three French [white] battalions Thursday, killing at least 600 of the opposing force.

Thai troops were advancing in the east and northeast sectors, the communique said, adding that a French plane had tried to raid Bangkok, but had been driven off.

Council in Algerian Town Blocks French; Suspended

GERMANS PLEDGE BELGIANS EXTRA FOOD SHIPMENTS

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (AP).—DNB [official German news agency] announced today that a Belgian trade delegation had returned to Brussels from Berlin after concluding negotiations for food and raw materials for Belgian industries. DNB said the German government gave the Belgians "assurances it would deliver the necessary additional quantities of grain for bread and raw materials, provided Belgian authorities as well as Belgian producers and consumers fulfilled their obligations toward the common weal."

Belgium "must dovetail her economy into the necessities of the present situation," the agency said.

HOUSE COMMITTEE APPROVES FUND FOR 200 CARGO VESSELS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—President Roosevelt's request for $313,500,000 to finance construction of 200 cargo ships won quick approval today of a house appropriation subcommittee, and officials predicted house enactment of the legislation early next week.

Before acting on the measure, the subcommittee heard Chairman Emory S. Land of the maritime commission describe the project as vital to the nation's defense.

Committee members said, however, that Land declined to answer, on the grounds that it was out of his jurisdiction, questions as to whether the new ships, to cost a total of 350 million dollars were intended for transfer to Britain or would replace existing ships which might be transferred.

POLITICIAN GOES TO PRISONER'S AID; LOCKED UP

Emmett McGuire, a township highway commissioner, was locked up in the Joliet police station last night on a charge of disorderly conduct after he appeared to intercede in behalf of a prisoner. Police Captain Ernest Overby said McGuire became abusive when he refused his demands to release William McKeown of 1217 North Raynor avenue, Joliet, who had been arrested on a charge of driving his automobile while intoxicated.

McGuire served as campaign manager in Will county for former Gov. Stelle in the last primary when Stelle was defeated by Harry B. Hershey for the Democratic nomination for governor.

HITLER AND DUCE TO CONFER TODAY, SWISS ARE TOLD

Speculate on Possible New Thrust.

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 18 (AP).—Amid portents of stepped-up German aid for Italy, diplomatic quarters here heard reports today that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, with their chief military, diplomatic, and economic advisers, would hold a full dress conference tomorrow.

Berlin-Rome route; meeting may be at Brenner pass.

Whether it foreshadows a German move in the Balkans, a thrust at Gibraltar, or simply additional German air aid from Italian and, perhaps, Rumanian bases, was a matter of speculation.

Neither Rome nor Berlin confirmed officially that such a meeting had been arranged, but diplomatic sources said they expected no confirmation until it is over, possibly Monday.

The Brenner pass, Alpine setting for several axis conclaves, is regarded as the likely scene. Mussolini, however, may go to Germany this time, it was suggested, to repay Hitler's visit to him in Florence last Oct. 28, the day Italy's invasion of Greece began. Some diplomatic advices said the dictators might meet in Munich or Salzburg.

Among the conferees, it was said, will be Dr. Karl Clodius, German trade expert, who is due in Rome on Monday for two weeks of what an official Italian announcement called important talks on trade questions under the year old axis commercial agreement and transportation problems.

Nazis Prepare Rumanian Fields.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 18 (AP).—Intensive German air force preparations at more than a dozen large landing fields in southern Rumania led to predictions today that the Nazis may be arranging hopping off places for new action in the Mediterranean area.

Altho fewer than 100 Nazi planes were believed to be stationed in Rumania now, thousands of ground crew men are quartered on or near all important landing fields and more are arriving daily.

Vast gasoline stores are being concentrated at all southern Rumanian airports, and crews and carpenters are working long hours on buildings, hangars, and storehouses for munitions and bombs. Civil airports such as Beneasafo, near Bucharest, have been taken over by German air units.

Airports Guarded.

Within the last week the Nazis have inaugurated an elaborate 24 hour defense of all Rumanian airports they have occupied. Their latest defense weapons are fast little tanks bearing powerful antiaircraft guns.

Acting on a German suggestion, the Rumanian general staff ordered new air raid drills in Bucharest. Most Danubian towns are now blacked out nightly.

The possibility that Nazi bombers might go to the aid of Italy against Greece was also noted, and it was remarked that Salonika lies only 250 miles by air from such Rumanian fields as the one at Craiova on the Danube.

Italian Rails "Offered Army."

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—The British Broadcasting corporation, quoting "a Lyons source," said today that the entire Italian railway system had been placed at the disposal of the general staff for transport of troops. The broadcast was heard by NBC.

MEXICO TO KEEP RULE OVER BASES; STATES MINISTER

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18 (AP).—Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla declared tonight that Mexico and the United States are "pressing our negotiations toward an early agreement" on all issues confronting the two nations, "animated by a spirit of cordial collaboration."

He underscored Mexico's determination to retain sovereignty over any naval bases constructed in Mexico in collaboration with the United States, but declared there had been no "concrete proposals" on mutual defense needs.

BRITON ASKS U. S. TO BUILD SHIPS AT WORLD WAR RATE

Would Wipe Out Threat of Starvation, He Says.

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP).—Sir Arthur Salter, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of shipping, said tonight it would require a United States shipbuilding program as big as that of the world war to relieve Britain of the threat of starvation because of the losses due to German submarines.

Sir Arthur Salter.

Britain, he said, has bought all available inactive ships and is increasing her own building program, but will nevertheless need about 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 tons a year to feel safe.

"We should like to see a building program in the United States as big as that of the last war, when the rate reached 4,000,000 gross tons a year," he told a press conference. "That would give us enough margin to cover losses."

Loss of 90,000 Tons a Week.

British losses since the Germans seized French air and submarine bases in June have been about 90,000 tons a week, or more than 4,500,000 tons a year. Most of these losses, however, have been offset by building new ships and the purchase and transfer of Danish, French, and other ships to the British flag.

Britain is negotiating now with Danish interests in the United States in an attempt to get control of 38 Danish ships totaling 150,000 tons in American ports. Danish shipping already in British hands totals 344,000 tons.

Salter said Britain already had withdrawn most of her shipping from the Pacific and other nonessential routes, leaving the trade to the United States and other nations.

Confident of Speedup.

He expressed doubt that the United States rate of shipbuilding as a nonbelligerent could equal its war-time rate, but added he was confident it could be speeded up.

"I cannot believe that the munitions and airplanes America is making will stay on the other side of the Atlantic when they are needed here," Salter declared.

Wine Supplies Dwindling; British Rush to Stock Up

LONDON, Jan. 18.—With stocks of imported wines, particularly French, dwindling rapidly, there has recently been such a big buying rush that wine dealers have instituted an unofficial rationing. Not only have wines from France, Germany, and Italy been cut off, but imports from Spain, Portugal, and the British dominions have been heavily restricted.

U. S. WAGING WAR ON AXIS ALREADY, ITALIAN CHARGES

Press Makes a Mass Attack on America.

ROME, Jan. 18 (AP).—The charge that the United States already is "carrying out war against the axis powers and the tripartite pact according to its interests and the means at its disposal" was made today by one of Benito Mussolini's ministers.

This accusation, written by Education Minister Giuseppe Bottai in his Critica Fascista, was part of a wave of attacks on American aid to Britain in the Italian press.

Bottai said, "Every one makes war as he wishes and can," and added: "The United States is carrying out a war against the axis powers and the tripartite pact [of Germany, Italy, and Japan] according to its interests and the means at its disposal.

"Open American Aid."

"In vain does Roosevelt, in one of his last speeches, seek to maintain that open American aid to Great Britain does not constitute an act of war."

Viginio Gaydo, the highly placed commentator for Ill Giornale d'Italia, said American "interventionists," by their intense activity, were hoping to provoke the axis into reaction "which would then be passed off as a new aggressive move to which the United States would have to reply by force."

Asks "Who Is Aggressor?"

He then declared:

"Who is the aggressor? Nobody in Europe is molesting the United States. What obscure spirit of aggression is moving North American war currents against the axis powers? What alibi to hide their premeditated aggression and pass it off as a necessary defense of life and honor can these currents—which already have gone voluntarily against the rights of the people and of neutrality—still seek?"

HUSBAND SEES BRIDE LEAP TO DEATH FROM LOOP HOTEL WINDOW

While her husband looked on, Mrs. Leona Martin, 29 years old, of Madison, Wis., a bride of a week, leaped to her death last night from their 29th floor room in the tower of the Morrison hotel. Her body landed on the roof of the fourth floor offset over a store room.

The woman's husband, Clyde, 39, who said he was a professional labor mediator, said there had been no quarrel and that he could not explain his wife's act. He said they had driven to Chicago earlier in the evening on a honeymoon-business trip. With them were his brother, William, and his wife.

Clyde Martin said he went to the hotel barber shop and that when he returned to the room some time later he saw his wife leap out of the window just as he opened the door. He located his brother and then notified hotel detectives. Mrs. Martin was a former hospital technician in Madison. Both she and Martin had been married before.

Writer Sees Misery—but Determination, Too.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Jan. 18.—Life in France seven months after the armistice is about the same as during the period of full blast hostilities, except that the economic pinch and restrictions are felt far worse.

To some extent, full war conditions prevail in the zone occupied by the Germans, for daily bombings occur in towns along the Atlantic seaboard. Even Marseilles, on the French side of the line, has not escaped bombing and recently English aviators bombed Valence, in the Rhone valley.

During the last month I have been able to observe conditions in the main urban centers of the free zone, such as Nice, Marseilles, Lyons, and Clermont-Ferrand, and also to note the contrasts between the situation in those towns, in the smaller villages, in the countryside, and in Vichy, France's temporary capital.

Rigidly Observe Blackout.

In all these towns the blackout is rigidly observed as in the full war period.

Inside the public places and homes, because of the penury of materials, lighting is bad and it is hard to get new electric light bulbs. Electric current is also weaker.

In the bigger towns the curfew is between 11 and 11:30 p. m. In Vichy the closing hour is 10 p. m., but you may remain out until 11 to go to picture shows. After that, in theory, every one is supposed to be off the streets.

Everywhere the business of living has become a veritable struggle and people literally fight for their share of sustenances.

Finds the People Patient.

Life for all classes is hard. But the people are taking it with patience, discipline, and stoicism, refusing to believe such a situation can last forever.

Conditions vary from district to district. In France's far southeastern corner, around Nice and Cannes, which is the country's Florida and a winter playground, hotels and lodgings are overcrowded with an influx of visitors—many Jewish refugees and other foreigners—which has almost doubled the population.

The food situation in Nice and Cannes is more acute, if anything, than in larger towns like Marseilles and Lyons.

In the more expensive restaurants, which possibly thrive on "black markets," a square meal can be had, but in most other places the fare is scant. It is difficult for private citizens to do their marketing, due to the scarcity of trams and buses. People virtually tear each other to pieces for a chance to get on the conveyances. Sometimes people must wait two to three hours for a chance to ride home after having ventured downtown.

Ban on Dancing Stands.

Dancing still is prohibited, but the Hotel Ruhl in Nice and some other places have cabaret entertainment.

Along the Riviera coast, the villas which were occupied by winter visitors in years past are closed because of the difficulty in obtaining food supplies.

In Marseilles the situation is only a shade better. Marseilles gives the impression of a city living much below its ordinary exuberant level and struggling for life. Restaurants which I visited in the summer and where the food was sufficient now have scant fare and prices are higher. More beggars are encountered. More unrest is apparent among the unemployed. More shabbiness is noticeable and it is impossible to get about by the ordinary means of transportation.

Theaters Running Again.

Yet, from a passing view, Marseilles would look much the same except that it is under two feet of snow. The movie theaters and cafés have their full quotas. Even the legitimate theaters have reopened. Josephine Baker is a star in one revue and Maurice Chevalier is seen again on the stage.

Thru the Rhone valley toward Lyons, with its cold and dismal towns, the absence of men is striking. They are in prison camps and their absence slows the tempo of life. But in these smaller towns, which are closer to the rural districts and the farming communities, the food situation is a little better and the outlook on life is not so gloomy.

In Lyons the hotels are overcrowded with refugees, commissions of control, business houses, and newspapers which have reëstablished their headquarters there as the temporary heart of the country. But the town lags. Goods slowly disappear from the shelves in the stores and cannot be replaced. Industries languish because there are no raw materials. Unemployment has been reduced, but only by employing men and women on public works financed by the government. The food supplies slowly diminish and the people are eating crow, hawk, and weasel meat.

Communism, altho closely watched, is showing its head both there and in all other sections with increasing audacity.

Lyons Puts on Brave Front.

But a brave front is being put on by this city, which was the most prosperous in France in normal times. While stocks of most products are low, a theater gives nightly performances of French classical plays, a Turkish bath is open twice weekly, morning and afternoon papers are shouted in the streets, the trains are insufficient but tolerable, and in some of the best hotels the heating is sufficient. Still, one feels a rumble of uneasiness and municipal politics is obscure.

Actress a Bride

LINDA HAYES.

Yuma, Ariz., Jan. 18 [Special].—Linda Hayes, featured player under contract to the RKO studios, today was married here to Radio Announcer Lew Crosby. The ceremony, performed in the Presbyterian church by Dr. R. C. Atchison, was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Norris Goff of Hollywood. Goff, who was best man, is familiarly known to radio fans as Abner of Lum and Abner.

The couple announced they will spend the next three weeks or so in or near Palm Springs, Cal.

Miss Hayes about a year ago was divorced from Musician Dominic Germano. It also was Crosby's second matrimonial venture.

FRENCH, GERMAN INDUSTRIALISTS SEEK CLOSE TIES

Meet in Paris to Work Out Full Plans.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Jan. 18.—French and German heavy industries are working out a plan for full coöperation, it was disclosed tonight by the ministry of labor and industrial production.

The ministry said that representatives of the French and German metallurgical industries have been meeting in Paris for several days, and that questions of distribution of orders and supplies of raw materials have been thrashed out.

Form Five Commissions.

To facilitate the discussions, it was announced, commissions were organized for the machine construction, mechanical goods, precision instrument, electrical construction and automobile and bicycle industries.

It was stated that this first concrete effort at collaboration has revealed advantages which France might derive from the policy laid down by Marshal Henri Petain in an agrement with Adolf Hitler at Montoire.

Sees United Economy.

Discussing the agreements already reached by the industrialists, one official of the ministry said that the first stones were being laid for a United European economy which the Germans and French are seeking to construct. Foreign Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin is an outspoken exponent of Franco-German economic collaboration.

Diplomatic circles took considerable interest in the deal. They viewed it from the standpoint of American Ambassador William D. Leahy's supposed mission in Vichy and world interest in American moves to give further aid to Britain as well as Russian efforts to supply Germany.

Report New Nazi Demands.

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—Otto Abetz, German ambassador to Paris, and Fernand de Brinon, the Vichy government's representative there, are expected to arrive soon at Vichy to present a series of new demands from Berlin, the British Broadcasting corporation declared today.

WORRIED; HANGS HERSELF.

Mrs. Tekla O'Connor, 52 years old, ended her life yesterday by slashing her wrist in her home at 7141 Diversey avenue. Her husband, Frank, a coal yard worker, told police she had worried over the illness of her sister.

U. S. CAN'T PICK FIGHT WITH US, NAZIS DECLARE

BERLIN, Jan. 19, Sunday (AP).—Karl Megerle, chief editorial mouthpiece of the foreign office, gave notice today to the United States in an editorial in the Boersenzeitung that Germany would not "let itself be provoked" no matter how hard America tried to pick a quarrel.

Megerle said that America with a chip on its shoulder would not deter Germany from "carrying on the fight for freedom and justice for young nations until victory."

He lashed out at Secretary of State Hull and charged Hull and President Roosevelt with "introducing a foreign policy which will result in an incalculable precedent in world politics."

Referring to Secretary Hull's charge that Germany has determined upon a policy of unlimited conquests, Megerle asked if "America or the English empire were founded by treaties, prayers, peaceful discussions, or by force and war?"

BRITISH BOMBS SET 2 BIG FIRES IN TOBRUK RAID

Rome Claims Attack on Kenya Repulsed.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 18 (AP).—British bombers raided the besieged Italian base of Tobruk, Libya, Thursday night, starting two big fires in military buildings and causing 10 explosions, the royal air force middle east command said today.

Smaller fires and one large explosion also were caused near the main quay, a communique said. Derna likewise was raided and a number of bombs dropped on the barracks there.

On the ground, a communique said, there was no change in the situation. The British were still drawing up artillery and preparing the way for an assault on the base.

The airdrome at Martiza, Rhodes, also was attacked Thursday night and fires and explosions resulted, the communique said.

In Italian East Africa, the Caproni works shops in the Mai Adaga area were again raided, the R. A. F. reported.

Italian airplanes visited the Nile valley last night for the first time since the British offensive began in the western desert. Cairo had two alerts and the planes bombed a canal, but there were no casualties. Alexandria also was raided without result, a communique said.

Claim Kenya Raid Repulsed.

ROME, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Italian high command said today a "strong enemy attack, supported by planes and tanks," had been "completely repulsed" by Italian troops on the Kenya front in East Africa. "Many losses" were inflicted, the daily war bulletin said.

On the Sudan front, the communique said, the British made an attack on a Fascist position with "armed motor vehicles which . . . were put to flight."

Increased artillery and patrol activity around the British encircled Italian garrison at Tobruk, on the Libyan coast, also was reported.

On the Giarabub oasis front, some 150 miles southeast of Tobruk, the communique said, "our planes bombed and machine gunned enemy trops and motorized equipment." A British Hurricane fighter plane was reported shot down by naval anti-aircraft fire during a raid on Tobruk.

Record on Bridges

Comparison of the number of times that movable bridges in Chicago were opened during the last three years.

TRAFFIC DELAYED 4,545 HOURS BY BRIDGE OPENINGS

Chicago's 55 movable bridges went up, went down, or swung 73,733 times during 1940. The bridge movements delayed motorists, pedestrians, and street car and rapid transit riders 272,712 minutes, or 4,545 hours, according to a report by William J. Lynch, city harbormaster.

The bridges were opened 76,814 times in 1939 and 81,118 times in 1938.

Part of the reduction last year resulted from the removal of the State street bridge in May, 1939. The Harrison street bridge was out of operation from May 6 to July 3 last year.

The average length of time a bridge was open last year was 3.7 minutes.

SALESMAN SHOT FIGHTING BANDIT; GIRL LOOKS ON

Jack Powers, 30 years old, was shot in the left side when he grappled with one of two bandits who attempted to hold him up as he sat in his car with Miss Doris Biel, 22, near her home at 3723 Irving Park road, early today. The bandit opened the car door and ordered Powers to move over. Powers lunged at the bandit and the two grappled in the street. In the scuffle Powers was shot. The bandits fled and Powers was taken to the American hospital after being treated by Dr. Abraham Kushner of 3738 Irving Park road. Powers, a salesman, lives at 527 Woodbine avenue, Oak Park.

poses they were British vessels. They were actually subject to the orders of the British officer under whom they were stationed altho in theory they were under the command of Vice Admiral William S. Sims, American member of the allied naval command at London, who fell under the complete sway of the British admiralty.

So thoroly had the American 9th battle squadron become Anglicized by the end of the war that Beatty invited the Americans to "come back soon" in bidding the united farewell on the dissolution of the grand fleet. Interventionists are now striving to accept this 20 year old invitation.

Guard Convoy Flanks.

The American navy also had three battleships stationed at Berehaven on Bantry bay in Ireland to guard convoy flanks. Other European destroyer squadrons were stationed at Brest and Gibraltar. There was a mixed squadron at the Azores and subchaser squadrons at Corfu in the Ionian Islands and at Plymouth, England.

Of these, the Gibraltar squadron was more independent of the British than the others. This unit supplied escorts for 25 per cent of the allied Mediterranean shipping and 75 per cent of the convoys between Gibraltar and England.

The greatest job of the American navy, except for the escorting of two million American soldiers to France, was its part in laying the mine barrage in the North sea, which ended Germany's submarine warfare.

Of 70,200 mines sown, 56,600 were laid by the American portion of the mine laying fleet operating with British units.

FIRST 40 TENANTS MOVE INTO WELLS HOUSING PROJECT

The first 40 tenants of the 9 million dollar Ida B. Wells housing project for low income colored families moved in yesterday. Residences will be provided for 1,662 families when the project is completed next June. The first units completed are at 409 to 421 East 37th street and 500 to 570 East Pershing road.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Warren received the first house key from Robert R. Taylor, vice chairman of the Chicago Housing authority. The Warrens, who have two children, Ronald, 4 years old, and Leslie Jr., 6 months, formerly lived in a substandard dwelling at 446 East 46th street. Warren is a laborer for a meat packing company.

Tenants, all with incomes averaging less than $900 a year, will pay from $18 to $23 a month rent, including the cost of utilities. Thirty-six residences of 4½ rooms, three of 6½ rooms, and one with 5½ rooms were occupied yesterday. The project is operated by the Chicago Housing authority.

TWO DIE IN CAR CRASH.

Morris, Ill., Jan. 18 [Special].—James Little, 59 years old, and George Scamen, 60, were killed here last night when their car sidewiped a truck load of tile belonging to the Beatty Lumber company. Four others in the car were injured. All were WPA workers, returning from the government powder plant being constructed at Wimington.

TWO WAYS FOUND FOR GETTING JOB AT ARMS PLANT

In Unionized Trades It's Difficult Process.

There are two ways to get a job on the construction of the $45,000,000 munitions plants which the government is starting in Will county.

Under the first method, workers whose trades are not unionized are interviewed by skilful members of the personnel staffs of the two contracting firms which are setting up the plant. They are hired or rejected on merit alone and no strings are attached to the jobs. The job classifications so handled include supervisors, surveyors, timekeepers, guards, watchmen, and clerks.

But the second group, composed of men whose trades are unionized, are not so fortunate. The contracting firms—Stone and Webster Engineering corporation, with offices near Elwood, and the Sanderson & Porter Engineering company, whose headquarters are near Wilmington—turn these applicants over to state and union employés who decide the terms on which they shall be hired.

Four Requirements Listed.

First, each man seeking a job in union controled trades is told at the company offices that the government plan for hiring stipulates [1] that he must register with the state employment office nearest his home; [2] join the local union of his trade; [3] wait for a telephone call to come to work and, [4] that 75 per cent of those hired must be from Will and Grundy counties.

This last provision, according to men loitering about the field offices, was decreed by Tony Augustino, president of local 75 of the laborers' union in Will and Grundy counties.

To get the approval of the state employment office and of Augustino, the prospective worker must go to Joliet, 12 miles from Elwood and 18 miles from Wilmington.

At the employment office, 120 Scott street, he may find as many as 200 job seekers waiting for credentials, with 12 interviewers taking the required information on which the O. K. will be based. One of the requirements is that the applicant must produce a social security card. This may be had, if lacking, from the Joliet postoffice.

Demand Telephone Number.

The telephone number is demanded, it was explained at the state office, because the manager will not let men loiter about the office waiting for his call. This is just a beginning. The applicant, if a laborer, must still make his arrangements with Augustino, who has an office at 508 North Chicago avenue, Joliet.

Augustino, the acknowledged labor boss of the Joliet area for 20 years, informed a typical applicant that he can go to work only if he agrees to pay $1 a day for 21 days to the union; $15 as a membership fee and $6 as dues for three months. No payment in advance is required by the boss.

A carpenter must go to the office of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners at 101 West Jefferson street, Joliet. The union's initiation fee is $100, payable $20 a week for five weeks. A plasterer's initiation fee is $80, payable in six instalments, and a sheet metal worker's $152.50—$10 from the first pay check and $5 weekly after that. An electrician's fee to join the union is $300, at the rate of $22.50 every three months plus 3 per cent of his wages.

Between 300 and 400 men have gone to work on the two projects this week. It is believed, however, that less than 75 per cent are from Will and Grundy counties, as applicants from other territories have been adopting local addresses and phone numbers to get work. It was reported that one Joliet resident offers for $1 to let any applicant use his home as a clearing house for messages.

One young man was frank in saying he had given a fake name and telephone number and a work record that really belonged to a friend. He explained that he was desperate for a job.

He and others said the interviewers at the state employment office were slower and easier to deceive than the trained personnel force maintained by the contractors.

The state employment staff is under civil service and no questions on political affiliations are asked.

FAMILIES ROUTED BY FIRE.

A fire at 8915 Commercial avenue yesterday drove several families to the street and did damage estimated at $5,000. The blaze started in a third floor closet, apparently from a defective chimney.

DODGE PRICES START AT

HONESTLY, did you know how easy it is to get in the "Big Car Class" in 1941? Did you realize that the big, beautiful Dodge still sells for just a few dollars more than smaller, low-priced cars?

Well, it's true...and it's the big "Value Story" of 1941! You get an interior so beautiful it's a constant source of pride. You get seats as wide as a divan...deep, pillow-type cushions...and many luxurious appointments that bespeak Dodge fine craftsmanship at its best.

And under the beautiful hood is that money-saving Dodge "Powerhouse" . . . the famous "Scotch Dynamite" Engine. It was built to save motorists money...to deliver maximum smooth power at lowest cost. And protecting its moving parts is the new Oil Bath Air Cleaner that removes dirt and grit from the air before it enters the carburetor...prevents injury to cylinders and bearings...greatly prolongs engine life.

As you'd expect, the same brilliant engineering that gave the world genuine hydraulic brakes, safety-steel body, and many other great safety advances once again leads the way with new safety features in 1941.

The new larger rear window increases visibility 47.6 percent! New safety wheel rims hold the tire to the rim should a flat occur! And even the rear deck lid has its own new safety feature...it's "spring-balanced" to raise or lower at a finger-touch...and it stays in place safely!

Before you decide on any car, you owe it to yourself and your pocketbook to get this whole money-saving story. Do it today at your Dodge dealer's. And ask him about the easy budget terms.

VOLUNTEERS AID 2 COMMITTEES IN ANTI-WAR DRIVE

Volunteers continued yesterday to classify and forward to Illinois congressmen thousands of names of Americans joining in an intensive drive against the Roosevelt war dictatorship bill. From their regular occupations the volunteers hurried over to work in the offices of the America First committee and the Citizens' Keep America Out of War committee.

These committees reported that 328,000 names, divided about equally between the two groups, have been assembled. In its new offices at 122 South Michigan avenue the Chicago chapter of the America First committee welcomed 15 typists and 10 other volunteers for the work.

Committee on Job Today.

More than 60 per cent of the names which came in yesterday were received by telephone. The America First committee chapter will be on the job today. The telephone numbers are Wabash 5473, 5474, 5475, 5476, and 5477.

All the original letters are being forwarded to United States Senator Scott W. Lucas, Democrat, who in his 1938 campaign pledged that he would "never vote a dime to pull the chestnuts of foreign nations out of the fire." Senator Wayland Brooks, Republican, is being notified of all communications, as are the 25 district congressmen and the two representatives-at-large for Illinois.

Mrs. Janet Ayer Fairbank, vice chairman of the Chicago chapter, yesterday urged patriots to pay heed to the statement of Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] that England is insisting that the United States enter the war at once.

"Suddenly we see exposed the entire long, careful campaign to get us into the war," Mrs. Fairbank said.

Women's Group Sends Protests.

Miss Jessamine Hoagland, executive vice president of the Roll Call of American Women, which recently merged with the America First committee, departed yesterday for Washington, D. C., bearing a red, white, and blue book containing the names of 11,000 members. She will present it to Congressman at Large William G. Stratton, who will give it to Senator Walter F. George, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

A unit of the America First committee has been formed at the Hines Memorial hospital for disabled veterans, it was announced.

"This fight is by no means hopeless if the people will make themselves heard," said Capt. William J. Grace, chairman of the Citizens' Keep America Out of War committee. "The fight is in the same stage now as was the successful fight against the league of nations in 1920. If we can hold out against the forces of internationalism we can win again."

Capt. Grace announced that O. K. Armstrong of Springfield, Mo., former chairman of the foreign relations committee of the American Legion, will be the second speaker at a mass meeting in the Auditorium theater next Sunday night. The first speaker will be Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.].

Seeks Millions of Names.

Earl Southard, secretary of the committee, said this organization has assumed a "tremendous task" in the gathering of millions of protests against the trend toward war.

"Our plan is to get as many signatures as the number of votes President Roosevelt received last November," Southard said. "The vote then was no mandate because there was no opportunity to vote on the war issue. Two heirs of Woodrow Wilson's internationalism put on a shadow boxing contest. Real Americans had no choice because Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie agreed, in substance, that America should go back and become a crown colony of the British empire."

Meanwhile, the opposing group, the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, reported that it has obtained thousands of signatures to a petition urging congressmen to pass the President's bill without delay.

Protest Bill for Dictatorship

R. Douglas Stuart Jr., executive secretary of the America First committee, handing to Miss Jessamine Hoagland, executive vice president of the Roll Call of American Women, a book containing the names of 11,000 members of her organization who protest dictator bill.

2 TAXI DRIVERS PLEAD GUILTY TO BEATING SOLDIER

Two Highwood cab drivers pleaded guilty before County Judge Perry L. Persons in Waukegan yesterday to a charge of assaulting Private Le Roy Polzin, 22 years old, of Company D, 2d infantry, Fort Sheridan. The two are Roland Stanley, 20, and Peter Murphy, 21, drivers for the Black and White Cab company. They attacked Polzin Wednesday on the reservation after an argument over a fare.

The two will appear Wednesday before Judge Persons for sentencing. Murphy was freed on $2,000 bond. Stanley is held in the Lake County jail.

Mayor Charles Portilia of Highwood, informed yesterday that Lieut. Sidney De Love, assistant provost marshal at the fort, had banned Black and White cabs from the fort, announced that he had asked Bernard Juron, city attorney, to prepare a new taxicab ordinance for presentation to the city council Feb. 7. The mayor said the new ordinance would include moral standards for drivers and provisions for revocation of licenses.

3 Legionnaires to Study British Civilian Defense

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—The American Legion announced tonight that Milo J. Warner, its national commander, will head a delegation of three Legionnaires who will visit Great Britain and study problems of civilian defense. Warner will select the other two members of the group. The state department agreed today to issue passports for the visit.

KENNEDY URGES NATION TO KEEP OUT OF THE WAR

Put United States First, Envoy Pleads.

to speak for the nation. The reputation of the American press for fairness is being compromised by the tactics of these men.

See Critical Times Ahead.

"This habit of smearing an opponent because you disagree with what he stands for is a distinct menace to our free institutions. How can we maintain national unity when the motives of patriotic men are indiscriminately assailed? Intolerance breeds intolerance, and the whole country suffers. No matter who wins this war, America faces most critical times. If at this early date intolerance of contrary opinions flourishes, our future is dark indeed.

"A favorite device of an aggressive minority is to call any American, questioning the likelihood of a British victory an 'apostle of gloom'—a defeatist. I always believed that when the American people sent an ambassador to a foreign country they expected him to report the facts to his government as he saw them, the bright side and the dark side—the good things and the bad things—the strength and the weaknesses.

"I never thought that it was my function to report pleasant stories that were not true. Every one will agree that had I, as your ambassador, reported to our government anything but the truth as I saw it, I would have been false to my trust—I would have betrayed my country.

Says He Looked Ahead.

"When I reported to our government the seriousness of the problems that faced the British people I did it in considerable detail, and purposely, because I wanted our government to have all the information possible affecting the plight of Great Britain so that this country in the days to come could guide itself more intelligently in its foreign policy regardless of what the outcome of the war might be.

"As support for the charge that I am an apostle of gloom, it is said that I have predicted the defeat of Great Britain. That statement is not true. I am aware of and have reported on the serious obstacles to British victory. I know many of Britain's weaknesses, but a prediction can be based only on a complete knowledge of the strength and weaknesses of both sides.

"There are many phenomena in this war which defy explanation even by the most expert. If the German air force can practically destroy a city in a one night raid as in Coventry, why is it that it has failed to wipe out industrial England in a series of these raids?

Asks Why Ports Are Open.

"If, as we know, England can live only if her ports remain open, why has not the German air force concentrated its efforts on closing these ports by aerial bombardment? It has made but few raids on Liverpool and Bristol and those only recently. What is the answer? I don't know. Apparently no one does.

"The morale of the British nation defies description. It is as fine a display of human courage as has ever been witnessed. But what do we know about the morale of the German army or of the German people? Have they this quality of toughness or are they brittle after eight years of tyranny? These are but a few of the unknown elements which may well determine the final outcome.

"Thus a prediction now of England's defeat would be senseless. One can recognize the enormous difficulties facing Britain without foreseeing its defeat.

Denies He's Appeaser.

"Another label used as a smear against certain citizens who favor keeping America out of the war is the word 'appeaser.' I have been called one. Here is my answer. If by that word, now possessed of hateful implications, it is charged that I advocate a deal with the dictators contrary to the British desires, or that I advocate placing any trust or confidence in their promises, the charge is false and malicious. The word of these tyrants has been shown to be worthless. They themselves proclaim that their promises are sham.

"But, if I am called an appeaser because I oppose the entrance of this country into the present war, I cheerfully plead guilty. So must every one of you who want to keep America out of war.

"The term 'war monger' is another example of this unfortunate trend; such a charge does not help us in deciding what is best for our country. We ought to be done with this sort of stuff which only confuses and divides. We ought to give a fair hearing to all sides. In that way we will be right and united.

Assails Smear Campaign.

"This smear campaign is particularly violent against many of our citizens who desire this country's influence to be used in an effort to bring about a just and lasting peace. These men feel that we are already on a toboggan ride towards involvement in the European war.

"They believe that as long as this war continues, there is the ever increasing possibility—yes, probability—that we ourselves will become involved, bringing ruin to our civilization and an end to our democratic form of life. We cannot blame these men for working for peace. Such an impulse springs from the oldest and most constant of man's desires.

"Of course it is only too true that a just peace at this time does not appear to be in the cards. Hitler, the man who wanted war, has slammed the door on peace. To all the world he has proclaimed that he, Hitler, wages total war for a new world order—a new world where our society of justice according to law cannot even exist.

"Realizing, therefore, that we cannot hope for a just peace in the near future, let us consider what should be America's policy.

"Since my return home what has impressed me most is the growing conflict in the minds of the American people over the two courses of action which the vast majority of Americans advocate — aiding Britain and staying out of war. Nearly all the American people want to aid Britain, and practically all of the same people want to stay out of war. But they are beginning to feel that these policies may prove inconsistent. When they try to reconcile them in their own minds they become confused. If one emphasizes aid to Britain, he thereby risks entering the war. If, on the other hand, he emphasizes avoidance of war, he minimizes the aid to Britain.

"I think that these policies can be applied without confusion and without risk of contradiction. We need but apply the test which should motivate every one of us. Whenever the issue is raised, whether for the President, the congress, the army or the navy, the test for any proposal should be — what is best for the United States of America?

Aid to Britain Problem.

"In considering what is best for the United States, let us look at the problem of aid to Britain. I favor now, as I did in my talk for the President, that we give the utmost aid to England. By so doing we will be assisting a nation which the American people want to see win. But more than that, by helping Britain we will be securing for ourselves the most precious commodity we need — time — time to rearm.

"If, and God forbid, England were to be defeated quickly and the Germans succeed to the British navy, this country now is not prepared to defend its own shores, let alone the North American continent.

"It is true that we are awake at last and we are preparing. In this modern war where industry is more vital than manpower, an awakened America can speedily make its gigantic power felt by all the world. England's spirited defense is affording us precious time for rearming. It is consequently to our interest that England be aided in her courageous battle.

No Aid to Point of War.

"No one will seriously urge that we should give beyond the absolute minimum necessary for our own protection. Where that line is to be drawn is to be determined by the President acting with our trained experts of the army and the navy.

"They know best what we can spare. The American people have confidence in them and will trust their judgment. They have taken an oath to defend this country and that means defend it against all aggressors. However, because in addition to wanting to aid Britain the American people want to stay out of war, this aid should not and must not go to the point where war becomes inevitable.

"So far as financing the assistance we give to Great Britain is concerned, my personal opinion is that the British ought to make available to us all the assets we can use. If after the resources of Great Britain were used up it were still sound American policy to assist them I would prefer that it be done thru outright gifts, since I would not expect that loans could be repaid.

Eye to U. S. Protection.

"Under our policy we can give them guns; we can give them ammunition; we can give them airplanes; we can give them everything that doesn't make war inevitable. Because aid to England is part of a constructive American policy to safeguard America we should go to the very limit in our assistance, but not to a point which would endanger our own protection.

"Many Americans fear that Hitler will declare war on us if we continue to aid Great Britain. To declare a state of war is a bit outmoded in these days of unbridled force. Don't forget that Hitler will declare war on this country, or will make an attack, only when he thinks that such action is for his best interests.

"This country certainly has committed acts sufficiently unneutral to justify a less despotic tyrant than Hitler to declare war. The American people obviously have not the slightest desire to remain neutral in the face of the aggression of the axis powers.

Wants Hitler Destroyed.

"It is not surprising that we desire Hitler's defeat. The English are defending a society which respects law and which upholds the dignity of the individual. All of us want very much to see destroyed once and for all the attempted decivilization of the world in the name of Nazi pagan philosophy.

"Despite the growing hysteria, despite all the clamor and the shouting, despite all the charges and countercharges, the various groups in America are not far apart. Only a very few Americans want to go to war. I respect their sincerity, but I prefer the judgment of the great majority who believe that to go to war is not for our best interests.

"Who really wants war? Certainly the isolationists [with whom I cannot sympathize] do not want war. The President has declared on many occasions that he does not want war. Congress surely is dedicated to the task of keeping us at peace. Why, then, all the shouting?

Hits Fatalistic Attitude.

"Perhaps it is due to a certain fatalistic attitude, lately noticeable, to the effect that no matter what we do we are bound to be drawn into the war as an active combatant. These people who have lost hope for peace in America, I say, are the real defeatists. With such a position, I flatly disagree. Unless we are attacked, the American people do not have to go to war.

"They will not go to war if they will stay out of war. There will be no American intervention while there continues to be free and open discussion, while the people know all the facts, and while our system of popular government functions.

"There are those who say if we stay out and Hitler wins we will be subject to a military attack by a combination of the totalitarian powers. On this question of a threatened invasion of our country, I said in my speech favoring the reelection of President Roosevelt that I have been a witness to a small but brave air force holding at bay an overwhelmingly superior air armada and preventing an invasion over but 20 miles of water.

Tells of Britain's Plight.

"After the fall of France and the retreat of Dunkirk, the English defenses were in a deplorable state. Vast quantities of arms and ammunition had been destroyed and captured. Only a miracle had rescued its army. Even hunting rifles were being collected in England in order to equip part of their fighting forces. In spite of such handicaps, and in spite of the fact that the conquest of the British Isles would have given Hitler domination of Europe, the Germans have never been able to secure a foothold on that island.

"Consider what it means to transport troops and ammunition over 3,000 miles of storm-tossed ocean; consider what risks are involved in seeking to pierce naval and air defenses. What would our enemies use as bases for their planes? What as bases for their shipping? I have read that Dakar in Africa is only five or six hours by plane to the most easterly point of South America. But I am assuming that our policy with the other Americas will guarantee mutual protection.

Cites Monroe Doctrine.

"But suppose a foreign power, by guile, coercion, or subversive activities should secure the support of any of the countries in this hemisphere. We certainly have a right to expect that in their own self-interest the other countries of this hemisphere will, thru diplomacy or force, or both, insist that the principle of the Monroe doctrine be maintained.

"And mind you, after an enemy had flown across an ocean, it would be faced with the problem of maintaining its forces and supplies large enough to cope with the resources of the North American continent which would speedily be brought to bear against them. Remember that the experience in this war to date indicates that ships, even tho protected with naval strength, face severe handicaps in seeking to land in the face of an attacking air force operating from a land base.

Cites War in Mediterranean.

"Reports from the Mediterranean seem to support this contention. Moreover, it is still very difficult to transport many tanks or many pieces of heavy ammunition in airplanes. I hope, therefore, that I am not too cheerful or too optimistic when I express confidence that we in America can successfully defend ourselves, assuming we avail ourselves of the opportunity to make ourselves strong.

"And why shouldn't we have such confidence in ourselves. After all we are a country of 130 million people with a great record for vigor, ingenuity, and bravery. For the life of me I cannot understand why the tale of a great military machine 3,000 miles away should make us fear for our security. Let America devote its energies to armaments—those energies which have heretofore followed peaceful pursuits—and I have little doubt but that we can be secure against any power or group of powers in the wide world.

Considers Economic Phase.

"Another point frequently stressed in debates about our foreign policy is that if the Germans win, the totalitarian system will ruin us economically. Let me state, first of all, that I believe that with the declaration of war on Sept. 3, 1939, America's economy entered an acute phase. I opposed the war because I believed that the day Europe went to war, regardless of whether we ever participated, our problems from that minute on became critical.

"I quite agree that if England were to win this war we would be a great deal better off than we would be if England lost. There is no argument on that score. The point of argument, however, is on the question of whether to help England win the war we should get into the war ourselves, thus exhausting our own resources so as to threaten our whole civilization.

"Frankly, if I could be assured that America, unprepared as she now is, could by declaring war on Germany, within the space of say a year end the threat of German domination, I would be in favor of declaring war right now.

Not Prepared, He Says.

"The inescapable point, however, is that we are not prepared to fight a war—even a defensive one—at the moment, let alone an offensive one. Furthermore, could anyone make a safe prediction that the war would be ended in a year, or even two with what help we would be able to send?

"As I said in my speech for the President, I cannot see where we could get the ships to carry the necessary army and equipment for our participation in the war. Further than that, I really don't know where our army would go if we started off to fight a war. Just as I regard it impossible for a foreign power to invade this country, so do I regard it impossible for us to invade Europe.

"The British say that they have approximately one and one-half million soldiers under arms. Assuming that all those men could be used in an attempt to invade Europe and were not necessary for the protection of the Mediterranean or their own island home, I fail to see by what process the six million Germans under arms would be overwhelmed.

"It certainly can't be lurking in the minds of even the most rabid interventionists that we could send into this kind of a war a sufficiently large expeditionary force to make up for the disproportion between the German and the English military forces.

"There are those who say, 'Ah, but we can go to war and yet not use our manpower.' This sounds feasible today. Would it be feasible six months hence? I do not believe it. To me we are either all the way in the war or all the way out of it. Even if it appears to be feasible today, let us not forget that never in the history of mankind have events taken

Hydra-Matic Drive*!

"GREATEST SAFETY DEVELOPMENT SINCE 4-WHEEL BRAKES!"

November 13, 1940.

Oldsmobile Division,
General Motors Sales Corp.,
Lansing, Michigan.

Gentlemen:

Records show that a high percentage of automobile accidents are traceable to driving fatigue. Because Hydra-Matic Drive eliminates hundreds of clutch and gear shift operations per hour of city driving, it unquestionably saves driving effort and reduces fatigue. It naturally follows, therefore, that a driver of a Hydra-Matic car is less liable to be involved in a fatigue-caused accident.

The ability, too, of a Hydra-Matic driver to keep both hands on the wheel at all times, because gear shifting is automatic, is an added safety advantage. Personally, I regard Hydra-Matic Drive as the greatest safety development since 4-wheel brakes.

KENNEDY URGES NATION TO KEEP OUT OF THE WAR

Put United States First, Envoy Pleads.

place with such lightning speed. Last February some were calling it a 'phoney' war.

"In May the Germans struck. In 60 days Hitler had conquered a large part of Europe. If we go to war our manpower cannot be preserved from battle. Only yesterday Mr. Churchill said, 'We do not require in 1941 large armies from overseas.' Does that mean our boys are expected over there in 1942?

What Would Be U. S. Aims?

"What would be our war aims? We have not had any debate on that score. We certainly are not going into the war just to underwrite the war aims of another country without knowing what they are. Germany under Hitler has no war aims except to dominate the world. She probably could not turn back now if she desired.

"England is, of course, fighting for her existence, but already we hear dissatisfaction that the aims of the British nation in this total war have not been set forth. Are we to sign a blank check? Common sense would seem to require that there be the most complete clarification of American aims in this conflict before we take the fatal step.

Sees Threat to Democracy.

"Some use the argument that should the axis powers prevail they would inevitably impose on America a totalitarian régime. They therefore argue that we should go to war to prevent this. But have they considered that by becoming involved in a war they may lose the very thing for which they are fighting? How long could a democracy last while trying to fight a long drawn out war?

"As Arthur Greenwood, the British labor leader, speaking in a debate at the Oxford Union, said: 'If this war is fought to exhaustion, we will experience an impoverishment the like of which Britain has never seen. And we will find at the end of the road of all our bloodshed and suffering—not a democracy, but an authoritarian régime of the right or of the left.'

"But we here in America do not want a dictatorship of either the right or the left. We want to preserve our democracy. And, ladies and gentlemen, we are not going to preserve anything by getting into this war.

Would Leave Russia Stronger.

"It is said that we cannot exist in a world where totalitarianism rules. I grant you it is a terrible future to contemplate. But why should anyone think that our getting into a war would preserve our ideals, a war which would then practically leave Russia alone outside the war area getting stronger while the rest of the world approached exhaustion?

"Suppose we go in and the war continues for two or three years. We will be paying the whole bill, make no mistake about that. Does anyone in his right mind think that the world won't be completely bankrupt? Mind you, even now we are supporting China financially and we have already made available 500 million dollars to South America to aid her economy.

What of World Status?

"Well, at the end of the war we win—so what? What is the status of the world? Who is going to reorganize Europe? England and the United States? But we are then in a bad way, and we must contemplate great internal problems of our own. Our taxes will be high; more people will be paying them; our national debt will be enormous; we will have an army to demobilize; we will have to readjust a whole nation, agricultural as well as industrial, in the transition from a war basis to a peace basis. England will have the same conditions.

"Yet, to keep defeated Germany and the other countries from going completely communistic we will have to reorganize them as well as ourselves, probably standing guard while this reorganization is taking place. I shudder to contemplate it.

"This Is Not Our War."

"Are our children's and our grandchildren's lives to be spent standing guard in Europe while heaven knows what happens in America? These are only some of the factors to be considered when it is suggested that we get in the war.

"Another argument we hear is that it is our duty to go to war because England is fighting our battle. England is not fighting our battle. This is not our war. We were not consulted when it began. We had no veto power over its continuance. England's own leaders have told us why they are fighting.

"They are fighting for their very existence. It does happen that England's spirited defense is greatly to our advantage. It is true she is waging a war against a force which seeks to destroy the rule of conscience and reason, a force that proclaims its hostility to law, to family life, even to religion itself.

Arm and Give British Help.

"Therefore we ought to arm to the teeth and give as much help as we can. But let us do it on the basis of preserving American ideals and interests. But make no mistake, let no nation think that because the American people do not want war they will not go to war should their own vital interests be at stake.

"One hears the argument that if war is declared the President will secure powers needed for our defense. The President has very wide authority under existing law. Congress, I feel certain, will give him all the power that the protection of American interests require.

"The recent bill, H. R. 1776, called the 'lease-lend bill,' seeks to confer upon the President authority unheard of in our history. It seeks to vest in the executive powers which the President says he does not want and would not accept but for the emergency. The opponents of the bill claim that it amounts to an abdication by congress of its responsibility and that it is not necessary at this time.

"Fortunately, out of the hearings the American people will learn what are the factors which it is claimed make the bill necessary, what is the meaning of its proposals in detail, and what powers are to be exercised. Personally, I am a great believer in centralized responsibility, and as a corollary, in conferring all powers necessary to carry out that responsibility.

"Moreover, I appreciate full well that time is of the essence. Nevertheless, I am unable to agree with the proponents of this bill that it has yet been shown that we face such immediate danger as to justify this surrender of the authority and responsibility of the congress. I believe that after the hearings have been completed there will be revealed less drastic ways of meeting the problem of adequate authority for the President.

Duty of Americans Plain.

"However, after there has been debate and a bill, whatever it may be, becomes part of our law, I think the duty of every American citizen is plain. All of us must rally behind the President so that he may carry on with a nation which has debated in the democratic manner, has acted in the democratic manner, and is united in the cause of preserving our own democracy.

"Regardless of what our foreign policy should be, it is obvious that as a nation we must go 'all out' for rearmament. It is only in this way that the American people can realize their national policy of security and their desire to help England. The more we rearm, the larger our arsenal, the more we shall have available for England. There is no need to fear if we prepare.

"Our bill of rights will be intact if we hold a free and open discussion and maintain tolerance for those with whom we disagree. No one group or one class can possibly bear the burden of sacrifice which must be borne by every man, woman, and child, rich and poor alike, even if our present program is the limit. But no burden is too great a price to pay for the safety of our beloved country.

May Have to Fight Some Time.

"Eventually we may have to fight to defend our civilization. The future in that respect is unknown and unknowable. Let us all appreciate here and now that come what may in the fortunes of war our easy life of yesterday is at an end. Our lot in the future will be a difficult one—win, lose, or draw.

"America has had enough of words. Our friends across the water want more than phrases. Words will not give them armaments; words will not make us strong. America must unite—now. America must sacrifice—now. America must work—now.

"I do not pretend that by staying at peace our path will be easy. But I do assert that by staying at peace we will be in a far better position to meet the gigantic problems we must face.

"The American people want to avoid war. If the leaders keep constantly before them what war means in terms of human tragedy, if congress is ever alert to the dangers of involvement, the national determition will be translated into effective action and this country will not go to war."

Warns Against War

VOLUNTEERS FILL QUOTAS OF TWO DRAFT BOARDS

Two of the nine Cook county draft boards scheduled to furnish men for induction into the army next Thursday have filled their quotas entirely with volunteers, it was announced at county draft headquarters yesterday. The nine boards, on the north and near northwest sides, will send 151 men to the induction. Ninety-five of these will be volunteers.

The order numbers of the drafted men show that the nine boards had to go thru a total of 379 registrants to obtain 56 men. This makes the proportion of 1-A men available for immediate service 15 per cent, or less than one in six. The ratios of individual boards, however, ranged from one in three to one in nine.

FALLS THREE FLOORS TO DEATH.

Nathan Riceman, 70 years old, fell to his death yesterday from a third floor window in the building where he lived at 1511 South Lawndale avenue. Riceman, a retired coal dealer, lived with his daughter, Mrs. Jane Glass, on the first floor.

KENNEDY SPEECH ROCKS CAPITAL'S PRO-WAR GROUP

Expected to Influence Dictator Bill Vote.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—Washington reaction to the radio address of Joseph P. Kennedy, whose resignation as ambassador to Great Britain will not be effective until his successor is named, followed the well defined cleavage between war and antiwar groups.

Interventionists were shaken by Kennedy's statements that "England is not fighting our battle" and "this is not our war" but remained unchanged in support of President Roosevelt's bill to set up a war dictatorship in the United States.

Noninterventionists for the most part agreed with his insistence that the United States should keep out of the war because war can only spell bankruptcy and the loss of democracy in the United States.

Oppose Gifts of Arms.

Some members of both groups shied from his suggestion that the United States make outright gifts of arms, munitions, and airplanes to Britain instead of the President's loan-lease program.

In all sections of the capital it was felt that Kennedy's speech will play a prominent part in debate on the dictatorship bill. The real weight of the speech must be judged, it was said, from what mail it brings to congress.

If the flood of mail is heavy enough in support of Kennedy's position the address will influence many an undecided member of congress and may change the position of some in the interventionist ranks.

Wheeler Approves Speech.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], outstanding noninterventionist with whom Kennedy conferred here Thursday, said:

"I agree with most of Kennedy's speech. I would much prefer to have congress vote to make an outright gift of a certain amount of aid to Great Britain rather than give the President power to give whatever he desires to any nation he wishes."

Senator Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.]—"I thought it was a remarkable speech. I think the manner of his presentation cannot help but work a constructive influence. His calm tone, his complete lack of personalities and his considered analysis will carry great weight with the American people."

Taft Wary of Gifts.

Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.]—"I more or less agree with Mr. Kennedy. However, there is nothing to indicate the time has come for us to make outright gifts to Britain."

Senator Carter Glass [D., Va.]—"I wouldn't mind voting for outright gifts but I am going to vote for the bill and it is going to pass. If congress could surrender any more authority to the President than it has already it is difficult to conceive how it could do it."

Fish Agrees 100 Per Cent.

Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.]—"Of course I am opposed to outright gifts to England but I am reserving comment on the rest of the speech until I have studied it more thoroly."

Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.]—"I think he has hit the nail on the head, and I agree with him 100 per cent."

Senator Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.]—"One of his theories seems to be inconsistent with the other. His theory is apparently based on the premise that there is not an immediate need for America to speed up and produce for England."

Representative James A. Shanley [D., Conn.]—"Anybody who is sincerely for aid to Britain must delegate the authority carried in the pending bill. We can't circumscribe that authority and get the job done. Brutally, if we want to give Britain aid the way to do it most effectively is by this bill."

Representative Sol Bloom [D., N. Y.], chairman of the house foreign affairs committee—"After listening to Mr. Kennedy tonight I would still very much prefer to take the advice of Mr. Hull, Mr. Morgenthau, Mr. Stimson, Mr. Knox, and Mr. Knudsen, and certainly not forgetting Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.—"I thought Mr. Kennedy's speech was a very strong statement of the reasons why this country should render all aid to Britain—promptly—short of war."

PICK 7 DIRECTORS IN DRIVE TO FEED 5 DEMOCRACIES

Chauncey M'Cormick Acts to Arouse Midwest.

Chauncey McCormick, a member of the National Committee on Food for the Five Small Democracies and chairman of its midwest branch, announced yesterday the appointment of seven leading citizens and churchmen to the executive board of the midwest group. The committee seeks by arousing public opinion in behalf of the stricken peoples of Finland, Norway, Holland, Belgium, and central Poland, to have the British government raise its blockade to allow food to be shipped to them.

Those appointed to the midwest executive board are James H. Douglas, Chicago broker; Dean Charles W. Gilkey of the University of Chicago; Edward A .Hayes, past national commander of the American Legion; Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century; Rabbi Charles E. Shulman; the Rev. Ernest F. Tittle of the First Methodist church of Evanston, and the Rev. Edwin H. Wilson of the Third Unitarian church.

Countries Have Own Funds.

McCormick emphasized that the committee is not appealing for funds from the American people, but would purchase food here with liquid resources from the five countries to be aided, and that the food would be transported in their ships.

"A concerted opinion on the part of the American people would be effective in having the blockade lifted by the British," he said. "We hope in the middle west to stir the hearts of a great number of Americans to do something for the dying.

"The population of the five nations is about 37 million people, 15 million of whom are children. Their people have been fed normally by food supplies from outside their borders."

Convinced British Before.

The British, despite their reluctance to lift the blockade in the world war, finally contributed 109 million dollars to the Commission for Relief in Belgium organized by Herbert Hoover in 1914, McCormick said.

"When it was seen that the commission was working effectively and that foodstuffs were reaching the Belgians and French alone, and not the Germans, the British complimented our efforts highly," he asserted. "With Herbert Hoover as our leader again, we believe that the American people can convince the British that relief work is possible without aiding the Nazis."

McCormick, who has been making addresses twice weekly to spread this sentiment, will speak in the First Presbyterian church of Wheaton at 11 a. m. today.

IT'S MEASLES TIME IN CITY! 1,652 CASES REPORTED IN 16 DAYS

There were 1,652 cases of measles reported in Chicago from Jan. 1 thru Jan. 16, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health, announced yesterday. In the entire month of January, 1940, only 69 cases were reported.

The disease usually reaches epidemic or near epidemic form once every three years, Dr. Bundesen said, exhausting susceptibles and then lowering its prevalence until a new group of susceptibles has grown.

The disease is generally acquired by older children and transmitted to younger brothers and sisters, Dr. Bundesen said. He suggested that mothers segregate children who have the disease. It manifests itself in running eyes and nose, a slight cough, and eventually a rash. Pneumonia often develops.

The Past Commanders club of the American Legion will hold its first annual ice frolics in the Chicago Arena, Feb. 22, Dr. Carl F. Steinhoff, president of the group of 1,800 past commanders, announced last night. The show will be presented in cooperation with the Chicago Figure Skating club.

Proceeds of the affair will go to the underprivileged boys camp fund. Those in charge of the event include Edward Clamage, past state commander who is chairman of the ways and means committee; Frank B. Flannery, chairman of the distinguished guests committee; George Apfel, treasurer; Terry Rose, secretary, and Edward Dean, production director.

TRAIN NOW FOR THE New OPPORTUNITIES in ACCOUNTING

Accounting, for 20 years past, has offered outstanding opportunity for ambitious men and women. Growing fast, paying well for ability, leading often to executive positions, this profession is also unusual in that the beginner can (shortly after he begins training) get a job as bookkeeper, statistical clerk or junior and earn while he prepares for the higher jobs.

Today those opportunities are greater than ever. The lessons of the depression, the keener competition, increased government regulations—all demand more and better accounting, more bookkeepers and accountants in business offices and in government departments.

INVESTIGATE—Without Obligation

We shall be glad to tell you frankly about the requirements and possibilities in accounting—whether you are fitted for it, how much preparation you will need, what it will cost you.

For 25 years this school has been teaching accountancy. Everything is geared to practical training—to make you capable and successful quickly and at low cost. From this and its parent school have come over 10% of all Certified Public Accountants in the United States.

Naturally, we hope that our facilities and our record will lead to your enrollment, if you are one who should enter accounting. But at least, investigate accounting and its opportunities. Write, phone or drop in—without obligation. Open evenings and Saturday.

ASSESSOR RAKES TAX SLASHES AND LACK OF SEIZURES

20 Millions Yearly Are Unpaid, He Reports.

County Assessor John S. Clark charged yesterday that the courts of the county and the county treasurer are to blame for the accumulation of 20 million dollars a year in unpaid personal property taxes.

John S. Clark.

"About 30 million dollars a year is being collected on a personal property levy of 50 millions," Clark said. "Eighty per cent of these taxes now going unpaid would be paid promptly if the courts would stop arbitrarily reducing the tax bills without legal authority and if the county treasurer would use his legal powers by seizing the property of a few delinquent taxpayers."

Cites Record for 1940.

Clark declared that Chicago Municipal court judges have reduced thousands of personal property assessments and, hence, tax bills, in some cases as much as 90 per cent, without reviewing the data on which the assessments were based. For example, in 1940 there were 1,626 reductions by the Municipal courts, Clark said. The total of the original assessments in these cases was $12,750,000, and the courts reduced the amount to $3,719,925.

Similarly, reductions are being made by justices of the peace in country towns, Clark said. He cited figures showing that last year the courts in Cook county granted to taxpayers reductions totaling $6,321,647 in their actual personalty taxes billed for the tax years 1934-'38, inclusive, whereas collections for those years in 1940 were only $1,799,691. This record is shown in the table.

Tax year—	Collected.	Court reductions.
1935	753,237	481,580
1936	86,972	689,598
1937	553,545	3,246,530
1938	398,375	1,575,163
Totals	$1,799,691	$6,321,647

"The law prohibits the courts from changing assessments unless they are proved fraudulent," Clark said. "There is no fraud and no evidence of fraud in the cases taken before these courts. Nearly all assessments in Cook county are based on information taken from federal income tax returns made out by the taxpayers themselves. The courts almost never ask for this evidence.

Many Cut to a Fraction.

"In many instances the courts cut to a small fraction tax bills based on personal property schedules originally filed and sworn to by the taxpayers themselves. Moreover, hundreds of cases are decided without any hearing at all. In many instances taxpayers go to the courts seeking reductions without first protesting their assessments to the board of appeals. This is clearly illegal, but the courts make the reductions anyway."

Clark asserted that hearing of personal property cases in the Municipal courts should be abolished. All such cases, if heard at all, should be heard in the County, Superior, or Circuit court, he added.

Many Ignore Bills, He Finds.

"Action by the courts and the failure to act by the county treasurer have created so much disrespect for personal property taxes, however valid, that many residents ignore their bills," Clark said.

Clark recalled that more than 20 years ago the Cook county treasurer seized the belongings of a few delinquent taxpayers and thus almost overnight convinced thousands of other taxpayers that he meant business. Back taxes came in with a rush, he said.

"The treasurer would only have to make a few seizures," he added. "The law specifically authorizes him to make them. Taxpayers would be convinced then that taxes were going to be collected. There has been so little actual effort to collect taxes in the last 12 years that people take it for granted nothing will be done."

Accuses Company

Miss Dora I. O'Connor in Superior court yesterday.

Superior Judge Charles A. Williams yesterday continued to Jan. 30 a hearing to determine whether officers of Spiegel, Inc., 1061 West 35th street, should be held in contempt of court for discharging Miss Dora I. O'Connor, 5615 South Union avenue, while she was on jury duty last December.

Attorney Richard Mayer, for the company, told Judge Williams he would bring officials of the firm to testify that Miss O'Connor was discharged because her work as a clerk was not satisfactory. Attorney Mayer said the company regularly employs 6,000 persons, many of whom have been called as jurors, and that none has been discharged for that reason.

Joseph Burke, assistant state's attorney, declared it odd that the company had not found Miss O'Connor inefficient previously. She had been employed by the firm four years.

CIVIC AND TRADE CHIEFS ASK LAKE FRONT AIRPORT

Pledge Support for Drive Revived by Dewey.

Leaders of business and civic agencies to be represented on a committee which will be asked by Congressman Charles S. Dewey to work for the creation of a lake front airport for Chicago joined yesterday in indorsing the renewal of efforts to obtain such a field.

Interest in the project was revived last week by Representative Dewey, Republican of the 9th district [near north side], in a speech before 75 business leaders at a dinner in his honor in the Chicago Athletic association. Dewey said then that efforts to get a lake front airport had good chances of success, and asked for formation of a committee to include representatives of the Chicago Plan commission, the Chicago Association of Commerce, and the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Pledges Manufacturers' Aid.

W. Homer Hartz, president of the manufacturers' association, said yesterday that his organization would be glad to coöperate.

"Chicago needs a lake front airport if it is to keep to the fore in civic progress," he said. "There is no reason why the city should not take the lead as the center of air transportation of the country just as it is the center of railroad transportation. All Illinois, as well as Chicago, should sponsor this movement."

George T. Horton, chairman of the Plan commission, said he approved of a lake front airport and that his commission would make a report on the matter soon. He promised the coöperation of the commission with Congressman Dewey.

A. H. Mellinger, president of the Association of Commerce, said that it would consider any plans formulated for an airport near the loop.

Act to Name Committee.

Nathaniel Leverone and Ben E. Regan, who were among those to attend the dinner last week, are assisting Dewey in selecting a committee. Leverone said the members would be made known later in the week when Dewey returns from Washington, D. C.

It was indicated that two plans will be submitted to the committee for study. One plan, which was approved more than a year ago by the city, provided for an airport to be built on an island made in the lake off 16th street.

Another plan, advocated recently by Congressman Dewey, calls for the clearance of an area from the lake to the New York Central railroad tracks and from 16th to 31st streets. Under this plan the entire air field would be elevated to allow traffic on the outer drive and the Illinois Central railroad to pass underneath.

HANDS ACROSS SEA PUT LEI ON GIRL AT W-G-N

Father's Gift, Flown from Hawaii, Seals Pact.

A beautiful Hawaiian lei of pink and white carnations, as fresh as when it was made up by a florist in Honolulu last Sunday, was presented to Miss Harriet Barnes, 5350 Glenwood avenue, last night in the W-G-N main audience studio. The ceremony preceded the Chicago Theater of the Air broadcast of the operetta "Cyrano de Bergerac" over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The lei was a gift to Miss Barnes from her father, Harrie Barnes, operator of a jewelry store at Hickam field, army air base in Honolulu. Last week-end on the Mutual program, "Hawaii Calls," station KGMB in Honolulu broadcast a salute to W-G-N and to Henry Weber and his orchestra who regularly provide the music for the operettas.

Audience Drew Lots.

The KGMB studio audience drew lots and Barnes won the right to send a lei to any one he designated in the United States. He chose his daughter, who is 24 years old, blonde, and employed in the educational department of the Hydrox corporation. The lei was dispatched via Pan American Clipper to San Francisco and by regular air express to Chicago.

Announcer John Weigel presented the lei and added orchids as a special gift from W-G-N. With Miss Barnes were her fiancé, Fred De Rohan of Waukegan and her mother, Mrs. Delia Barnes.

Claire and Thibault Star.

Miss Marion Claire, lyric soprano, and Conrad Thibault, radio and concert baritone, sang the rôles of Roxane and Cyrano in the operetta which is based on Rostand's story of the swashburckling hero with a monstrous nose. Luise Barclay and Bret Morrison had the same speaking rôles.

Other singing parts were handled by Earl Wilkie, Robert Speaker, and Earl Tanner. The production was under the direction of William A. Bacher.

Premature Quadruplets Born; Three of Them Die

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 18 (AP).—Girl quadruplets were born prematurely today to Mrs. Mary Iannone, 34 years old, but three died less than two hours later. Dr. B. I. Falcone said the quadruplets were 7 month babies. He said he believed the fourth would live.

CITY'S OLD TIME PRINTERS HONOR BEN FRANKLIN

The Old Time Printers' association of Chicago organized in 1886 "to promote a feeling of sociability and good fellowship," held its 56th annual dinner-dance last night in honor of the 235th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin. More than 350 printers—each with more than 25 years' experience in the trade—dined and danced in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel.

The oldest printer present was William A Cahill, 86 years old, president of the Cahill Printing company, 210 South Desplaines street. Cahill, a past president of the association, lives at 419 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park.

Other past presidents attending were John C. Harding, John H. Quadland, H. A. Davidson, William Sleepeck, Fred J. Hagen, W. F. Howe, and F. Fred Barnard. Frank A. Steiger now heads the organization.

TWO, OVERCOME BY GAS, REVIVED.

James M. Kaiser, 80 years old, a retired carpenter, and a colored maid in his home at 7514 Yates avenue, were revived by firemen yesterday after they had been overcome by coal gas in the basement of the home.

FEDERAL AGENTS HUNT LEADER OF BOOTLEGGER RING

Alky Gang's Elaborate Ruses Revealed.

Agents of the federal alcohol tax unit in Chicago were engaged yesterday in an intensive search for the leader of a huge bootlegging syndicate which was able, thru a series of elaborate ruses, to buy supplies by the ton and market its products in truckloads.

E. C. Yellowley, chief of the unit, said the syndicate boss, Eli Frank, and his associates, had connections in Cleveland, O., and other American cities. It previously had been disclosed that much of the Chicago made liquor was run across the border at Detroit, Mich., and sold in Canada.

Martin S. Gerber, assistant United States attorney, said that Frank, who already is under two indictments charging bootlegging, is a brother of Hyman F. Frank, a former Chicagoan who was indicted Friday in Detroit, with 34 alleged co-defendants, for the Canadian smuggling. A third brother, Morris Frank, is serving an 8 year term in federal prison for bootlegging.

Court Action Delayed.

The arrest of Eli Frank was regarded as so important that the arraignment of six alleged bootleggers seized here was continued yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker until Jan. 30, to give the agents time to capture the syndicate boss.

"Frank contracted with one sugar dealer for delivery of 16,500 pounds of sugar every other day," Yellowley said. "One of Frank's drivers would meet the dealer's driver at an agreed place and drive the truck to a warehouse at 74th street and Ashland avenue.

"The truck would be kept in this place for two days. Each morning a smaller truck would be sent by the gang to take off half the sugar and quantities of yeast which Frank personally delivered at the warehouse. These raw materials would be taken to a house at 4421 La Salle street for fermentation and cooking.

Liquor Taken to Station.

"The resulting alcohol was taken on the small truck to a public garage at 7519 Exchange avenue, which was used as a primary distributing station. Frank told the garageman he was a dealer in olive oil. In the garage the truck cargo would be transferred to other trucks. These were well camouflaged. Tarpaulins and chicken crates were among articles used in concealing the real nature of the loads."

Yellowley said one set of chicken coops made five round trips between Chicago and Cleveland—with 330 gallons of alcohol concealed among them each time—before agents arrested the driver last Wednesday. He said the delivery trucks were trailed by automobiles carrying watchers for the bootleg syndicate, whose duty it was to see that there was no interference with the liquor shipments.

It was estimated in the Detroit indictments that the syndicate had evaded payment of 2½ million dollars in internal revenue taxes on alcohol. It was said the syndicate operated nine trucks in Chicago alone. The organization was so complete that the syndicate had a purchasing agent.

Five Chicago Places Raided.

Federal alcohol tax agents under Deputy Supervisor Ralph Herrick raided five places here Friday and seized the six men who were brought before Walker yesterday. They include Louis Lavender, 4908 Drake avenue, arrested in the house at 4421 La Salle street, where a 2,000 gallon still, 2,200 gallons of mash, and 25,000 pounds of sugar also were seized, and Jack Soroka, 44 years old; Harry Segal, 31, and Milton Gladstone, 47, who were arrested in the garage at 7519 Exchange avenue. Two trucks also were seized in the garage.

In a third raid at 6421 Normal avenue, William York, 30, and Harry Anderson, 35, were arrested. Small caches of alcohol were found in garages behind 610 East 63d street and 6542 Halsted street.

Commissioner Walker set bond for Anderson and York at $3,500 each and fixed that of the other four at $2,500 each.

A warrant was issued yesterday for Eli Frank's appearance Jan. 30 before Commissioner Walker. His arraignment on the two indictments naming him has been set for Feb. 4. The indictments were returned last June and last September in Chicago.

RETURN EX-KLAN CHIEF TO PRISON FROM HOSPITAL

D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan of Indiana, was returned to the Michigan City prison last night to continue serving his life sentence for the murder of Madge Oberholtzer in 1925. Stephenson had been in a hospital in La Porte, Ind., since December, when he underwent an operation.

While in the hospital Stephenson requested a parole or pardon. This was denied a week ago by the Indiana state clemency commission, and under commission rules he may not renew the request for two years.

SONG-LECTURE BY TITO SCHIPA WINS AUDIENCE

Informal Recital Is Full of Surprises.

BY CECIL SMITH.

Tito Schipa, the great Italian lyric tenor of the Chicago Opera company, has sung before many attentive and enthusiastic audiences, but it is doubtful whether any group of listeners in his whole career ever hung on every single note with more rapt concentration than the audience in the Civic theater last evening.

The recital was presented coöperatively, and at economical prices, by the singing teachers and several of the downtown music schools of Chicago, under the general supervision of Mme. Nelli Gardini.

From the start the concert possessed an atmosphere of extraordinary informality and cordiality. There was no printed program, so that Mr. Schipa kept drawing surprises—all greatly to the liking of his audience—out of his capacious sleeve.

Schipa Heeds Requests.

Before 15 minutes had passed, many of the vocal students present began calling out requests for their favorite songs and arias, and Mr. Schipa was more than generous in satisfying their musical hunger.

Before he sang, Mr. Schipa gave an attractive, simple little speech, in which he extoled the virtues of good diction as a basis for a true bel canto style, and also hinted in healthy terms that no vocal student need expect a good career who is not endowed with a good voice to begin with.

Demonstrates by Singing.

After this brief and friendly preamble, Mr. Schipa proceeded to demonstrate in his own singing what he meant by flawless diction, and for good measure permitted the audience to hear for an entire evening the most expert breath control, the most effortless flow of tone, and the greatest aristocracy of phrasing and nuance any present day Italian tenor can boast.

The program was too extensive to list in detail here. The audience responded with particularly tumultuous applause to arias from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," Cilea's "L'Arlesiana," and Donizetti's "L'Elisir d'Amore."

This initial coöperative demonstration concert for vocal students was tremendously successful and profitable, and it is greatly to be hoped that other similar events may be arranged in the future.

Half pints of milk for a penny will be available to 100,000 needy children in Chicago's public and parochial elementary schools beginning tomorrow, Mayor Kelly's office announced yesterday. The plan was developed by the surplus marketing administration of the department of agriculture after a two week test period last June in which 8,000 pupils at 15 schools participated.

The marketing administration has accepted bids from Chicago dairies. Federal funds will make up the difference in the cost of the milk above the 1 cent charge. The schools will make no profit. The present price is 4 cents a half pint in high schools and 3 in the penny lunch rooms of the elementary schools.

State's Attorney's Sister Marries

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

100 at Breakfast

Miss Agnes Courtney, sister of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, became the bride of Walter P. O'Grady, 7946 Aberdeen street, drug concern executive, at solemn nuptial high mass in St. Sabina's church yesterday. The Rev. Daniel O'Rourke of St. Bartholomew's church officiated, assisted by the Rev. Gordon Michaels, deacon, and the Rev. Cornelius Sullivan, subdeacon, both of St. Sabina's.

The bride wore an ivory satin princess gown and an heirloom veil which has been in the Roger Sullivan family for generations. She was given away by her father, James Courtney, 7928 Loomis boulevard. The bride's sister, Mrs. Leo Harty, was matron of honor; William O'Grady, brother of the bridegroom, was best man; another sister of the bride, Florence, and a niece, Rita, daughter of the state's attorney, were bridesmaids, and Frank Lyman and John O'Connor, were groomsmen. Leo Harty and Terrence O'Rourke were ushers.

One hundred persons were guests at the wedding breakfast in the Edgewater Beach hotel. The newlyweds left for a honeymoon in Florida. On their return they will live at the Country Club hotel, 69th street and South Shore drive.

HURRICANE BLEW SHIP BACKWARD, SKIPPER REVEALS

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—Battered by a hurricane off Cape Hatteras which nearly sent her to the bottom last Monday, the American freighter Otho was safe in Brooklyn today minus part of her cargo and some of her equipment but with the passengers and crew of 37 safe.

Capt. Dwight Smith, who brought the crippled craft in last night, described the storm as a "humdinger." He said he had skippered 10 steamers and a schooner thru many a storm but had never come so close to losing his ship as this.

Smith said the wind was so strong that the ship was blown backward, her bow submerged, while motors were running full speed ahead.

He said a 65 mile an hour northwest wind and waves 30 feet high had snapped steel like ribbons, smashed a 5 ton motor launch, crippled the steering gear and caused destruction or jettisoning of a quarter of the cargo, including palm oil.

COATING OF ICE MAKES MIDWEST ROADS PERILOUS

A coating of ice made roads dangerous thruout much of the middle west last night, according to a warning from the Chicago Motor club. In Illinois the ice extended south to Springfield. The ice covered most of lower Michigan, most of Indiana, the northern half of Iowa, and all of Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, and Minnesota. Ohio was having snow and rain which colder weather threatened to turn into ice on the highways.

The temperature was falling rapidly in Chicago.

Report Daughter of Idaho Physician Is Missing

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 18 (AP).—The Tacoma News-Tribune and Sunday Ledger said tonight it had been informed that Carol Falk, 15 year old daughter of a leading Boise, Idaho, physician, was mysteriously missing from the exclusive Anni Wright seminary here. The newspaper, quoting unnamed sources, said the girl had been missing since 1:30 p. m. School authorities declined to discuss the matter. Grant Barnes, radio technician for the Washington state patrol, said the patrol had been asked to search for Carol.

SKI TROOPS MOVE INTO CAMP FOR WINTER TRAINING

Camp McCoy, Wis., Jan. 18 (AP).—Ski troop units, hunting suitable weather in which to train for winter warfare, found snow and near zero temperatures upon their arrival here today.

The troops came to camp in three trains and a motor convoy of 80 trucks. By tomorrow 1,400 will have arrived from their former headquarters at Camp Brady and Fort Custer, Mich.

The men make up a special battalion of the 5th division. They will train in snowshoe, ski, and sled patrol work and test equipment suitable for winter fighting. Attempts will be made to devise new tactics.

The troops moved into winterized tents. The sides of each tent, accommodating four men, have been windproofed with boarding and tar paper. There is a stove in each tent. Lieut. Col. Fred M. Distelhorst is camp commander.

THIS AGONY AGAIN.

"The object of this war," Woodrow Wilson wrote Aug. 27, 1917, "is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the menace and the actual power of a vast military establishment controled by an irresponsible government which, having secretly planned to dominate the world, proceeded to carry the plan out without regard either to the sacred obligations of treaty or the long established practices and long cherished principles of international action and honor; which chose its own time for the war; delivered its blow fiercely and suddenly; stopped at no barrier, either of law or of mercy; swept a whole continent within the tide of blood—not the blood of soldiers only, but the blood of innocent women and children also, and of the helpless poor."

This power, Mr. Wilson said, was not the German people. "It is the ruthless master of the German people. It is no business of ours how that great people came under its control or submitted with temporary zest to the domination of its purpose, but it is our business to see to it that the history of the rest of the world is no longer left to its handling."

The letter was sent to the pope, Benedict XV., in reply to his suggestion that there existed at that time a basis for a just and honorable peace, in a conciliatory spirit for the general welfare. Mr. Wilson rejected the suggestion, with the declaration: "This agony must not be gone thru with again." It is being gone thru with again and we have need to read Mr. Roosevelt's words now in the light of Mr. Wilson's then. Their parallelism has a dreadful significance.

It was our illusion in 1914, and afterward, to regard that war as a blight peculiar to its time, bringing an experience extraordinary in European politics. We should have known better. We should have paid more attention to similar wars which had preceded it for similar purposes. We chose to ignore the meaning of the hundred battlefields, some of them centuries old and many of them used many times, just as even then they were being used again for reasons found in the power politics of the nations in conflict.

Before 1918 it had been possible to bring these wars to a peace which, even if it were only an armed truce, did establish conditions for the time being upon a realistic basis. Under the excitement of such words as Mr. Wilson uttered, this nation undertook to extirpate forever the type of government which we thought had caused the disaster. Now we see that the type of government which emerged everywhere in Europe from the effort to overthrow kaiserism is infinitely worse. It is worse in Russia, which was our ally; it is worse in Italy, which was our ally, and it is worse in Germany, which was our enemy.

Hitler has done more than Bismarck undertook to do when he sought German unity and he has done it more ruthlessly than the kaiser when he sought German expansion in other lands. These lessons apparently have no meaning for the people whose influence in Washington is preparing for another enterprise similar to that of 1917 but attended by dangers at home then undreamed of.

When we undertook in 1917 to declare what kind of government should prevail in Europe we were entirely sure, or thought we were, of the kind of government that would continue to prevail here. Now, as the old war cries are repeated and the old war aims restated, we're not sure what will emerge from the conflict in our own land. We are not only not sure, but we have the gravest reasons for believing or fearing that the very type of government we denounce will be the one we will have to accept.

The peace plan of the pope, which powerful civilian elements in the German government were then willing to consider, was peremptorily rejected by Mr. Wilson. In spirit and specifications these suggestions were just. If they had been considered they might have saved Russia from Lenin and preserved its representative assembly and moderate government. Italy might have been saved from Mussolini and its present misfortunes. Germany might have been saved from Hitler and the Nazi terror. France might now be the master in its own home. Great Britain might not now be fighting off attacks upon its island fortress, and we might not be on the edge of another agony to destroy "the ruthless master of the German people."

This time we'll dictate to Europe and get a dictator ourselves.

APPEALS TO SPRINGFIELD.

As regularly as the Illinois legislature meets it finds the local governments of Chicago on its doorstep, seeking authority to impose more taxes. There have been occasions when the local tax spenders could not wait for a regular session and a special call had to be sent out to assuage their hunger.

At this session three of the five local governments want their operating tax levies raised. Mr. McCahey of the school board says he has to have 4 million dollars more or the school term will be cut. Apparently the school board has not the courage to cut its outrageously high expeditures for noneducational purposes. Mr. Dunham of the park board wants 1 million dollars or more. Mr. Woodhull of the sanitary district says he can't operate the new sewage treatment plants on the old tax levy. The sanitary district has already lost the sound credit standing that he maintained for it for a number of years.

While the tax spenders have a score of able lobbyists at Springfield, including a number of members of the legislature itself who double in brass as local governmental pay rollers, the taxpayers have few to guard their interests. With a few notable exceptions, including Speaker Schnackenberg, the people of Chicago cannot depend on their elected representatives for protection. The majority of them were sent to Springfield by the same political machine that is seeking the tax boosts.

In justice to the people of Chicago, Gov. Green and leaders of the legislature should treat these governmental suppliants as what they really are—representatives of the Chicago Democratic machine. They should not be allowed to make their pleas for additional taxes separately. The machine should be required to present them as a block, and before any of its requests are granted should be required to give certain definite guaranties of action to improve local government.

In particular the machine should be required to adopt an effective program of tax collection. The disgraceful tax delinquency in Cook county is the fault of the leaders of the Democratic machine, collectively, to a far greater extent than it is the fault of any one of them in his capacity as an elected office holder. Because the machine fails to collect taxes, tax bills in Chicago are 20 per cent higher than they need be.

A minimum program for tax collection, to which the machine should be required to assent before tax increases are even considered, should include:

1. Establishment of the delinquent tax collection bureau in the county treasurer's office.
2. Pledges of aggressive coöperation with that bureau by every Democratic county official.
3. Adoption in detail, and not merely in principle, of the simple, legal, and effective method of distress levies to collect personal property taxes.

Not until effective guaranties of these three steps are given should any tax increases be even considered, and then they should be subjected to close scrutiny. The school board, which asks the largest increase, should be required to make up for any rise in its educational fund levy by an equal cut in its building fund levy, not some time in the future, but this year. It should also cut its swollen noneducational expenditures from the educational fund.

INVESTMENT COUNSEL.

The occupation known as investment counseling has existed in fact if not in name for a long time but it was only after the depression set in that the practitioners became numerous. Today there are dozens of them in every financial center. They have cut enough of a swath to attract the notice of the Securities and Exchange commission. They are organized in local and national associations and have ideals and codes of ethics. They can be said to have arrived.

The rise of the investment counsel is readily explained. When the bottom fell out of the securities business there were a lot of lively and more or less expert men in the brokerages and banks whose jobs disappeared and a lot of others whose incomes all but vanished. Among the casualties were skilled analysts who had been employed by investment houses, bankers whose banks had slid from under them, and personable customers' men from the brokerages. Many of these men had diplomas from colleges of commerce and graduate schools of business and finance. All of them were looking for an occupation in which their experience and education could be turned to advantage. Accordingly, many went into the business of advising others on the investment of their accumulations. Misfortunes in the market had, at the same time, created a demand for expert and disinterested counsel in the management of investments.

Even so, the business of counseling might not have amounted to much except for the fact that the ordinary citizen found himself confronted by a financial problem which was both new and baffling. Formerly people had been looking for ways to use their money profitably and, at least before the big crash, had done pretty well for themselves, by and large. All of that experience is now of little value. Today the primary problem of the man who has saved something is not to find a profitable use for it but to conserve it.

That is why there is so much idle money in the banks. People are afraid to buy bonds for fear the interest rate will rise and the capital will be correspondingly depleted. They are afraid to buy stocks or venture into business for fear of taxes and a postwar collapse. Their common sense warns them that their savings are threatened by war, by inflation, and by New Deal reformers. In the hope of finding a way out of the difficulty many have turned to investment counsel for help.

What they want is not so much investment advice in the old sense as suggestions for hedging against the loss of capital. It is more than a little doubtful that any sure fire formula can be devised and any one who offers one should be regarded with a good deal of suspicion; but that is beside the point which it is desired to make here. The rise of the investment counseling business and particularly the type of advice which is now sought are a striking evidence of the sense of insecurity which prevails in the country. That is one of the major achievements of the New Deal. An examination of the foreign and domestic policies of this administration can leave no doubt that it is a planned insecurity.

This country did not achieve its economic growth thru the desire of men to avoid losses and hedge against calamity. What we are we owe to men willing to take risks in the expectation of gain, and to governmental policies calculated to strengthen faith in future stability.

PASSING THE BUCK.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

A little while ago the Plain Dealer, urging that the defense program be speeded up, commented on the report of Admiral Spear that four months had been taken to negotiate a contract for 2,000 aircraft clocks.

> In view of the fact that the request for an exemption from the provisions of the Walsh-Healey act was pending in the department of labor for a total of only seven days out of the four months and that more than six weeks elapsed from the time the department of labor suggested a solution of the problem before it was raised again by the navy department, I am sure that you will agree the fault was not with the department of labor.

This newspaper is not interested in placing blame as between the department of labor and the navy. Its concern—and it is serious concern—is with the fact that the defense organization as a whole is so ineffective that it required four months to negotiate a contract for a few clocks which the purchasing agent of a private industrial enterprise would have negotiated in routine fashion in as many days.

Furthermore, the act of buck passing in this case as between the navy and the department of labor supports our belief that the national defense organization needs to be revamped in a way that will cut the red tape and insure early decisions on all matters vital to the progress of the program.

ART SAFE FROM WAR'S BOMBS

BRUSSELS, Belgium [via Berlin] [Correspondence of the Associated Press].—Belgium's priceless art treasures will emerge from the war unscathed, but not until even the slightest possibility of damage thru bombardment or other war violence is removed.

Bomb proof shelters were provided for the little kingdom's paintings long before the war began. As early as August, 1939, when war threatened, precautions were taken by the Belgian government.

The celebrated Rubens collection of the Antwerp museum was taken into specially constructed underground vaults of the museum itself, as were other masterpieces owned by this museum. A special mechanism made it easy to slide the paintings, with their heavy frames, down into the vault or back into their places at will. It took three weeks to complete the "evacuation" into air raid shelters of the Antwerp collection. Some Rubens paintings with their heavy frames weighed up to two tons.

The custodian of the Brussels museum had all the masterpieces of his gallery removed and sheltered in the vast cellars underneath the nearby palace of justice.

Only one famous painting in Belgian possession may be classed as a partially disabled war victim. It is the "Christ" of Van Dyck which adorned the Termonde church. Last May 16 it was hurriedly loaded onto a van with furniture and refugee families and moved westward. At St. Omer it was caught in the bombardment, abandoned by its caretakers, subsequently hidden in a barn, and then forgotten. Finally it was rediscovered. By this time, however, it had suffered considerable damage.

Eight yards of concrete protect the 5,000 year old mummy of Bebu, governor of Antinoe. The mummy is the oldest treasure of the Egyptian section of the Royal Museum for Art and History. Prof. J. Capart, famed custodian of the collection, did not rest until it had been placed underneath the foundations of the "Cinquantenaire arch."

PARIS, France [via Berlin].—[Correspondence of the Associated Press].—German authorities say that unusual precautions have been taken to protect art treasures in the occupied zone of France.

Count Metternich, to whom the German army entrusted protection of French artistic monuments, told foreign correspondents that efforts are being made in collaboration with French authorities to reopen museums as rapidly as possible. Most art treasures have been stored for safety and will remain where they are, altho the reopening of museums is contemplated.

Metternich said the German commander in chief had forbidden moving of art objects valued at more than 5,000 francs without special permits.

"Everything that could be done to protect art has been done," he said.

Many French art objects were stored during the war in châteaux, in the Loire district, where they are under care of guardians. The medieval wing of the Louvre museum is being restored and may be reopened soon, the count said. The Museum of the City of Paris is to be opened soon, and the Trocadero museum never has been closed.

Go thru the Rijkmuseum of Amsterdam, or the Mauritshuis of The Hague, or to any other of Holland's famed galleries in Rotterdam, Delft, Haarlem, Utrecht, and elsewhere, and you will look in vain for Rembrandts, Vermeers, Van Goghs, Frans Hals, or Jan Steens.

Vacant spaces stare at you. That does not mean, however, that some one has walked off with these world famed art treasures. It means that cautious Dutch museum and art gallery custodians recognized the danger of air attack and artillery fire and put the paintings into bombproof shelters long before May 10, when the German armies crossed the border.

Generally speaking, only the works of dead artists were hidden. The national and municipal galleries, therefore, still attract visitors, for contemporaneous masters are still on exhibition.

Even the Rotterdam museums remained intact despite the heavy bombardment of the city. Damage to art there was confined to the destruction of the magnificent city hall of Middelburg, in the Rotterdam area, and to several other masterpieces of Dutch architecture.

PROGRESS IN FERNANDINA.

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

This little story has to do with the town of Fernandina in Florida. Four years ago it was a small but aspiring community of 3,000 people. The citizens were ambitious to "put Fernandina on the map," to make it something of a metropolis in a modest way. The citizens of Fernandina were dreaming a dream which the town boosters of many another American town have dreamed: More factories, more workers, bigger pay rolls, building boom, more purchasing power, prosperity.

The citizens decided to act upon their dream. They hired a journeyman go-getter and set him baying on the trail of whatever portable industries he could find.

The go-getter succeeded in luring two large pulp and paper plants to Fernandina, these two plants being valued at something over $8,500,000. Now Fernandina is able to point to these consequences: A population of 4,000 instead of 3,000; an increase in the town's annual pay roll of 150 per cent; and an increase in property values of 20 per cent, and in tax collections of 30 per cent. Furthermore, owners of timber in the area surrounding Fernandina now have a nice market for their slash pine.

Alas, there is another side of the story. Fernandina had to borrow $175,000 in order to build new streets, docks and drainage facilities. And it had to borrow $50,000 in order to pay the go-getter his fee.

There was, to be sure, a building boom in Fernandina. But Florida has a $5,000 homestead exemption law; and the new construction in Fernandina has for the most part been kept under the exemption limit. Fifty-six per cent of the homes in Fernandina are tax exempt. It is estimated, also, that taxes on another 25 per cent of Fernandina's homes will be delinquent. The tax exempt properties and the delinquent properties account for 40 per cent of the town's property valuation. On top of this, the two pulp mills came to Fernandina only on a guarantee of tax exemption until 1948.

What this means is perfectly clear to the remaining home owners of Fernandina and the town's business men. They have to pay the entire operating costs of the town government, and they have to service and liquidate the $225,000 debt besides. They are already being taxed up to Florida's constitutional limit, and the town fathers are going to the legislature to see if the constitutional limit can't be doubled.

Progress is something pleasant to contemplate, but it sometimes brings troubles with it.

WHEN THE HEART PROTESTS—SLOW DOWN.

APPARENTLY, some hold to the notion that the heart is well nigh indestructible. Despite their faith, it is not an alloy of platinum and stainless steel. It is composed of ordinary muscle—stout, to be sure—but just as vulnerable as the tissues of any other organ. Its fibers can be injured by bacterial toxins or they can wear out with overuse. This is not to be wondered at, for it is the livest thing in the body—constantly moving, pulsating, and working. It starts to beat months before the babe is born, and it doesn't stop until the last scene in life's play has been enacted.

It is understandable then that as we grow older many of us will develop mild symptoms—slight evidences of wear and tear. Instinctively, we slow down and thus forestall illness. We seem to realize that it isn't safe to run for a train, to climb stairs too rapidly, or to carry heavy burdens. Thus we adjust what we do to the ability of our machinery to perform.

Almost every one has experienced some shortness of breath following intensive exertion—quite out of the ordinary. This all means that while the pump can tick along satisfactorily well into the eighth or ninth decade, it will surely balk if overtaxed. Should it choose to become temperamental we hope that it will exhibit the tendency on an occasion when rest can be provided—not on a figurative railroad track.

The only sort of breathlessness that we need to be concerned about is that which occurs when one is reasonably quiet. Any grossly overweight individual will pant and puff after indulging in vigorous exercise. But when labored breathing comes on suddenly the time is at hand to take notice that something is wrong and that help is essential.

Even tho heart disease has been identified, there is every reason to be optimistic. Under careful management, the fibers of the pumping chamber can strengthen and thicken—and thus make up [compensate] for a valve deficiency. In addition, physicians have in their possession powerful aids against a breakdown. But intelligence is demanded not only on the part of the physician but the patient as well. I recall a personal friend who passed thru a siege of muscle failure more than 20 years ago at the age of 58. He has since made it his business not to waste physical energy. He is still "going strong" and looks the picture of health.

Thru the length and breadth of the land tens of thousands of persons likewise are living happy, useful lives despite the fact that a few years ago imminent death was feared.

Of course, rest is the sovereign cure for abuse. More hours of sleep, a 30 minute siesta after the noon meal, with apprehension banished, with the avoidance of gorging—all will add years to life. While activity is possible, that which one would delight in at the age of 20 cannot be undertaken. Walking, however, is permissible in most cases.

Why is a restricted diet advocated? First, because we must not overload the digestive tract. Filling the firebox too full requires more draft—more circulation. The one who knows he has a heart impairment will do well to remain just a shade under average poundage. He can adjust the hunger of his eyes to that of his needs. Furthermore, when we lower the metabolic rate [with less food] we slow the pulse rate and save the organ much work.

We can all read with profit the lessons which are recorded by "Rheumatism." With a little more attention to infections within the nose, throat [tonsils] and about the teeth, we can avoid these devastating attacks of fever and swollen joints, thereby cutting our cardiac maladies by 50 per cent.

BLOOD CLOT.

A. W. writes: What are the symptoms of a clot anywhere in the body?

REPLY.

The circulation is shut off to the tissues beyond the site of the dam thus formed in the blood vessel. The parts will appear blanched and feel cold. Nature, however, endeavors to reëstablish the flow of nutriment by enlarging smaller blood vessels.

INVESTIGATE.

Mrs. L. B. writes: What could cause frequent waves of nausea, followed by a decided sinking sensation? I am 27 years old.

REPLY.

A careful physical examination is in order with emphasis upon the state of the circulation, including the blood pressure, the condition of the endocrine glands, and the digestive tract.

MRS. THORNE'S MINIATURE STAMPS.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—The charm of the miniature early American rooms now on display at the Art institute ought not to be spoiled by what one might call carping criticism, and this stamp collector isn't really criticizing. She is just amused at a little anachronism.

In the Cape Cod room, date 1750-1850, there are some adorably tiny letters lying ready to hand on the desk. That is as exquisite a touch as any in the entire series and perhaps the slight slip in the color of the stamps on the letters but enhances the delight. However, in the interest of accuracy and for the sake perhaps of children who see and remember so much, it is not wrong to call attention to this fact: This government did not issue a red stamp until 1851, and that was in no way a carmine hue.

Great Britain did have her Victoria 1 penny red, but that was also duller than this, and she did have a higher denomination red but that was not adhesive; it was embossed like our stamped envelopes. France was issuing stamps in 1850 and had a 1 franc red—and lucky is the person whose old letter might have served as model for this miniature one! Brazil and Switzerland were also issuing stamps in 1850, but they did not have red ones and that leaves, then, just Spain with a really red stamp in that year and the Cape Cod room stamps do not look Spanish.

So much for accuracy, but what a delightful vista those tiny letters open for one who looks at that room! The American ships sailing the seven seas, taking and bringing letters from the strange, far corners of the earth, pioneering for our "Clippers" of the air!

Come to think of it, I am grateful that a little discrepancy in the item of my hobby called my attention closer to those letters, for they take my thoughts so much farther afield. All thru the rooms we catch glimpses of china and rugs, fabrics and decorative pieces from foreign places, but the most human touch of all is that packet of letters, franked with a wee carmine stamp. My personal thanks to Mrs. Thorne, for I am descended from some of those who founded the first town on the Cape!

A Stamp Lover.

HE THINKS THIS IS NEWS.

Chicago, Jan. 14. — Finding myself downtown last Saturday, with a few hours to idle away, I decided to do some window shopping. But soon my attention wandered from the windows to the passing humanity, and particularly to the pretty young ladies. Turning into State street, I couldn't help but observe the great number of gayly dressed, laughing young girls; not dozens but droves of them.

To the young men of Chicago I say, don't sigh for Hollywood or Palm Beach. A stroll down State street will convince you that Chicago's young ladies are as plentiful and pretty as can be found anywhere.

C. C.

SOMETHING'S WRONG.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—There is something fantastically wrong in the United States of America when such people as Gen. Robert Wood, Lindbergh, Philip La Follette, Senator Wheeler, and others, whose sincerity cannot be questioned, are consistently smeared and discredited because they believe that we should not enter this European war.

Mrs. Frederic W. Place.

A PLEASANT TIME WAS HAD BY ALL.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—To the lout who smashed my lens from my face in his idiotic rush to the bar on New Year's eve and then stood there without even offering an apology, and leaving a stranger to hunt on the floor for the bow of the lens: Well, you heel, you'd probably be a hit and run driver at the wheel of a car. I hope you get paid back for every hard earned penny my husband has to dig in his pockets to pay for the lens, which we haven't gotten yet. And to the manager, who made sure my husband got our wraps before refunding admission: Why, you cheap skate! Have you taken our suggestion to rope off the tenth-rate would-be Velozes and Yolandas who hog and clutter up the floor with their silly posing and clumsy spinning, endangering the other guests who also paid to dance? Our sincere thanks to the young man who found the bow.

Mrs. H. W. B.

A PICTURE CAPTION.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—I should like to call your attention to the errors appearing in the caption accompanying the picture of two guardsmen and a trench mortar in The Sunday Tribune

In the first place Platteville is not in Illinois, but in Wisconsin, there being but one Platteville in the United States. Secondly, the name of the man on the right is Douglas Henry [Douglas L. Henry, to be exact] and not Henry Douglas.

These errors were brought sharply to my attention because I was, until moving to Chicago, a noncommissioned officer of M company, and enlisted both these men into the service.

Incidentally, Company M is known as the "crack" company of the Wisconsin National Guard.

Eugene P. Riddle.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

ESTATE APPRAISAL.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am enclosing a "notice of appraisement by appraiser" that was received in the mail today.

1. According to the court records on Aug. 13, 1934, on petition appraisers were named to appraise the personal property and on Aug. 16, 1934, the appraisement of personal property was approved. These are on record in the probate court of Madison county, Illinois.

2. The executrix at the time the estate was closed deducted from my share of the estate the amount of inheritance tax that I would have to pay. The deceased was my aunt. She willed me at the time $1,000. The amount of tax was based on $500 as I being a nephew was exempt $500. Am I correct on this point?

3. Her estate consisted of bonds, altho she stated dollars in her will.

4. I received bonds in the amount of $750 that defaulted in interest and finally received 75 cents on the dollar for the bonds.

5. Can I now go back at the state of Illinois for a refund on the inheritance tax?

6. What procedure would have to be gone thru?

7. What would happen if I didn't appear at this hearing?

J. T.

1. It seems probable that what you mean here is the appraisal for widow's award, etc., rather than the inheritance tax appraisal.

2. This implies that the estate has already been closed, but ordinarily an estate could not be closed until the inheritance tax had been settled. There seems to be something irregular about your facts. We cannot advise to advantage on the basis of your present letter.

3. This would create no difficulty. The bonds could be sold and the proceeds distributed.

4. You could have insisted on receiving cash.

5. Your letter does not make clear just what has been done.

6. Obviously it is a tax on a transfer. We cannot advise further without knowing the context in which the expression appears.

7. Presumably the value would be fixed on the basis of evidence that is available. The attorney handling the probate proceedings is in a better position to explain things to you than we are. It seems possible that additional assets have been discovered. But your letter simply leaves us to guesswork on such points.

ADMITS PLOTTING $2,800 ROBBERY OF HIS EMPLOYER

Trusted Clerk and Four Associates Held.

A trusted young male stenographer confessed yesterday that he plotted a holdup in which bandits fired at his employer, Harry D. Crooks, and robbed Crooks of $2,800 in Christmas bonus money which he was about to distribute to other employés two days before Christmas.

Harry D. Crooks.

Crooks is president of Crooks Terminal Warehouses, Inc., and a $1 a year man in charge of all warehousing activities connected with national defense.

The stenographer is Andrew Rusnak, 26 years old, of 5601 South California avenue. He has worked for Crooks for seven years.

Four Arrested; All Confess.

Four men have been arrested as a result of Rusnak's confession, according to Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's police. All of them, Gilbert said, have confessed.

Crooks put the money, in $10 and $20 bills, in an envelope and slipped it into an inside pocket the afternoon of the robbery in the office of one of his warehouses at 5967 65th street, Clearing. Then he stepped into his car to go to another warehouse to make the distribution.

Four men waiting in a car near the warehouse pursued him. Suspecting a robbery attempt, Crooks locked the doors of his car. The pursuers forced his automobile to the curb, smashed the windows, and took the money. They knew precisely where to look for it—in the inside pocket.

As they were driving off Crooks gave chase. The gunmen fired back at him. They finally escaped, after a race of several miles.

Inside Job Suspected.

Gilbert suspected that some one close to Crooks had aided the men because they knew when he was leaving the warehouse and where he carried the money. The investigators asked all employés in the warehouse to take a lie detector test next day. Rusnak failed to report, and could not be found for two days. Later he went to Gilbert's office with an attorney, offering to surrender. Gilbert told the secretary he was not wanted, but had detectives keep watch over him.

Last Monday night Rusnak was arrested in a tavern brawl. He was found to be carrying a gun. He was questioned under the lie detector. Early yesterday, according to Gilbert, Rusnak confessed that he had planned the robbery.

Sergts. Joseph Healy, Ernest Sloey, and Nicholas Disteldorf of Gilbert's office rounded up the men Rusnak named. They are Joseph Phillips, 23 years old, of 1265 Cabrini street; Lawrence Columbos, 25, of 803 South Loomis street; Dominick Laino, 27, of 819 South Carpenter street, and Salvatore Vecchione, 26, of 1337 Flournoy street.

CHICAGO WOMAN, INJURED IN CRASH DOWNSTATE, DIES

Mrs. Anna McBride, 27 years old, 4940 Winthrop avenue, died last night in Columbus Memorial hospital of injuries suffered last Tuesday when the automobile driven by her husband, Byron, collided with another machine near Chenoa in McLean county.

Paul Stencikas, 60, of 2857 Emerald avenue, unemployed, died in Peoples hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when he was struck by a truck at 30th and Halsted streets. The driver was Frank F. Hirsch, 6740 Paxton avenue.

Louis L. Goodman, 40 years old, 1026 East 46th street, president of the La Salle Insurance association, was killed Friday night near Jacksonville, Fla., in a two car crash. A passenger in the other car also was killed, and Goodman's wife, Roza, and their sons, Lionel, 11, and George, 9, were injured. The family was en route to Chicago from Miami Beach.

Claude Mann, 54, colored, of 9445 Wentworth avenue, a janitor, died in South End hospital of injuries incurred Friday when he was struck by an automobile at 95th and La Salle streets. The driver was James Coughlin, 8829 South Racine avenue.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 52 persons had been killed in traffic in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 37 died in Chicago, where 1,098 were injured during the same period.

Menaced in Holdup

Police last night sought three masked bandits who yesterday afternoon took jewelry valued at more than $4,000 and $100 in cash in a daring robbery in the offices of Massover Brothers, jewelry manufacturers, on the 15th floor at 30 West Washington street.

Hyman Massover. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The bandits herded Samuel S. Massover, 65 years old, 7010 North Ashland avenue, president of the firm; his son, Hyman, 36, of 6157 North Richmond street, secretary, and three other persons into an anteroom and then shoved a steel cabinet against the door as a barricade.

Joe's Such a Crack Shot It Hurts to Talk About It!

Joseph Ciez, 19 years old, is a pretty good shot with a bee-bee gun. He demonstrated it last night in the basement of his home at 5155 South Racine avenue. Lacking a target, he took a cartridge for a .22 caliber rifle and fixed it in a vise. Then he stepped back, aimed the airgun and squeezed the trigger. A lead pellet struck the fixed cartridge and exploded it. The bullet richocheted off two walls and cracked Joseph on the jaw. The police said the injury was not serious.

BARRETT GRABS CASSIDY'S WHIP; BOOKIES GROAN

New Attorney General to Help Serve Writs.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Word awaited for weeks along Randolph street came yesterday. The future of many a handbook had hung in the balance as a whisper was awaited from Hymie [Loud Mouth] Levin, who was to spread the tidings, if tidings there were, that happy days had come again.

But the tidings were sad. That eerie cry heard along the Rialto was not caused by the chill winds. It was the bookmakers' lament. Loudest were the shrieks that came from the now emptied horse parlors where Hymie was the factotum for Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti, gang boss.

Attorney General George F. Barrett had spoken!

Will Ask Special Officer.

"Mr. Barrett will go to Belleville next Wednesday and personally appear before Judge Maurice V. Joyce of the Circuit court and ask the appointment of a special officer to serve summonses on Cook county defendants in the bookie injunction case," said an announcement from Attorney General Barrett's office.

Former Attorney General John E. Cassidy had obtained from the Belleville judge an injunction restraining Hymie and 1,379 others from accepting bets on horse races. That was on Dec. 3.

The hope of the bookies was that Cassidy's successor wouldn't have such a bad opinion of them. If Barrett, who was to take over the office and the power as well as the title, would only be a bit tolerant the local boys would not be afraid of what Judge Joyce of Belleville—nearly 300 miles away—might do to them. And so they lived in hope.

Few of Writs Served.

Meanwhile our sheriff, Thomas J. O'Brien, reported his deputies unable to find many of the men against whom Cassidy had obtained injunctions from the Belleville judge. To date, according to the attorney general's office, the O'Brien deputies have notified only 41 of the 1,380 defendants.

Judge Joyce's injunction against handbook gambling was issued on the theory that a state-wide conspiracy existed to violate laws, it was explained. The sheriffs of all other counties served the writs sent to them, Barrett's office reported.

"All the resources of the attorney general's office will be used henceforth to make certain that all of these summonses and writs of injunction are properly served," said Barrett himself.

Police Raid 10 Books.

P. S. Ten handbooks in the loop were raided yesterday by policemen of the central district and the morals division from Commissioner Allman's office. In each instance employés were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

The central district squad went three times to one book at 29 Quincy street and found operations in progress each time. The employés seized in the third raid were held in the station overnight without booking.

FOUND HANGED IN BASEMENT.

STELLE'S 100 DAY PAYROLLERS LOSE JOBS TOMORROW

Green Firing All 'Obviously Superfluous' Workers.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—Appointees of John Stelle during his hundred days as governor began to file out of the statehouse for the last time this noon as the week-end lull settled down on the new administration of Gov. Dwight H. Green.

Frank G. Thompson.

Several in a group of 24 in the department of conservation, knowing that letters of dismissal, effective Monday, were waiting at their Springfield addresses, said they wouldn't look in the mail box before starting out for their home towns to spend Sunday with the folks.

News of the dismissals was contained in the official announcement by Frank G. Thompson of Mount Vernon, who takes office along with seven other Green cabinet members Monday. It became known that with few exceptions all 24 were given brief stays on the pay roll while Stelle was playing Santa Claus. Most of them went into vacancies which the Horner administration found it unnecessary to fill.

McKibbin to Oust 80.

The same easy method of discovering which employés were unnecessary was said to have been followed by Finance Director George McKibbin yesterday when he announced that he was releasing 80 employés as soon as he takes office. McKibbin made the mistake of not consulting Gov. Green before issuing his firing notices and, as a result, the governor indicated to newspapermen that his administration does not intend to disrupt state business by firing Democrats merely because they are Democrats and before their Republican successors are selected.

Thompson did not make the same slip. It is said that Green approved the release of the two dozen named by Thompson and that he did so because they obviously were superfluous. On this basis it is predicted that the other members of the cabinet who take office Monday will continue the exit program for the Stelleites.

Quasi-Republicans to Go.

It also has been decided that the exodus will include Republicans and quasi-Republicans who obtained Democratic appointments under Stelle in the belief that they would have enough Republican backing to hold their places under Green. The rule adopted is based on the theory that if a man accepted a Democratic appointment he ceased to be a Republican. With few exceptions, all appointments made after Oct. 6, the date of Henry Horner's death, will be classified as mere political jobs awarded without regard to efficiency.

Gov. Green is in Chicago for the week-end and he does not expect to attend the meeting of the Cook county Republican committee Monday. In his rôle as chairman of Green's patronage committee, John T. Dempsey, who also is chairman of the Chicago unit, will assure the ward and township committeemen that the distribution of jobs will be regular in every way.

GREEN PAYS CITY HIS FIRST VISIT AS THE GOVERNOR

Dwight H. Green was in Chicago as governor of Illinois for the first time last night. Returning from the strenuous inauguration and the start of his Republican administration in Springfield, he went to his apartment at 3400 Lake Shore drive. He will return to the duties of state tomorrow morning.

Recovered from a cold, Gov. Green walked out of the train shed at Union station and swept into his arms his two daughters, Nancy, 13 years old, and Gloria, 8. Mrs. Green followed suit.

Green's train on the Chicago and Alton line was an hour and 22 minutes late but he said he was too glad to see his children to be annoyed about this. He and Mrs. Green agreed that the 83 year old executive mansion in Springfield will make a fine home when repairs have been made. At present, the governor noted, wood pillars on jacks in the basement help support the old building.

50 YEARS OF LAIN & SON SERVICE

1941 marks five decades of business for Lain & Son. From that early beginning in 1891 has grown Chicago's largest funeral concern, with a preference of 30 to 1—thirty times the average.

This phenomenal growth has been based on two fundamental precepts. First: Lain & Son spare no thought or care in giving Chicagoans the finest service obtainable. Second: Lain & Son prices are always fair, with no extra charge made for the Imperial Quartet, use of beautiful chapels and modern equipment.

Lain & Son were the first in Chicago to inaugurate an advisory department to deal with the pre-arrangement of funerals. They were first to install air conditioning to purify and freshen the air, and they were first to include music by the Imperial Quartet and Hammond organist with every funeral in the chapels, if so desired.

The Lain & Son policy of giving MORE and BETTER service, regardless of cost and Chicago's acceptance of this finer type of funeral direction, is the reason for their leadership, and overwhelming preference.

Today Lain & Son receive more calls and conduct more funerals than any other director in the city.

RENT INCREASES DISCUSSED BY REALTY BOARDS

Two Groups Say Members Favor Advance.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Chicago and suburban realtors are considering the question of increasing rents on May 1. In the city two neighborhood real estate boards have reported that their members favor increases. Another board said members were divided, and two suburban boards still are undecided about the question and will hold further meetings to discuss the problem.

Arthur S. Whiston.

The first announcement that an advance was favored came yesterday from the North Side Real Estate board. Arthur S. Whiston, chairman of the renting and management division of that organization, said that at a recent meeting members agreed that rents should be advanced from $2.50 to $5 for each apartment. No definite vote on such an action was taken.

Northwest Board for Boost.

Royl G. Knight, president of the Northwest Real Estate board, and also chairman of the renting and management division of the Chicago Real Estate board said most of the members of the northwest organization at a recent meeting favored a rent rise. The advances suggested ranged from $2.50 to $7.50, Knight said.

Realtors on the west side are about equally divided on the rent boost question, according to Frederick C. Rausch, of Rausch & Pfeuffer, Inc., president of the West Side Real Estate board. Half of the members favor an advance and half oppose it, he said. He expects to call a special meeting early this week to discuss the situation further.

Suburban realty boards have discussed the rent situation but have taken no official action.

Oak Park Is Undecided.

Mrs. Margaret Moon, secretary of the Oak Park Real Estate board, said the question was discussed at a recent meeting but no action was taken. Another meeting is planned shortly for further consideration.

The Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board has not yet taken any action. A. M. Landaker, president, said the rental question probably would come up for discussion at the next meeting on Feb. 1. He said that altho the suburban boards usually went along with the Chicago Real Estate board, rents in Evanston already are slightly higher than in Chicago.

In practically all instances realtors said increasing maintenance costs and high occupancy were the reasons for considering advancing rents.

"Owners are insisting on higher rents this spring to offset rising prices in the costs of materials and labor that are necessary essentials to the proper operation and maintenance of their apartment buildings," said Whiston of the North Side Real Estate board. This is the second largest realty board in Illinois—the Chicago board being the largest.

South Side Row House Project Is Announced

Chicago's most comprehensive row house project was announced yesterday for a six acre tract at the southwest corner of Wentworth avenue and West 81st street. Options on the land, owned by the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, have been secured by William E. Ramsey and Roy H. Davis, both active builders in the Chicago area. The project is to be financed thru the Charles Ringer company, with FHA insured individual mortgages on each house unit.

Plans call for four long rows of 64 houses built on four sides of an open space 300 by 383 feet. All of the homes will have living room windows opening on this interior private park. Kitchens and garages will front on the streets.

The standard house unit will have a large combination living and dining room, 16 by 24 feet, a kitchen, and three bedrooms and bath on the second floor. There will be a terrace on the garage roof. The type of heating system, choice of fireplace, decorating, and various interior details will be furnished to suit each individual owner. There will be a fire wall between each unit which will be of brick construction.

Work is scheduled to start on the first 15 units this spring, it was said. The row house idea, popular in Philadelphia and Baltimore, has never been used extensively in Chicago.

DRAFT CHARTER TO SAVE UNION FROM GANG RULE

Elevator Men to Vote on New Constitution.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Provisions to prevent the Elevator Operators' and Starters' union, local 66, from falling under gangster control were incorporated in a new constitution for the union which yesterday received the indorsement of William McFetridge, president of the Building Service Employés' International union, with which the local is affiliated.

William McFetridge.

The constitution will be voted upon Tuesday by members of the local.

The elevator union was a one man affair for many years, and the one man was Mathew Taylor, who died Sept. 6. Before he died Taylor made a 65 page statement to State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney in which he told how the union had come under gang rule and described extortion payments of $30,000 which he said he had made to gangsters.

Death Threats Told.

At that time George Scalise, now an inmate of a New York penitentiary, was president of the international union with which the elevator operators are affiliated. Scalise was sent to prison for looting the treasury of the international. Taylor said he had been forced, under threat of death, to affiliate the local with Scalise's international.

Under the new constitution, which was approved by the executive board of the local, control will be vested in an executive board and a board of trustees as well as in other officers.

The constitution provides that only members who have been working at the craft and have belonged to the union for five years are eligible for elective union offices. To be eligible for an appointive office, a member must have been in continuous good standing for at least three years.

The initiation fees for joining the union are scaled downward, as follows: Class A, $300 to $100; class B, $150 to $50; class C, $50 to $25.

Union Benefits Liberalized.

Funeral benefits are liberalized. At present the beneficiary of a member of two years' standing receives $150, and the beneficiary of a member of five years' standing receives $300. The new constitution makes $200 available for families of members of two years' standing and $300 for those of three years' membership.

The constitution creates a new office of trustee and provides for election of three trustees, one for three years, one for two years, and one for one year—their successors to have three year terms.

Trustees are to examine and audit the union's books, supervise the handling of funds, and ascertain that all property is insured and all money handlers are bonded.

The new executive board, as outlined in the constitution, is to consist of the president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and five members elected by the union. At present three members, in addition to the executive officers, make up the board.

UNION BARMEN REFUSE TO DROP ACCOUNTING SUIT

Attorney Raymond F. Hayes, representing the faction of local 278 of the bartenders' union seeking an accounting of funds, announced yesterday his clients would not withdraw from the litigation before Judge Robert Jerome Dunne of the Circuit court. They will remain as intervenors in the suit brought originally by George McLane, recently defeated for reëlection as union business agent, against a group including James Crowley, secretary-treasurer, who was elected president.

McLane obtained appointment of a receiver for the union on his representation that gangsters led by Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti had obtained control of it. Later he refused to testify in the Criminal court trial of Nitti on charges of conspiracy to take over the union and announced he had made a deal with Crowley. Attorneys for McLane and Crowley then asked Judge Dunne to end the receivership. Hayes and his clients objected.

Last Monday Judge Dunne gave them five days to withdraw their objections if they so desired. Hayes said they will stick to their case. Their course of action is uncertain. They want to see the outcome of contempt of court proceedings against Crowley tomorrow, Hayes said. Crowley was cited to show cause why he should not be held in contempt because of charges he made concerning the administration of Roy D. Keehn, the receiver.

Wickard Acts as Court Bars Referendum.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard announced today the suspension of a federal order regulating the handling of milk in the New York metropolitan marketing area, effective Feb. 28.

This action followed a controversy between the department and a group of producer coöperatives under leadership of the New York Dairymen's league over amendments to the order proposed by Wickard.

The controversy found its way into federal court, where an injunction was issued prohibiting the department from holding a scheduled referendum Jan. 21 on the proposed amendments. The order was designed to stabilize and fix minimum milk prices in the New York milkshed.

Referendum Is Enjoined.

Wickard, in suspending the order, declared that without the proposed amendments the milk program "does not tend to effectuate the declared policy" of the legislation under which it was established. He also found that the New York order is unreasonably discriminative.

The district court, in enjoining the referendum, also prohibited the department from suspending the present order as a policy action in connection with the controversy. Agriculture department officials said, however, the injunction did not prohibit suspension of the order on the basis of a finding that the existing order did not effectuate the law.

The amendments were submitted to producers in September, but were rejected when less than the necessary two-thirds voted favorably. The department decided the proposals had not been understood by many dairymen, and scheduled another referendum, resulting in the court injunction.

The amendments would modify the class prices for milk, reduce payments to handlers for diverting surplus milk into relief channels, lower payments of producers to coöperatives, and would, officials said, "improve and strengthen administrative provisions of the order."

Criticized by Dairymen.

Action of the Dairymen's league in opposing Wickard's amendments was sharply criticized at a conference of representatives of midwestern dairy organizations with the secretary of agriculture.

Attending the conference were M. G. Van Buskirk, Chicago, of Dairy Producers, Inc., an organization of more than 300,000 milk producers; O. T. Goodwin, Adrian, Mich., of the Michigan Milk Producers' association; Walter R. Freeman, Indianapolis, of the Indiana Milk and Cream Improvement association, and W. A. Gordon, St. Paul, of the National Association of Local Creameries.

In addition, the dairy representatives asserted that the New York order, even with the proposed amendments, subsidized producers in the New York milkshed at the expense of dairymen elsewhere.

None of these responses, it must be emphasized, includes any business transactions or communications with the advertising, circulation, auditing, production, or purchasing departments, nor any mail, telephone, or personal contacts handled by W-G-N.

Last year's total of 7,779,110 is less than the record of 7,900,362 in 1939. This is attributed to the fact that the antiaircraft military show, which attracted 350,000 in 1939, was not repeated last year.

Personal contacts between THE TRIBUNE and its readers at the Public Service offices, at TRIBUNE sponsored events, and over the desks of editors and writers, numbered 1,698,764. There were 3,800,157 mailed communications, including 2,700,000 votes for the All-Star Coach and Players' polls. Telephone inquiries amounted to 2,280,189.

Attendance at Events.

Total attendance at events sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and tours of the plant and the tower, was 657,363. Among these events, and the attendance at each, were: All-Star football game, 84,567; Forest Preserve concerts, 90,000; Music Festival, 80,000; Police and Fire show, 80,000; Golden Gloves, 64,000; Casting contests, 60,000; Golf school, 59,000, and the American Fashions show, 2,250.

Leading the list of the telephoned inquiries was baseball with 902,012. Football, with 58,620 inquiries was second in the field of sport.

Dress patterns soared to a new high of 234,402, with the needlework bureau handling 228,192, also for a record. Next in the number of total contacts came the foreign news department with 224,797, a tremendous increase over the 80,911 of 1939.

Inquiries for assistance in the Public Service offices ranged from 36,549 requests for telephone slugs to 23,547 requests for help in making out income tax returns, 38,240 for military service information, and 413,495 requests for general information.

THE TRIBUNE's health department, headed by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, who writes a daily column of advice and comment, handled 41,623 inquiries, of which 40,634 came by mail. In all the health department received 88,432 letters, the balance coming from readers of his column which is widely syndicated. This was 5,366 more than in 1939, and is more than double the figure of 42,577 when Dr. Cutter first came to THE TRIBUNE in 1934.

The shockproof machine is operated in a lead lined room by an operator at an outside control board. Radium also will be used. Dr. Joe Vincent Meigs of the Harvard medical school faculty, and Dr. Bowman Crowell, assistant director of the American College of Surgeons, will speak at the ceremony today.

CROWN 8 SILVER SKATES CHAMPIONS TODAY

FLASHING BLADES AND HOPEFUL HEARTS—THAT'S SILVER SKATES

Around the turn they speed in a junior boys' race in the 24th annual Silver Skates Derby preliminaries yesterday on one of the Waveland avenue rinks. This is a 440 yard sprint. The finals will be held this afternoon. The rinks are located 3700 north, just east of Sheridan road.

Their spirits high, a group of boys in the midget class break from the starting line. Yesterday's competition was held under perfect weather conditions, with the ice firm and smooth.

SHAPIRO LEADS ILLINI'S LAST MINUTE RALLY

Wisconsin Defeats Michigan, 40-30.

Harold Shapiro, Illinois guard, saved the game and Art Mathisen, Illinois center, won it in overtime, 42 to 41, from Northwestern's Wildcats last night in Evanston High school. A capacity crowd of 2,500 saw the Illini rally to overcome a seven point deficit with four minutes to play and then outscore the Wildcats in the overtime. The score at the end of regulation time was 36 to 36.

Northwestern thus still is seeking its first western conference victory after three games and Illinois now has three conquests against a loss to Indiana. But until the rousing and unexpected finish the Wildcats seemingly had this battle under control. Even then, the decision was not rendered until after the timer's gun marked the end of the five minute overtime. Just before the gun shot Clarence Hasse was fouled by Shapiro as he lofted the ball from midcourt. But Hasse, needing both penalty shots to tie, missed the first.

Enter the Villain, Shapiro.

Shapiro, who was substituted for Capt. Johnny Drish near the end of the first half, and this was just too bad for Northwestern. The speedy forward got five field goals, his third and fourth ones tying the score with 35 seconds of the regulation game left. With Northwestern ahead, 36 to 32, Shapiro scored from far out, a perfect set shot. Northwestern took the ball out of bounds but Shapiro outguessed the passer, batted the ball in the air, and then dribbled under the Illinois goal unmolested for the tying points.

Henry Sachs failed to make a penalty throw on Don Clawson's foul at the start of the overtime. Clawson broke the deadlock with a free throw on Bill Hocking's foul. Shapiro then popped in a long distance throw. The lead changed when George Benson matched Shapiro's shot. Sachs sent Illinois ahead with another mid-court goal only to have Clawson tie the count at 40-all when Art Mathisen fouled.

Mathisen's Goal Wins It.

Mathisen had been completely bottled up under his backboard and he had made only four penalty shots in six attempts. But in the next Illini attack he was the end man in three lightning passes and his field goal clinched the game for Illinois.

Illinois had superior team speed but the Wildcats matched it occasionally and scored more frequently as result of speed in the first half. In this period the score was tied four times and Northwestern overcame a 13 to 8 Illinois advantage to quit the floor at the intermission leading 21 to 18. Lineups:

WISCONSIN, 40; MICHIGAN, 30

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 18 [Special].—Wisconsin's rangy basketball team scored its third Western conference victory tonight and at the same time plunged Michigan deeper into the cellar by trimming the Wolverines 40 to 30 before 2,500. It was the fourth straight loss for Michigan in the Big Ten.

The Wolverines ran until they were weary in an attempt to outspeed the sharpshooting Badgers, but the visitors' height advantage was an insurmountable handicap. The Wolverines failed to get a single jump ball all evening and lost most of the rebounds to Capt. Gene Englund and his fellow six footers.

Chicago Soph Stars.

Englund set the pace during a wild first half with eight points and the Badgers led, 21 to 17, at the half time. During the second period he was held in check and finally forced out with four personals after bringing his total to 11 points for the night.

The big surprise of the night was the performance of Michigan's Sophomore Mel Comin, of Chicago, who replaced Jim Mandler at center early in the game and tallied 11 points.

Comin brought Michigan to within one point of Wisconsin early in the second half and made seven of the 13 Wolverine points during this final period.

GOPHERS DEFEAT MAROONS, 35-24, FOR 2D VICTORY

Stampf Makes 16 Points in Losing Battle.

Minnesota defeated Chicago's Maroons, 35 to 24, before 3,000 in the Midway fieldhouse last night to bring its Big Ten standing to two victories against one defeat and leaving the Maroons without a conference conquest.

Despite the fact that Minnesota lost both its regular centers, Bill Lind and Roger Carlson, on fouls, the Gophers hammered the Maroon defense until it weakened, outscoring the Maroons after the first 5 minutes.

Capt. Joe Stampf of Chicago led the scorers with 16 points, against a Minnesota defense that apparently was geared specifically to stop him. Don Carlson of Minnesota was second with 11 points.

Chicago tied the game at 3 to 3 two minutes after it started, but Minnesota then went ahead and increased its lead thruout the remainder of the game. The score at the half was Minnesota, 20; Chicago, 11.

KOSTKA, FORMER GOPHER, READY TO TAKE NEW JOB

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 18 (AP).—Stan Kostka, full back of the University of Minnesota's 1934 national championship football team, tonight was recommended for the head football coaching job at North Dakota Agricultural college.

Kostka may succeed C. C. [Casey] Finnegan, athletic director since 1928 and head football coach since 1929. His appointment is contingent upon his release as football coach and physical education instructor at Chisholm, Minn., High school.

Dr. O. O. Churchill, president of the North Dakota Agricultural college athletic board, will assume Finnegan's duties as acting athletic director, to be assisted by Johnny Smith, freshman football and basketball and varsity track coach. Smith is expected to take over as acting athletic director later in the year.

IDAHO DROPS TED BANK.

Moscow, Idaho, Jan. 18 (AP).—President Harrison C. Dale of the University of Idaho said today that Ted Bank, head football coach and athletic director, and Bob Tessier, assistant football coach, would not be connected with the university next year. Forrest Twogood resigned two weeks ago as basketball and baseball coach. Bank, a 1923 graduate of Michigan, came here from Tulane in 1935.

Football Cards Sign 6 Rookies in Talent Hunt

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The Chicago Cardinals yesterday announced the signing of six new players, the first of a corps of rookies Coach Jimmy Conzelman hopes to take into camp next August when he resumes the search for a pennant contender in the National Football league.

Only one of the six was among the 20 drafted by Conzelman last month. He is Gates Kimball, a guard from the University of North Carolina. The others are Len Darnell, a 190 pound end from Duke; Boyce Nall, 200 pound guard from North Texas State Teachers college; J. B. Higgins Jr., a 220 pound tackle from Trinity university; Mike Klotovich, a tail back from St. Mary's, who also played some football at Fresno State college, and Fred Shook, a 235 pound center from Texas Christian.

Shook took over at T. C. U. when Ki Aldrich joined the Cardinals. He played with the Long Island Indians in the American association last year, after being barred at T. C. U. for a flight into matrimony.

Conzelman has gone to California to contact other draftees and players he would like to take a look at in August. Meanwhile Assistant Coach Phil Handler, who has been beating the bushes in the southwest, is back in Chicago seeking sedatives after an encounter with the eccentric Mr. J. Kimbrough of Texas Aggies, Cardinals' draftee, whom he sought to sign. Kimbrough's schemes of high finance and ranchless ranching left the hardy Handler limp and quivering.

Owner Charles Bidwill took a hand in player affairs over the week-end by turning down an offer from the Brooklyn Dodgers for Marshall Goldberg. The Dodgers are said to have offered cash for the former Pitt star, but Bidwill sent back word to Coach Jock Sutherland that Goldberg was not for sale or trade.

Fan in Tomato Bombing Presses Trial of Tebbetts

Cleveland, O., Jan. 18 (AP).—George [Birdie] Tebbetts, Detroit Tigers' catcher, was ordered today to answer an assault and battery charge before Judge Frank J. Lausche next Saturday. The charge was brought by Carmen Guerra, convicted of disorderly conduct after a basket of tomatoes was dropped on Tebbetts' head during a Detroit-Cleveland baseball game last Sept. 27.

PERMIT TO QUIT AS SOX TRUSTEE ASKED BY BANK

Action Would Give Family Control of Stock.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mrs. Grace Comiskey, widow of J. Louis Comiskey, and daughters Dorothy and Gracie Lou will become trustees of the White Sox, and thus actual operators of the club, if an action filed yesterday is answered favorably by Circuit Court Judge Philip Finnegan.

The First National bank, trustee and administrator of the estate under Comiskey's will, petitioned thru the law firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt for leave to withdraw. Attorneys Thomas J. Sheehan and Roy J. Egan, answering the friendly complaint, asked that the widow and daughters be appointed.

Judge Finnegan set no date for a hearing, but appointed James A. Harrington guardian for Charles Comiskey II., 15 years old, pending action by the court on the bank's request.

Under terms of the will Mrs. Comiskey was granted the income from one half the estate and eventual possession of that much principal. The will was renounced, the widow taking instead her dower rights of one-third, which amounted to 2,178 shares of the ball club stock and a cash award of $60,000. Subsequently the bank, as trustee, sought permission in Probate court to dispose of the club, terming baseball a hazardous business. Permission was not granted.

In its petition yesterday the bank set forth, among other things, that it preferred not to continue as trustee unless the stock could be handled as a unit. The complaint also set forth that the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company was waiving its right to succeed as trustee. In addition the petition mentioned $200,000 as the club's profit during the 1940 season and praised Vice President Harry Grabiner and Manager Jimmy Dykes for their contribution to the financial success.

Court Orders Sale.

There are 7,500 shares of ball club stock outstanding, all held within the Comiskey family with the exception of 50 owned by Vice President Grabiner. The will provided that the three children share in one-half the estate, the other half, since renounced, going to Mrs. Comiskey. The children under the terms of the will are to receive one-third of their holdings upon attaining majority. The remainder will not be released from trusteeship until Charles reaches the age of 35.

A Probate court order last week gave the First National bank the right to sell to Mrs. Comiskey, for not less than $125 per share, a total of 916 shares. This added to the widow's dower one-third will make her interest 3,094 shares.

Dorothy Comiskey, who reached the age of 21 prior to her father's death, now is entitled to 484 shares or one-third of her baseball inheritance. Gracie Lou will receive her first third March 7 next year. Charles will acquire his initial portion six years hence.

IF ARMY DOESN'T GET FELLER, HE MAY GET $30,000

Cleveland, O., Jan. 18 (AP).—Bob Feller, a veteran at 22 years of age, is on his way to becoming the highest paid pitcher in baseball history with a 1941 salary approximating $30,000. Final contract negotiations and possible conscription for the army are the only hurdles standing between Feller and the record.

Feller's high draft number virtually rules out the possibility he will join the army this year. He is 2,857th in a Cleveland district with 3,814 registrants. If 10 per cent of the registrants are accepted for service and the district is called upon to supply 30 draftees a month, Bob will not be summoned for at least 10 months. And 10 per cent is a conservative figure—a larger proportion of those ahead of Feller likely will be accepted.

"Feller certainly will not be called this year unless dire circumstances develop," a draft official said today.

Feller will fly here Tuesday from Van Meter, Ia., to negotiate his 1941 contract. He will be armed with his impressive 1940 record of 27 victories.

The Indians do not announce players' salaries, but well informed sources place Feller's 1940 pay at $26,000 or more.

Even if Feller doesn't enter the army this year he will be doing something for Uncle Sam.

The income tax on $30,000 for an unmarried person without dependents is $6,063.20.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Under the best skating conditions in several years, the 24th Silver Skates Derbies will be concluded this afternoon on the Waveland avenue rinks, 3700 Sheridan road. Starting at 1 o'clock when preliminary races in four age classes will be held, the events will sweep to a climax of eight championships, the last of which will be the 2 mile men's senior final.

The story of Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates, inspirational theme of these races which were established in 1917 by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., never grows old in Chicagoland. On occasion the youngsters have not had the best skating conditions, but the Waveland rinks never were faster than yesterday. Identical weather conditions are promised this afternoon.

Winners Return Today.

More than 2,000 boys and girls competed yesterday afternoon in their qualifying races in classes under 16 years of age. Those who advanced successfully yesterday in these classes —boys' midget, juvenile, and junior, and girls' junior—return today.

Ninety - three preliminaries and semi-final races were held yesterday in approximately two hours. All were skated at the announced distances. While fewer contestants are eligible this afternoon, the program will be longer because of the additional length of the races for the older boys and girls. However, the championships should be decided shortly after 4 o'clock.

Fifty-one boys and girls in the age classes reporting yesterday remain for these four championships. Twelve qualified in the boys' junior class, two being named in each of six semi-final races. There are 15 in the boys' juvenile championship, 12 in the boys' midget, and 12 in the girls' junior championship.

Boys' Favorites Named.

The boys' junior title probably will be won by Tom Tilden, Glen Ellyn; Walter Rust, Elgin, Ill.; Jim Ready, Cleveland, O.; Bob Hash, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Buddy Solem, Barrett club, or Don Fahrenbach of the C. Y. O.

The men's senior race will be one of the best in the nation this winter. Leo Freisinger of the C. Y. O., who is flying back for the races; Del Lamb of Milwaukee, like Freisinger, an Olympic skater; Steve Gadus, C. Y. O. dark horse; Bud Handlan of St. Louis, Mo., and Lowell Miller, C. Y. O., are the outstanding candidates for the title.

Come from Out of Town.

Total registration for this year's Derbies was 3,300 and in addition to Chicago parks, playgrounds, and skating teams, squads came from Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Milwaukee, Cleveland, and a score of adjacent cities and towns in Illinois and Indiana.

Late this afternoon five boys and three girls will be crowned speed champions for 1941. They will join the long list of stars, many of whom have won national and Olympic fame, who have been awarded Silver Skates. In all, 24 pairs of skates [chromium and bronze skates are awarded second and third finishers in each Derby] will be presented. Twenty-four medals also are given to the competitors finishing fourth, fifth, and sixth.

Prizes for All.

Most important, and this is the magnet that annually brings out a huge list of novice skaters, each contestant reporting for his qualifying race receives a souvenir button. Each winner of a preliminary race is

Chicago Again Will Be Host to Pro Net Meet

The second annual national professional tennis tournament will be held at the Chicago Town and Tennis club, Ridge and Thome avenues, this spring, R. H. G. Mathews, a director of the club, announced yesterday. Last year's meet was held in the fall and chilly weather affected both the attendance and the players' activity. The meet is set for late May or early June, depending upon the availibility of leading professionals.

An impressive list of names already has been lined up for the 1941 tourney, Mathews said. It includes Bill Tilden, Don Budge, Fred Perry, and Vinny Richards and tentative plans call for mixed doubles competition, in which such feminine stars as Alice Marble and Mary Hardwick would appear, along with other able but lesser-known players.

Robert H. Pease is slated for reëlection to the presidency of the Chicago Lawn Tennis association at its annual dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday in the Merchants and Manufacturers clubroom in the Merchandise mart.

Officials of the association are looking forward to the best season in history, as a number of local players have progressed to the stage where they are winning national recognition in both junior and senior rankings.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Only five Western conference basketball games, involving seven members of the Big Ten, are up for decision this week. With Indiana, Purdue, and Illinois idle, due to semester examinations, Northwestern takes the spotlight with a trip to Iowa tomorrow night and an engagement with Michigan in Evanston Saturday evening.

Wisconsin is the only other conference opponent to play two games this week. The Badgers invade Chicago tomorrow night and then entertain Ohio State's fast moving squad Saturday. The other game is Minnesota at Michigan tomorrow.

The nonconference schedule in midwestern territory is also unusually unproductive due to the midyear lull. Notre Dame plays at Syracuse tomorrow and then faces Michigan State at home on Saturday. De Paul's Blue Demons furnish competition for Chicago on the same night. Best game, however, probably is De Paul's engagement with Duquesne tomorrow evening in Pittsburgh.

Duquesne Tests De Paul.

Judged by the Dukes' victory over Loyola in the Coliseum eight days ago Duquesne will thoroly test their taller opponents. De Paul spent last week in the east, playing first in New York and Philadelphia. De Paul has another of its exceptionally fine teams altho it may not be quite as consistent on attack as was the 1940 squad. In Elmer Gainer, when he is at his peak, De Paul has a center the equal of any in the country. Gainer's weaknesses, generally speaking, are indifferent shooting from farther out than 15 feet, and a tendency to foul an opponent because of occasional lack of coördination.

Ed Sachs of De Paul is an exceptionally fine guard and Bob Wozny and Jim Cominsky are better than average forwards. De Paul's attack, however, rests entirely too much on Gainer with the result that when Gainer is checked it is immediately reflected in the team scoring. De Paul also lacks capable reserves.

Close Big 10 Scoring Race.

The battle for the individual scoring championship of the Western conference promises to be one of the closest in years. In 1940 Illinois' Bill Hapac ran away with the title with 164 points. Dick Klein, Northwestern sophomore, now ineligible, was second with 141 points, two more than Wisconsin's Gene Englund got. Playing in 11 games, one less than the complete schedule, Hapac scored 60 field goals and 44 free throws. Only Joe Stampf of Chicago got more penalty points. Stampf dropped in 49 but his 23 field goals left him in 12th place in the final standings.

Nine of the first 15 players again are competing this season. These players, their ranking and total points in 1940 follow:

Bill Menke Starts Fast.

Indiana's leading scorer this season, Bill Menke, strangely enough, didn't place in the first 15 last year. Menke opened his conference season against Illinois with 24 points. He made 11 field goals as Indiana ran up 48 points. This scoring average, which the Hoosiers may maintain, would break their own Big Ten team scoring record of 519 points which they established last year. In scoring this record total, however, Indiana was fourth in defense, permitting opponents to score 451 points.

Jewell Young of Purdue holds the Big Ten all-time field goal record for one season and for three seasons. He scored 69 field goals in 1938 and 180 field goals for the 1936, 1937 and 1938 seasons. Hapac of Illinois holds the high scoring mark for one game. Against Minnesota last year Hapac got 34 points.

Millikin university triumphed over Wheaton, 52 to 44, at Wheaton last night for its fourth consecutive basketball victory. A Millikin rally in the final four minutes wiped out a Wheaton advantage of 42 to 41. Three baskets and five free throws formed the winning attack. Wheaton had trailed, 13 to 3, early in the game. Earl Buse, Millikin's tall center, was high scorer with 23 points.

Six members of the 18 player field were tied for first place in the standings at the completion of 28 games in the world championship three cushion billiard tournament in Bensinger's Arena last night. Art Thurnblad of Kenosha, Wis., entered the select list with a snappy 50 to 34 triumph over Len Kenney of Chicago in last night's first contest. The match went 47 innings and each player had a high run of five.

Otto Reiselt, the Philadelphia veteran who is seeking his third world crown, won a spectacular 50 to 49 victory over Joe Moriarty of Chicago in the final match of the night. It was Reiselt's third victory. He defeated Paul Lewin of Chicago in the opening match of the tournament and Irving Crane of Livonia, N. Y., Wednesday night.

Earle Lockabaugh of the Illinois Athletic club and Jay Bozeman were other winners yesterday who now are tied for the lead with three victories and no defeats. Allen Hall of Chicago and Welker Cochran of San Francisco, neither of whom was scheduled yesterday, are the other front runners in this most exciting race in the history of the competition.

Earle Defeats Lewin.

Lookabaugh advanced yesterday by defeating Paul Lewin of Chicago, 50 to 49, in an 80 inning battle, the longest of the current tournament. Continuous safety play by both contestants slowed the action, but the game was so close the fans didn't seem to mind. Trailing, 47 to 49, Earle stepped to the table and made a difficult around the table shot, then a short angle, and finally a no-english natural out of the corner for the game point.

Bozeman, who becomes more and more of a threat to the peace of mind of Jake Schaefer, Cochran, and other headliners, coasted to an easy 50 to 28 decision over the unlucky Herb Peterson of St. Louis. It was Peterson's fifth straight defeat.

Rubin Scores Again.

Art Rubin of New York, holder of the high run and best game marks of the tournament to date, attained a .667 percentage in the standings by whipping Irving Crane of Livonia, N. Y., 50 to 39, in the second afternoon match.

DUCK KILL GROWS, YET HUNTERS DO THE SQUAWKING

Easy Bag Limit Days Gone, Altho Crop Is Big.

BY BOB BECKER.

When the Illinois Natural History Survey reported to sportsmen that the duck kill along the Illinois river was 15 per cent higher during the season of 1940 than it was in 1939, some hunters were not inclined to accept this statement as true. Nevertheless, survey technicians have the facts to prove that shooters during the recent 60 day season killed more birds in Illinois than were shot in 1939, despite the fact that the season was rather disappointing for many hunters.

We have heard from scores of duck hunters, some enthusiastic about their shooting, some complaining, others philosophical about the situation because they realize that with feeding gone [very likely forever] we have entered upon a new era of waterfowl shooting, one that is more difficult. The good old days of easy bag limits are gone. Now it often takes more perseverance, more skill, more carefully tended marshes, and more patience to get birds.

They Blame Unwisely.

While we have been getting plenty of complaint letters, Ducks Unlimited also has been receiving letters of that type, according to L. H. Barkhausen, chairman of Ducks Unlimited for Illinois. One of the surprising things about some of these letters is that hunters blame Ducks Unlimited [which is helping to grow more birds] because they didn't have better shooting. Barkhausen writes us in part as follows:

"Every day or so a letter is received in this office from some hunter stating that he is not making any more contributions to Ducks Unlimited because he hunted several times last fall and didn't get many birds. While we realize that such experiences are extremely discouraging, we believe that all hunters should keep these points in mind: The drastic changes made in hunting laws were made by the federal government when our waterfowl was at the vanishing point and we were about to see the end of all duck hunting. It was the government which eliminated the use of live decoys, stopped baiting, and cut the bag limits. It's admitted that these changes have made hunting more difficult.

Supply Doubles in 4 Years.

"About four years ago Ducks Unlimited was organized to increase the waterfowl population so that all of us would have duck shooting in years to come. In the last four years the ducks have just about doubled their populations. Much of this success is due to the continued operations of Ducks Unlimited.

"Sportsmen from coast to coast are agreed that on this continued effort to give the ducks more breeding grounds in Canada depends the future of our duck shooting, because in the final analysis about the only cure for our poor or indifferent shooting is to put more birds in the marshes. And we can't do that without increasing the duck population that comes from Canadian marshes. However, there isn't any doubt in my mind that regulations will be softened so all of us have a better chance to get better shooting as soon as our duck population gets closer to the 100,000,000 figure."

FREISINGER WINS WAY INTO FINALS OF MEET IN EAST

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 18 (AP).—Leo Freisinger of Chicago, national speed skating champion, successfully launched his quest for Middle Atlantic honors today by winning his way into the men's senior finals. Immediately after the races Freisinger boarded a plane for Chicago, where tomorrow he will take part in the 24th annual Chicago Tribune Silver Skates Derbies.

Surviving 220 and 440 yard elimination heats also were Johnny Roukema, Paterson, N. J., defending Middle Atlantic titlist; Charles Leighton, Minneapolis; Joe Bree, New York; Dick Werner, Paterson, and Ted Ellenwood, Fort Johnson.

Freisinger, North American as well as national champion, and Ellenwood, recent winner of the Eastern States and Central Adirondack crowns, turned in fastest heats in the 440 yard trials, each negotiating the distance in 40 2-5 seconds.

GOLDEN GLOVERS AWAIT ACTION IN SIX CENTERS

Lafayette and Rockford Start Wednesday.

Battle Front

FOLLOWING is a list of the out of town Golden Gloves tournaments which will be held this week:

WEDNESDAY.
Lafayette Journal-Courier first round.
Rockford Morning Star first round at Sterling.

THURSDAY.
Rockford Morning Star second round at Sterling.
Cleveland Plain Dealer first round.
Indianapolis Times second round.

FRIDAY.
Fort Worth Star—Telegram first round.
Cleveland Plain Dealer second round.
Des Moines Station W-H-O first round.

SATURDAY.
Kokomo Tribune first round.

The 14th annual Golden Gloves boxing campaign, which culminates with the Tournament of Champions in Chicago Stadium Feb. 24-26, turns today into its first big week of preliminary fighting with opening bouts in six centers in five states.

The Lafayette, Ind., Journal Courier and the Rockford, Ill., Morning Star join the parade with inaugural combats Wednesday night. The Cleveland, O., Plain Dealer sounds the gong Thursday, followed by the Fort Worth, Tex., Star-Telegram and Station WHO of Des Moines, Ia., on Friday, and the Kokomo, Ind., Tribune on Saturday.

While the out of town centers are progressing toward selection of their teams [Sioux City, Ia., already has named its champions], Chicago contestants must wait until Feb. 4 for the first of a series of sectional eliminations. Meantime the first physical examinations in Chicago will be held next week.

300 Chicagoans Enroll.

Two novice tournaments and the city championship meet will be held in Chicago. In this latter event, in the Coliseum Feb. 17, 18, and 19, all experienced boxers will compete. The first Chicago novice tourney is slated for St. Sabina gymnasium, Feb. 4, 5, and 6. On Feb. 10 11, and 12, the north side novice meet will be held in the Loyola university gymnasium.

More than 300 boys already have registered for the first physical exam in Trafton's gymnasium Jan. 30. Catholic Youth organization boxers, both novice and open classifications, will report for examinations in the C. Y. O. gymnasium, 31 East Congress street, on Jan. 27.

More than 225 boxers had registered for the WHO tournament last week and Bill Brown, sports editor of the Des Moines, Ia., radio station, had at least 15 more teams on his list of anticipated entries. The deadline for the Des Moines tournament was last night. Succeeding rounds, after the opening round this week, will be held Jan. 31, Feb. 7 and 14 in the Des Moines Shrine auditorium.

Des Moines Sets Record.

The tournament has broken all records. Two rings will be used each night until the semi-finals and finals Feb. 14.

The eight champions will receive trips to the Tournament of Champions, complete ring equipment including made to measure shoes, trunks, sport jacket and blanket, and a gold, engraved belt buckle. They will be trained for their Chicago bouts by Dave Fidler, former boxer and fight promoter. An entirely new Des Moines team is virtually assured since last year's champions either have retired from competition or will move to heavier weight classes.

Entrants who will be competing in their first Golden Gloves tournament will be paired in the opening rounds of the eliminations in order to give unseasoned boxers an even chance at titles and to assure more evenly matched bouts. The first year entrant in each weight class who goes farthest in the tournament will be awarded the novice title and a bronze, engraved belt buckle. Four of the 1940 title holders were competing in the Golden Gloves for the first time.

Texas District Far Flung.

The tournaments in Texas are sponsored by the Forth Worth Star Telegram, which has divided the state into sections, the winners coverg-in gon Fort Worth. Some of the the outlying centers draw boys from New Mexico and Arizona. Last year the boys on the Fort Worth team who reached the semi-finals in the Tournament of Champions came from Port Arthur, Tex., on the Gulf of Mexico.

Almost without exception the out of town centers report increased interest and larger entry lists, and they also anticipate larger attendance, wherever this is possible.

With the addition of a team from Camp Beauregard, La., 14 states will be directly represented in the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 24, 26, and 26. The 32d division, composed exclusively of men from Wisconsin and Michigan, is training in the camp at Alexandria, La.

Wilson Plans Rigorous Grind for Cubs on Curtailed Slate

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Jimmy Wilson, on a visit to Chicago several days ago, made it clear the Cubs will have plenty of baseball playing to do once they arrive at their training base on Catalina Island. Jimmy had cut five days off the training schedule as laid out by Gabby Hartnett when Gabby thought he was going to direct the Cubs again in 1941 and this curtailment led to the suspicion that Jimmy might be afraid of overexerting his new protégés.

Said Jimmy: "The Cubs are going to get plenty of exercise before they begin their exhibition schedule and plenty more in their meetings with the Athletics, Pirates, and White Sox. There will be intraclub games on the island just as soon as the pitchers get the kinks out of their arms and these games will be played seriously.

No Fancy Football Kicking.

"There will be no danger of youngsters injuring themselves while showing off on the first two or three days of practice. I realize this danger. But I'll insist on plenty of hard work along lines designed to have the boys ready to do their best on the opening day of the season and thereafter.

"The way to prepare baseball muscles is to play baseball, and baseball drills should be interesting to players who want to be major league regulars. There will be no fancy sidelines like kicking a soccer ball, etc.

"If an athlete is bored with what he thinks is too much baseball practice it's just as well that I find it out before the National league season starts.

"I have never been in California but I have been making inquiries about weather conditions and I know that I can adjust my plans to the one-drill-a-day arrangement long the custom at Avalon. [The dew on the island has the grass wet till 10 o'clock each morning and a wind generally comes up at 2 o'clock, and for these reasons Cub training camp practices usually are confined to a 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. schedule, tho the sun shines warm and bright for a much longer period.]

Baseball Comes First.

"I plan no changes in the routine of the players after the daily practice. Those who want to play golf AFTER the practice may do so. And I'll not discourage those goat shooting parties, tho I'll ask the fellows to be sure not to shoot each other."

The Cubs will have a good chance to perform in fine weather in their first 23 games after leaving their Catalina base for the mainland. Their first three games will be with the A's in Los Angeles and if they do encounter foggy weather there they are likely to get a better setting on their fourth day, when they go to Anaheim, in the so-called orange empire, which is the A's training base.

After Anaheim they have a solid week in Los Angeles, then go to Ontario, another fine weather spot. Then, after four more days in Los Angeles, they will go to San Bernardino. The Cubs never have had a bad day on visiting the Pirates there.

Arizona a Welcome Stop.

The Cubs can't miss having good weather the first four days they are on the road after leaving California, for they will play in Yuma, Tucson, and Phoenix, where April weather is always perfect. After that they have a gambling chance to find some good going in their remaining four towns en route to Chicago.

Exhibition schedule and everything else considered, Wilson has more than the Cub average chance to bring a well conditioned squad into Chicago.

And wouldn't it be dandy, not to say miraculous, if he arrived next mid-April with Dizzy Dean and Clay Bryant quarreling for the honor of pitching the season opener.

Concordia Halts Elmhurst Rally to Win, 43 to 38

Concordia staged a quick, last minute offensive in River Forest last night for its second basketball victory of the season over Elmhurst, 43 to 38. Trailing earlier, Elmhurst had rallied and threatened to tie the score with one minute to play. Flesicher, a forward, led the winners with five baskets and two free throws.

FAT MAN'S CLUB IS OLD STUFF TO MR. TAFT WRIGHT

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Taft Wright shortly will become one third of the membership of the White Sox Fat Man's club scheduled for a three weeks' convention at Hot Springs, Ark., but he's not at all resentful over being singled out for such attention.

Taffy, as the Carolinan is known, has had to listen to fat man gags for so long that they have ceased to be funny. He really would like to do something about it, at least something different than previous attempts which were only temporarily successful.

There was that time, for instance, when he took off 26 pounds in a month, but his joy was shortlived. It came back with a few extra pounds, in about the same time he had shed the excess. And the weight is doubly aggravating because it settles where the belt either must stretch or break.

Fate Lends Helping Hand.

Only a stroke of fortune kept Taffy's heft from turning his first big league opportunity into a failure. A raw busher, he showed up at the Washington club's Florida training camp in the spring of 1938. The manager, Bucky Harris, took a glance at the guy's shape and asked what had brought him to camp. Assured that Wright was one of his rookies the manager ordered him to reduce so that other members of the squad wouldn't be crowded out of the ball park.

Taffy really went to work. Encased in a rubber shirt he ran and then ran some more. At the end of a month of this leg work he was very much pleased. The excess melted away bit by bit for a total loss of 26 pounds. But the manager didn't ask him to play any baseball. Outfielders like Al Simmons, John Stone, George Case, and Mel Almada were around, so there was no room for Taffy, even after he had been streamlined.

Always a Good Hitter.

The call he thought would never come was heard when the Senators were exhibiting at Greenville, S. C., on their way home. The field was treacherous as the result of rain, so the regular outfielders were stabled for safety and the rookies drew assignments. Wright was among those put to work and he wore football shoes. He slapped a single, a double, and a homer. He was kept in there the next day and he hit again. He continued to hit and when the season opened he was the regular right fielder. He hit a pair of singles in that game.

Later on he was relegated to pinchhitting jobs and the inactivity started to bring back the heft he thought he had dropped in Florida. But his pinchhitting was so good that he finished the 1938 season with a mark of .348. In 1929 he batted .309, subsequently being traded with Pete Appleton to the Sox for Gerald Walker. He hit .337 last season, a mark that might indicate the worry over his weight is needless.

Lacks Fielding Agility.

The worry isn't over his heft as it might pertain to his hitting. Despite his size he has well above average speed running straightaway. But outfielders have to make quick turns, quick starts and stops, and be able to back up. These little fielding necessities are where Wright flunks. But without the extra weight he might be able to move around with greater ease which will make for greater effectiveness. So Taffy will go to Hot Springs for three weeks, along with Eddie Smith and Julius Solters, to see what can be done about streamlining.

Tokle Defends Title Today in Norge Ski Club's 35th Meet

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Chicago today celebrates an old European custom of winter sports competition—ski jumping. Fifteen thousand will gather on the Norge Ski club's grounds near Fox River Grove to watch the 35th annual tournament which will bring together the outstanding skiiers of the United States and Norway. The meet will begin at 1:30 o'clock.

Seven Norwegian aviators, on leave from their training base in Toronto, Ont., are among the 100 contestants. Five of the group who fled to Canada when Norway was invaded last spring—Stein Sem, Finn Jerpersen, Kaare Anthonsen, Rolf Berg, and Erling Jergensen—will compete in the class A event. The two others—Inar Strand and Erik Paulset—are entered in the class B division.

The quintet competing in class A will discover a former rival among their opponents for the title. He is Torger Tokle, who now registers from New York, regarded as one of the most daring performers on European and American ski slides. Tokle arrived in the United States last winter and one of his numerous victories was recorded at Fox River Grove, the Norwegian jumper establishing a new hill mark of 195 feet.

Sem Menaces Champion.

Sem, leader of the air fighters, is expected to develop into Tokle's outstanding threat for the championship. Sem has accomplished leaps of 260 feet on several Norwegian hills and captured the southern Norway championship in 1939. Anthonsen, smallest member of the group, also boasts an impressive record, achieving jumps of 270 feet and two years ago held titles in Oslo, northern Norway and western Finland.

Jespersen also formed a habit of collecting championships before he became an aviation student, winning in Norway, Switzerland, and Germany. Berg and Jergensen, in training drills, displayed that they, too, are capable of taking the championship trophy back to Toronto.

The American delegation is ready to show the Norwegians that they cannot be beaten on United States slides. This group includes the Bietelas of Ishpeming, Mich., Walter, Roy, and Leonard; George Kotlarek of Duluth, Minn., winner of the Norge title in 1935; Eugene Wilson of Coleraine, Minn., and Ted Zoberski and Sverre Fredheim of Land O' Lakes, Wis.

Wilson in Winning Stride.

Wilson finished second to Tokle at Fox River Grove last year. Wilson has won the two meets in which he competed this season and experts believe he is considerably improved. Walter Bietela also has enjoyed success this year, winning the tournament at Beloit, Wis., last Sunday.

The huge steel slide and hill are in perfect condition for the meet. Workmen last night were busy adding the finishing touches with the seven carloads of snow imported from Eagle River, Wis. The class A entries follow:

Eugene Wilson, Coleraine, Minn.; Kaare Anthonsen, Stein Sem, Erling Jorgensen, Rolf Berg, and Finn Jespersen, Norwegian royal air force, Toronto, Canada; Fritz Pohlman, Beloit, Wis.; Harald Sorensen, Norfolk, Conn.; Torger Tokle, New York; Earl Minken and Nick Heikkilia, Ironwood, Mich.; Hartwig Strand, Minneapolis, Minn.; George Kotlarek, Bob Storm, and Bob Roeker, Duluth, Minn.; Ellsworth Mitchell, Roy Bietela and Leonard Bietela, Ishpeming, Mich.; Ted Zoberski, Sverre Fredheim and Jimmy Hendrickson, Land O' Lakes, Wis.; Roy Laramie, Iron Mountain, Mich.; Walter Bietela, Madison, Wis.; Ralph Teagarden, Martin Wingness, and Howard Jansen, Norge Ski club, Chicago.

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 18 (AP).—Dit Clapper's 200th National Hockey league goal gave the Boston Bruins a 1 to 0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs tonight in a game which attracted 14,745.

A neat pass from Bill Cowley set up the scoring play for Clapper at 12:34 of the third period. Cowley broke at his own blue line, flanked by the veteran defense man on his right. He went right in on the Toronto rear guard and when he made the pass Clapper had only to steer it into the net.

The Bruins left immediately after the game for Chicago, where tomorrow night they will meet the Blackhawks in the Stadium. Boston will defend a record which leaves them unbeaten in their last 10 games. In prior games in Chicago the Bruins and Hawks have broken even. The Blackhawks won one and gained a tie in their visits to Boston.

COOPER, REVOLTA REACH FINAL OF CALIFORNIA GOLF

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 18 (AP).—Harry Cooper of Chicago defeated another old timer, Jimmy Thomson of Chicopee, Mass., 2 up, today in the semi-finals of the $5,000 San Francisco match play open golf tournament.

They battled par on even terms for the first nine, each carding a 36 for the Presidio Golf club course. Cooper took a 1 up lead at the 13th, sinking a six foot putt for a birdie two. It was a 125 yard hole.

The next four holes were halved, each taking a bogey five on the 15th, and Cooper shot a par four to win the 429 yard 18th. Thomson, one of the longest hitters in the game, was in the trap on his second. Cooper carded a 36—35—71, one under par, against Thomson's 36—37—73.

Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., kept up his steady par pace to defeat Tony Penna, Dayton, 3 and 1. They were all square at the ninth, each carding a par 36. Penna took a one-up lead with a birdie 3 on the 10th, where he dropped a 15-foot putt.

Revolta squared the match on the 402 yard 12th with a par four when his rival three-putted. Revolta went one-up on the 15th with a 10-foot putt. The match was closed out on the 17th when Revolta carded a par four, which was conceded when Penna's first two shots were pulled to the left.

Harry Cooper, Chicago, beat Chick Harbert, Battle Creek, Mich., 1 up.

TURIELLO READY TO MEET BOLDEN AT 156 POUNDS

Box Tomorrow Night in Marigold Gardens.

Saverio Turiello has arrived from New York for a 10 round bout against Nate Bolden, 1937 intercity Golden Gloves middleweight winner, in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. It will be Turiello's second appearance as a middleweight. Previously he beat Ossie Harris in Pittsburgh on Sept. 16. Altho he normally is a legitimate welterweight, Saverio weighed 154 against Harris. This is only two pounds less than the agreed poundage for tomorrow.

Turiello will be making his fourth Chicago start, three previous encounters being against Milt Aron. He earned the first assignment against Aron after conquering Harold Brown in New York June 1, 1937. The match was held in the Marigold arena the following June 27 with Turiello winning the decision in 10 rounds. In a rematch Saverio scored a second victory over Aron, also in Marigold, July 11, 1938. In a third fight, however, Aron defeated the Italian last Sept. 16.

In addition to the conquest of Harris, Turiello, who is 30 years old, defeated Irwin Kaplan in Madison Square garden Nov. 1. In a subsequent encounter he suffered a defeat at the hands of Mike Kaplan in Cleveland Dec. 2. Supporting matches:

O'Dell Riley vs. Frank McBride [5], 160.
Jack Whittinghills vs. Leif Erickson [4], 160.
Joe Dotey vs. Wayne Fidler [4], 140.
Bert Ardt vs. Andy Canal [4], 130.

Johnny Paycheck, 1933 Chicagoland Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, who has been idle since being knocked out by Altus Allen in the Coliseum June 5, 1940, will return to action in a 10 round contest heading the show in Hammond Civic center tomorrow. His opponent will be the rugged Selman Martin. Other encounters:

George Dixon II vs. Gene Spencer [10], 135.
Joe Dupont vs. Bill Reardon [4], 138.
Mike Sopko vs. Johnny Rhodes [4], 152.
Bill Petersen vs. Otto Fischl [4], heavyweights.
Jack Brussel vs. Vito Rizzo [4], 128.

Abie Coleman, New York heavyweight wrestler, will seek his fourth consecutive Chicago victory against Pete Schu of Argo in White City tomorrow. . . . Nick Castiglione has been offered $500 for a 10 round encore against Jimmy Tygh of Philadelphia in the Coliseum Feb. 3, but the west side lightweight is holding out for $1,000, the sum he collected when knocked out by Davey Day recently. Castiglione defeated Tygh in an earlier meeting.

Armstrong's Decision to Retire Stands

There was no change of mind about Armstrong's retirement today as Promoter Mike Jacobs sent him a $16,530 check as his share of the gross gate of $78,242.46 and the net of $66,817.01. His personal physician, Dr. Alexander Schiff, looked over Henry's eyes again and reported that until the swelling goes down he would be unable to take the necessary stitches.

Armstrong to Go Home.

In a week or so, Armstrong will visit his home in Los Angeles, and then will return to take up a business career either in wine or whisky. Financially, the only fighter ever to hold three championships simultaneously is comfortably fixed, with annuities estimated at $90,000 from the approximately $350,000 he has earned in the ring.

Zivic received $19,836.60 for his successful defense of the welterweight title, and left with Promoter Mike Jacobs and Light Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn for a stay in Florida. He was nursing a swollen left hand, a memento received when he bounced a punch off Henry's head last night.

Plan Return Bout.

Jacobs is planning on a return bout in late March between Zivic and Jenkins, who signed today for a Feb. 21 overweight match with Ex-Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers. Jenkins and Zivic went 10 rounds to a draw a month ago.

BRUINS OUT FOR REVENGE AGAINST OSHKOSH FIVE

The league leading Oshkosh All-Stars, who defeated the Chicago Bruins, 43 to 36, in Oshkosh recently, will make their first appearance of the season in Chicago when they oppose the Bruins in the 132d Regiment armory, Madison and Rockwell streets, Wednesday night.

For the Bruins the game means a chance for revenge. When the teams met in Oshkosh the Bruins had a 30 to 24 lead going into the last half, but saw it disappear when unable to score consistently in the third and fourth periods.

The Bruins blame the new type of fan-shaped backboard for their inaccurate aiming, and believe the home floor advantage will help Wednesday night.

MAJOR WOMEN'S LEAGUE SIGNS FOR PIN CONTEST

Deadline for Entries Falls Tomorrow.

Applications received during the last few days from bowling leagues which are to participate in the League of Leagues' contest show that men bowlers will have plenty of competition from the women. The city has more than 10,000 women on teams sanctioned by the Women's International Bowling congress, and many of them are getting into the contest. Among those entering is the Congress women's major, probably the city's No. 1 organization, more than 70 per cent of whose members are signed.

The deadline for entries to the league's series of 10 weekly contests is tomorrow night, but the organization plans to accept entries from sanctioned leagues that bowl during the succeeding few nights and have not yet voted on the question of participation or mailed in their applications. Score sheets for use during the contest will be mailed to league secretaries during the week from the League of Leagues offices at 1609 Tribune Tower.

Contest Opens Saturday.

The first of the ten contests will be held during the week beginning at midnight next Saturday. The participating bowlers simply will roll in their regular leagues, and their three game scores will be entered on the score sheet. The special sheet differs from the standard sheet only in that it has an added column for individuals' total scores.

Each individual's score for the week then will be entered among those in the class in which his average places him, and the high score entitles the bowler who rolled it to first prize for the week. Likewise the high score in that class for the full period of the contest entitles the winning bowler to the grand prize in that class.

Classified by Averages.

There are seven classes in the competition, based on averages. Prizes in each class are identical. Class A is for bowlers with averages of from 190 up and Class G for those with averages of 140 and under. Each of the other five classes has a spread of 10 points.

The prize winners will be announced weekly in THE TRIBUNE and the grand prize winners at the conclusion of the series of contests. The League of Leagues' treasurer is bonded.

Parker Gets Pro Football Player Award

Clarence Parker, Brooklyn quarter back, yesterday was voted the National Football league's most valuable player of the 1940 season.

The selection was made by a committee of 40 members of the Professional Football Writers' Association of America, qualifying the 175 pound back to receive the Joe F. Carr Memorial award.

Parker, "Ace" to millions of football fans, is the same young man who declared early last fall that his pro football career was ended. This statement came shortly after he had broken an ankle while playing shortstop for the Syracuse club of the International league.

Plays with Brace.

But later the brilliant triple-threater changed his mind, donned a bothersome, protective brace and began what turned out to be the greatest season he ever had on any gridiron, college or professional. He was the spark of a fine Dodger eleven turned out by Jock Sutherland in his first year as coach.

Parker polled 18 of a possible 40 first place votes and seven second place ballots, giving him a total of 118 points, more than double the number of the runner-up, Sammy Baugh, of Washington.

Baugh, the Redskins' passing star, finished closest to Parker, with 55 points. First place ballots counted 5 points; second, 4 points, etc. Sid Luckman, field general for the Chicago Bears, world's champions, was third with 38 points, and Green Bay's Don Hutson rated fourth with 22.

Parker Is Versatile.

Six others figured in the voting. Danny Fortmann, Chicago Bears guard, and Davey O'Brien, Philadelphia, received 21 points apiece; Joe Stydahar, Chicago Bears tackle, 16; John Drake, Cleveland, 15; Whizzer White, Detroit, 12, and Clyde Turner, Chicago Bears, 3.

Parker, one of the smallest backs in the league, led the league in no single department of play but rated high in all phases—ground gaining, passing, punting, scoring, placekicking, blocking, and leadership.

MIDGET DRIVERS RACE TONIGHT IN 100 MILE EVENT

A midseason 100 lap championship event will headline tonight's program of the national indoor midget auto races in the International Amphi theater, 43d and Halsted streets. The current leaders are Ray Richards, Highland Park, 287 points; Wally Zale, Chicago, 261½; Teddy Duncan, Chicago, 229½; Cowboy O'Rourke, Chicago, 166; Bob Muhlke, Kenilworth, 157½; Myron Fohr, Milwaukee, 132½; Pete Nielsen, Los Angeles, 75½, and Tony Willman, Milwaukee, 71.

O'Rourke, who was injured during a crash in last Sunday's feature, was released from the hospital during the week and plans to compete tonight. Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., who also was injured in a spill last Sunday, will be out for six weeks with a broken arm.

BOWLING SCORES STRIKE AT ROSARY COLLEGE

Mary Cross of River Forest is a member of the first ranking team of six bowlers at Rosary college in River Forest, where 10 pin competition is a popular sport.

Dorothy Lagorio, 1230 North Monitor avenue, Chicago, also is among the first six of the Rosary bowlers. She's the girl friend of Bill De Correvont, Northwestern football star.

It won two, as did the team with which it was tied, McCormick No. 1. But, Tractor No. 1 made the tie a three way affair by scoring a triple over cellar-dwelling General Office No. 2. The three leaders have a 10 game margin.

RACING TRENDS OF '40 OUTLINED BY CHICAGOAN

The latest addition to the series, American Race Horses, which has been released recently by the Sagamore Press, evaluates the 1940 season against a background of approximately 50 years of personal familiarity with the sport. Its author, John Hervey of Chicago is ranked among the foremost authorities on the breeding and racing of horses.

The volume, which is the fifth of an annual series, begins with a concise outline of the more significant trends of the 1940 season. Then it takes up the outstanding thorobreds of each age division and gives a detailed account of the breeding, characteristics and performances of each. Students of thorobred conformation will be intrigued by the photographs. The volume is concluded with charts of the important stake events of 1940.

EADS WINS TWO AT HIALEAH FOR CALUMET FARM

Scores on Beau James and Bay Carse.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 18 [Special].—The five year old Beau James, slogging thru deep mud, won by a head today in the first running of the Palm Beach handicap at Hialeah park. Up front just in time to nip Potranco in the last strides, the son of Jamestown gave Jockey Wendell Eads and Werren Wright's Calumet farm a double for the day.

Beau James returned $10.60 for $2, while his stablemate, Bay Carse, first in the fourth race, was backed at $7.10 for $2. The double victory maintained Wright's place as leading owner of the meeting, jumped his trainer, Ben Jones, into the leadership and confirmed Eads at the top of the apprentice list with nine winners.

Three Are Scratched.

With The Chief, Joe Schenck, and Royal Man scratched, nine faced the starter. Cherry Jam was made the favorite, but ran a dull race.

Potranco led all the way to the head of the stretch, Beau James and Liberty Franc running within a length of each other. In the straightaway, however, Liberty Flight found his top weight of 126 too much.

Beau James, in with 115 pounds, seemed to find new strength in the final drive and Eads turned him loose. Potranco, carrying 116, never faltered, but with Beau James alongside it became a head and head battle. At the end Potranco shortened stride and the final few lunges of Beau James decided the issue. Get Off closed powerfully for third place and Robert L. was fourth.

Bay Carse Has Hard Drive.

Bay Carse, Wright's first winner, had also to go to a hard drive in the six and one half furlong fourth race, finishing in 1:20 flat. The favorite, Watch Over, led thru the stretch but Ead's final push decided the issue in favor of Bay Carve. Third fell to Donna Leona with Domkin fourth.

ADAMS RIDES 5 WINNERS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 18 (AP).—Jockey Johnny Adams rode in seven races at Santa Anita today and brought in five winners, tying the track record of Jack Westrope. He also piloted the two long-shot winners of the day. Time Counts in the second race paid $51.50, $15.20 and $7 across the board on $2 tickets. Less Time in the fourth was worth $56.80, $18.20 and $7.80.

Adams had Flying Streak, a 6 to 5 favorite, in the $10,000 Santa Susana stakes, won by Cute Trick, but she got away badly, finishing sixth. He rode Bucket Head to show in the final race.

Mrs. Vera S. Bragg's entry cleaned up in the Santa Susana, Cute Trick winning and Transient finishing third. Appeasement was second. The time of the seven furlong event for 3 year old fillies was 1:23 3-5.

C. Y. O. Defending Champion.

The Walter Eckersall memorial trophy goes to the championship squad for one year. The Catholic Youth Organization is defending champion and will probably receive its best competition in the finals from the Northwest Skating club.

Waveland offers excellent parking facilities for spectators and the slopes around the rink, which is enclosed by fence, furnish a splendid view of the races. All events will be skated on a six lap to the mile track.

Motorists are asked to enter the park at the Irving Park boulevard entrance. This is three blocks north of the rink, but cars may be parked directly west of the skating arenas and also to the south.

FAMOUS FRENCH RACE HORSE NOW PULLS A CARRIAGE

VICHY, France, Jan. 18 (AP).—Epinard, famous French race horse, has been discovered at Chartres being used as a carriage horse, the Lyon edition of the Paris Soir said today. The 21 year old horse was stolen from his stable during the confusion of the German advance, the paper said.

Epinard invaded the United States for a series of international races in 1924. He finished second in each of the three events, losing to Wise Counsellor in a six furlong dash at Belmont Park; to Ladkin in a mile race at Aqueduct, and to Sarazen in a mile and a quarter event at Latonia.

RECORDS FALL AS INDUSTRIES STEP UP OUTPUT

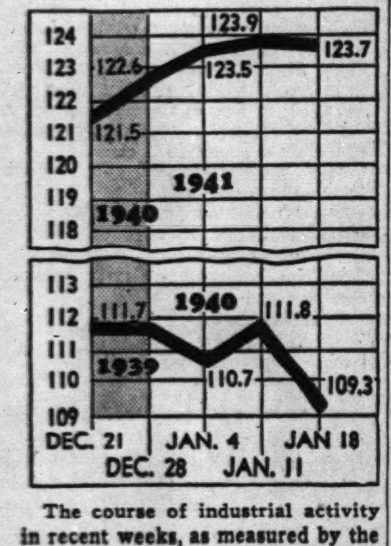
But Order Backlogs Mount Higher.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Business expansion continued last week as increasing emphasis was placed on defense production and aid to Great Britain.

Auto manufacturers set a January weekly production record as they rushed preparations against the day when armament demands might curtail output for civilian use. Steel mills produced as never before, yet the mountain of unfilled orders grew. Freight streamed over rails in a 10 year record volume for the time of year covered by the latest weekly report. Carriers ordered millions of dollars worth of equipment.

Power generators carried bigger loads. Wholesalers and retailers were unusually busy. Banks did a little more lending to business. Farmers were drawn into the national swirl of activity as live stock prices bounded. Contractors worked feverishly to build factories.



The course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100.

Drop "Business as Usual."

Discussions about keeping business running as usual ceased to be heard. Automobile makers canceled plans for their annual New York show next October. Warnings were given that civilian use of aluminum will have to be curtailed.

At the navy yards the 40 hour week was being officially scrapped. British selling of American securities to finance war goods purchases caused marketing of large amounts of securities "over the counter" rather than thru the stock exchange as a precaution against demoralization of prices. Stock exchange business dwindled and the price of memberships touched a 41 year low mark of $30,000.

As earnings reports from corporations continued to show the effects of increasing taxes, the war theme dominated budget and tax matters in Washington. Congress appeared thoroly shocked at the size of the financial load which the nation is shouldering.

Textile Output Dips.

Altho most of the leading indices of business activity were higher last week than in the preceding week, there were a few stragglers. The volume of new offerings of securities declined, engineering construction awards were let in smaller volume, and cotton textile production schedules slackened.

The drop in cotton mill activity caused a decline in the Associated Press weekly index. The index, based on 1929-'30 levels as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Previous week.	Year ago.
Automobile prod....	118.5	109.6	109.0
Steel mill act........	*132.2	130.5	113.8
Cotton mfg act......	151.0	161.0	129.5
Elec power prod....	137.6	138.0	128.0
Residential building	127.0	127.0	92.0
Total carloadings...*	82.0	80.5	77.2

*New 1940-'41 high.

Production of automobiles totaled 124,025 units for the week, the largest volume reported for any January week in the industry's history. In the preceding week assemblies totaled 115,935 units.

Steel mills operated at the rate of 98.5 per cent of theoretical capacity.

PREPARE 'FINISH FIGHT' AGAINST SEAWAY PLAN

Boston, Mass., Jan. 18 (AP).—A campaign to persuade congress to oppose adoption of the St. Lawrence seaway project advocated by President Roosevelt will be launched in Washington next week, an opposition sopkesman said tonight.

Frank S. Davis, manager of the Boston Maritime association and newly chosen chairman of the executive committee of the national St. Lawrence project conference, said the group would meet at the capital to lay the groundwork for discussions of the measure with house and senate members. He said the new organization planned to establish headquarters in Washington and carry on a "fight to the finish" against the proposal.

Int. Harvester Moline Strike Is Deadlocked

International Harvester company's East Moline, Ill., works remained closed in a strike yesterday as officials of an independent union and of the company recessed a conference in the afternoon still in a deadlock.

Meantime, at the company's Farmall tractor works in Rock Island, another independent union—United Motor Power association—announced it had served a demand on the company for a blanket pay increase of 10 cents an hour. The union claims to represent 2,600 of the 4,000 employés at the Farmall works. Edward Smith, president of the union, said he expects the company to negotiate and that there will be no strike so far as his union is concerned.

Still Are "Far Apart."

At the East Moline works, where combines and corn pickers are manufactured, executives of the company, including E. W. Stahl, works superintendent, conferred with Tony Laporte of Milwaukee, president of the Independent Unions brotherhood.

When the parley was recessed, Laporte said: "We are as far apart as when we started."

Laporte said the first major point—whether the company would take disciplinary action against leaders of the strike—was the one on which the conference deadlocked, without taking up other points. Stahl said he would confer with Chicago executives of the company before negotiations are resumed, probably on Tuesday.

C. I. O. Also on Strike.

The independent union is one of two unions which are on strike at the East Moline works. The plant closed Thursday following a sitdown strike by about 150 members of the independent union, which is the plant's recognized bargaining agency.

Later the Farm Equipment Workers Organizing committee [C. I. O.] at the same plant also called a strike charging that the company inspired the independent union strike to "lock out" the C. I. O. [The company denied the charge.]

Still hanging fire was the threat of Gerald Fielde, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. union, to call strikes tomorrow at seven other International Harvester plants, including three in Chicago, unless the company breaks off negotiations with the independent union at East Moline.

Two Locals Vote Today.

C. I. O. locals at these seven plants at which the C. I. O. also claims bargaining rights are scheduled to vote on the strike question. Two of the locals, those at the Chicago tractor works and the Rock Falls, Ill., plant, will vote today.

At East Moline yesterday, Dewitt Gilpin, C. I. O. field representative, said the C. I. O. workers were willing to return to work there if the independent union and the company reached a settlement satisfactory to a majority of the plant's workers. Any such settlement, however, would not affect the demands made in Chicago by the C. I. O. concerning International Harvester as a whole, Gilpin said.

A dispute over seniority ratings was said to have caused the independent union at East Moline to stage its sitdown. Later the union presented 18 demands relating not only to seniority but to wage rates.

Recognized at Two Plants.

Nearly identical demands were made by the C. I. O. union. The C. I. O. is recognized by the company as the bargaining agent at two plants, the Chicago tractor works and the Richmond, Ind., works.

The Richmond plant makes seeding machines and cotton and corn planters. The other six plants at which the C. I. O. claims jurisdiction are those at East Moline and Rock Island and the following: Milwaukee, where cream separators, farm engines, tractors, and milking machines are made; Rock Falls, where corn shellers, hay loaders, and other equipment are produced; McCormick works, Chicago, binders, mowers, and feed grinders, and the West Pullman works, Chicago, magnetos, bearings, and carburetors.

About 1,400 employés have been made idle by the East Moline strike.

MARSHALL FIELD LEASES BUILDING ON SHORE DRIVE

Marshall Field & Co., has leased the five story building on Lake Shore drive, between Ohio and Ontario streets, from the University of Chicago for four years, it was announced yesterday. The building fronts 240 feet on the drive, 128 on Ohio and 126 on Ontario and contains 118,000 square feet. It will be used for storing household appliances for city delivery.

Leasing of the building will free 90,000 square feet in the Merchandise Mart now used for storage, of which 30,000 will be reconstructed for showrooms and shops for Eisenberg & Sons, Inc., dress manufacturer. The rest will be available for new tenants.

Marshall Field still retains 150,000 square feet for the storage of furniture in the Merchandise Mart and the company expects eventually to vacate this also so that it may be available for new tenants in the mart.

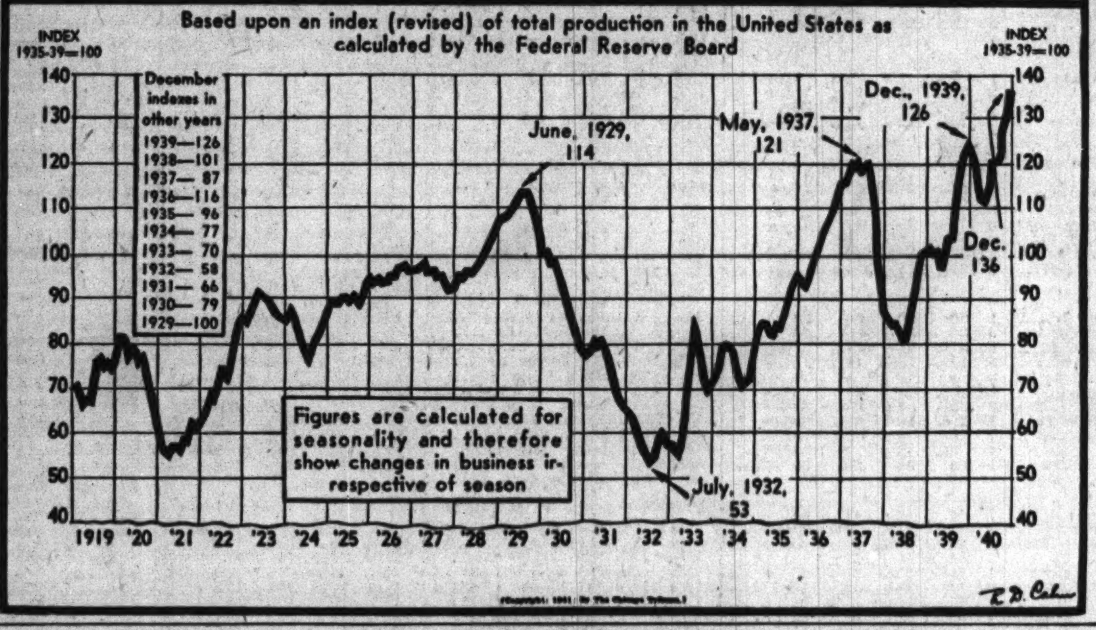
Industrial Production in the United States Hit a New All-Time High in December



Report Plane, Tank Output Is Speeded Up

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—Substantial speeding up of the output of war planes and light tanks, under pressure of American and British demands, was reported officially today.

John D. Biggers.

American aircraft plants turned out 799 planes of all military types in December, John D. Biggers, of the new office of production management, disclosed. January production should exceed this total "modestly," he said. The output of 13-ton, light tanks, for the army was described as more than four months ahead of schedule.

The plane figures exceeded by some 14 per cent the advance estimate of William S. Knudsen, co-director of the office of defense production management, who told the National Association of Manufacturers last month that delays had forced a scaling down of expectations to a rate of only 700 a month by January 1.

"Jolted Into Extra Effort."

"Mr. Knudsen's statement jolted everybody into extra effort and there were certain other favorable factors," Biggers told reporters.

The production stepup report was made in connection with the naming of officials of the OPM production division, headed by Biggers.

Biggers, a Toledo glass manufacturer, explained that the top office of production management which President Roosevelt created last month with Knudsen and Sidney Hillman as joint directors, was "an operating organization" rather than advisory like the defense commission. The OPM includes Biggers' production division, a division of purchasing under Donald M. Nelson, and a priorities division headed by Edward R. Stettinius Jr., which is empowered to enforce compliance with defense orders by regulating distribution of materials and transportation.

May Have Big Staff.

The production division will have the responsibility of accelerating the manufacture of arms of all kinds and, as outlined by Biggers, may be destined to expand into an agency of thousands of officials and employés. The aircraft section alone, which under the defense commission had a total personnel of only eight, already has added 77 others and Biggers said he was "afraid" this expansion was typical.

In an address Biggers tonight urged the nation's manufacturers—large and small—to coöperate in a census of plant facilities to be taken next week by the national industrial council, sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

ARMY SAYS LABOR LAW QUESTION IS UP TO CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—The war department, informed persons said today, has decided that the question of whether or not firms accused of violating the Wagner act should be denied defense contracts is a matter for congress.

Consequently, it was said, the department will not write into its contracts a requirement that contractors comply with the labor relations statute unless it receives specific instructions to this effect from congress.

Sidney Hillman, labor leader and associate director of the new office of production management, tried in vain recently to have such a clause placed in two contracts with Ford Motors.

18½ MILLION PERSONS AND FIRMS EXPECTED TO FILE TAX RETURNS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—The treasury today completed distribution of blanks to 15,000,000 individuals and 3,500,000 corporations from whom it expects income tax returns this year. The number of individual returns is expected to double the 1940 figure, due to the defense revenue act of last summer.

This act cut exemptions for single persons from $1,000 to $800 and for family heads from $2,500 to $2,000, besides adding a 10 per cent "supertax" to the regular rates.

That meant that the treasury wanted a return from every unmarried person who earned as much as $15.39 a week and every family head who earned $38.47 a week last year.

Believing that the millions of new taxpayers would need at least as much help as their "old customers" in filling in the tax blanks, officials said they were starting early to organize informational facilities at the 62 collectors' offices thruout the country.

The number of anticipated corporation returns was only about 500,000 more than last year, but many corporations will have an extra return to fill out in compliance with the newest of the defense taxes, the excess profits levy.

SEC. HULL EASES CONTROLS OVER SALES TO CANADA

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull issued general licenses today for the export to Canada of approximately 150 articles and materials considered necessary to the national defense. Individual export licenses hitherto had been required.

Today's announcement said "it will be observed that these general licenses cover all the articles and materials for which export licenses are required except arms, ammunition, and implements of war as listed in the President's proclamation of May 1, 1937; tin plate scrap; graphite; plans, specifications, and other documents containing descriptive or technical information within the scope of President Roosevelt's proclamation of Sept. 12, 1940, and Dec. 20, 1940, and all machine tools other than those specifically enumerated under license GDG 1."

License GDG 1 designates a long list of machine tools including threading machines, band saws, filing machines, burnishing machines, and similar equipment.

TWO FURNITURE SHOWS END; BOTH SET NEW RECORD

Two furniture exhibitions in progress in Chicago for the last two weeks closed yesterday with the attendance of buyers the largest ever recorded, and market sales about 25 per cent above those of last year's winter markets.

Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, said that registrations of buyers during the National Home Furnishings show reached 13,097, compared with the former peak of 11,556 set a year ago.

Percy Wilson, managing director of the Merchandise Mart, said that 11,824 buyers attended the International Home Furnishings market, or 7 per cent more than the former peak. Sales gains averaging 25 per cent were reported by comparison with last winter's markets at both centers.

Wilson predicted that if current trends are continued, 1941 retail home furnishings sales should reach $2,175,000,000.

Plan to Freeze All U.S. Assets of Foreigners

New York, Jan. 18 [Special].—Plans to "freeze" all foreign assets in the United States, similar to the license system covering the American funds of invaded nations, have been completed, it was disclosed here today by reliable sources. The United States treasury, with the coöperation of federal reserve officials here and in Washington, it was learned, has carried the matter to the length of drafting an executive order which awaits the signature of President Roosevelt.

Such an order, it was said, would halt the present free flow of axis funds into and out of the United States.

Believed Cause of Flight.

Financial circles believe that fear of this step inspired the recent flight of German and Swiss money. The advantage, it was said, of the license system would be that, while tying up holdings of friendly nations as well as those of axis partners, it would permit control of withdrawals in conformity with interests of the United States.

There is no single figure obtainable that measures accurately foreign dollar resources which have been variously estimated from 4 to 8 billions.

License systems are in effect for the funds of those countries occupied in whole or in part by Germany and the soviet union. They are designed to prevent the conquerors from using for their own advantage the assets of nationals in occupied territory. However, there are no bars to transfers of German, Italian, or Japanese funds.

Under the system contemplated licenses would be granted freely to the governments of countries with which the United States is in sympathy.

UTILITY FILES BIG ISSUES OF STOCKS, BONDS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—Wisconsin Public Service corporation, Milwaukee, today filed $26,500,000 of 3¼ per cent first mortgage bonds, due 1971, and 132,000 shares of 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock, $100 par value. The company also proposed sale of 200,000 shares of common stock, $10 par value, to its parent, Standard Gas and Electric company, at par.

The company said that 118,580 shares of the new preferred would be offered in exchange to holders of outstanding preferred, other than its parent, on a share for share basis, plus cash equal to the difference between the public offering price of the new stock and the redemption price of the old preferred. This offer will expire Feb. 10. The remaining 13,420 shares of preferred and shares not taken in exchange will be offered publicly.

Proceeds will be used to redeem in March outstanding 4 per cent bonds and three issues of preferred stock.

FOOD HANDLERS JAM HOTELS IN 22 CONVENTIONS

Chicago Will Be Host to Thousands.

Chicago will become the food capital of the United States this week, with 25,000 delegates attending meetings of 22 organizations connected with the growing, processing, wholesale distribution, and retail sale of food.

As a consequence of the influx, hotel space will be at a premium, both in the loop and nearby areas. Many of the large loop hotels such as the Stevens, Sherman, Palmer House, and Morrison have been sold out for weeks.

The first of the meetings took place Friday and yesterday when registration of 150 jobbers and 100 manufacturers at the seventh annual convention of the National Brands Stores, Inc., an independent food distributing group, in the La Salle hotel, broke all records.

2 Groups Take Over Stevens.

The majority of the sessions will be this week, however, with much activity centering at the Stevens where two of the largest groups—the National Canners association and the Canning Machinery and Supplies association—have taken over all of the hotel's convention space.

Much of the activity of the groups will be concerned with intraindustry problems, but the week also will see the transaction of many millions of dollars worth of business.

Hear W-G-N Audition.

Several hundred leaders in the independent field will gather in the W-G-N main audience studio at 4:30 p. m. today to see and hear what is considered by many of them to be the answer—a nation-wide radio program. An audition of the program "American Hometown" produced by William A. Bacher, will highlight the studio meeting. Chairmen will be Gerard Ungaro, Chicago attorney who heads the "Committee of Jan. 19" which has been working on the promotion problem. J. Frank Grimes, president of the Independent Grocers' Alliance, is one the most active members of the committee.

At the Blackstone hotel an exhibit of frozen foods will be opened today to merchants and others, 5,000 of whom have been invited to see the latest developments in the industry.

Canners Meet Tomorrow.

The National Canners' association starts its sessions tomorrow, and the Canners Machinery and Supplies association on Tuesday. Other groups which have scheduled conventions or board meetings include:

United Buyers' corporation, Chicago Towers, today; Red and White Stores, Drake, today; National Preservers' association, Morrison, today to Tuesday; National Sugar Brokers' association, Palmer House, tomorrow thru Tuesday; United States Wholesale Grocers, Palmer House, tomorrow; National Macaroni Manufacturers' association, Morrison, tomorrow; California Lima Beans Growers' association, Palmer House, tomorrow; National Association of Retail Grocers, Sherman, tomorrow thru Friday; Coöperative Food Distributors of America, Sherman, Tuesday; Peanut Butter group, Morrison, Tuesday.

Food Brokers Open Today.

Evaporated Milk association, Blackstone, Wednesday; National Retailer-Owned Grocers, Sherman, Tuesday to Friday; National Pickle Packers, Palmer House, Wednesday; California Walnut Growers, Palmer House, Wednesday; Independent Grocers' alliance, Knickerbocker, Wednesday and Thursday; National Retail Grocers Secretaries association, Sherman, Wednesday to Friday; National Food Distributors, Illinois Athletic association, Thursday; National Food Brokers' association, Palmer House, today and tomorrow; Clover Farm stores, Congress, Tuesday, and National American Wholesale Grocers' association, Congress, tomorrow thru Thursday.

Army Contract of 36½ Million Given to Buick

Chicago companies shared in national defense orders and contracts placed yesterday, but the biggest award of the day was made by the war department to the Buick division of General Motors corporation for $36,497,520 of airplane engines.

The navy department announced that its contract with Foote Brothers Gear and Machine company, Chicago, for expansion of plant equipment, has been increased to $1,940,000, from $1,020,000. The company has subcontracts to make gears for manufacturers of airplane motors.

Buda Gets Navy Order.

Buda company of Harvey received from the navy an order for $421,680 of switchboard generator sets. Nye Tool and Machine Works, Chicago, received a navy order for $16,964 of stock dies.

The United States Housing authority approved a $1,248,420 contract with the Henke construction company, Chicago, for construction of two housing projects in Cairo, Ill.

Harlow H. Curtice, general manager for Buick, said that negotiations are in progress which will increase to approximately $125,000,000 the total value of aircraft engines and spare parts to be manufactured by the company. He said approval has been given for plans to build and equip a new plant for the production of 1,200 horsepower Pratt and Whitney air cooled engines, currently used in medium bombers. Curtice said the plant will produce about 500 engines a month under normal operations and will employ about 10,000 persons. Location of the plant has not been definitely announced.

Other Contracts Awarded.

General Motors' guide lamp division, Anderson, Ind., received a $352,500 contract to supply artillery ammunition to the army.

Various other army contracts totaling about $3,200,000 were announced. Included was one for $1,572,776 covering construction of warehouses at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

The navy disclosed it had signed a $2,160,000 contract with Lukens Stell company, Coatesville, Pa., for an increase in its plant capacity. Anchors costing a total of $341,850 were ordered by the department from Columbia Steel company, San Francisco.

Shipyard Sites Selected.

Maritime commission officials announced that four new sites had been selected for shipbuilding facilities to construct the recently announced 200 ship emergency cargo fleet.

In addition to Portland, Ore., Los Angeles, Cal., and Houston, Tex., previously announced, facilities will be constructed at New Orleans, Mobile, Ala., Baltimore, and Wilmington, N. C.

The department of the interior awarded Western Pipe and Steel company, San Francisco, a $1,587,000 contract covering four penstocks to be installed at Shasta dam, in California.

It was reported in Washington that production on a volume basis of chromium from hitherto virtually untapped chromite ore deposits would be started within a month in Montana and along the Pacific coast.

ORDERS FURTHER SEPARATION OF OIL, PIPE FIRMS

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 18 (AP).—Federal Judge John P. Nields today affirmed recommendations of a special master that a consent decree entered in 1936 be broadened to require further separation of the interests of the Columbia Gas and Electric corporation, Columbia Oil and Gasoline corporation, and others in the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company.

Large holders of interests in both Columbia and Panhandle Eastern will be required to divest themselves of dual interest and control.

The matter of modification of the 1936 decree was referred to a special master upon petition by the government and the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company.

GRAIN, CATTLE MEN FIGHT FREE TRADE PROGRAM

Oppose Market Raid by South America.

Representatives of American grain and live stock producers began a drive yesterday to protect the domestic market from a threatened flood of competitive imports from South American countries. The threat of market invasion lay in a proposal of Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox that all barriers in trade between the United States and the South American nations be removed.

The proposal was made on Friday in the secretary's testimony before the house foreign affairs committee on President Roosevelt's legislative plan for lending or leasing American products and implements of war to the democracies of the world which are fighting the dictators.

He advocated that "every last barrier" be removed to promote a free flow of trade between countries in South America and the United States.

Clash In Products.

Representatives of American farmers expressed opposition to such a plan because nearly all of the Latin American goods offered on the world markets are agricultural products which the United States produces in abundance. The United States is also seeking a world outlet for these commodities.

Argentina, one of the principal Latin countries which competes with the United States in the world sale of agricultural products, already has a strong foothold in the United States market in the sale of canned beef. Argentina many years ago replaced the United States as Great Britain's chief source of chilled beef, and has strengthened its position thru large contracts of beef for Britain's armed forces.

The same nation several years ago flooded the United States market with corn produced so cheaply that it passed this country's tariff walls and sold below prices of United States corn. At that time, domestic supplies had been reduced as the result of drouth. The flow of Argentine corn, now reduced to a trickle, would be renewed should the tariff be removed, grain men said.

Bernard W. Snow, whom grain men regard as one of the best informed Chicagoans in the trade, thus analyzed the secretary's proposal: "The surplus agricultural products of South American countries are in direct competition with those of our own country. We meet Argentine beef and grain competition in all markets of the world. The proposal to tear down the tariff walls would not be practicable from the economic standpoint, altho there may be arguments in its favor from other points of consideration. There is strong feeling thruout the United States against taking the duties off cattle."

Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, said: "The troublesome problems of surplus in both North and South Amer-

STOCKS ATTEMPT EARLY RISE, BUT SOON SLIP BACK

Small Volume Is Result of Many Factors.

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—The stock market today ended a generally unsatisfactory week with a futile attempt to break the lengthy stalemate. In languid dealings steels, rails, aircrafts, and specialties moved up fractions to a point at the start of the brief session. Prices then faltered and sufficient selling came in to wipe out advances for most leaders.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 43.8 but on the week was down 1.1 points. The composite had erased nearly all of its post-New Year's upturn.

The two hour turnover of 249,180 shares was the smallest since Nov. 23.

Causes of Light Trade.

The week's desultory performance, on a volume which was the lightest since mid-October, was attributed variously to fresh warnings of war dangers from Washington, the growing congressional rift over the lend-lease bill, and revived fears that the sharp business recovery, due mainly to defense spending, would exact heavy tax penalties from most corporations.

Revived apprehension over possible labor difficulties also was a factor. Another flaw was seen in exceptionally big blocks of British owned and domestic securities which were sold privately off the stock exchange. One offering Thursday of 500,000 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey at 34½, helped deepen the gloom for both commission houses and traders. This stock today backed down ⅜ to 34.

CHICAGO PRICES MIXED.

Prices were irregular in trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Trading involved 11,000 shares in 59 issues, of which 20 advanced, 25 declined, and 14 closed unchanged. On a turnover of 1,750 shares, Commonwealth Edison, the only issue to exceed the 1,000-share volume, closed down ⅛ at 28⅛.

Bendix Aviation reached a new 1940-'41 high at 36½ in limited trading and closed slightly below the peak with a net gain of ⅝ point. Viking Pump rose ½ to a new high at 34 on a few trades, and Asbestos Manufacturing advanced ⅛ to a peak of 2.

WHEAT AND CORN PRICES A LITTLE LOWER AT CLOSE

Favorable crop reports and professional selling were responsible for an easier undertone in the wheat market yesterday. New crop months led the decline and the close was near the bottom at losses of ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel.

Corn futures held within narrow price limits and finished ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower. Price changes in other grains and soy beans were confined to small fractions of a cent.

A proposal made by the secretary of the navy for free trade with South American countries was regarded by grain traders as fantastic. The proposal had no effect on the grain market. Argentine wheat, corn, oats, and flaxseed are selling far below prices in this country.

NEW PRICE PEAKS SET BY WOOL AND COFFEE FUTURES

Rubber, Hides, and Silk End Week Lower.

Wool tops and Santos coffee reached their highest 1940-'41 prices at the end of last week. A majority of other commodity futures, including copper, tin, cottonseed oil and cocoa, also showed gains. Rubber and hides had severe losses and silk and sugar were down. In the cash markets, wool tops, refined sugar and tin were higher and rubber declined.

Wool tops, in an outburst of activity, rose to a peak $1.12 2-10 a pound in May deliveries and finished at $1.12 or a gain of 2.4 cents. The cash bid added 3 cents at $1.20.

Coffee Again Sets Peak.

Santos coffee, after receding from the previous week's top prices, advanced to 7.33 cents a pound in May on further boosts in Colombian export prices. The week's gain was 0.17 at 7.32 cents.

Rubber futures weakened steadily during the week and finished at 19.41 cents a pound in May for a drop of 0.52 cent. The cash price was 0.58 cent lower at 19.62 cents.

Hides likewise were under pressure and slumped 0.61 cent a pound in June contracts to 12.64 cents.

Metals Mostly Higher.

An increasingly "tight" supply situation in the face of growing national defense needs gave firmness to nonferrous metal markets. Copper futures were 0.27 cent a pound higher at 11.37 cents in May contracts. Tin edged forward 0.05 cent a pound to 50.10 cents in May and lead was unchanged at 5.30 cents for the same delivery. Zinc for May delivery rose 0.35 cent a pound to 9 cents.

The Associated Press weighted wholesale price index of 35 cash staples, based on 1926 at 100, set a three-year high of 78.87 and ended the week at 78.75 for a gain of 0.55. The Dow-Jones commodity futures index declined 0.56 to 56.98.

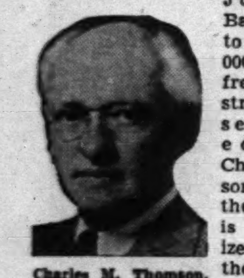
JUDGE APPROVES C. & N. W. PLAN TO BUY EQUIPMENT

Would Spend $7,370,000 for New Cars.



Charles M. Thomson.

The Chicago and North Western railway was authorized by Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday to spend $7,370,000 for additional freight cars and streamlined passenger train equipment. Charles M. Thomson, trustee for the road which is being reorganized, had asked the court for permission to get Interstate Commerce Commission authority for the issuance of equipment trust certificates to finance the purchase.

The road proposes to buy the following equipment: 1,000 gondola cars, $2,450,000; 500 box cars, $,650,000; 200 ore cars, $520,000; five 2,000 horsepower Diesel electric passenger locomotive, $95,000; and 25 streamlined passenger cars of the type used on the "400" in service between Chicago and St. Paul-Minneapolis, $1,800,000.

Wisconsin Train Studied.

The new passenger cars are to consist of sixteen coaches, four combination baggage-tap room cars, three diners, and two parlor cars.

Officials of the road said it is tentatively planned to use the passenger equipment in service between Chicago and Wisconsin points, and possibly some points in southern Minnesota. They declined to disclose what cities and towns would be included in the territory served, explaining that no decision has yet been reached. It was reported some time ago that Green Bay and other northeastern Wisconsin cities were urging streamlined train connection with Chicago.

Thomson in his petition said that the retirement of 2,500 freight cars during 1940 and increased demands made on the road by the national defense program were responsible for the purchase.

Runs Several Streamliners.

He explained that the road proposes to finance 75 per cent of the purchase price thru the sale of equipment trust certificates and the remaining 25 per cent is to be paid in cash.

The North Western is a pioneer road in the operation of streamlined trains. It operates jointly with the Union Pacific the City of Los Angeles, City of Portland and City of Denver, and jointly with the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific the City of San Francisco. Two additional streamliners are being built at the Chicago works of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, with delivery scheduled for spring. One is to run to Los Angeles and the other to San Francisco.

Investors' Guide

MAINSPRING OF GROWTH.

"Growth" stocks, according to a popular investment theory, should be the prime selection of investors buying common stocks. There is a wide difference of opinion as to how to select a growth stock, but it is generally agreed that such a stock is one issued by a company with attractive prospects for long term expansion.

Predicting the future course of an enterprise is an uncertain undertaking. The factors which converge to shape its destiny are manifold and include such imponderables as the skill of the management, the impact of government, taxes, international events, competition, national income and popular tastes.

Inscrutable as the future of a business may be, the investor must make some reasonable decision, before he buys any stock, as to whether the company will at least maintain its present earning power and whether it has the promise of continued growth.

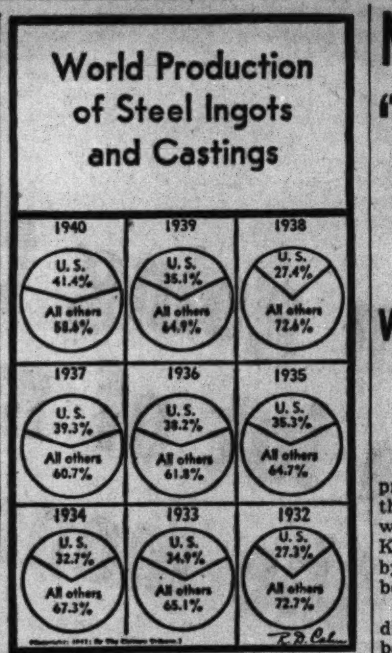
A method for analyzing the growth possibilities of an enterprise was advanced recently by Dr. Chaplin Tyler, research chemist for E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., before financial executives of life insurance companies. The advice he offered follows:

"If I were to look at an investment problem today, I would examine not only the company's financial statements, assure myself that the products were essential things in good demand, and that the management was composed of men of character who were duly mindful of their obligations to employés and to the public.

"I would also examine the amount and kind of research done, with especial regard for prospective new products; the physical condition of the plant and the degree to which production processes were rationalized; the facilities for developing new business thru technical sales research; and the extent to which research minded, technically trained men occupy responsible posts thruout the organization, including top management.

"I would consider the degree of diversification of the company's products. I would examine carefully the company's position respecting patents and trade marks. I would examine the raw material sources, with especial regard to imported materials. I would assume that a status quo was impossible, that the company was either going ahead or going backward, with respect to its competitors."

Such an analysis would prove a helpful guide to sound investment decisions. It would not only indicate the growth prospects but also the present strength or weakness of a business.



GRAIN, CATTLE MEN FIGHT FREE TRADE PROGRAM

Oppose Market Raids by South America.

ican countries are bound to come in conflict. A high degree of statesmanship is required to solve the problem."

See No Useful Purpose.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, reiterated the association's position with regard to the South American situation, which was set up during last month's annual convention when the farmer representatives resolved that "no useful purpose would be served by bringing commodities to the United States which are already in surplus in this country." The association went on record in favor of financial assistance to the Latin nations.

Traders on the Chicago Board of Trade expressed the opinion that the domestic grain prices structure would be shattered should unrestricted imports be permitted from South American countries thru abandonment of duties. They called attention to statistics of Argentina, principal grain producer in the southern hemisphere, showing surplus stocks of 200 million bushels of corn and 100 million bushels of wheat.

Report Price No Factor.

It was said the Argentine government wishes to dispose of these vast supplies wherever possible regardless of price. As an indication of governmental anxiety, an attempt was made a few months ago to use Argentine corn for fuel.

Traders said that should the duties be scrapped, Argentine grains would flood the United States notwithstanding the fact that costs of shipping to this country have risen to about 50 cents a bushel, from a normal rate of about 10 cents, because of the shortage of ships as a result of the war.

D. M. Hildebrand, president of the United States Live Stock association, an organization of 8,500 producers thruout the country, declared that scrapping the tariff protection would "wreck every live stock producer in the United States and make peons of the farmers."

"Can't Possibly Compete."

"This nation would be forced to lower its standard of living," he said at Seward, Neb., "because we cannot possibly compete with the low production and labor costs of South America.

"The proposal is dangerous from another standpoint. The hoof and mouth disease is widespread in Argentina, and should infected cattle be permitted in this country, our herds would soon be ruined. This government spent millions of dollars stamping out the disease, and thru the sanitary agreement in effect between the United States and Argentina, has prohibited the importation of infected cattle.

NLRB ISSUES 7TH 'TENTATIVE' FORD COMPANY ORDER

Would Compel Rehiring of 1,021 Workers.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—A proposed order which would require the Ford Motor company to reinstate with back pay 1,021 workers at its Kansas City plant was issued today by the National Labor Relations board.

The company had been accused of discriminating against the workers because of their union activities. The board's announcement termed the decision "tentative."

The proposed order, which is the seventh issued against the company, is based on tentative findings alleging that the plant refused to re-employ 975 workers and discriminated against 46 strikers to discourage membership in the United Auto Workers union [A. F. of L.] during the fall of 1937.

Have 30 Days for Answer.

The board said the company and the union would have 30 days to file exceptions and briefs and 20 days to request oral argument before a final order is issued.

In addition, the proposed order would require the company to "cease discouraging membership" in the A. F. of L. union and to disestablish the independent union of Ford workers.

The board's tentative findings, charging that the company shut down its plant in October, 1937, as part of "a plan to destroy the U. A. W." and rehired only those who joined the independent, were based on one of the longest hearings in the agency's history.

Four Orders in Courts.

After issuing a complaint against the company in January, 1938, the board held hearings at Kansas City which extended from February, 1938, to July 19, 1939.

Officials said labor board actions against the company already had resulted in the issuance of six orders, four of which are now in the courts. The Kansas City case is one of three, they said, which had not reached the stage of final action.

The action which the board termed a "lockout" came at a time when the plant ended production on 1937 models and was preparing to produce 1938 models.

DEMAND FOR RAIL LOANS STIFFENS PRICES OF BONDS

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—Demand for rail loans stiffened an irregular bond market today. Utility liens tended downward and industrials were about divided between gains and losses. Foreign dollar loans were uneven while United States government obligations lost up to 5-32ds point in light turnover.

Despite comparatively brisk trade in carriers, total business amounted to only $3,926,000, face value, lowest for any Saturday since Nov. 30. This compared with $6,293,300 a week ago.

Heartened by prospects the nation's freight needs would expand still further with defense business buyers bid up a diversified list of rail issues.

In the foreign list German 5½s of '65 dipped a minor fraction to 9⅜ but the 7s of '49 were a trifle higher at 12⅝. Oriental Development 5½s lost 2⅛ at 40½.

DECEMBER IRON ORE USE BREAKS ALL-TIME RECORD

Cleveland, O., Jan. 18 (AP).—December consumption of Lake Superior iron ore was 6,173,038 gross tons, the largest total for any month since records were first kept in 1918, the Lake Superior Iron Ore association reported today. It boosted the 1940 total to 62,426,314, the highest since 1929's 63,646,000 and well ahead of 44,361,289 in 1939. The previous monthly record was 6,119,000 tons in May, 1923.

Lake Superior iron ore on hand at furnaces on Jan. 1 was listed at 31,791,961 tons and on Lake Erie docks at 4,280,872 for a total lower lake supply of 36,072,833. The current rate of consumption indicates stock at the May 1 navigation opening will be approximately 12,000,000 tons, the lowest on record.

PRODUCTS MADE FROM SOY BEANS RISE IN VALUE

Large Gain Reported Between 1937-1939.

The value of soy bean industrial products in the nation increased to $43,946,647 in 1939 from $24,312,433 in 1937, the Illinois Manufacturers association reported yesterday.

"The soy bean industry was one of the few to show a large gain in that period," the association said. "The number of wage earners increased to 1,481 from 871 in 1937, and salaried personnel in the industry increased 69.8 per cent.

"Illinois produces about half of the total crop of soy beans in the United States. In 1940, Illinois produced 35,140,000 bushels of the beans from 2,008,000 acres.

Used for Many Purposes.

Crediting the University of Illinois with helping to develop the industry in the state, the association listed numerous products made from the bean.

"Among 32 food products derived from soy beans is a flour used in bread, sausages, cocoa, chocolate bars, infant foods, and diabetic foods," the association's report said.

Industrial Uses Listed.

"Industrial products from soy beans include constituents of varnish, linoleum, printers ink, celluloid, glue, soap, rubber substitutes, and plastics.

"A practical problem on which the University of Illinois laboratory has been working is the extension of the uses of soy bean oil as a drying oil. The laboratory has developed varnishes of excellent durability which contain no other oil but soy bean oil."

BRITISH WORRIED OVER MOUNTING INFLATION TREND

Wages, Prices Soar; Less Goods Available.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The relation of purchasing power to supplies is presenting the British government with a problem which is steadily becoming more acute.

The latest issue of the ministry of labor gazette shows in the 11 months of last year to the end of November, £2,000,000 [about $8,000,000] was added to the full time weekly wage bill of industries employing about 7,000,800 persons. The figure does not include overtime or bonus payments or deductions for short time work but it is estimated the aggregate additions to wages since the outbreak of the war have ranged up to more than £100,000,000 [about $400,000,000] annually despite the mobilization of men in the fighting services.

Prices Jump 26 Per Cent.

Meanwhile, prices have shot up in all directions. According to ministry of labor figures, living costs since the beginning of September, 1939, have jumped 26 per cent. Growing fear is expressed by economists and financiers here that unless the government sharply revises its fiscal program Britain is headed for large scale inflation.

For a full year the war brought little perceptible change in the general manner of life of Britain's civil population, partly due to the existence of unemployed resources, encroachments on capital, the accumulation of commodity stocks and thru the use of foreign exchange reserves to pay for increased imports.

Recently, however, the position has changed. Symptoms of inflation—surplus purchasing power in relation to the goods available—are now forcing themselves on the attention of the public thru shop shortages and an upward surge of uncontroled prices. In the case of food, this position already has evoked an extension of the government price fixing system.

Urge Increased Taxation.

To counteract the inflationary spiral, financial writers are urging the government to formulate a new fiscal policy of cutting down labor and industrial costs and still further increasing taxation, particularly on the middle classes. With the national expenditure currently exceeding £4,000,000,000 [about $16,000,000,000] yearly and expanding fast, economists stress the potential dangers of uncontroled inflation.

At the present rate of taxation the estimated yield is only £1,500,000,000 [about $6,000,000,000] yearly, or approximately one-third of the current rate of expenditure. To help bridge the gap, the idea of compulsory savings, thru which the government would seize a percentage of all wages against a promise of repayment after the war, is again finding advocates. This system already exists on a voluntary basis under which the government absorbs workers' savings in return for war bonds certificates bearing a low rate of interest.

MEATS AND LIVE STOCK CONTINUE UPWARD TRENDS

Wholesale meat prices and costs of live meat animals reached the second highest level on average for January since the post world war year of 1920 during last week. There was a slight reaction with some leveling off of peak prices in the last half of the week, but markets remained well above month ago and year ago prices.

Packers paid an average of $10.25 a hundred pounds for the three principal classes of meat animals combined, steers, hogs, and lambs, a gain of 50 cents or 5.1 per cent over the average for the week before. The price was $2.15 higher than the same week last year, a rise of 26 per cent.

Meats Far Above Year Ago.

The various cuts of beef in wholesale markets closed the week from 3.7 to 14 per cent above the December lows, and from 10 to 42 per cent higher than on the same day last year. Pork cuts showed gains of 22 to 46 per cent over last month's lows, and increases of 40 to 65 per cent over a year ago. Lamb costs were unchanged to 42 per cent over last month and 4 to 31 per cent higher than a year ago.

Despite the rapid advance since the middle of last month, all classes of live stock and meat still are under the 1929 peaks. Last week's average of the three principal meat animals was 23 per cent under the January, 1929, price. Beef carcasses, which wholesaled from $19 to $26 a hundred pounds in 1929, sold yesterday from $14 to $22. Similar kinds were bought at $5 to $9.50 during 1933.

Loins at $15.50 to $19.

Pork loins that finished the week from $15.50 to $19 were comparable to the cuts that sold at $5.50 to $6.50 back in 1932 and at $26 to $34 at the 1929 peak. Retail stores paid $14 to $19 a hundred pounds for lamb carcasses, against $25 to $32.50 in 1929 and $6 to $10 in 1932.

The week's average price of hogs soared 80 cents, to $8.10, the second sharpest advance since September, 1937, and the largest January upswing in more than 20 years. The price compared with $5.45 a year ago.

Packers paid an average of $12.10 for steers during the week, the highest January cost since 1930. This price compared with $12 the week before and with $9.75 a year ago.

The week's average price of lambs advanced 55 cents to $10.50, highest for January since 1936, and second highest since 1930. This price compared with $9.10 a year ago.

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

Oldsmobile Officials Cheered by Sales

Oldsmobile officials are shown studying a chart which compares sales volumes of recent years. The 205,040 sales in 1941 were the largest in the company's history. Left to right: R. E. Griffin, production manager; S. E. Skinner, general manager, and D. E. Ralston, general sales manager. The former Oldsmobile record was set in 1937 with a total of 187,375.

CHRISTMAS GREETING.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—I sincerely hope that the "hit and run" driver who smashed up my car while it was parked in front of 10920 South Oakley avenue last Sunday had a "Merry Christmas," because I didn't. I needed that car and since I haven't a job, I can't have it fixed.

LEONARD P. FRICKE.

HELPFUL POLICEMAN.

Hinsdale, Ill., Jan. 13.—I wish to bring to your attention and to the attention of other motorists the coöperation and courtesies that the Westchester, Ill., police force extends to motorists who have occasion to pass thru or stop in Westchester.

On Sunday night, I had some tire trouble while passing thru the outer limits of the village. It was difficult to get the tire changed in the darkness, and with a flashlight that was not very bright. A Westchester squad car came along and the patrolman rendered every possible help to me by turning the spotlight on my car and offering some tools that would make the tire change quicker and easier.

It is a pleasure to know that Westchester has such efficient, coöperative and courteous men on its force. Other villages would do well to follow the example.

RAY S. SMOLIK.

THE LADY IS IRKED.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—The typical Chicago motorists from Mr. A. to Mr. E. as described in Mr. Salmon's letter to this department last Sunday must be personified in Mr. Salmon himself, for otherwise how could he describe them so accurately?

As to women drivers, it is a well-known fact that the percentage of women figuring in accidents is much lower than that of the male sex.

ANNE HARRIS.

FROM A FARMER.

Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 15.—There are a few laws, rules, and regulations which city visitors to our farming communities should know about and respect.

The parking of an automobile so close to a public highway roadbed as to endanger the safety of passing traffic is illegal even tho no part of the parked car may actually extend over the edge of such roadbed.

The defacing of officially posted traffic signs is punishable by a fine or imprisonment or both.

It is unlawful to drive over, pluck, or injure in any manner trees, shrubs, vines or flowers growing on the borders of a state highway in Illinois, highway department employés being excepted.

The act applies to mushroom hunters as well as to other forms of trespass. The beauty of our wooded tracts and roadsides are a delight to the majority of those persons privileged to drive thru the country during this marvelous fall season. There are, however, a few motorists whose day is a total loss unless they may return home laden with some sort of loot.

CLARENCE M. CLEVELAND.

ROOSEVELT ROAD AND HALSTED ST.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—The traffic situation in the vicinity of Roosevelt road and Halsted street is both deplorable and disgusting.

If there ever was a disregard for law, causing tie-ups, and traffic delays and making travel hazardous, this area should receive first prize.

I understand that Roosevelt road is a state highway. If this is true why is single and double parking allowed? Or is this area immune to the traffic code?

G. S. B.

UNNECESSARY STOP SIGN.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—I am sure that many Chicagoans have wondered why there is a stop sign on Elston avenue at Albany avenue. There are at least 20 vehicles on Elston avenue to every one on Albany avenue.

Considering these facts, I cannot conceive the value of a stop sign on Elston avenue instead of on Albany avenue. The only value that this stop sign could have is to serve as a trap for an unaware motorist who does not expect this stop sign, which might as well be in the middle of the block.

JOHN SEYBOLD.

ACCIDENT PREVENTION.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—When driving around the city, I often wonder what "Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee" does to keep the city safe, and what salaries are paid the members. And what the "Accident Prevention bureau" of the police department does to prevent accidents.

These two are mentioned in connection with the "Safety court" broadcasts, the former as sponsor, and the latter quite often in the cases tried, and it is obvious that they are supposed to aid in keeping down the automobile accidents. The accident prevention squad appears at the scene of the accident AFTER the accident has occurred. I have not heard a court case in which a reckless driver has been arrested BEFORE he caused injury or damage.

A number of accidents could be prevented by removing traffic lights and stop signs from behind trolley posts and trees, and placing them within sight of the approaching motorist, and enforcing the ordinance against parking [especially the large trucks] in front of the traffic signals.

AGAINST NIGHT PARKING.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—I wonder how contributor J. E. J., who defends all night parking, would relish the idea of all car owners utilizing our expensive streets for night parking purposes. Such wholesale usurpation of valuable pavement by all of us I am afraid would subject him and his fellow parking violators to considerable annoyance searching the neighborhood for a spot to squeeze in after finding his customary place occupied by some one who formerly had a garage. I anticipate there would be some frothing at the mouth while walking back to his home after locating quarters four or more blocks distant.

No, those of us who are paying from $2.50 to $6 per month for garage space, are not the owners of estates, nor have we any connection with garage owners or garage associations, but rather, just ordinary law abiding citizens who expect no special privileges.

There is only one fair way to handle this situation, and that is to assess the all night parker about $2 per month, a very low price for nullifying at least one-half of each street. Such parking, however, to be restricted to only those streets that would still afford two lanes for traffic.

AT TESTING STATION.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—The time: Dec. 31, 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. The place: Auto inspection station, 6934 Cottage Grove avenue. Present: At least 50 autos with others arriving. Inspectors: None.

After waiting in line for an hour, some one telephoned and learned that the inspection station would not be open today.

How much time is lost in people waiting to be served can never be estimated. If Tuesdays are to be added to the other days off at these stations will 1941 get to the point where they will be open during lunch hour only?

CITES NEED FOR CITY STREET TAX LEVY IN ILLINOIS

BY HAL FOUST.

Two proposed bills to enable cities to levy taxes for street construction and for traffic regulation receive favorable comment from Prof. C. C. Wiley of the University of Illinois in the current monthly publication of the Illinois Municipal league, Prof. Wiley, who has the chair of civil engineering, has long enjoyed a reputation as an authority on highway and automobile transportation problems.

The article sets up that Illinois municipalities face a lack of funds for pavements and for traffic regulation. Wiley said that "a sort of Santa Claus attitude" was developed by WPA projects and that this attitude must be eradicated if street improvements are to become stable and be able to meet the requirements. The professor's point is that the public must be educated to pay for improvements.

Places Cities on Parity.

One of the bills has as its purpose placing all municipalities on a parity with respect to street levies, regardless of whether the municipality constitutes a township or is merely part of a township. Cities and villages would be permitted to levy up to 20½ cents. Under the present law townships are the taxing authority.

In regard to traffic regulation Wiley said that an examination of budgets of several Illinois cities of intermediate size indicates that to provide adequate signs, markings, signals, engineering, and policing costs from 50 to 75 cents per year per capita.

"It has been suggested," reads the article, "that an increase in the general tax limit be sought, but there are objections to this in that it would not insure that the increase would go for traffic regulations. A better plan and one for which a rough draft of a bill has been made is to provide for a municipality to levy, in addition to all other taxes now permitted, a limited rate exclusively for traffic purposes.

It's an Important Matter.

"Some estimates indicate that a rate of 10 cents would be sufficient in most cities to provide a reasonably adequate traffic budget. It would seem that the importance of the matter is such that city officials might well give serious consideration to supporting such a proposal."

The professor also spoke favorably of curb parking meters as a source of revenue for traffic regulation expenses.

"Of course," Wiley concluded, "these proposals involve tax increases and these are invariably and often blindly opposed. One duty of our officials is to educate our public so that the people will be willing to provide the engineering and enforcement demanded by them for their own good."

250 CIVIL GROUPS URGE REVISION IN STATE AUTO LAWS

Motor Club Organizes a Pressure Program.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Chicago Motor club is organizing a pressure group to influence the Illinois legislature on issues relating to automobile operation. A legislative program is being formulated by the 250 civic and neighborhood improvement organizations that are affiliated in the motor club's five area councils.

The leading issue of interest to this group is the construction of deathproof highways in Chicago and vicinity. James E. Bulger, vice president of the motor club, said yesterday that no decision had been reached as yet on whether Cook county's proposal for toll superhighways will receive the support of his organization. Other methods of financing superhighway construction are also being considered.

May Amend License Code.

Several amendments to the drivers' license law are being proposed. The motor club's attorneys favor an amendment that would permit an administrative officer to suspend the license. Two years ago such a provision was killed in the house of representatives on the contention that political appointees should not be given judicial powers.

A bill is being drafted to regulate sanitary conditions at roadside eating places. One provision would require employés who handle food to pass periodical tests for syphilis. Drinking water also would be inspected by health authorities.

The motor club is suggesting statutes designed to curb speed traps. Police magistrates and justices of the peace might be required to keep public records. It might be made a felony for a court to share its fee with the arresting officer, a corrupt practice that encourages arrests and convictions for the personal profit of the coppers and the trial judge.

Seek Billboard Restriction.

Some type of billboard restriction has been proposed to lessen this hazardous blot on the roadsides. One suggestion would create a restricted area for 1,000 feet on each side of all state highways outside miunicipalities.

Interregional superhighways are to be recommended by this group. Deathproof designs would protect traffic on the heavily traveled routes such as U. S. 66 between Chicago and St. Louis and U. S. 40 from Terre Haute, Ind., to St. Louis, and the Lincoln highway across the northern part of Illinois. The method of financing these jobs has not been decided.

A bill has been drafted to call a referendum election on a constitutional amendment to bar any further diversion of gasoline tax revenue to purposes unrelated to motor transportation. The amendment would not effect the present use of gasoline tax revenue to retire outstanding relief bonds.

Another issue being considered by the motor club and its affiliates in this legislature enterprise would revise the automobile licensing laws so as to reward those who pay the state fee in advance and so as to penalize the delinquents. The amount of the discount and also for amount of the penalty would probably be 10 per cent of the present fee for the plates.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Plans are being prepared to make the 18th annual motor salon, to be held in the Edgewater Beach hotel, Feb. 1 to 9, inclusive, one of the most elaborate in its history, it was stated yesterday by Charles R. Hearn, president of the Broadway New Car Dealers association and chairman of the show committee. The association sponsors the show.

On Thursday, selection will be made of the finalists in the contest to pick the Misses Edgewater, Rogers Park, Northtown, Ravenswood and Uptown. The young ladies will reign as "princesses" on special days set aside to honor their respective communities. On Saturday, leaders of various civic and business organizations will meet to outline plans for supporting the salon. Seventeen makes will be exhibited. Admission will be free.

A two day sales meeting will be held in the Edgewater Beach hotel by the Oldsmobile division of General Motors on Wednesday and Thursday, D. E. Ralston, general sales manager announced yesterday. S. E. Skinner, Oldsmobile's general manager will attend. Members of the Chicago, Omaha, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Dallas, Houston, Kansas Citl, and Oklahoma City zones will attend.

H. H. Curtice, head of the Buick division of General Motors, announces that extensive changes have been made in Buick's executive personnel to expedite building of airplane engines for national defense. A separate Buick organization for the production of airplane engines has been created. It will operate as a division of the company and will be under direct Buick control. D. E. Williams, formerly Buick controler, will head the new division as operating manager and J. G. Hammond, formerly plant superintendent, will be general manufacturing manager.

"I AM a concrete inspector for the Village of Oak Park. My work is inspecting street, alley and parkway openings, and sidewalks and driveway installations to see that they meet with the requirements of the ordinances.

"I seldom if ever use a car week-ends, but I use one constantly in my work, driving about 15,000 miles a year. The kind of a car I need is a good, everyday workhorse, nothing fancy.

"The car I had was a 1933 Buick Sedan which I bought used in 1934 for $550. It had gone 22,000 miles when I got it, and I put another 70,000 on it. It still ran all right, but I thought I had better start to look around.

"Going thru the Tribune want ad section, I saw an ad offering a 1937 Buick Special, model 41. I know that model and know that it can take it.

"I called at the Oak Park Motor Sales Company's used car showroom at 639 Madison St., Oak Park. Ray Jones, the manager, showed me the car. It was in good shape and hadn't been driven very far. After looking over my old car, he offered to trade for $450. I bought and I'm going to get a lot of miles for the money."

"Being in the automobile business for over twenty years in the Chicago zone, I feel that I am qualified in writing you my opinion on used car advertising.

"I have often tried to equalize my advertising in all Chicago mediums, but each time I have analyzed the results I have found, without exception, the Chicago Tribune far in the lead—so it goes without comment that the Tribune has received the bulk of our used car advertising.

"I believe any business run on an honest and sound basis, with the tried and proved help of advertising in the Chicago Tribune, will succeed."

Millionaire
Yes—such service as you could not find in the home of any one save a millionaire and a rather extravagant millionaire at that.
[a] Hot water 24 hours of the day; [b] more comfortable beds than there are in most homes and a more frequent change of linen; [c] a clean bathtub with a profusion of luxurious towels such as no private home can afford, or, let us say, few; [d] immunity from telephone calls and interruptions that you don't want; [e] the realization that almost any eccentric wish may be accommodated at almost any hour.
78 people to serve you at all times.

MR. P. found a good house to buy but had only $400—which is 8% of the price. He came to us. On his good record we granted him a first and a second mortgage to buy the house and to have it thoroughly repaired. Mr. P. is now its proud owner and his payments on both mortgages are really easy for him.
We grant top loans on homes up to 30 years old, 2 to 4 apartments, large apartments, store and factory buildings. Also place FHA loans up to 90% of the value. We advance funds to settle back taxes, liens, to redeem property and to close estates.
If even our top loans won't do, we will negotiate with the mortgagee or bondholders' committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. Low rates.

I Hated My Husband!

The Strange Marriage of George and Juanita

"My daughter is accustomed to luxury," her father testified. "She is too young to know her own mind. This young man had nothing to offer. He swept an innocent girl off her feet. We want nothing of him but her freedom."

Drama from the Confidential Records of Divorce!

By LLOYD WENDT

THIS IS A STORY of the marriage of George and Juanita. George had been voted the handsomest man in Iowa State college at Ames, and the man most likely to succeed. The feminine vote was unanimous; the men gave him an even break. But George sought neither Hollywood, bond selling, nor professional football. He returned to his home town to establish a business. He came to Chicago for supplies, and brought a dinner jacket for the annual alumni dance of his fraternity.

Juanita was the daughter of a Chicago representative of a Brazilian exporting company. Her family had come to Chicago a few months before. She was a spirited, impetuous girl, at once popular among the young folk she met, and a continual problem to her parents, who could not so readily adjust themselves to midwest American ways.

George met Juanita at the fraternity dance, and it was immediately obvious to all the plump and bright-eyed patronesses that they were meant for each other.

"A perfect couple!" whispered the patronesses.

What George said to Juanita no one heard. The band struck up and they were dancing.

When George left Iowa he had allowed himself a day and a night in Chicago. His business was new, launched with considerable difficulty, and could not spare him further. But he perceived that Juanita would not be at large for long. He made a date for dinner and the theater, an engagement for golf the day after that. The next day being Saturday, followed by Sunday, there would be no point in returning.

For two weeks George pursued Juanita, despite the insistent telegrams from Iowa. Then he urged that they be married at once.

"We can go to Clinton; it's right on the way," he told her. "We'll be married, and you'll love the farm. And as soon as things get going we'll move to town, if you like. It's only two miles, anyway."

"Of course," George explained as they drove thru Iowa, "our place won't be the best in the world right now, but we'll have better soon. I'm doing pretty well right now, and with you to work for, the sky's the limit!"

They reached the farm home of George's parents late that night. The old folks, warned by telegram, were waiting. They quickly made Juanita welcome. The spare bedroom was big and cool, and the spread George's grandmother had made for her daughter's wedding was out in celebration of the occasion.

• • •

Juanita had been silent during the last hours of the drive. She brightened a bit to greet George's folks, but, alone in their honeymoon room with her bridegroom, she became swiftly depressed. She began to weep.

"'Are you sorry?" he asked anxiously, already feeling an unavoidable hostility.

"No. O, no. But I'm so tired. I—I should have told my parents."

"We'll wire them in the morning."

"In the morning?" She began weeping again. "O, I don't know what's the matter with me. I don't. I'm sorry to be so cross."

He sought to console her.

"Stay away from me!" she cried.

George knew something of feminine psychology. Despite his hurt he explained that the excitement of the day and the long drive had been too much for her. He urged that she should rest alone. She kissed him gratefully and he rolled up for sleep in his own bedroom.

The second and third nights the scene was repeated. They quarreled. George, in his humiliation, struck Juanita. The next day she caught a train for Chicago. A suit for divorce was filed.

Before the court it was explained that Juanita was unable to endure the prospect of life on an Iowa farm.

"My daughter is accustomed to luxury," her father testified. "She has been educated abroad. She is too young to know her own mind. This young man had nothing to offer. He swept an innocent girl off her feet. We want nothing of him but her freedom. No good will come of preserving this marriage."

Money was set down as the cause of that divorce, but the attorney for the young man knew better. Their young love might have survived the early difficulties of George's business career, but sexual maladjustment provided a barrier they could not cross.

The case was one of thousands that come before Chicago divorce lawyers every year. Some of these lawyers—Harry X. Cole, Benjamin B. Davis, Samuel A. Rinella, Norman Becker, and the Misses Caula Psaras and B. Faine Tucker—opened their confidential files for case studies of the real reasons for divorce. Names were not provided, and the cases cited are hypothetical, altho based on actual fact.

The legal grounds advanced in the courts are seldom the true reasons for the collapse of a marriage, the lawyers say. Usually the reasons are bound up in money or sex.

"My wife," George confided to his lawyer, "told me everything after our quarrel that third night. She had a difficulty with her parents during the summer and had left home.

"She soon ran out of money. She went to a 'friend' of the family. This friend gave her money, all right. He rented an apartment for her. She was innocent enough to trust him. Then one night he forced his way into her apartment.

"That experience was something she couldn't overcome. She thought she could, up to the time of actually facing reality.

"I know that I shouldn't blame her. But I know that we can't be husband and wife. Sex has become revolting to her, and I would become repulsive. I've lost my business now as a result of all this, and I'm going out west for a job. I'm thru with women."

• • •

What was really wrong with the marriage of this "perfect couple"? Chiefly, say the lawyers, it was too hasty. A long courtship might have helped to rescue the young woman from her unwholesome attitude, despite her past experience. If the girl had taken opportunity to discuss with her mother the sex responsibilities of marriage, if she had studied one of the numerous books on the subject, or if she and George had together consulted a psychiatrist or professional adviser on such problems, the marriage in all likelihood would have succeeded. Many primitive civilizations provided for the sex education of their young, but our own high-speed era has no requirement for such training.

"Hasty marriages are one great source of trouble," said the attorney who handled the case. "People contemplating marriage must be prepared for the burdens of marriage. (Continued on page four.)

What of the Stars of '41?

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD with John Chapman

Hollywood.

YOU CAN hardly throw a rock in this movie city without hitting some one who will look into a crystal ball or goggle at the firmament or deal a dirty pack of cards with funny markings on them and come forth with a positive prediction about what is going to happen to all the screen stars in 1941.

Fortunately, southern California is made of mud—or what they call decomposed granite—and rocks are hard to find, or there'd be even more prognostications than there are. Just to complicate matters, this correspondent's employers bunged a brick at this correspondent. They asked him to stick out his neck — size 15½, and f'evven's sake no starch in the collars—and guess who would be the top stars of the year. I'm to list them in this dispatch and then try to prove I know what I'm talking about in succeeding articles about the individuals themselves.

Each year in Hollywood brings sudden fame and success to many. Each year consolidates the success of those who rate it. Each year deals unkindly with some, skidding them along a slope of popularity which is just as steep going down as it is going up. And each year overlooks a few who rate a break, saying, "Better luck next time, kid."

Best judge of who is tops is a little machine with a button on it. When a girl pushes the button a ticket slides out. Best index of what the little machine has been up to is the annual poll of exhibitors by the Motion Picture Herald. Last year the poll listed the following as the ten best money-making stars: Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Clark Gable, Gent Autry, Tyrone Power, James Cagney, Bing Crosby, Wallace Beery, Bette Davis, and Judy Garland. Trailing on down from them were Jimmy Stewart, Deanna Durbin, Alice Faye, Errol Flynn, Myrna Loy, Dorothy Lamour, Cary Grant, Bob Hope, and Gary Cooper.

New faces were in that big ten list, and some old faces were out of it. Skip back two years, for instance, and see who were tops: Shirley Temple, Clark Gable, Sonja Henie, Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Robert Taylor, Myrna Loy, Jane Withers, Alice Faye, Tyrone Power. Runners-up included Gary Cooper, Wallace Beery, Bing Crosby, Jeanette MacDonald, Don Ameche, Dorothy Lamour, and Ginger Rogers.

You'll note that 1940 was a tough year for the women, with only two in the list, and they ranking ninth and tenth. Not one of the five feminine stars of 1938 had managed to stick, but four of the five men did. In 1939 Temple, Faye, Henie, and Davis were there, but only Davis held over. I've asked many people why it is that the feminine contingent of Hollywood—which gets much the most ballyhoo—fared so badly. Why do the country's theater operators think men bring in the most money?

Reason one: It just happened to be a man's year, with men carrying the best parts in the strongest pictures. It may very likely be different this year, for up to now the best parts in the strongest pictures have fallen to women—Katharine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers. Reason two: There are more women of note than men in the movies, so it makes selection of the gents much easier. Reason three is a sage remark by this correspondent's wife:

"The trouble with men is, darn 'em, that men like them as much as women do."

When you can line up both sexes at the box office you've got the best kind of hit.

We can start the guessing game by wondering who will hold over from the 1940 big ten.

Certainly Mickey Rooney will. The only thing which could prevent it would be Mickey's getting into a private mess, and he is much too wise for that. A few years ago Rooney was considered a freak kid whose popularity might fade out any minute, but now he is recognized as an able, intelligent, hard-working, and ambitious showman. Some of those who work with him say quite soberly that he has some of the qualities of George M. Cohan—that he will tackle anything.

Certainly Tracy will. He's a customers' actor as well as an actors' actor, and an interesting series of pictures is already planned for him. Certainly Gable will. He has been up there for years, and there is no reason why his pace should change. His recent visit to Johns Hopkins in Baltimore was for examination and treatment of a lame shoulder. This ailment is not considered serious enough to slow up his production schedules.

Perhaps Gene Autry will. Ever since he got into the movies Gene has been at or near the top in the poll on westerns. Last year he was the big surprise, landing fourth in the big ten, mostly because he had appeared in so many films. He starred in nine pictures. However, his first big-budget "A" picture did not do as well as had been hoped.

Tyrone Power? Well, he's been there since 1938, and he's still young, cutting Z's in "The Mark of Zorro" and currently dueling bulls in "Blood and Sand." My guess is that he'll have a fight on his hands—for somebody is going to have to make room for James Stewart. Jimmy, No. 11 in 1940, has been steadily coming up, and already he is blessed with a fine rôle in a solid success, "The Philadelphia Story."

Bing Crosby? There certainly is no indication of his losing popularity, but he is going to have to move over and make room for his side kick, Bob Hope. Bob's zooming radio popularity, plus his newly won popularity with youngsters in "The Ghost-Breakers," should win him a firm footing on the country's screens.

Wallace Beery? Mebbe. It depends on his pictures. Two hits last year put him in the running again after three years out of it.

actresses, but her vehicles have been mostly on the sober side, and the movies this year are geared for pure entertainment. Both Miss Davis and James Cagney will star in a comedy, "The Bride Came C. O. D.," and if it's good it will help a lot.

Judy Garland? No. Not that Judy isn't fine and lovable and able, for she is all of these. But she was the American girl—the wonderful kid sister. Now she has grown up—she played her own mother in "Little Nellie Kelly"—and she has moved into a very tough field—the field of women, who are going to fight hard for their places. For one, Judy will be up against Ginger Rogers.

For my money Miss Rogers is a cinch for top honors if she can have the intelligent handling she was afforded by Producer David Hempstead and Director Sam Wood in "Kitty Foyle." Her independent personality baffles most Hollywoodians, but her ability and ambition are unquestioned.

On the strength of "The Philadelphia Story" Katharine Hepburn rates high. But she must have more pictures, and the right kind. Her come-back was, in the local phrase, sensational—and her vehicle was first carefully tailor-made as a play, then equally carefully remade for the screen. Another girl of independent mind, she will probably take her own sweet time making another picture or two.

Last year was a freak year in that no young star rated high, with the exception of Miss Garland, who was a child no longer. By the laws of probability 1941 should turn up some youngster—but who? Paramount's Betty Brewer, 14, who landed solidly in "Rangers of Fortune" and who acquired stardom thereby, is a good bet. And Metro is sure it has something in young, carefully groomed Kathryn Grayson, who will make her debut in the next Andy Hardy picture. I see no new young Mickey Rooneys on the list.

Look, too, for a boost in the popularity of Jean Arthur, who has steadily climbed in box office importance. She did well as the heroine of "Arizona," and it is expected that her first 1941 film, "The Devil and Miss Jones," will be first rate. She, like Hepburn and Rogers, is a lady of independent mind—the kind who make press agents tear hair out by the bale.

I know I haven't listed all the old familiars who will still be up there batting. John Barrymore seems to be launched on a new career; Garbo might make a picture, but you never can tell; Joan Crawford has finally come back home and gone to work. And it's just as well for anybody to do some work once in a while, for there are many newcomers busily nudging their way up.

Metro, which does not go in for sudden publicity buildups for handsome babes, has finally given the green light on Lana Turner — and with reason, this correspondent believes. Lana and her sweaters and her love affairs have made good copy, but she has more than that. She can act, and she wants to learn. You'll see her in more than just a pretty-girl rôle in "Ziegfeld Girl," for she's the beauty who hits the skids and dies in the gutter. Lana will make stardom in 1941.

A youngster who seems to have more than just publicity value is the Warners' Joan Leslie, age 16, who will shortly appear in a pair of films. She's a little like Ann Sheridan in appearance and coloring. The Warners' one-picture dramatic sensation of last year, Ida Lupino, is bound to climb higher this year, for she is an actress.

A fairly able pair who are good for plenty of publicity buildups are the newly married Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz. Arnaz, who came out from Broadway night clubs and George Abbott's "Too Many Girls" to make the film version of that musical comedy, got an astonishing chatter column razzle-dazzle as the Great Lover before his marriage. An amiable and handsome Latin, he needs the right parts; but when he gets 'em he should arouse the Spanish in feminine fans.

Also put down in the popularity books Veronica Lake, who will be seen in "I Wanted Wings." She is described as a cross between the late Jean Harlow and a young Bette Davis—hey-hey! Veronica is 21, weighs in at 98, and played two or three bits under her real name, Constance Keane.

There is a small group of men who will climb toward the top if the draft doesn't get them, because personable young men are the hardest things to find for pictures. They include Bill Holden of "Arizona," Glenn Ford of "Legacy," Ray Milland, and Stirling Hayden, whose first picture is "Virginia." Hayden is a natural for fan interest, being a huge, handsome Gloucester seaman whose real adventures rival Errol Flynn's. Not young or handsome, but a sure bet just as Spencer Tracy is a sure bet, is Brian (The Great McGinty) Donlevy. Also still on the way farther up is John Wayne.

But this is enough to start the guessing game. Your correspondent will close by picking his own No. 1 movie personality for 1941—Walt Disney. He will make his screen debut in "The Reluctant Dragon"—but he has really been on the screen for years. Other actors have always pretended they were somebody else, which is why they are called actors; Disney has put his heart and soul and mind on film ever since he got into the business, and the appearance now of his photographed likeness is just an interesting afterthought.

By GUY MURCHIE

OF ALL the armies of Europe in this war the Polish army has had the toughest row to hoe so far.

It was the first army to stand up to the Nazi war machine. It fought and lost three terrible rounds in Poland, Norway, and France. And now with grim jaw and blood in its eye it waits for its fourth round on the bleak east coast of Scotland. It knows its enemy, it knows itself, and it believes that this round is going to be different.

To see at first hand what sort of soldiers these Poles are and just what they are doing now to prepare themselves for the critical struggle to come, this correspondent took train to Scotland—proceeding under "sealed orders" to Edinburgh. There, after I had called a mysterious telephone number with no name or address to go with it, a voice instructed me to call another number. This time I was directed to go to a certain address where a Polish officer made some long distance calls and then asked me to proceed to a town on the coast. When I got there I must take a room in a certain hotel—and await a call from the chief of staff of the army.

Once arrived in New Poland, a large section of the Scottish coast, my introduction to the Polish army was quickly completed. About the slanting, cozy streets of the town everywhere were Polish soldiers. They wore their new khaki uniforms bearing the word "Poland" at the shoulder. The officers were smart in their polished boots and neat tunics decorated with silver eagles and braid. The generals had ornate square caps. The atmosphere was soggy with rain and very few of the Polish soldiers could speak English, yet they seemed at home among beetle-browed, and rosy-cheeked Scots. Curiously enough, they could understand the guttural brogue of the local people better than the "broad a" speech of the British farther south—probably because they were familiar with German, and the Saxon words still used by the Scots are closely related.

An intelligent English speaking Polish officer, Lieut. Herse, assigned to me as guide and interpreter, came to take me in his official car to a concert being given in honor of President Raczkiewicz of Poland, who had arrived in the area the previous day. A uniformed English girl drove the car. At the new barracks where the concert was given the lusty bass and tenor voices rolled out Polish marching songs and Scottish ballads with professional precision and high gusto. Singing is important in the Polish army, and the effect of this form of expression upon the men's spirits was clear. Two officer friends whom I saw greeting each other with fond hugs and kisses on both cheeks revealed another aspect of Polish expressiveness.

FOREWORD

Among the refugee governments that have established headquarters in England to continue the war on Britain's side are Poland, Norway, Holland, the free French forces, and the Czechs. Little, however, has appeared in print about these allies of the Britons. It was for the purpose of telling the story of one of these groups that the author of the accompanying article, a staff correspondent of The Tribune, traveled up from London to Scotland to find out what was being done by the Polish army on British soil—an army that already in this war has fought on three fronts.

Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, the president, stood more than 6 feet tall, lean, gray, and sensitive looking as he extended his hand and greeted me in his few words of English. When he heard that I represented The Chicago Tribune he at once became very enthusiastic and asked that his greetings be sent to the many Polish Americans in Chicago. He expressed hope that the Czechs, Poles, Germans, and other peoples of Europe could learn to get along as well together as the Czechs, Poles, and Germans in Chicago. He introduced me to Gen. Ingrim of the Czecho-Slovak army, who had just arrived in Scotland on his first official visit to the Polish army in Britain.

The next morning I set out early with Lieut. Herse and the presidential party to inspect the troops. The hotel porter had greeted me with "Good dry morning, sir." This was a comment on Scottish weather, being a rare variation from his usual plain "Good morning, sir."

As a matter of fact, the ground was wet with frost and yesterday's rain. The atmosphere, however, was clear and to the west appeared the snow-capped highlands. The country seemed much like New Hampshire, with stone walls and sheep and cattle ranging over the uneven farm land. The haystacks here are pointed like tepees. Gulls follow the plowman across the fields and watch the little carts being loaded with beet roots to feed the army. The trees that line the roads are red and yellow, and the ground, covered with fallen leaves, seems to reflect their glory.

The infantry and reconnaissance troops that paraded before President Raczkiewicz appeared seasoned and well drilled. The motorcycle and tank units wore a new type of steel helmet that comes low over the ears with a narrower brim suited to the dangers from riding their vehicles over rough ground as well as from enemy action. DRAMA FROM THE CONFIDENTIAL RECORDS OF DIVORCE

Each mate must know something about the companion he will have in marriage. He ought at least to give the selection of a partner for life the same careful consideration he would give to the purchase of an automobile to be kept a couple of years."

"Too many women go into marriage unprepared," said a woman lawyer discussing the case. "They think that marriage will prove a panacea for all their troubles and they fail to consider their own obligations in marriage. Women must prepare for marriage just as they would prepare for any other job, and they must expect marriage to be a job, not all ease and contentment."

Lack of money, said the lawyers, is an even more common barrier to success in marriage than is sexual maladjustment. Take the case of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. as an example.

Bert played right end on his high school football team, threw the discus and javelin, and was substitute center on the basketball team. He was good enough to keep his coach continuously worried over his bad marks in studies. Finally, after his senior year in football, Bert gave up studying altogether, was barred from basketball, and quit school. He got a job driving a delivery truck.

Bert met Rose at a dance. She was a stenographer in a downtown office, a vivacious, dark-haired girl who even in trim high heels came only to Bert's shoulder. The psychologists might say that her smallness aroused Bert's protective instinct. In any event, Bert fell in love with her.

"We could get married!" Bert pleaded. "I make $22.50 a week and you get $18. That would be plenty."

The idea seemed good to Rose, and the wedding date was set. But Bert gave himself so thoroly over to his adoration that he lost his job. The wedding was postponed.

Bert's next job paid only $20 a week, but Rose was working and they were married. When Rose had to leave her office for the baby, they took a less expensive flat and got along with Bert's income and her limited savings. They were happy.

Then, after the baby was born, Bert lost his job, thru no fault of his own. Rose had a chance to return to work at $25 a week.

"That would be enough," she told him. "I could do it until we paid for the baby, and maybe by that time something would break. . . ."

"Who'd look after Tommy?"

"Well. . . ."

"All right," Bert said grimly. "I can do it. I may burn the toast at first, but I'll do it. Only, when I get a job I'm going to support the family."

The rest of the story was told in divorce court.

"He tried . . . I know he tried, judge," Rose sobbed. "But he couldn't do it. We quarreled. Then we fought. We said terrible things. He started drinking. He took all the house money for liquor. Then, one night, I brought a shirt home for him. But dinner wasn't ready. The baby was a mess. He was drinking. He struck me. . . ."

The judge, the attorneys, the courtroom hangers-on looked in silence upon the young woman. Bert shifted awkwardly, then handed the baby to the mother. She took the child eagerly, and smiled thru her tears.

The judge, noticing this, smiled too. "Come with me," he invited.

In chambers the judge promised to find Bert a job. The opposing lawyers agreed to help. Rose was to live apart, continuing at her own work until Bert was reëstablished. Then, Bert was to support the home, Rose was to manage it. The child, the court and lawyers believed, could hold them together. The plan worked, and Bert and Rose are happily married now.

Most marriages could succeed, the divorce lawyers agree, if the couple in love would recognize the chief problems they must face. The problems should be met before marriage if possible, since, under the drive of economic necessity, they may later feel unable to choose the best course even if they see it.

Bert and Rose took the worst possible way out, the lawyers found. They doomed the major values of their marriage. The good fortune that permitted them to repair the mistake does not come to many.

Women, whether they realize it or not, generally marry for security, say the lawyers. It may be economic security, or security of social position, or both. Rose sacrificed both. She was dependent on herself for security, and, as the working wife of a husband who did the cooking and sweeping, her social position was degraded.

Men, the lawyers are agreed, marry for comfort. Bert, under the circumstances, lost all sense of comfort in his home. Drinking became an escape from his humiliation, and wife beating a violent emergence of his inhibited male pugnaciousness or protective instinct. He became irritable and cross, and reflected this condition in his wife. Their satisfactory sex life was lost and a new barrier to successful marriage was erected.

The one marriage value remaining to Bert and Rose was their child. A child is a most powerful bond in maintaining a marriage, according to the lawyers. Children may keep a union intact if the economic situation is bad, or the sex conditions are inadequate. But a child or children cannot usually overcome both such deficiencies.

The judge and the lawyers believed, however, that if Rose could again depend on Bert for security, and if he, functioning in a man's world to which he was conditioned, could provide that security, sexual communion satisfactory to both would be restored. The lawyers were right, and the marriage was saved. If there had been no child, or if the basic difficulty had been sexual maladjustment, as in the case of Juanita and George, the marriage would probably have been a failure.

Most present day divorce cases involve the very young, particularly those who married hastily and are without children. Yet many older people exhibit the same failure to consider in advance the elemental problems of marriage that is characteristic of the young. A December and May marriage ought to be ideal, if the difference in ages is not too great. In fact, many such marriages are successful. But, there is the case of John C. G. and the Ghost Lover.

John C. G. was a manufacturer who had succeeded well in his business and lived a quiet and sedate threescore years. He had scrupulously cared for his health, and was strikingly handsome and young appearing for his years. Some months after the death of his first wife, he met Paula, a comely manicurist in a barber shop. He was lonely. She was half his age, and sympathetic.

There began a quiet, dignified courtship. Paula, the manicurist, was poor, but of good family and better than average education. She honestly liked her older friend, she liked the entertainment he provided with such solemn gallantry, she liked the security he represented.

Paula and John fell gradually into love. He bought her gifts, and insisted that she should open accounts in the stores in his name.

"O, I couldn't do that!" she protested.

"But why not? After all, that is no one's business but our own. I enjoy seeing you have things. I couldn't possibly have as much pleasure spending the money myself. I want you to do it."

"I know you mean very well by it," she told him, "but it's something that a girl can't do."

"But I want you to marry me."

"O!"

"I love you. I can give you a good home. We are interested in the same things. I want you to marry me. I think you love me."

"Yes," she replied. "I do love you."

"Then we'll be married?"

"Yes."

"All right," he chuckled. "All I want you to do is buy your trousseau. Everything you've ever wanted!"

They were married, and three months later Paula was telling her story in the divorce court.

"First he petted me and called me endearing names," the young wife testified. "I loved him sincerely. He was so kind and gentle.

"It was heavenly at his house . . . everything I wanted. But suddenly everything went wrong.

"He shut off all my accounts, without explanation. He became extremely jealous. He'd sit around the house watching me, his eyes strange.

"Then he said there was a ghost lover who visited me at night. He'd get up suddenly and stalk around with a gun, looking for the ghost lover.

"I became a nervous wreck. I was afraid he would try to kill me. I didn't know what was the matter. I loved him despite the difference in our ages. I didn't want his money, I just wanted him. I don't know what came over him."

"She couldn't cook, she wasted money, she couldn't manage the servants, she refused to make a home for her husband," opposing counsel charged. She was given the divorce. Then the lawyers learned the true story of the marriage.

John C. G. had suddenly concluded that the love requirements of his beautiful young wife would go beyond his own capacities. He had not discussed sex with her before the marriage, and could not bring himself to do so after the ceremony. His obsession actually induced psychic impotency. The condition might readily have been remedied by a psychiatrist, but John C. G. permitted it to develop. To divert his wife's suspicions from the real difficulty, he invented the ghost lover. Then, far gone in his obsession, he actually began to believe this fiction, he became subject to hallucinations. Frustration and worry reduced him to a psychopathic state.

If, suggested the lawyer, the man and the girl had intelligently approached this possible problem, the marriage might have been highly successful. Many women prefer security in marriage above sexual satisfactions, and they are rarely demanding in the latter. The marriage of a young woman with an older man follows an "old man of the tribe" principle that should make it psychologically sound. For nearly half a million years, in the pretribal era of man, the young women were dependent on the patriarch or the "old man of the tribe" for their security. The instinctive affection of daughter for father seems biologically rooted in this prehistoric beginning and may readily be transferred to an older man in marriage.

"It has been my experience that 'December and May' marriages often succeed," a divorce lawyer said. "The few divorces in such cases usually get a good deal of publicity.

"I don't think that age, or condition in life, or education has much to do with marriage. If any couple will make sure of their financial requirements, and then use their intelligence to obtain adequate sexual adjustment, and then rear children, they're pretty likely to get along. There are, of course, always some abnormal persons, and for them no rule will hold good."

Among such was Charles N. Unfortunately for his bride, Charles seemed completely normal, altho a psychiatrist might readily have classed him as an advanced Narcissist.

Charles was handsome, dark, and tall. He spent a good portion of his time with his barber, in the steam baths and the gymnasium. His tailor drew a generous retainer to keep him clothed in the best of fashion. His boots were custom built under his personal supervision. He devoted some portion of his day to his financial requirements, and he made money readily.

• • •

Charles met Alice at the Kentucky Derby. She had won prizes in two beauty contests. Blonde, with cool, gray eyes, straight small nose, radiant smile, and the kind of form that is common property of beauty contest winners, she never lacked for male escorts.

She was with one at the bar of the Brown hotel, when Charles happened past. Alice was doing a trick with a spoon, a fork, and a bit of French pastry at the time.

It was Alice's intention to put the spoon in a glass, the pastry on a plate and the fork in her hand with one simple tap. The creamy pastry, however, landed instead on the lapel of Charles' finest spring suit.

Charles at first attempted to have Alice arrested, but he contented himself finally with knocking down her escort and dragging the girl off to a night club. The day after the Derby they were married.

On their return to Chicago, Charles bought tickets for a honeymoon in Bermuda. At the last minute, however, he informed Alice that he would be detained by business and he sent her on the honeymoon alone.

A short time after her return, Alice filed suit for divorce.

Her husband, she said, struck her when she asked him to come home at night. He bought clothes for himself but refused to buy any for her. He had subjected her to extreme mental cruelty.

The incidents of the striking were duly recited in court, and the divorce was granted. Alice had told her lawyer the real difficulty, which was not disclosed.

It never had been a complete marriage, she said. It was utterly hopeless from the beginning.

Alice could hardly be expected to know the difficulties in advance, even tho Charles exhibited tendencies to extreme Narcissism. The term refers to the mythological Narcissus, who rejected the love of Echo. He was doomed by Nemesis to fall in love with his own reflection. In adults, Narcissism is believed by psychologists to be a regression to the period in which an infant first becomes aware of his own body. In women it often results in frigidity, in men it sometimes causes coldness or perversion.

But the marriages of normal persons which end in divorce are the real worry of the divorce lawyers, who prefer a reconciliation when possible.

There were 8,155 divorce actions in Cook county in 1939. One-sixth of all new marriages will end in divorce. The number of divorces per 1,000 married couples doubled from 1900 to 1930 and the rate is still going up.

To avoid divorce, the lawyers repeat, couples should first make sure there will be sufficient money to keep the family in its accustomed manner; second, they should intelligently provide for sexual adjustment. Then, by all means, they should have children.

Can a wife win back her husband? "Yes," say the divorce lawyers. The case of The Wife vs. the Golden Venus will be discussed next week.

"That experience was something she couldn't overcome. She thought she could, up to the time of actually facing reality."

"I've lost my business now as a result of all this, and I'm going out west for a job. I'm thru with women."

"With you to work for, the sky's the limit!"

Hungry in a Hurry? Here Are Some One-Dish Meals

By MARY MEADE

CASSEROLE dishes, one-dish meals, and "easy-to-fix" suppers are kitchen pets these cold days. Savory examples of this kind of cooking are these three dishes—cheese-noodle casserole with sausage, creamed oysters with potato rings, beef shortcake with mock turtle sauce (made from mock turtle soup).

To complete the cheese-and-noodle meal serve a tossed salad of greens, sliced tomatoes, and French dressing, and apple pudding with cinnamon-flavored hard sauce.

CHEESE-AND-NOODLE CASSEROLE
(Serves six)

8 ounces broad egg noodles
6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ pound sharp cheese, grated
1½ pounds pork sausages or 1 pound frankfurters

Drop noodles into 2 quarts rapidly boiling salted water and cook until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain and rinse with hot water. Melt butter in a saucepan, blend in flour, add milk, and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Remove from heat and add seasonings and cheese. In a buttered six-cup casserole arrange alternate layers of noodles and cheese sauce, topping with sauce. Bake at 350 degrees for half an hour. Arrange broiled sausages or sliced cooked frankfurters on the top of the dish five minutes before removing from the oven.

With the beef shortcake a jellied fruit salad and pumpkin pie would be good. Two cans of soup are needed for this dish.

BEEF SHORTCAKE

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup shortening
⅔ cup milk

Sift flour, salt, and baking powder, cut in shortening, and add milk. Stir to mix, turn out on lightly floured board, and knead lightly for 30 seconds. Roll out to fit eight-inch square pan. Bake at 450 degrees for 15-20 minutes. Split, butter, and fill the hot shortcake with this: Cook ¼ cup chopped onions and 1 pound ground beef in melted fat until tender and browned. Season with salt and pepper, add ½ can condensed tomato soup, heat, and fill shortcake.

Top the shortcake with a sauce made by heating a can of mock turtle soup and diluting it with 6 tablespoons water.

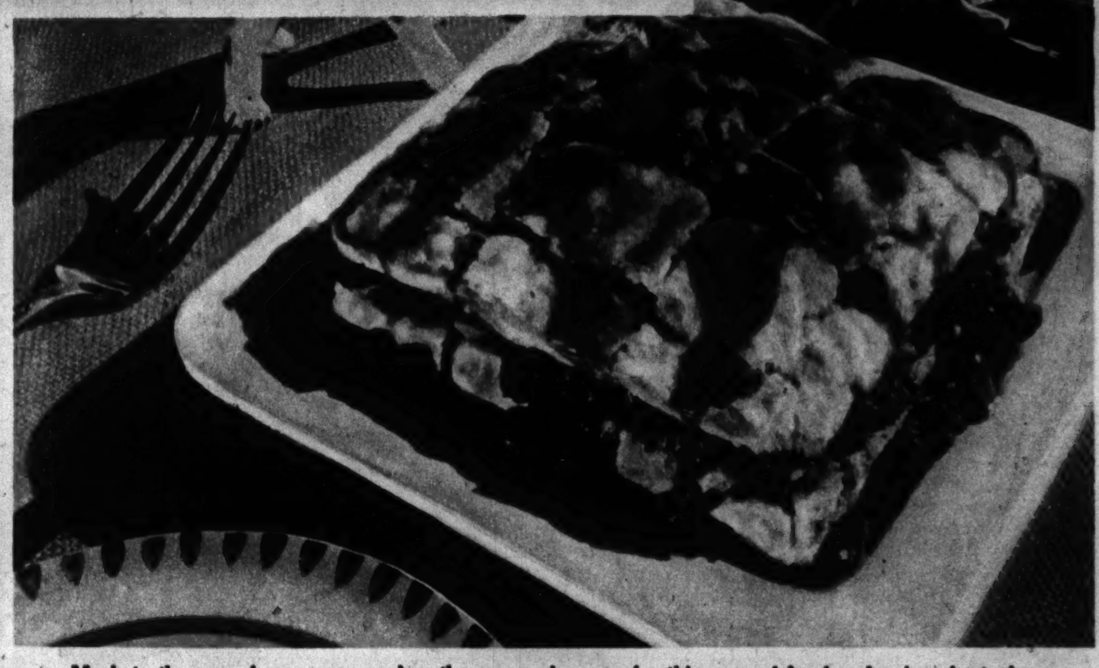
The oyster and potato ring dish needs a crisp raw vegetable salad to accompany it. Thick-frosted fudge cake is a good dessert.

CREAMED OYSTERS WITH POTATO RINGS
(Serves six)

1½ cups hot mashed potatoes
2 tablespoons butter
¾ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons grated sharp cheese
1 beaten egg (for potatoes)
1 beaten egg (for patties)
1½ pints oysters
3 cups medium white sauce

Add butter, salt, cheese, and egg to potato and whip. Chill. Shape cold mashed potatoes into patties, dip in flour, and place on waxed paper which has been brushed with beaten egg. Make a hole in the center of each patty. Brush upper surface of potato "doughnut" with more of the beaten egg and deep-fat-fry at 375 degrees, or sauté in butter until golden brown. Pick over oysters and bring to the simmering point in a saucepan. Drain and add prepared hot cream sauce. Place oysters in individual casseroles and arrange a potato ring on top of each. Serve very hot.

Not hard to fix, savory and filling, is this casserole of broad egg noodles, cheese, and sliced frankfurters.



Mock turtle soup from a can makes the unusual sauce for this ground beef and onion shortcake.

The "doughnuts" are French fried potato rings, and they're served with creamed oysters in individual casseroles.

Four Stars in Color

● Eighteen-year-old Judy Garland was born in Grand Rapids, Minn., but spent most of her early youth traveling around the country with her parents, who were in vaudeville for years. When Judy was only a child she and her two older sisters formed a singing trio. When one of her sisters married the act broke up. The family finally settled in Los Angeles and little Judy was given a screen test. It was a success, and she made her screen debut in a short with Deanna Durbin titled "Every Sunday." This was followed by "Pigskin Parade" and many other outstanding screen successes. Her next important rôle will be in "The Ziegfeld Girl" opposite James Stewart, Hedy Lamarr, and Tony Martin.

● Maureen O'Hara hails from Dublin, Ireland, where she was born about 20 years ago. Her real name is Fitzsimmons, but she changed it to O'Hara for professional reasons. At the Abbey School of Acting she won numerous prizes for elocution. She appeared in a number of films produced in England. Her first important rôle was opposite Charles Laughton in "Jamaica Inn." It was Mr. Laughton who talked her into coming to this country, and she was given the feminine lead in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," in which Mr. Laughton played the title rôle. She's now working on "They Met in Argentina" opposite Jimmy Ellison and Buddy Ebsen. Miss O'Hara is 5 feet 7 inches tall.

● John Wayne's real name is Marion Michael Morrison. Born in Winterset, Ia., May 26, 1907. He attended the University of Southern California, where he starred on the football team until he broke his ankle. He heard he could get a job in Honolulu and quit school. He didn't have any money, but was so determined to get that job that he stowed away on the boat. The Old Fire Enjines!

VOLUNTEER firemen of 100 years ago got to a blaze only as fast as they could pull their equipment thru narrow dirt and cobblestone streets, and, once arrived, they were useless unless they had a lot of man power left to work the pumps. Consequently the design of the early engines was directed toward light, speedy engines, easy to maneuver, and pump "brakes" or handles that would provide maximum leverage for the greatest possible number of men working at one time.

The Blue Boy, pride of New York's company 26 in 1853, was a fine example of this type of design. The "piano box" construction of the body permitted the front wheels to turn sharply. The pump handles were folded up for running thru the streets and could be extended to provide great leverage for pumping. The Blue Boy possessed a suction pump and a leather hose for drawing water from a well or river. This was carried curled back and held in position by a brass tube over the body of the engine. Engines thus equipped were known as "squirrel tails."

Old Stag, built for company 41 in 1853, had a special chain capstan cylinder drive to increase the pumping efficiency, which enabled it to throw a stream of water to a height of 110 feet; and Mankiller, property of company 42, could do even better. Mankiller had two sets of pump handles and got its name because it was extremely heavy and difficult to pump. While Mankiller did not always get to a fire first, it was always welcome for its unusual power, which exceeded even that of the early steam engines.

Old Rock, built for company No. 9 in 1859, was light and fast, yet had more pumping power than the engines of most rival companies. Thus Old Rock was usually first at a water supply or first in line when several engines were set up to pump water over a long distance.

One of the early steam fire engines in New York was the Elephant, given to company No. 8 by a group of insurance companies in 1859. Rival departments hated No. 8's steam engine and often would not let the company get water at a fire, but finally the steam engines so definitely proved their superiority that they were generally adopted.

The first hose used by firemen was made of leather and was extremely difficult to handle. The invention of canvas hose, lighter and tougher than leather, made possible the long hose connections of the present day and led to the development of hose carts.

The Silver Nine was one of the most elegant carts in New York. All mountings were silver plated. Hook and ladder company No. 1 got the first hand-drawn hook and ladder truck in the city in 1848. It introduced the principle of steering with the rear wheels, permitting the long truck to turn sharp corners. This innovation is still used in the construction of modern hook and ladder trucks.

"SURE-MIX" CRISCO wins 4-to-1 vote in nation-wide home-baking tests

CRISCO—and only Crisco—gives you lighter, smoother-textured cakes of your dreams!

Then read how hundreds of housewives in 20 far-flung cities got a new high in cake success with "Sure-Mix" Crisco.

These housewives were chosen at random. They were using various shortenings (every type you could think of) when independent investigators asked them to try New Crisco in their own cake recipes and give their honest opinions.

New Crisco wins 4-to-1 vote

Those Crisco cakes "showed 'em!" Yes, when these housewives told which cakes they liked best, the vote was 4 to 1 for Crisco over all other shortenings combined!

Yes, 4 to 1 they voted—"My Crisco cakes were lighter, smoother-textured. They tasted better, too—my family said so!"

And Crisco won this same big 4-to-1 vote for making flakier pies and more delicious fried foods!

Why Crisco is different

A patented discovery makes "Sure-Mix" Crisco act differently. It gives a new kind of cake batter—so smooth and glossy, you just know you'll get a better cake. And Crisco cakes do consistently bake up to 15% higher and lighter (depending on the recipe) than cakes made with any other household shortening we know of!

CRISCO PIES WIN 4 TO 1, TOO!

They're FLAKIER! Women said "Sure-Mix" Crisco pies are flakier, so tender they melt in your mouth. That's why they voted 4 to 1 for Crisco pies, too, in home-baking tests

TRY CRISCO FRIED FOODS. THEY'RE DIGESTIBLE!

Doctors Say: In answer to a question sent to doctors by a leading medical publication, 2 out of 3 doctors who replied called specific attention to Crisco's digestibility

½ cup Crisco
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup honey
½ cup milk

Cream Crisco, sugar, eggs and salt. Sift dry ingredients. Mix honey with milk. Add dry ingredients to first mixture alternately with liquid. (Ever see a smoother batter?) Bake in two 8-inch "Criscoed" pans in moderately hot oven (375° F.) 30 minutes.

UNCOOKED HONEY ICING—It keeps so soft and creamy for days! Blend 6 tablespoons Crisco, 3½ cups sifted confectioners sugar, ½ teaspoon salt. Add slowly ½ cup honey. Beat in hot milk (3-5 tablespoons) a tablespoon at a time until a good spreading consistency is reached. While milk is being added, icing will have a slightly porous look. Add enough liquid to give it a satiny appearance. Cool icing and layers before combining.

AIR WAR
England's Problem and Germany's

STUDY of the accompanying map will help clarify for the reader two important problems of the war now raging in Europe. One is Germany's problem of aerial warfare. The other is that of Great Britain.

The map, in showing the air distances that German planes are compelled to fly in order to bomb Great Britain's cities, ports, and industrial centers as compared with the distances that British planes must fly to retaliate against the Germans, tells clearly why the advantage has been with the Nazi air force.

The artist, it will be noted, has designated a point near Calais, France, as that from which Hitler's air men may take off to bomb Great Britain. He has designated a secondary point at Stavanger, Norway, from which the Germans may fly to bomb the industrial areas of Scotland. As opposed to these he has fixed a point in East Suffolk, England, south of the industrial area of Norwich, as that from which the British may fly to bomb German targets. These points are designated merely for the purpose of establishing comparative distances, and it is not to be assumed that all or even a large proportion of the bombing squadrons actually take off from them. British planes, as everyone knows, may take off from almost anywhere on the British isles, except in Eire, and German planes may use bases scattered all the way from Germany proper to western France or northern Norway.

The map shows industrial regions in dots and darkened areas. These, along with population centers, ports, and air bases, are the principal targets of attack. Air bases are not shown on the map, since, naturally, their locations in time of war are kept secret.

By noting closely the locations of the various industrial areas shown on the map, the reader will understand readily two factors of vital importance in the aerial war between Great Britain and Germany.

The first is that German flyers can concentrate in bombing England, while British flyers must scatter to bomb their enemies.

The second is that it is much closer from likely German air bases in occupied territory to British targets than it is from possible British air bases to German targets.

In both of these factors the tactical advantage definitely is with the Germans.

Virtually all of Britain's great and populous London area lies within 100 miles of locations along the northern coast of France from which planes may take off. To bomb this area the Nazi flyers are compelled to fly a round trip of only 200 miles or less, the whole flight being accomplished in less than an hour at the speeds at which modern military planes fly. The Bristol, Midlands, and Norwich industrial areas of England all are less than 300 miles from air bases near the French coast. The great port of Liverpool, England's most important receiving point for imports from overseas, lies only 300 miles away. Lancashire, the North Country, and the Tyne ports are less than 400 miles from the French coast by air. The Scottish and the North Ireland industrial centers are within 480 miles of possible German air bases in France.

From Stavanger, Norway, to the Aberdeen industrial area of Scotland is only 310 miles by air, while the main industrial area of Scotland, which contains the two great cities of Edinburgh and Glasgow, lies but 400 to 500 miles from the Norwegian port.

Let us consider air distances from England to Germany. To reach the nearest industrial centers of the Ruhr and the Rhineland British planes must fly 300 miles, or a round trip of 600 miles. To Hamburg the distance is 390 miles, and a large number of the German industrial centers lie farther away from England than does Hamburg. To Berlin the minimum distance from England is 510 miles — necessitating a round trip of more than 1,000 miles. From England to Königsberg and back is an air trip of 1,600 miles. To Vienna and back the distance is almost as far. The great Skoda arms works in Pilsen, Czecho-Slovakia, is well over 500 miles from the closest point in England. Munich is about 500 miles from England, and Turin and Milan, the two nearest of the important population centers of Italy are more than 500 miles.

In discussing specific targets, as we have here, the problem that the British face appears more simple than it really is. In actual practice, however, the royal air force faces a difficulty that makes it almost impossible for it to get the better of the enemy in the war in the air. German targets are scattered over such a wide area that British bombers can hope to attack successfully only a relatively small proportion of them.

Base airports within Germany itself are so far away from the British and so widely distributed that they are virtually immune from air attack, while British home air bases always are in the danger zone.

Restricting to an appreciable degree the effectiveness of bombings by both the British and the Germans is the fact that these have beeen carried out largely at night. On this subject Alex Small, Tribune war correspondent, wrote recently in a dispatch from Paris:

"There is something also in what a German flying commander told me — that precise bombing of military objectives cannot be effected at night, even with the use of parachute flares. This is quite aside from the effect of antiaircraft fire, which—as I heard at Cologne—is terrific in volume and results in driving bombers up to very high altitudes and making their aim uncertain."

Within the last 10 days, and since Mr. Small wrote the foregoing, the Germans have renewed daytime air raids on London, the first of any importance in many weeks. In resumption of these raids Nazi fighter-bombers flew over the British capital without taking advantage of the shield afforded by darkness, dropping bombs and killing and wounding many persons.

Unfavorable weather conditions at night, frequently accompanied by heavy fogs, it is explained, caused the German flyers to return to daylight bombing, which they abandoned weeks ago because of its attendant dangers. Bad flying conditions which kept the Germans on the ground at night also prevented the British from making their usual raids in the hours of darkness.

So far we have discussed offensive warfare mainly. Now let us consider the other side of the situation, bearing in mind that Great Britain so far has been fighting a war that is largely defensive. For reasons of self defense the British must bomb all ports and shore bases on continental Europe from which possible invasions of England might be launched. In order to do this the British must divide their air forces, which still are decidedly inadequate for the tasks at hand. While some of their bomb squadrons are flying to Germany to drop bombs on cities, air bases, and industrial centers, others necessarily must be sent against these ports from which invasions might be attempted. Moreover, a considerable proportion of the royal air force, the fighter and interceptor planes, must be retained at home to help ward off German attacks. Thus, as we can see, only a fraction of Great Britain's total air war can be directed again objectives in Germany.

With the bombing by the British of European ports outside of Germany proper to prevent them from being used for invasion purposes, and with the bombings rendering these ports useless, according to British reports, the war now has taken on the aspect of a British blockade versus German air bombs and submarines.

It was the battle of Flanders and the battle of France, with their attendant and resultant occupations of the Netherlands, Belgium, and northern France that placed the Germans in their present advantageous position. Before German troops overran these countries the Nazi flyers were about as badly situated to attack England as the British were, and still are, for attacks on Germany. Before their great victories over the low countries and France the Germans could fly no direct courses to London, for example, and international principles of warfare were against their flying over Belgium and the Netherlands, which, up to May 10 of last year, were neutral countries.

Regardless of what may have been Germany's other motives in conquering the Belgians and the Dutch, it looked upon these conquests as a means of getting at England. It was perhaps partly or mainly for the same reason that the Germans seized Denmark and Norway.

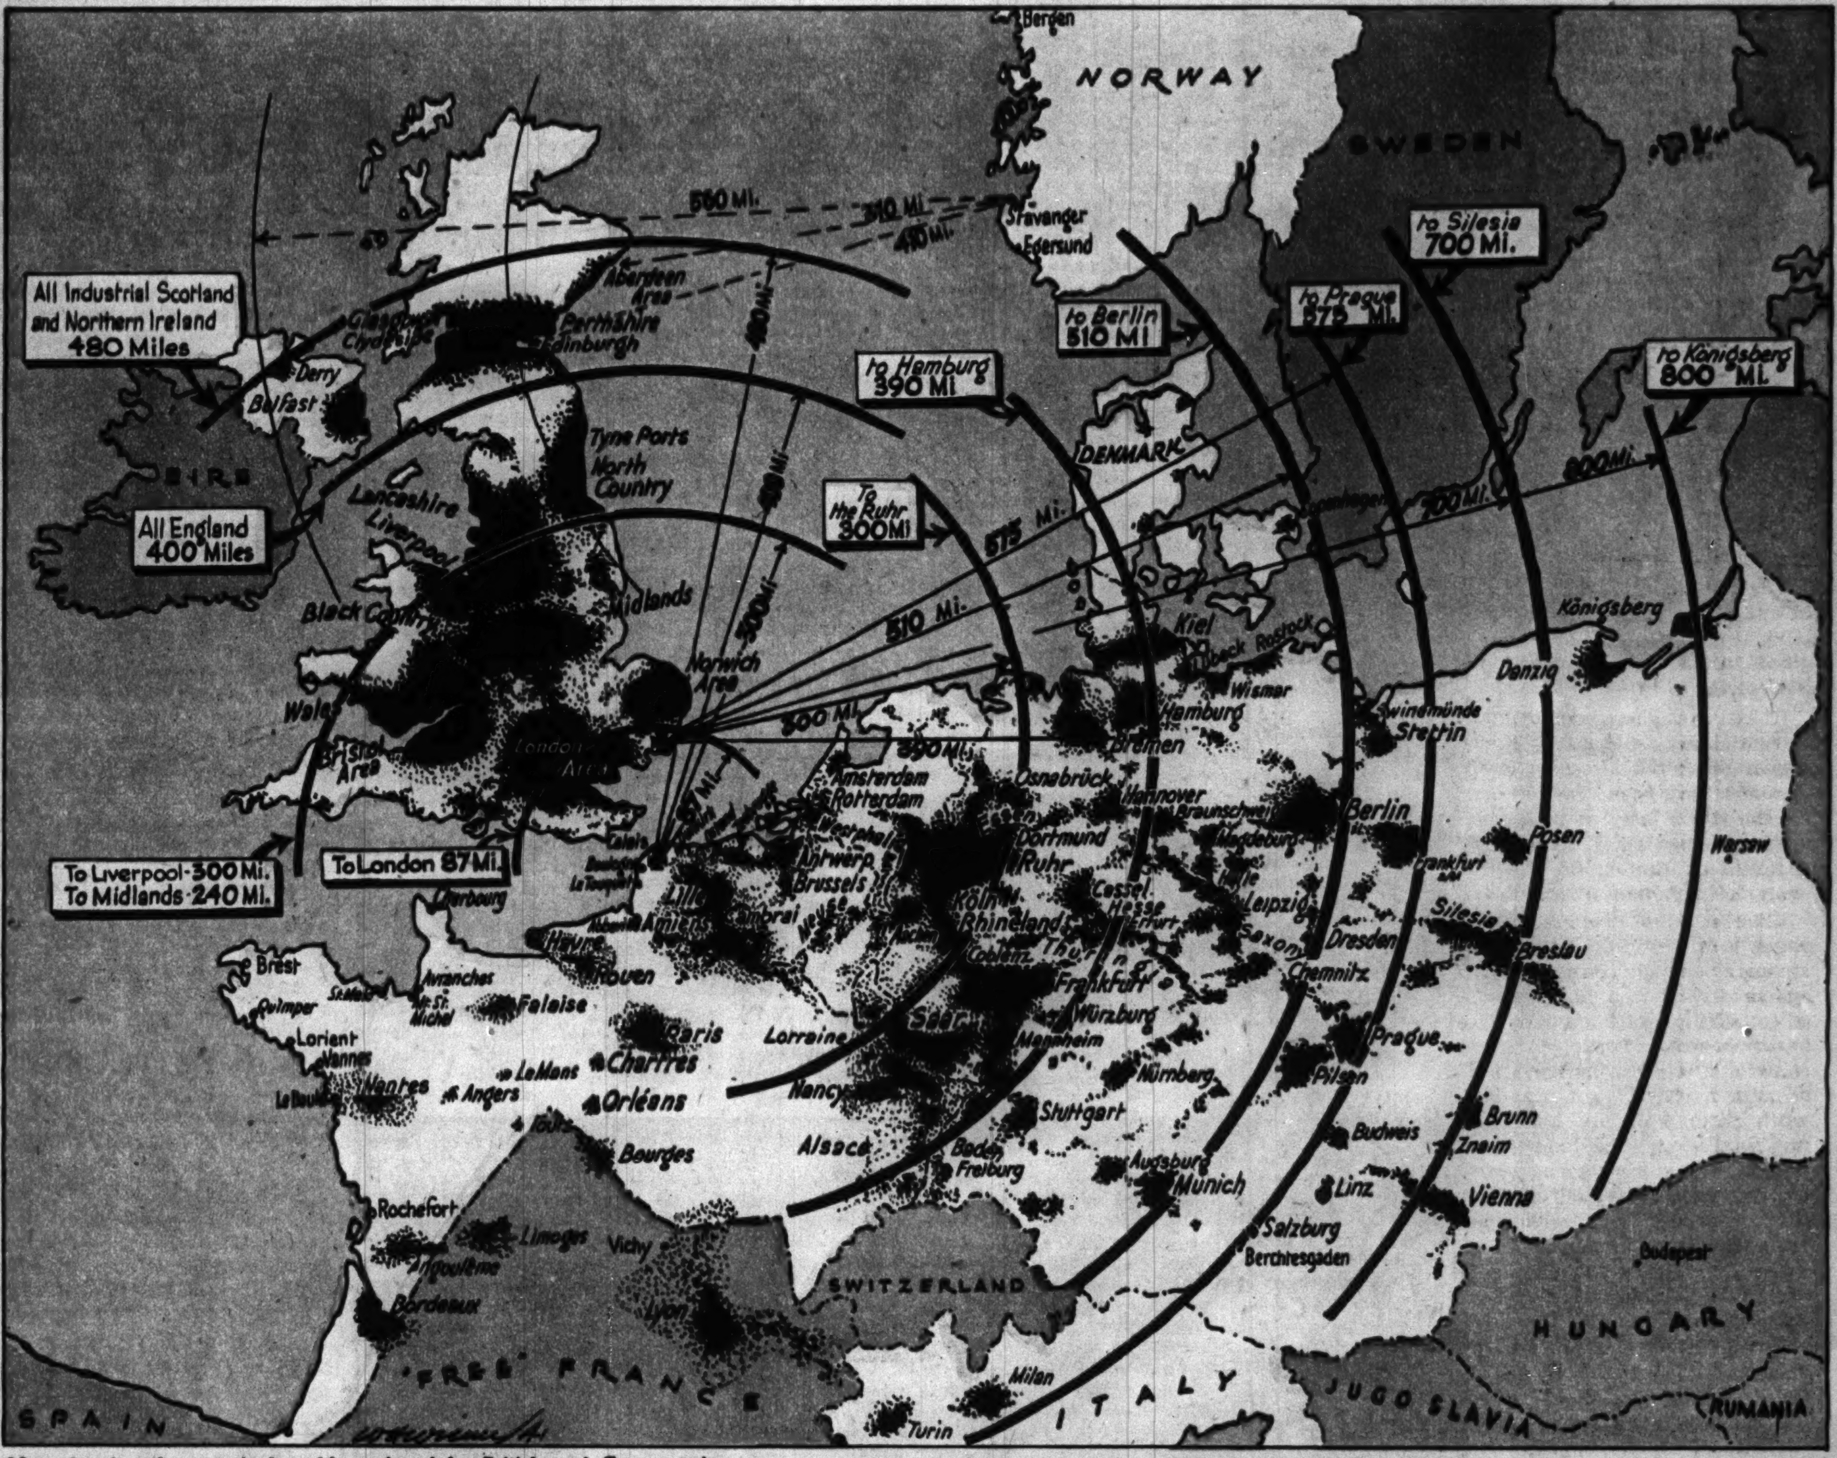
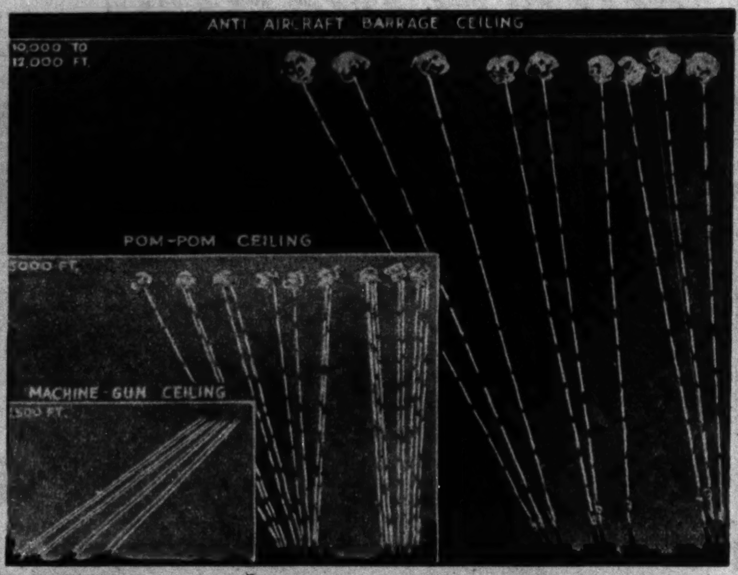
If Great Britain and France together had been strong enough and had been willing to bring upon themselves international condemnation they might have occupied Belgium and the Netherlands. This very likely would have been opposed by the Belgians and the Dutch, but, at any rate, the situation would have been reversed. With the British and French air forces cooperating with each other Germany would have been wide open to attack, while England and at least a part of France would have been as difficult to get at as Germany is now.

It is not a question of possessing bombing planes capable of long distance flights. Great Britain has these planes, and very good ones, just as has Germany, altho the last named has a much greater number of them. British bombers, such as the Lockheed Hudsons, the Wellingtons, and the Whiteleys, have maximum ranges of 1,700 to 1,800 miles.

The vital question in respect to bombers is one of distance as limited by cargo weights. The more gasoline a plane carries the farther it can fly. Furthermore a German bombing plane flying from near Calais in France or from the coast of Belgium to London can carry a greater weight of bombs, with everything else equal, than can a British plane of similar performance in flying from England to Berlin. Every 25 gallons of gas that a plane is compelled to carry to allow for a safe margin of operation means one fewer bomb of about 200 pounds that it can take.



Map showing the practical problems faced by British and German air raiders—the distances to key objectives and the comparative areas that must be covered for effective bombing attack.



The effective vertical ranges of various guns used in England's antiaircraft barrage. The object is to keep raiders high, above effective bombing altitude. The barrage must not reach too high, however, or defending fighter planes will be endangered.

Match Your Handwriting with the Movie Stars

By SHIRLEY SPENCER

(Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.)

AGE IS NOT shown in handwriting. People often ask me to guess their age from their handwriting, not realizing that, since writing is a direct impression from the brain, it can only register the mental maturity and not the physical years of the writer. That is why a man of mature years might write a rather childish script if he has had little experience or training on the intellectual plane.

The handwriting of Lionel Barrymore is an excellent example of a high degree of mental maturity. Here we can see the rapid impression from the brain, refined and polished to the simplest strokes. Sometimes the letters are not formed at all, but have become merely a series of curving lines—an impressionistic version of the letters, showing that the brain has become sensitive and sharpened thru constant use. Note how thin and slight the pen pressure is—a delicate line that moves swiftly across the page. That shows finesse and a subtlety of mind which can come only thru years of experience and the capacity to learn thru those experiences.

When the last letters of a word diminish in size, and even fade out to a wriggling line, you may know that the writer is extremely diplomatic, with a flexible, versatile mind. This flexibility and versatility in an actor make a fine character actor, because he doesn't have to be "typed." He can get inside of the character he is playing.

If you know some one who writes like this you probably will agree that he can be gracious, charming, and is keenly and sensitively alive to every nuance. With the combination of light pressure, graceful capitals, flowing rhythm, speed, and delicate letter formations, such as we find in the handwriting of this grand character actor of the screen, then we may add understanding, intelligence, imagination, and humor to the list of traits.

Does your handwriting show any of these qualities? The fact that you don't use a pen very often will not influence the degree of intellectual development revealed in your writing.

We Fight for Life, But Die Without Fear

ANONYMOUS

I WAS a hundred miles northwest of Milwaukee when it happened. I remember looking at my speedometer a minute before and thinking—Take it easy. Fifty-five isn't safe on loose gravel.

My car had been holding the road beautifully. Then all at once it didn't. A wheel must have hit a rut in the road, for the machine lurched sharply to the left and then started to skid.

The wheels ground furiously into the deep gravel. This is the end, I thought. I hadn't the ghost of a hope I'd ever get out alive.

It was somewhere around that instant I died. Of course I didn't die in the physical sense or I wouldn't have been dragged out of the débris later and revived and my bones set and my cuts patched up. But as far as my own feelings went I was dead.

Like a lot of people, I'd always been afraid of dying. But strangely enough after that first spasm of fear when the car started to skid, I wasn't afraid! My brain was clear. I was perfectly conscious, but I had no sensation of pain or terror. My mind filled with pictures of my husband, my small sons, my home, but instead of any anguish over leaving them I seemed content that they were well. Alive, my interests were wrapped in them to the exclusion of almost everything else, but curiously now, on the verge of death, I was detached; outside myself. Death was very close, but it was a friendly, inviting death.

I don't mean to say I saw any visions. But I was changed. Fear and worry and pain and interest in living had vanished. I experienced an odd sensation. It was a feeling of expectancy. Of strange wonder at what lay ahead! And then all feeling ceased. . . .

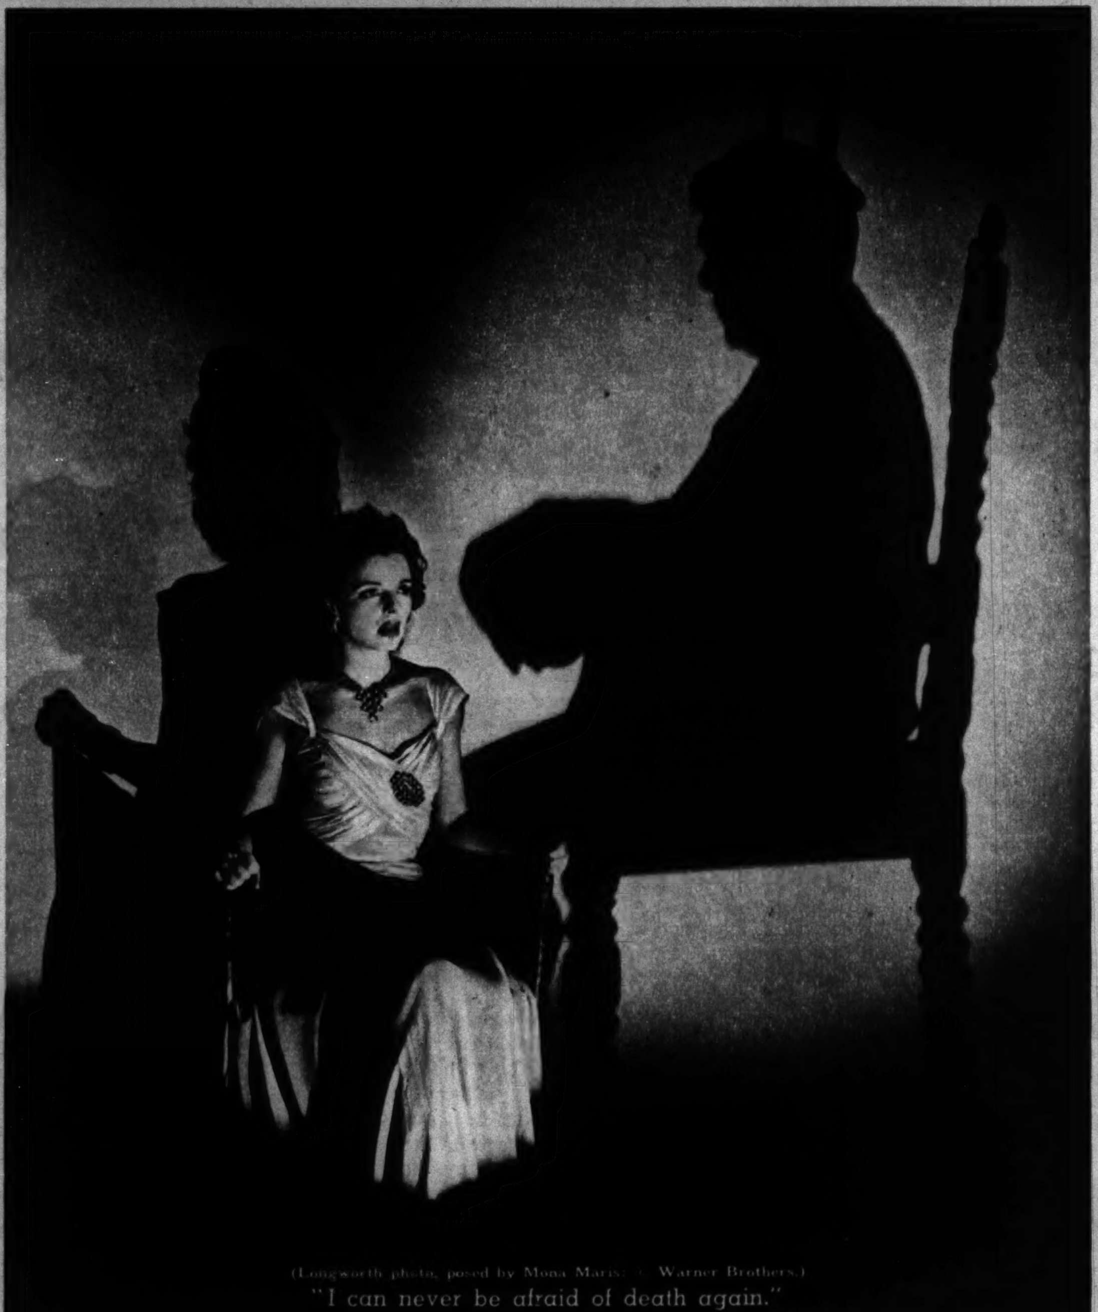
If death had come to me then, as I believed it had, it would have been a kindly, happy death. (There was pain later, months of suffering and discomfort, but they were all a part of living, not of dying.)

Nevertheless I can never be afraid of death again.

That was five years ago. Last fall, shortly before Christmas, I was in a hospital with pneumonia. Every one thought I was dying. They told me as much. My chances for life were slim.



(Longworth photo, posed by Mona Maris: © Warner Brothers.)
"I can never be afraid of death again."

The crisis came and passed and I lived. I remember after it was over a doctor said to me:

"You were very close to death. What did you think—or feel?"

"Not much," I answered.

The doctor persisted. He was young, an interne, and curious over what men and women thought about when they were close to the edge.

"Were you afraid?"

I shook my head. "No. Not at all. I didn't care whether I lived or died. I was terribly tired. I hoped it wouldn't be long before I could fall asleep—and sleep and sleep."

I recalled then what our old family doctor had said to me once years before when I confessed to him that I was afraid of dying. That it must be very unpleasant—or worse.

"My dear child," he said, "you'll probably know nothing about it. As far as you are concerned it will be just as easy as being born. You'll drift on 'thru slumber to a dream and thru a dream to death.'"

I didn't believe him then, but I know now he spoke the truth.

Some 17 years ago Irvin Cobb lay close to death in a hotel in Boston. He was told that he was near the borderline.

"I began to sink," he wrote later. "It was a physical feeling. I was sinking, gently, slowly, and easily into a darkness which rose to meet me. There was something soothing, almost alluring, about this darkness. I knew that if I completely surrendered myself to it I should rest. I accepted the prospect of impending death as most of us accept the prospect of continued life—as a matter of course.

• • •

"The blackness had almost completely enveloped me before a force within me asserted, 'If I quit now, I'm yellow. I'm leaving things undone.' Slowly, wearily, I dragged myself up. I fought to live.

"Some may look upon death with a shrinking dread in their souls. To all such I who have skirted the Valley of the Shadow say that we will face it without fear and without bitterness . . . we shall find it at the last but a peaceful transition, an eternal change, mercifully accomplished."

Doctors explain that there's a scientific reason for the painlessness of life's last minutes. Nature administers a kindly anesthetic. As the end approaches a process of physiologic degeneration sets in. The blood pressure drops, the heart has less force to pump the blood thru our bodies, and this receding vitality has much the same soothing effect on the mind and brain as a gentle anesthetic.

Grant Allen, the British author, has written his experience of a "death by drowning," and agrees with Mr. Cobb at the end that he no longer has any fear of death.

"Dying," he says, "is as painless as falling asleep. It was only the previous struggle, the sense of its approach, that was at all uncomfortable, but even that wasn't half as bad as breaking an arm or having a tooth pulled!"

Physicians who have watched at death beds say that almost without exception there is as little pain in the act of death itself as there is in falling asleep. The law of painless death is practically universal except in rare instances when the will to live is so vitally strong that nature's anesthetic doesn't work and we witness a fight for life up to the last breath drawn.

Dr. William Hunter, great anatomist and surgeon, whispered to a friend as he lay dying: "If I had strength enough to hold a pen I would write down how easy and pleasant a thing it is to die."

All this doesn't mean that some of the illnesses and accidents that may lead up to death are not attended by suffering. The body can put up a terrific fight for existence, but this fight is a part of living, not of dying.

But when we come close to death there is overwhelming evidence to support the claims of such men as Dr. J. Shelton Horsley, well known cancer specialist of Richmond, Va., that "the actual process of dying is not accompanied by pain or any marked discomfort."

EACH AND ALL

By Ralph Waldo Emerson

Little thinks, in the field, yon red-cloaked clown
Of thee from the hilltop looking down;
The heifer that lows in the upland farm,
Far-heard, lows not thine ear to charm;
The sexton, tolling his bell at noon,
Deems not that great Napoleon
Stops his horse, and lists with delight,
Whilst his files sweep round yon Alpine height.
Nor knowest thou what argument
Thy life to thy neighbor's creed has lent.
All are needed by each one—
Nothing is fair or good alone.

I thought the sparrow's note from heaven,
Singing at dawn on the alder bough;
I brought him home, in his nest, at even;
He sings the song, but it pleases not now;
For I did not bring home the river and sky;
He sang to my ear—they sang to my eye.
The delicate shells lay on the shore;
The bubbles of the latest wave
Fresh pearls to their enamel gave,
And the bellowing of the savage sea
Greeted their safe escape to me.
I wiped away the weeds and foam—
I fetched my sea-born treasures home;
But the poor, unsightly, noisome things
Had left their beauty on the shore,
With the sun, and the sand, and the wild uproar.

The lover watched his graceful maid,
As 'mid the virgin train she strayed;
Nor knew her beauty's best attire
Was woven still by the snow-white choir.
At last she came to his hermitage,
Like the bird from the woodlands to the cage;
The gay enchantment was undone—
A gentle wife, but fairy none.

Then I said, "I covet truth;
Beauty is unripe childhood's cheat;
I leave it behind with the games of youth."
As I spoke, beneath my feet
The ground-pine curled its pretty wreath,
Running over the club-moss burrs;
I inhaled the violet's breath;
Around me stood the oaks and firs;
Pine-cones and acorns lay on the ground;
Over me soared the eternal sky,
Full of light and of deity;
Again I saw, again I heard,
The rolling river, the morning bird;
Beauty thru my senses stole—
I yielded myself to the perfect whole.

Making Synthetic Rubber

How Science Prepares a Substitute

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

INVOLVED in America's problems of economic independence and national defense is a substance about which the public has been hearing and reading a great deal in the last few months. It commonly is called synthetic rubber, and this is the term we shall use here, altho, as scientists point out, no types of the material are chemically identical with natural rubber. Some types of the substance can be substituted for natural rubber for virtually all uses, while other types are more or less limited in their uses.

It requires no profound thought to understand why synthetic rubber is important to America, particularly during war times, when the sources of natural rubber in the orient may be cut off at any time.

The United States normally consumes as much natural rubber as all the rest of the world put together. Its average annual consumption is approximately 600,000 long tons, or more than one and a third billion pounds.

It is obvious that America could not function properly without rubber, even in times of peace. In times of war, when its annual rubber requirements might easily attain or exceed a million long tons, it would be doubly handicapped without this vital material. It is here, then, that the importance of synthetic rubber is quickly recognized. America produces no natural rubber, yet it possesses in abundance all the raw materials for making synthetic rubber.

Production of synthetic rubber in the United States still is extremely small as compared with importations of natural rubber, having been held down mainly because the natural type ordinarily has been lower in price than its substitute. If necessary, however, synthetic rubber could be produced in this country in great volume to meet all requirements. This could not be put under way overnight. It would take time for the industry to expand and build sufficient plants to turn out the supply. Once the industry obtained full production on a large scale, the price of synthetic rubber naturally would go down.

It is of sufficient significance to call attention here to the fact that, altho one well known type of American synthetic rubber at the present is selling at 65 cents a pound, as compared with a price of 21 cents a pound for natural rubber, there have been a number of times since 1913 when natural rubber sold for more than 65 cents a pound. In 1925 it rose to $1.23 a pound. Back in 1910 it had reached a peak of more than three dollars a pound. No one can predict how far the price of synthetic rubber may drop. Some basis for a prediction of this kind, however, might be found in the fact that an American cellulose product that is widely known under its trade name has gone down in price in 15 years from $2.65 to 33 cents a pound.

War and the threat of war have stimulated synthetic rubber research, yet even without these, American genius has done much along this line. Altho chemists for more than 50 years have been seeking ways of making rubber substitutes, it was only with the coming of the World war in 1914 (the first major conflict after the automobile came into general use) that synthetic rubber was made for commercial use. The Germans, cut off from the sources of natural rubber, developed a substance to take its place. This was made directly from butadiene, a gas at normal temperatures, which they obtained by a series of complicated processes from acetylene. In the presence of a catalyst such as sodium the butadiene by polymerization was converted into the rubber substitute.

(A catalyst is an agent that in contact with a compound brings about a chemical change, yet at the same time remains stable itself. Polymerization is the changing of one substance into another having the same elements in the same proportions but being of a higher molecular weight.)

The Germans made about 2,400 tons of this synthetic rubber, but it was found to be greatly inferior to natural rubber, and as soon as they were able to obtain the natural type again they abandoned the making of the substitute. With a threat of a new war in Europe, however, the Germans and Russians a few years ago both began working again on the problem of synthetic rubber. The Russians employed butadiene made from grain alcohol. The Germans hit upon a method of making an improved synthetic rubber by bringing butadiene and a liquid called styrene together in the presence of a peroxide.

While the Germans obtain butadiene from acetylene derived from coal, this gas, according to Dr. Gustav Egloff, director of the Universal Oil Products company of Chicago, can be obtained most cheaply in America from a gas called butane, which can be produced either from crude oil or natural gas. The liquid styrene also is obtainable from petroleum. It is produced in the following manner: First benzol and ethylene, two products obtainable in any desired quantities from petroleum, are combined to form ethyl-benzene. By dehydrogenation the ethylbenzene is converted into styrene.

Synthetic rubber is produced in America by various processes, some of which follow the practices developed by the Germans. One American way of making rubber substitutes, for example, is thru the mixing of butadiene with acrylonitrile. Another form of synthetic rubber is produced in this country thru the combination of ethylene and chlorine with sodiumpolysulfide. Still another form is produced by bringing together isobutene and butadiene in the presence of a catalyst. Isobutene, like butadiene, is derived from petroleum.

A synthetic rubber developed by one of the big tire and rubber companies of this country is a polyvinyl chloride product derived basically from coal, limestone, salt, and water. Another American company makes a synthetic rubber from these basic raw materials, but the two substances are said to be not even remotely alike chemically. The latter company has outlined the various steps in the manufacture of its product as follows:

Calcium carbide + water = acetylene.

Among the various trade names under which American synthetic rubbers are produced are Neoprene, Ameripol, Butyl, Chemigum, Koroseal, Thiokol, Buna-S, and Buna-N (Perbunan).

Synthetic rubber in one form or another is employed virtually everywhere that natural rubber can be used. In some forms it possesses qualities that are superior to those of natural rubber. Some types, for example, withstand chemicals and heat to a greater degree than does the natural product. Also they are less affected by oils and greases. Synthetic rubber at present is employed in cements and latex adhesives, clothing, coated fabrics, diaphragms, footwear, gaskets and washers, gloves, hose, molded seals, packing, printing press rollers, tank linings and metal covers, transmission belts, conveyor belts, tubing, wire and cable insulation, blankets, molded goods, protective jackets, and many other products. The foregoing list discloses the wide variety of forms that the rubber substitutes take, from the most elastic types to those of an extremely hard and inflexible nature.

Automobile tires made from synthetic rubber have been found to be quite satisfactory. They are obtainable on the market, altho as yet they are not as low in price as tires made from natural rubber. One company producing synthetic rubber says it is "preferable to natural rubber for the outer surface of a tire because of its resistance to sunlight deterioration. This is a factor of particular importance in tractor tires and other types not protected by fenders."

A Chicago representative of a tire company that already is selling synthetic rubber tires says that these tires have been found to wear equally as well as those produced from natural rubber.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

• Trainer Willy Necker of Wheeling, Ill., demonstrates how he teaches the dog Heidi to say its prayers.

2 Heidi, having previously been trained in obedience, knows the command "Stay," which is used in the second step.

Tricks Not Hard to Teach

MANY dog owners get considerable pleasure from teaching their pets a number of tricks. It's noticeable that some dogs are quick to learn simple tricks and others are slow. We have always held that it's unfair to call a pet dumb because it is slow to pick up a trick. In the final analysis the learning of tricks does not depend so much on the general intelligence of the animal as on its quick mind and cleverness. There is quite a difference between these attributes.

There isn't any doubt but what a clever, quick-to-learn, and imitative dog becomes smarter if he is taught several tricks. The teaching that he gets and the new words he learns are a stimulant to him. Between this pet and his master there grows a very strong bond of understanding. If you happen to own a "show-off" it will be that much easier to teach him a number of tricks.

The dog that first is taught the fundamentals of obedience usually is more adaptable and learns tricks more quickly than the pet which has had no such training.

Among the tricks which are fairly easy to teach an obedient dog is "Say your prayers." Willy Necker, professional trainer of Wheeling, Ill., demonstrated how this trick is taught, as is shown in the pictures.

The words "Say your prayers" are repeated many times in conjunction with the other commands so that the dog will associate these words with the whole procedure, and after it has completely learned the trick it will be necessary to say only these words and eliminate the temporary commands such as "Put your feet up" and "Put your head down."

3 The third step is to teach Heidi to put her head between her paws on the chair. Necker uses the command "Put your head down" and accompanies it with "Say your prayers."

4 When the dog is in the correct position the trainer repeats the words "Say your prayers" several times.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.
(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

You Should Check Used Camera

MOST amateur photographers are bargain hunters and gadgeteers. What worries them primarily is the question of whether to buy new or used cameras. The reduced prices of second-hand equipment are a great temptation, yet many consider such purchases a gamble.

The truth is that you can safely buy a used camera if you get it from a reliable dealer and if you test it yourself, following a few simple instructions, or if you have it tested by an expert.

Before a dealer buys a used camera or accepts it in trade he checks it thoroly. However, you should insist on a minimum of a 10-day trial and money-back guarantee if any hidden flaws show up when you check the camera.

Your best bet is to send the camera to the manufacturer or the importer for a thoro check-up. But here's how you can check it yourself:

Examine the lens for cracks and scratches. Hold it against the light and look at it with a magnifying glass while turning the lens around its axis and tilting it from one side to the other. Light striking the lens from different angles will tend to show up flaws. The surfaces of the lens should be highly polished. If they appear "dusty" the lens is covered with fine scratches. On the other hand, tiny bubbles in the glass do not harm the picture-taking qualities of the lens.

The camera body should be absolutely light-tight. Open the camera, remove the back, take it to a darkened room, and, placing a small light bulb inside the camera, examine it for light leaks. Check especially the folds of the bellows. Small pinholes can be easily repaired with a special dressing or with adhesive tape.

Test the shutter at all speeds. It should operate smoothly when using both the body release and the cable release. The testing of the actual shutter speeds is quite involved and should be done by an expert, but half the battle is won if the shutter functions at all speeds. The actual speeds can be adjusted later should photographic results make that necessary.

All cameras have focusing scales, and many come equipped with coupled range finders. These should be accurate. Set up the camera and focus on a subject from 3 feet, 6 feet, and 10 feet, carefully measuring the distance from the front of the lens to the subject. Then see how your focusing scale reads and whether the image in the range finder is sharp. If the scale and the range finder show what they should, they are in order; if not, they must be adjusted. The actual focusing in this experiment must be done on the ground glass. If you test a roll film camera, remove the back and fasten a piece of ground glass or wax paper in the opening before which the film would appear.

Finally, test the camera by making a series of pictures. Tack up a newspaper on the wall and photograph it with wide-open lens. Make an enlargement and examine it for all-over sharpness. The definition should be equally good in the center and on the sides of the picture. Take pictures of still and of moving objects at various shutter speeds, calculating the exposures with a meter. Then check whether the results are satisfactory.

Other things to check: The film should move smoothly in its channel; the lens board and the back of the camera should be perfectly parallel; the view finder should cover the same section of the subject as appears on the ground glass, regardless of the distance from which you focus.

NEW EQUIPMENT

197 You can correct distortions or create them at will with a new swivel lens mount for enlargers. The mount holds the lens securely in place at any desired angle to the enlarging paper.

199 The latest negative file is equipped with an exposure record pad which you carry in your pocket, noting exposure data after each shot. Later you file the data along with the negative in glassine envelopes.

passing the reviewing stand the marchers exhibited their stiff march, a modified goose step. Some brigades contained nothing but officers, being skeletonized in preparation for rapid expansion whenever new Polish recruits can be found. For the time being many of the officers, seasoned captains and lieutenant from the Polish, Norwegian, and French campaigns are carrying rifles and doing the work of privates without complaint.

In the afternoon I left the presidential party to inspect one of the Polish armored trains that patrol the coast here. Armored trains seem to be a Polish specialty, for a considerable number of those that range the southern and eastern coasts of Britain are manned by Polish crews. They are constructed as efficiently as possible from any obtainable rolling stock, being intended for striking and defensive strength more than impressive looks.

The train I saw consisted of five units: a small locomotive with tender in the middle, empty flat cars on either end of it, and the armored gun cars beyond the flat cars forming the two strong extremities of the train. Altho the gun cars looked not unlike camouflaged coal cars, their armor plate was impressive. Each was provided with a cannon as well as four antiaircraft machine guns. The reason for the flat cars separating the locomotive from the gun cars was to give the engineer a better chance of being clear of the line of fire when the boys at the guns went into action. Not yet provided with roofs, the gun cars are none too comfortable in the prevailing cold, rainy weather in eastern Scotland. But the Poles are tough. Without mittens, the crew of 50 men to each train work on 12 hour shifts, a dozen manning each gun car on each trip. Wearing black berets except during air raids, the men are cheery and uncomplaining. I climbed aboard the forward gun car and watched the crew at their stations. No enemy airplanes were overhead at the time, but the men demonstrated how they took cover behind the steel and concrete barriers, firing thru embrasures with guns mounted on swivels for easy swinging. The effectiveness of their fire may be judged by the fact that only one of their trains has been damaged by a bomb to date.

The armored train on land corresponds to the motor torpedo boat at sea, constantly patroling the coastline from within and ready to strike the first blow at any invader. In future these trains will be stronger and provided with better antiaircraft guns and probably light tanks to extend their range beyond the confines of the railroad track. Wireless and telephones at frequent intervals keep them in touch with their base and help them coördinate their movements with the air force, navy, and tank units of the army.

Soon after my inspection of the armored train I persuaded Gen. Kukiel, commander of the Polish army, and Gen. Maczck, commanding the Polish 10th brigade, to put on a sham battle so that I could tell the people in Chicago how these Polish soldiers performed in action. No other American correspondent was present. The only other newspaper men on the scene were two reporters from a local Scottish paper.

Gen. Maczck gave his reconnaissance battalion a problem in reconnaissance and attack. The "enemy" supposedly had landed by parachutes and troop carrying planes near a village to the north. It was up to Maczck's men to locate the enemy quickly and attack him before he could establish himself or receive reinforcements.

The setting was a hilly region with mountains behind it and a castle or two with little stone bridges over the gorges, all gray and mossy from 500 moisty years.

The first Polish troops to appear on the scene, moving straight into a cold rain that was driven almost horizontally on the northeast wind, were motorcycle and machine gun carrier troops. Over a little ridge from the west they came, spreading outwards, groping for the enemy. The machine gun carriers, a kind of light topless tank, paused behind the crests of hillocks while their commanders looked thru their glasses, trying to spot the enemy.

Meanwhile the motorcycle troops, who had a particularly unpleasant assignment in this weather, left their machines in a hollow and made toward the enemy on foot. Some of them unreeled telephone wire as they advanced and set up field telephone sets at strategic points. Others had carrier pigeons, and the machine gun carriers used wireless sets to report to headquarters the exact enemy positions, on the basis of which strong reinforcements were sent out before the launching of the attack.

When new machine gun carriers and infantry in lorries arrived with small artillery units and had taken up positions, a rocket suddenly sizzled into the turbid sky and broke into a hundred stars. It was the signal to attack.

On a quarter-mile front the 760 men of the battalion advanced. As the infantry crept swiftly forward, taking advantage of the unevenness of the land, the armored machine gun carriers passed ahead of them, charging the enemy. Machine gun troops among the infantry quickly set up Bren machine guns on hillocks close to the enemy, while the motorcycle troops advanced behind them, swiftly spreading out into the most favorable positions. Antitank guns towed by lorries were placed ready to repulse any light tanks that might have been landed by the enemy. All troops wore rubber capes against the rain, and the motorcycle and machine gun carrier troops had on their new low-brimmed helmets.

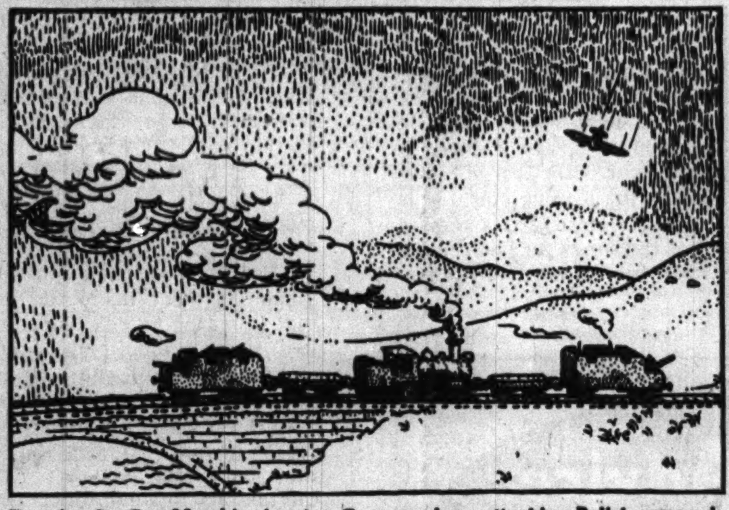
As the whole battalion worked like a unit in swiftly closing on the enemy, the scene was made more realistic by the bursting "bombs" and "shells" previously planted in the fields to approximate actual attack conditions as far as possible. Red Cross units with stretchers and first aid equipment followed close behind the attackers, carrying the "wounded" to the rear.

Coming back to barracks after four hours out in the raw weather, the Polish soldiers were visibly cheerful and talking enthusiastically about their morning's work. Their morale is obviously high and they are toughened with experience and physical and mental exercise.

During lunch the men made light of the fact that they had not yet been equipped with mittens for the winter. "We have no gloves," said one, "but we usually have brandy—and that is even better for soldiers."

The lunch was hare and beet roots. Hare is one of the commonest meat dishes in Britain these days. The meat is dark and tastes a little like the dark meat of turkey. The lighter meat of rabbit is also quite commonly served.

During the meal I was told much of the earlier exploits of the Polish army in the present war. The famous 10th brigade, a battalion of which had put on the morning's show, had remained a fighting unit without surrendering when Poland collapsed in September, 1939. They are known as the "black brigade" and were honored by being referred to in one of Hitler's speeches as particularly terrible in war. With full equipment they marched into Hungary at the last possible moment, only to be disarmed by the Hungarian authorities. From there they escaped in small groups to re-form in France and continue the fight.



Drawing by Guy Murchie showing German plane attacking Polish armored train somewhere in Scotland. Notice flat cars next to engine, as described in article.

There are innumerable stories of remarkable escapes of Poles. One officer had to go all the way across Siberia to Japan to get away. Two officers with nine men escaped at the time of the French surrender on a yawl out of Marseilles, and got picked up by a British destroyer at Gibraltar. Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, and Italy—all were crossed by the dauntless Poles whose one idea was to continue the war against Germany.

By November, 1939, 4,000 Poles already were forming the nucleus of a new Polish army at Coetquidan in Brittany, the main concentration point for Polish forces under the French high command. At first the French tried to keep the Polish units small but later allowed the Poles to form whole divisions equipped with artillery and armored and mechanized units. By January, 1940, a Polish infantry division of 17,000 men was training in Britanny and armored units were concentrated near Orange and Avignon in southern France, including the armored 10th brigade.

When the allies decided to help Finland in February, the Poles formed a brigade of 5,000 men to take part in the campaign. But it was delayed by the allied high command until too late. So the "Highland brigade" intended for Finland went to Norway instead, in April, where it fought and helped capture Narvik from the Germans. The 2d battalion of this brigade on disembarking in Norway covered 20 miles of rocks and glaciers between 6 p. m. and 5 o'clock the following morning, marching over completely strange country, and then attacking without rest, successfully driving off the German forces encountered.

Later in France the Polish forces made a splendid record for themselves. The first grenadier division at Sarreguemines defended the Maginot line from June 9 to 14 against terrible odds. Gen. Duch took a rifle in his hands to lead his troops. One battalion was wiped out, with all but 50 men killed and most of the others wounded.

The 10th brigade took part in covering the French retreat against the heavily armored German columns. Part of this brigade was cut off from the rest at one point and for two days sustained a siege. At the last of the period, 20 men in a farmhouse with light French machine guns and rifles kept the Nazis at bay for 12 hours of daylight and at nightfall made a desperate attack, capturing five Germans and escaping.

A lieutenant with two tanks made a deep reconnaissance into the German lines and got surrounded. His remarkable escape was made by sneaking his two tanks into a moving German column in the darkness until he reached a point where he could get away again. Gen. Maczck himself went on foot for 17 days thru German occupied territory after the French surrender.

The fighting spirit of Polish artillery units is illustrated by a report from Switzerland, into which country many of the troops escaped at the end of June. When a Polish battery was ordered to dump its ammunition on French soil before crossing the Swiss border, the commander gave an order and the battery turned around and went back for six hours, not returning until it had fired all its shells at the advancing Germans. Ten of its men were killed when it shelled advancing Nazi tanks at point blank range, but it was able to report eight of the tanks put out of action.

Such are the Polish soldiers, most of whom have now formed their army on the bleak east coast of Scotland, under the British high command. Others, now training in Canada, will join them later; and large units are still stationed in the middle east. In Syria, for example, a Polish independent brigade of infantry, cavalry, artillery, and armored units was formed near Bierut last winter entirely of men who had escaped from concentration camps in Hungary and Rumania. When France decided not to fight in Syria, Brig. Gen. Kopanski of this brigade decided to carry on anyway and he commandeered several trains and moved his brigade to Palestine, taking all his ammunition, 50 horses, and all the other equipment he could get. Several hundred Frenchmen followed his example. After staying two months near Jerusalem while training intensively, the brigade was transferred in October, 1940, to Egypt where it now occupies a position on the western desert.

'Cyrano de Bergerac' Goes on the Air

FOR ITS weekly presentation over the Mutual network W-G-N's Theater of the Air last night turned to a musical version of a great play, "Cyrano de Bergerac." William A. Bacher, director of the production, prepared the script. The music was drawn from a light opera based on the play, composed by the late Samuel Prokrass and known as "The White Plume." To Marion Claire, the Theater of the Air's regular star, went the part of Roxanne, while Conrad Thibault, the popular radio baritone, was the performance's guest artist, singing the title rôle.

Edmond Rostand, the brilliant French dramatist who wrote "Cyrano de Bergerac," turned back to the 17th century for the protagonist of his play. For Cyrano de Bergerac was an actual person who was born in Paris in 1620 and died there 35 years later.

Cyrano studied first to be a country priest, but at the age of 19 he joined a corps of guards to serve in some of the current campaigns. Here began a series of romantic exploits, which Rostand turned to such good account in his play. Undoubtedly some of the stories concerning Cyrano are merely legendary, but such an adventure as that in which he encountered single-handed a hundred enemies is vouched for by his friend and biographer, Henri Lebret.

After two years with the guards Cyrano left them to begin his career as an author. For the stage he wrote satirical comedies and classical tragedies. Today, however, his literary fame rests upon his romances. In them he combined an ingenious mixture of science and romance that served as a model for such distinguished writers as Swift and Poe.

His brief existence was stormy, for his free thinking aroused public and political opposition to his works, and his constant quarrels led to innumerable duels. Yet it was not one of these which caused his death at the early age of 35, but an injury from a falling timber.

The hero of Rostand's poetic drama resembles the historical figure only as a personality — a swashbuckling, romantic wit. In the play he is a poet, swordsman, doctor, and musician, afflicted with an enormous nose. This monstrosity prevents Roxanne, with whom Cyrano is in love, from returning his affection. She instead loves the handsome but inarticulate Christian. The latter, finding it necessary to write love letters to Roxanne, has Cyrano do it for him. The resultant epistles are very beautiful and cause Roxanne to fall completely under the spell of what she supposes is Christian's soul and wit. When he dies Roxanne retires to a convent, for Cyrano holds his peace concerning the true authorship of the letters. Not until many years later, on the day that Cyrano is killed by an enemy, does she learn of the deception and the sacrifice.

When "Cyrano de Bergerac" opened at the Théâtre de la Porte Saint-Martin in Paris on Dec. 28, 1897, with the great Coquelin in the name part, it aroused the most striking enthusiasm the French theater had seen in almost 70 years. A theatrically stirring plot, told with wit and humanity in dazzling poetry, accounted for its success—a success which immediately extended to other European countries and America.

Coquelin and the famous Sarah Bernhardt played it on a tour of this country in 1900, and several distinguished productions of the drama in English followed. It has been revived from time to time, the best known of recent productions being that in which Walter Hampden played the unfortunate poet.

It was quite natural that composers should look on "Cyrano de Bergerac" as good material for either light or serious opera. One of the first to turn this idea to his advantage was Victor Herbert, who brought out a comic opera under that name in 1899. This version appeared thruout the United States with varying success at the turn of the century, but has been forgotten today.

In 1913 the Metropolitan Opera company produced Walter Damrosch's operatic version of Rostand's play, for which the libretto was adapted by the distinguished music critic, the late W. J. Henderson. Frances Alda was Roxanne and Pasquale Amato was Cyrano. Damrosch's opera stayed in the répertoire for only a season, but the composer has rewritten the work and it will be given in concert form this spring in New York with Ezio Pinza in the title rôle.

In 1936 another operatic version appeared in Rome, this one by Franco Alfano, best known in Chicago for his opera "Resurrection." The Italian "Cyrano" has never been given in this country.

Then two seasons ago an operetta, variously titled "Cyrano de Bergerac" and "The White Plume," with music by Samuel Prokrass, enjoyed a brief tour with George Houston in the leading rôle. It is from the score of this version that the songs for last night's radio production were taken.

Loveliness Lies in Little Things

GLADYS SWARTHOUT

(Posed by Judith Barrett.)

". . . a long glamor bob, Hollywood mouth, and little-girl clothes . . . are man-catchers, to be sure, but . . ."

LILLY DACHE

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1941: News Syndicate, Inc.)

EXPERTS in the art of loveliness (their own or other women's) tell us the little points of glamor that, if carefully observed all the year 'round, day in and day out, can make you a reputation as a beauty by 1942. The experts include a famous dress designer for the world's most glamorous women, Valentina; Lilly Daché, world-renowned milliner; Marie Neary, American makeup expert; Gladys Swarthout, "best dressed" and beautiful opera and concert star; and Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, famous society beauty who helps conduct a dress design establishment. Here are their hints on turning back the calendar as 1941 ticks by.

"If you find a dress that is the most becoming you ever have had, adopt it as a 'uniform' in as many colors and fabrics as you can order. I have a 'uniform' which I have made in everything from natural linen to gold lamé, and I never know a moment's self-consciousness in it," says Gladys Swarthout.

"Don't be an imitation anything, least of all an imitation glamor girl," is her advice. "If you can't afford diamonds, don't try to make rhinestones look like diamonds. Wear the thoroly stunning and superchic new costume jewelry that is frankly and charmingly fake, or set a fashion by wearing no jewelry at all. Don't imitate your pet movie star. Build up a star rôle for yourself. Forget the second fiddle business. If you can't have the best mink, don't even look at mink. Be happy in the best modestly priced fur you can afford."

"Unless you are actually under 20, don't make the mistake of trying to look like a subdeb, with a long glamor bob, Hollywood mouth, and little-girl clothes," advises Lilly Daché. "All those things are man-catchers, to be sure. If they weren't the youngsters wouldn't have the instinct to wear them. But a woman who wears them doesn't look younger, and she certainly doesn't look elegant. All she does succeed in doing is to look as if she had never gotten her man.

"Don't treat your head as if it were a separate entity. Don't buy hats as if your head were quite separate from the rest of your body. Stand up when you try on hats, and be sure that, however lovely in itself, it is the hat that makes a perfect picture of you from head to foot," recommends this milliner, whose advice is well worth heeding.

Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton

"Wear your clothes with courage, or else don't ever experiment with new fashions. If you are the type who lies awake nights worrying about whether the new dress you bought that day is too extreme, it is too extreme. No woman can look chic unless she feels chic." So advises Valentina.

"Remember that the little number you may pick up for virtually nothing at a bargain sale is no bargain if it hangs in your closet until you pass it on to a poor relation. Do your shopping as much as possible in concentrated sessions. The good wardrobe is the one that is worn out, not the one that goes out of style.

"Rather than buy a dress at the last minute, wear an old one. You will feel happier, look smarter, and certainly be wiser. No snatched-up dress ever was a boon to a wardrobe. Elegance is a patiently acquired treasure, not a ten-strike."

Marie Neary tells us: "Be as faithful as a Mohammedan about facing the morning sun when you make up. The face doesn't exist which doesn't look lovelier with the proper makeup or worse with smeared or slithered makeup, and it's all done with mirrors, in the correct light.

"Remember that your face is your best friend and that you should be its severest critic. Don't fool yourself into thinking that you are the girl you were last year. Be thrilled that you can give yourself a new face whenever you like, and take pains to make the new face prettier than the one you had before. It can be done."

The society woman beauty, Mrs. Hamilton, advises:

"Don't be too sure that you know best about your own clothes and good looks. Don't confuse expert assistance with high-pressure salesmanship. Remember that buying beauty involves more than buying the jars and bottles. Directions must be followed to the letter, and followed every day, too. If you put yourself into the hands of a clothes counselor, take her advice faithfully after making her thoroly acquainted with your way of life, your color phobias (and your husband's), and the clothes you have left over from last season. Don't be half-hearted. If you need advice it can't do you anything but good."

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I would like to know if I can have Spencer Tracy's address. O. PIATTANI.

Editor's note: You can write to Mr. Tracy care of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Cal.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have seen many pictures of Anita Louise, and I enjoyed her acting. Would you please tell me a few things about her and also print a picture of her? Lots of luck to you.
SYLVIA ROSEN.

Anita Louise

Editor's note: Anita Louise's real name is Anita Louise Fremault. Born in New York City in 1915. She's 5 feet 3½ inches tall, weighs 106 pounds, and has blonde hair and blue eyes. On New York stage before entering films. Married to E. Maurice Adler, screen writer. Thanks so much for your good wishes.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have been a faithful reader of your column for quite a few years, but this is the first time I have ever written to you concerning any actress or actor. This exception is inspired by the marvelous performances of George Sanders as the Saint in that series, in "Allegheny Uprising," in "Lloyds of London," and many other pictures. He has certainly become one of the most outstanding actors in Hollywood today and is deserving of bigger and better rôles in the future. Would you please print a brief biography of George Sanders and also state where I may obtain one of his pictures?

I wonder, Miss Tinée, if you would please acquaint the motion picture producers with the fact that a great majority of the American moviegoing public is terribly weary of the foreign propaganda pictures? Please let us have more wholesome American stories.

Thank you for always writing such amusing and interesting reviews, and how about reverting to your inimitable poetry reviews once in a while? I always found them so original and interesting.

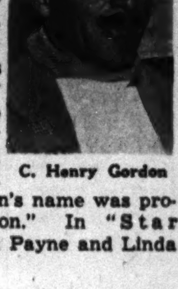
Very sincerely yours,
VIRGINIA M. DUNNE.

Editor's hote: Mr. Sanders is No. 1 boy with lots of fans! He was born in St. Petersburg, Russia, in 1906. Educated Dunhurst and Bedales schools, Brighton college, and Manchester Technical school. He's 6 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 215 pounds, and has green-gray eyes and light brown hair. In textile business before entering motion pictures. If you will write RKO-Radio studio, 780 Gower street, Hollywood, Cal., I believe you can obtain one of his photos. I'll let this letter acquaint the producers. Ah-h, so you like my poetry! (I can't believe it.)

Dear Miss Tinée: Humphrey Bogart has done some very good acting lately, and he was swell in "They Drive by Night." Please print something about him. Thanks a lot. GLORIA BUD.

Editor's note: Mr. Bogart is a grand actor. He was born in New York City, Dec. 25, 1900. He's 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, and has dark hair and brown eyes. Educated Trinity school in New York and Andover academy in Massachusetts. Left school to join the navy and enter the World war. Appeared on the stage before entering motion pictures. He's married to Mayo Methot.

Dear Miss Tinée: I recently read where C. Henry Gordon, 57, a veteran screen actor, died. To settle a dispute will you please print a photo of him and confirm my assertion that he had taken part in numerous "Charlie Chan" movies? I also noticed that your column informed readers that Charles Laughton's name was pronounced "Lawton." In "Star Dust," with John Payne and Linda Darnell, it was pronounced "Lofton." Have you determined yet which pronunciation is correct? Thank you. IRA COLITZ.



C. Henry Gordon

Editor's note: Mr. Gordon died Dec. 4, and his death is a great loss. He was one of the most versatile actors the screen ever had. I still stick to "Lawton." Come again.

Dear Miss Tinée: My girl friend and I have had an argument on the cast of "Moon Over Burma." Would you please print the cast and something about the one who played the rôle of Bill? My Sunday would never be complete if ever I missed your column.

MILDRED GROSS.

Editor's note: Here's the cast of "Moon Over Burma":

Bill Gordon............Preston Foster
Cynthia Harmon..........Doris Nolan
Basil Renner........Albert Basserman
Stephen Harmon....Frederic Worlock

Watch for Emilie and Cecile. They're enchanting!

Marie isn't talkative, but she has decided opinions and expresses them very well. On the subject of desserts, she is eloquent about the wonders of the Quints' favorite—Kre-mel.

IMMACULATA JOINS 'CITIZENS' PARADE

Immaculata's Citizens of Tomorrow Are Trained in the Sciences, the Arts and Religion

A day at Immaculata High school, Catholic school for girls at 640 Irving Park road, begins at 8:45 o'clock for 950 students. Among the prompt arrivals every morning are three of the Sodality officers (left to right), Rose Zamuto, Rosemary Knockaert, and Phyllis Martin and Margaret Lynch, senior class president. A few minutes later the biology class is in full swing, with Jeanne Michels at the chart, Marian Urjletal studying plant life and (left to right) Frances Kelly, Eleanor Cullerton, Mary Alice Courtney, and Lucille Blasovich working from mounted specimens. Millinery is a new subject this year in the household arts department, but Coletta Burns, Mary Jean Schultz, Dorothy Kiehl, Lila Weichbrodt, and Virginia Smith seem to be learning rapidly the techniques of the trade.

Most Immaculata girls can step into the kitchen and prepare an appetizing meal. They receive their training in a cooking class, taking turns at making different dishes as Patricia Padovani, Rosemary Netzel, and Betty Fenton are doing. Over their milk and sandwiches at lunch time, the girls exchange their personal problems, for this is the only time they are not busy with classes or special activities. This home room group includes Mary Angela Densberger, Lucia Plonka, Jean Hahn, and Jean Stalbus. In the music department, students may develop their talents in the band, orchestra, choir, or glee club. Band members dressed in their trim uniforms for a concert are Margaret Cashman, standing, Lolita Gillespie, and Katherine Tracy in the first row, and Patricia Hannafan and Lorraine Frey, second row.

PRESERVES MAY ADD 1,025 ACRES TO NORTH AREAS

Forest Board Will Act Tuesday.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

An increase of almost 20 per cent in the area of the forest preserves in northern Cook county is called for in a new expansion plan that will come up for action at the forest preserve board meeting next Tuesday.

The plan calls for the addition of 1,025 acres to the 5,374 which now make up the district's holdings in New Trier, Niles, and Northfield townships.

Northfield township, which now has 2,963 acres in preserve, will get 456 more under the proposed plan. Niles township, with 1,834 acres, stands to get an additional 312 acres. New Trier township's acreage of 577 is to be augmented by 257 additional acres if the new scheme goes thru.

Part of General Program.

This expansion is part of a general program whereby the forest preserve district hopes to increase its holdings to the statutory limit of 39,000 acres. The limit was 35,000 acres until legislative action at a special session last year.

The district now has 34,442 acres. Its proposed expansion calls for the addition of 4,565 acres, which would bring the reserve areas very close to the legal limit.

Purchases will start as soon as the board gives its approval, it was indicated by the board president, Clayton F. Smith. The acquisition plan will require three years to fulfill, which will mean a sharp stepping up of the district's land buying activity.

Large Tracts Considered.

Largest of the tracts being considered by the district's real estate buyers is one of 320 acres just south of the Lake county line, adjoining the present preserves on the west. If purchased, it will fill out the Skokie lagoon preserve project's north end as far west as the Milwaukee railroad tracks.

Next in size is the more than 100 acres now occupied by the Wilmette Golf club, which will be asked to sell its entire club acreage to the board. This acreage lies just north of Lake avenue and adjoins the present preserves.

Another 100 acres, belonging to the Bunker Hill Country club, on the west side of Caldwell avenue immediately to the northwest of the Whealan reserve near Niles, is the third largest area in the northern Cook county plan.

Seek to Link Areas.

Nearby are two other good sized areas under consideration. One is the so-called Miranda and Pothier reserve adjoining the Bunker Hill property on the north. The other is a tract lying just north of Touhy avenue.

These three last described areas would extend the Caldwell preserve northward to Howard street and to wit'n a few blocks of the Miami woo's. This missing link is all that would then be needed to make this reserve unit continuous from Foster avenue north to the Cook-Lake county line.

There are nine other areas, ranging in area from 6 to 40 acres, in the new plan.

Already $2,000,000 in bonds has been realized to start the new buying program, according to the forest preserve advisory committee, headed by Edward Eagle Brown, which proposed the plan to the board.

How Purchases Are Made.

Bernard J. Kewin, head of the district's real estate department, told of the various steps whereby the land buying plan will proceed as soon as board sanction is obtained.

First, he said, the property owner will be notified that the district would like to buy his land, and he will be invited to discuss price and other terms.

"Sometimes all major details of a deal are worked out at the first or second meeting," Kewin said. "In a few cases the owner stalls us off or insists on an exorbitant price, which compels us to institute condemnation proceedings.

Claim Fair Price Offers.

"We don't object to a fair price, but we don't like gouging any better than a private buyer would. Before starting negotiations we have the Chicago real estate board appraise the property. We learn its full history—how much it cost, who owned it, how much is owed, and the value of nearby land.

"By so forearming ourselves we know when an attempt is being made to bilk us, and we are able to save the taxpayers many thousands of dollars."

Much of the land to be bought will adjoin or become part of the proposed forest preserve way, a 200 foot right of way that will connect all parts of each forest preserve unit.

Plan Election for Alumni of Waller-North Division

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Waller-North Division Alumni association will be held Friday evening in the Auditorium building, 430 South Wabash avenue. Jerome H. Schwartz, outgoing president, will preside. A social hour will follow the business session.

CATHOLIC GIRLS TO MAKE BOW ON W-G-N TUESDAY

Glee Club Will Lead 600 in Program.

BY JUANITA DALY.

The same quiet and efficiency which prevails at Immaculata High school, 640 Irving Park road, will be transferred to the main W-G-N audience studio Tuesday afternoon when students assemble for their "Citizens of Tomorrow" broadcast. As the first Catholic school to appear on the program sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, the Immaculata girls, looking alike in their dark dresses and demure white collars, will set the standard in their program for future Catholic groups.

The Immaculata Glee club of 55 voices and several students will present a program from 4:30 to 5 o'clock over W-G-N before an audience of 600 classmates. Walter Aschenbrenner, well known Chicago coral leader, will direct the glee club in singing Rafael's "Hymn to Christ the King," Mozart's "Alphabet" and Mendelssohn's "Lift Thine Eyes." Msgr. Daniel F. Cunningham, superintendent of Catholic schools in the Chicago archdiocese, will be guest speaker.

Six in News Quiz.

Six students will take part in the Tribune News Quiz conducted by Philip Maxwell of the editorial staff, who appears as "the principal." Among the guests will be Sister Mary Edmundine, superior and principal at Immaculata, Sister Mary Emilita, the only faculty member who was serving when the school opened 20 years ago, and Miss Jane White, a member of the board of directors of the Alumnae association.

Immaculata is one of the major recent developments of the educational system which began 107 years ago when five Irish girls banded together to form the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary. From their convent in Dublin, the sisters came to America and settled in Philadelphia. After 10 years, they moved on to Dubuque, Ia., and eventually on to the Pacific coast, establishing a chain of elementary schools, high schools, and colleges across the country.

The sisters conduct three other high schools in Chicago, St. Mary's, also for girls, and two parish schools, Holy Name and Sacred Heart, in addition to Mundelein college. In 1921 Cardinal Mundelein saw a need for a central high school for girls on the north side and opened Immaculata in the convent building. During the first year of classes, the school building was constructed next door.

73 in Graduating Class.

In September, 1922, 790 students entered the new building and were enrolled as Immaculatans. Seventy-three girls were in the first graduating class the following June. During the 1924-'25 school year, registration reached 1,000 and has continued close to that figure ever since.

In the classroom and in the extracurricular activities offered to the girls, the sisters hold up the ideals of character, culture, and efficiency. As one sister expressed the goal of the community, "each girl is prepared for Catholic citizenship on earth and in heaven by a balanced program of religious, cultural, and scholastic training."

Thru its affiliation with the North Central Association of Secondary schools and the state department of education, Immaculata assures its graduates admission to colleges, universities, nurses' training, and normal schools all over the country. From 35 to 50 per cent of the graduates attend college. Last year's class topped previous classes with 50 per cent enrolled in advanced schools.

Stenography and Millinery.

In addition to liberal arts courses, the girls may take secretarial work to prepare for a business career or learn homemaking skills in the house*hold arts* department. The latter department includes cooking and sewing and this year a millinery class was started.

An understanding appreciation of the arts, which the sisters class as the flower of education, is developed thru extensive courses in music, literature, and art. The classes are supplemented by membership in band, orchestra, glee club, choir, dramatic club, and art guild, all of which also help to establish congenial friendships.

"The addition of many outside activities," said Sister Mary Emilita, "is the greatest change that I've noticed during my 20 years of teaching. We used to have many more students for individual instruction in voice and music, but now they join the larger groups. They have much more to do, but they seem to thrive on it.

"Yes, they have home work, too," she continued. "We give them enough work to keep them at home in the evenings and the parents approve of that arrangement."

Sodality Leads Religion.

The religious phase of the school life is left primarily in the hands of the students to be carried out thru the Sodality of Mary, an organization open to every girl. Meetings are held in the auditorium, with the prefect presiding from the stage.

There is also a small chapel where the students may go for devotions. In one hallway hangs a blue flag

Voice of the North Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the North Side, The Tribune.

MEANEST THIEF ON NORTH SIDE.

There is a youngster, 14 years old, who went to our neighborhood store and made himself a job by buying a small wagon and delivering groceries. All the pay this lad receives is 10 cents per order. When he is not busy delivering bundles he makes himself useful inside the store.

I want so much to tell the public just how much this means to this boy. He has a little, crippled widowed mother who never asks a favor of any one. The two support themselves on about $15 a week. The boy is a member of the Boy Scouts and has the sweetest personality I've ever known—and I'm the mother of two sons myself.

He came home the other day and told his mother that some one had stolen his wagon. Before he could go back to his job he had to go out and buy a new wagon. I just know that the thief is about the meanest person in the world. Please put this in your column. I am sure it will serve as a lesson to the person who stole the boy's wagon.

MRS. C. D. B.

FOR DOGS OR CHILDREN.

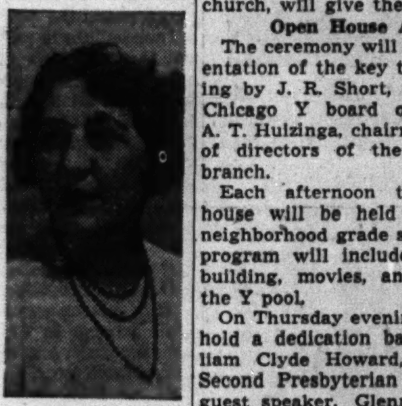
I read the article in last Sunday's column asking for playlots, but it isn't as quickly done as that. I am a mother of two children, 8 and 6 years old, and I also thought it a very good idea to have a playground made out of the vacant lot at 1226-8 Carmen avenue, but I had to find out who owned the lot for permission. [I never did find out.]

I wrote a letter to Ald. Robert C. Quirk and he had several men clean it up. [It took them three day.] It had hardly been cleaned up spick and span, with some sand added for the kiddies, when the people on Carmen and Glenwood avenues brought their pet dogs to initiate the place. Even if the ward did clean the lot up again this summer, it would be the same story all over again. We were never able to make a real playground for we didn't have any money for slides or swings, so you see how hard it is to get a playlot for the kiddies.

I hope some north siders read this and can give a suggestion. KIDDIES' PAL.

OPEN THREE DAY NER TAMID BAZAR NEXT SATURDAY

Surprise events are being planned by Mrs. Ben Zeigmund, chairman and Mrs. Joseph Perrye, co-chairman, as features of the fourth annual bazar to be given by the sisterhood of Ner Tamid congregation next Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Jan. 27, in the recently completed temple, Rosemont and California avenues. Mrs. Joseph H. Platt is president of the sisterhood.



Mrs. Joseph H. Platt.

Booths will line the main auditorium. Sunday evening dinner will be served in the Community hall, with Mrs. Theodore Greenberg, Mrs. Meyer Smith and Mrs. Sam Weinberg in charge.

Your Neighbor's Trip

Mrs. Anna King, 1400 Lake Shore drive, is planning a two months trip to South America. She will leave Chicago on Jan. 29 and sail from New York on the Elena two days later. She expects to return April 7. A neighbor at the same address, Mrs. Evelyn Haas, joined the trek southward last Wednesday when she entrained for Miami Beach, Fla. She will visit friends until May 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Price, 875 North State street, left last Monday on a belated honeymoon trip. The former Maxine Hunt, daughter of Mrs. Gene Hunt, 875 North State street, and Mr. Price were married last March in Burlington, Ia. The couple drove south and will spend three weeks in Miami Beach and Palm Beach, Fla.

California bound travelers include Miss Mary Adams of Kenilworth and Miss Ellen Morehead of Wilmette. They will spend the winter in Los Angeles and touring the state.

Mrs. Edward M. Wallace of Evanston and her three young children, Patsy, Jo, and Jean, are spending the winter in Phoenix, Ariz. Mr. Wallace, who accompanied his family west for the holidays, is expected to return this week-end.

DEDICATE NEW ADDITION TO 'Y' THIS AFTERNOON

Larrabee Structure Has 65 Residence Rooms.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

The $175,000 five story red brick addition to North Avenue-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. will be dedicated this afternoon to the civic proposition that the neighborhood Y is a better place for boys to hang around than the corner poolroom.

The new structure, which was completed Jan. 6, houses 65 pastel colored residence rooms, each equipped with a private bath; an enlarged boys' department; an assembly hall; offices for the Y staff; game and locker room, and a prevocational handicraft shop to be used to teach the neighborhood boys the use of tools.

The new structure is to serve as an off-the-street community center for boys in this low rent neighborhood and will serve to direct many toward a worth while trade, Percy Baines, executive secretary, declared. "The Y in this neighborhood is a secondary home for many of the boys in this area," he said.

Space for 300 More.

"If it weren't for the Y many, for example, would have no place to bathe. A considerable number live in homes without bathtubs. Many, out of grammar school, with no inclination to continue with high school, would be neighborhood bums if it weren't for the Y. We try to help them find their natural bent. We try to discover their aptitude for trades and encourage them to train themselves for the future."

The new addition will add 300 boys to the Y's present flock of 500 who make use of its facilities. The interior has been decorated in the modern manner, with light wood trimmings, gay wall decorations, and colorful drapes. One of the features is the installation of soundproof cork ceilings. Work on the structure was begun last May.

At the dedication ceremonies this afternoon the Rev. Albert Buckley Coe, pastor of the First Congregational church of Oak Park, will deliver the main address. Frank A. Hathaway, general secretary of the Chicago Y. M. C. A., will relate the history of the North Avenue Y. The Rev. E. G. Lindberg, pastor of the Fullerton Covenant Presbyterian church, will give the invocation.

Open House All Week.

The ceremony will include the presentation of the key to the new building by J. R. Short, president of the Chicago Y board of managers, to A. T. Huizinga, chairman of the board of directors of the North Avenue branch.

Each afternoon this week open house will be held for a different neighborhood grade school. The daily program will include a tour of the building, movies, and swimming in the Y pool.

On Thursday evening members will hold a dedication banquet. Dr. William Clyde Howard, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, will be guest speaker. Glenn Adams, executive secretary of the Beverly Hills Y, will be toastmaster. Miss Friedel Schlippert, soprano, and Mrs. E. C. Crawford, contralto, will sing. A tea and musical next Sunday afternoon will close the week's program.

Plans a Spring Wedding

Dr. and Mrs. Otto E. Groener, 6319 Lakewood avenue, recently announced at a dinner the engagement of their daughter, Maxine Leonore, to Carl W. Gindele, son of Mrs. Charles W. Gindele of Evanston. Postmaster and Mrs. Ernest J. Kruetgen, Miss Groener's uncle and aunt, gave a cocktail party for the young couple. Miss Groener is a graduate of Northwestern university and a member of Kappa Delta sorority. Her fiance is a graduate of Northwestern Military academy and a lieutenant in the army reserve corps. The wedding will take place this spring.

W-G-N TO PRESENT IMMACULATA IN CITIZENS' SHOW

studded with 147 stars, one for each graduate who has entered an order. One hundred and eleven girls have joined the Sisters of Charity and the remaining 36 joined other communities.

In the sodality the sisters foster leadership which will function beyond the span of high school. The natural successor to the sodality is the alunnae organization. Immaculata's association has a mailing list of 2,100 out of a possible 3,000 graduates. Its main project is a scholarship fund to help girls in the high school.

No Discipline Problems.

Immaculata has no organization corresponding to a student council in the public high schools. One functioned last year, said Sister Emilita, but no one bothered to revive it this semester. Who handles discipline problems? There are none. Perhaps, suggests Sister Emilita, this is because the teachers work closely with the students and anticipate the problems. The homeroom plan with a limited number of students for each teacher fosters this personal friendship and understanding.

"We have 43 teachers here," she continued, "and only a few of them are secular. The sisters have no other life outside of their teaching. They can give it their undivided attention and the girls benefit from this concentrated effort on their behalf."

And the quiet halls, the obedient heads bent in study in the library and the steady stream of unfaltering recitations filtering out from the classrooms verify the sister's words.

Play's the Thing

Dr. Ralph Muchow, young Evanston dentist, has won high distinction in his two main hobbies—model airplanes and table tennis. He holds important championships in each activity.

Last year Dr. Muchow won four high awards in class B model airplane competition, capturing first place in the Chicago park district meet and tournaments in Rockford, Oshkosh, and Freeport. In the same year he won the Midwestern table tennis championship. A year earlier, in 1939, he fought his way thru the best of the state's table tennis experts to win the Illinois state open championship.

Dr. Muchow was graduated from the Northwestern university dental school last year. He lives at 1316 Davis street, Evanston, with his parents, two brothers and a sister, and has a dental practice in Evanston. One of his brothers, Gordon, is also adept at table tennis. Dr. Muchow is a member of the "B-line" gas model club, and rarely misses an opportunity to pit his model building and flying skill against the best talent available in the numerous meets that are held.

Off the Trail with HAROLD SMITH

The new pedestrian-equestrian underpass at North avenue and the Outer drive is already in service. A similar crossing will be provided at Briar place and the Outer drive. When the Lincoln park drive project is completed, riders of the bridle path will have no busy highways to cross, such as the detour near North avenue which has push button traffic lights to help horsebackers across.

The four horse road team of John F. Cuneo's which his friends have admired for nearly two years has been sold to the Ringling Brothers circus and will be shown beneath the big tops starting this coming summer.

Richard Bartolph, tack man at the Flying V F academy, recently took a flying trip to Clinton, Ia., and returned with a bride—the former Juanita Martin, red haired bronc buster from Chugwater, Wyo. Lyle Van Patter, maestro at the stable, after some quick calculations, announced that in the last seven years 37 of the academy's employés and patrons have taken mates. P. S.: There are still a few bachelors left.

Mrs. John Murphy, 1100 North Dearborn street, a rider at the Shoreline stables at 1330 North Dearborn street, is spending a winter vacation in Florida.

Give Statistical Picture of Three Communities.

Booklets listing housing statistics, juvenile delinquency rates, and health information in three north side areas are being released to the public by the Chicago Plan commission. The information was compiled as part of the Chicago Land Use Survey by WPA workers under the direction of the Plan commission.

The booklets are a statistical picture of three communities on the north side and reveal important facts about existing housing conditions, population composition and trends, health and delinquency rates, and other information concerning the economic and social standing of the communities.

The three north side communities extend from the Chicago river northward to Irving Park road and Montrose avenue, and from the North branch of the Chicago river and Ashland avenue east to Lake Michigan.

Dwellings Built Before 1894.

The infant mortality rate [per 1,000 births] in the area between North avenue and Kinzie street east of the river is 65.1. The city-wide mortality rate is 45.3. The tuberculosis mortality rate [per 100,000 population] in the same area is 79.5, as compared to the city-wide figures of 59.9.

The male juvenile delinquency rate [per 100 males 10 to 16 years] is higher in the near north area than in the other two areas. The rate is 6.8, as compared with the city-wide figure of 4.2.

25TH BIRTHDAY WILL BE NOTED BY LE CENACLE

French Speaking Club Meets Saturday.

A pleasant afternoon's chat among a group of women, some of French extraction, and all interested in the French language and literature, resulted in the organization of "Le Cénacle," which will observe its 25th anniversary next Saturday. Miss Lilian Peger, president, will preside at the 1 o'clock luncheon meeting.

M. Raymond Imbault-Huart, the new consul general of France, and Mme. Imbault-Huart will be guests. After the luncheon Prof. J. M. Carrière of Northwestern university will give an illustrated lecture on "French Influences on the Early Settlements of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers."

Was First Hostess.

Mrs. Auguste Babize was hostess to the charter members at the first meeting in 1916. The group included members from the North Shore Woman's club and a small French club, "Le Cercle Intimé," who had gathered to discuss the plays to be given by a company of French actors. The name, "Le Cénacle," was chosen in memory of the many famous Cénacles, groups of French literary men.

Music Study Club.

A program of vocal and instrumental music featuring the works of the American composer, Frank La Forge, will be presented at the 3 o'clock meeting today. Miss Joanne Janis will tell about the composer's life and the music will be offered by Grace Heer, soprano; Bernata Karczewski, pianist, and Eleanor Karczewski, violinist. Miss Betty Browning, club editor of THE TRIBUNE, will be guest speaker.

People's Church Woman's Club.

Tomorrow will be reciprocity day at the club. In the morning the class in world affairs will discuss "How the European Countries Came Into Being." At 1 o'clock the drama department will give a one-act play, "Thursdays at Home," directed by Lenore E. Brown. Mrs. Ralph Nettland is drama chairman. Mrs. Laura Jean Wilson, music chairman, will introduce Myra Conner Scott, soprano, who will present a musical program.

Lake View Woman's Club.

The civics and economic department, of which Mrs. M. S. Jones is chairman, will be in charge of the Tuesday meeting in the Granada hotel. The movie, "Streamlining Chicago," will be shown in the morning. At 2:15 o'clock Judge Benjamin C. Bachrach will speak on "The Public Defender System of Cook County."

Chicago Musical Arts Club.

Henriette Kurtzman, soprano, and Freeman Wild, tenor, will be guest artists on the program for this afternoon's meeting at 410 South Michigan avenue. Before the concert a study period on "The Scapegoats of Jazz" will be conducted by Mrs. L. F. McKenna.

Edgemere Woman's Club.

The Rev. Benjamin M. Will, pastor of the Granville Avenue Methodist church, will review "The Nazarene" at the literature department meeting at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday. Mrs. Charles H. Challen, chairman, will preside. For the 2 o'clock program, Mrs. Henry J. Hartung, music chairman, has invited Mrs. Norman W. Jones to give a talk on "Fairy Legends in Music." SHORT STORIES COLLECTED IN RADIO STUDIOS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Haunting the studios during rehearsals and at broadcasts a radio reporter turns up amusing little incidents and anecdotes involving the big stars of radio. For example:

Anna Neagle had spent hours of rehearsing in W-G-N's main studio for the radio première of her new movie "No, No, Nanette" when Herbert Wilcox, her manager and director, reminded her that she had had nothing to eat all day. She admitted she was hungry.

So Mr. Wilcox sent out for tea and rolls. When they arrived Miss Neagle had returned to the stage to work on "Tea for Two!" For a few minutes it looked like tea for Mr. Wilcox and cold tea for Miss Neagle! But there came a break—and she got her tea.

Last week while Jane Froman was rehearsing a popular song for "In Chicago Tonight," her mother was an interested studio visitor. She had come up for the occasion from Columbia, Mo., where she formerly headed the vocal department at Christian college. Mrs. Froman recalled that for many years Jane and she had sung together. Their voices are similar. Mrs. Froman had hoped that her daughter would become an opera star. All of her training was pointed toward that goal. But Jane moved into the popular field after she came to the attention of Paul Whiteman. Her mother feels that the unique success Jane has attained as a songstress is in a large measure due to the good vocal training she had as a child.

Alec Templeton, the blind pianist and impressionist, was a studio guest the evening Richard Bonelli and Marion Claire starred in "The Desert Song." In a few minutes he had memorized all the dramatic rôles, catalogued the voices portraying them and fastened the names of the actors firmly in his mind. Several of the voices he correctly identified with rôles in the daytime serials, of which he is an avid follower. Alec was particularly intrigued by the voice of Bobby Jellison and asked afterwards to meet him.

After the broadcast Alec was besieged by autograph fans. He invited them to send him written requests with their names and addresses.

Many W-G-N listeners will recall the story about the colored aviator carrying propaganda leaflets into Germany which Comedian Benny Baker told last week on W-G-N. Baker had an alternative story. But there was time for just one on the program, so he picked the one above. The other runs something like this:

A foreigner on arriving in America had difficulty with the language. A friend after days of struggle taught him the words "Apple pie and coffee."

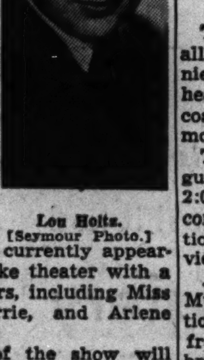
Thus, the alien was able in a measure to satisfy his gastronomic wants in restaurants. Ultimately he tired of this diet and asked his friend to teach him some additional words. After a struggle lasting several days the newcomer mastered "Swiss cheese." Armed with his new vocabulary he entered a restaurant and sang out "Swiss cheese."

"On white or rye?" queried the waitress.

Befuddled, the foreigner paused for a moment and then exclaimed, "Apple pie and coffee."

HOLTZ, LOLA LANE TO BE FEATURED ON CHICAGO HOUR

Comedian Lou Holtz and Lola Lane of Hollywood fame will be two of the headliners to appear on In Chicago Tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday.



Lou Holtz.

Lou Holtz gained his reputation as a comedian both on the stage and then radio. He specializes in dialect stories, his best known tales revolving around the experiences of the fictitious character, "Sam Lapidus." Holtz is currently appearing at the State-Lake theater with a group of movie stars, including Miss Lane, Wendy Barrie, and Arlene Judge.

Other features of the show will be the W-G-N chorus directed by Bob Trendler and the W-G-N Dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

Picking Northwestern Queen

Jack Benny and Fred Allen, radio and movie comedians, have dropped their feud long enough to select a Syllabus Yearbook Queen from among 32 Northwestern university beauties. The queen's identity will be made public on Feb. 14 at the junior prom.

W-G-N-MUTUAL TO AIR INAUGURAL OF PRESIDENT

Three programs from Washington, all devoted to the inaugural ceremonies of President Roosevelt, will be heard over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network today and tomorrow.

The first broadcast will be an inaugural preview commentary from 2 to 2:05 p. m. today. Announcers and commentators covering the inauguration will bring radio listeners a preview of the inauguration plans.

As part of its coverage W-G-N—Mutual will present the Inauguration Concert at Constitution hall from 9:30 to 10 tonight. On this broadcast Charlie Chaplin will deliver his closing speech from "The Great Dictator." Nelson Eddy will sing, and Hans Kindler will conduct the National Symphony orchestra.

The President's departure from the White House and his ride to the inaugural stand as well as administration of the oath of office by Chief Justice Hughes, and Mr. Roosevelt's inaugural address will be broadcast from 10:15 to 12 noon tomorrow.

CONCERT HOUR TO BE AIRED AT 8:30 WEDNESDAY

'Blossom Time' Next on Theater of Air.

A variety of fine music ranging from Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" to the love hymn "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," will be heard on the Chicagoland Concert hour from 8:30 to 9 p. m. next Wednesday. This program, formerly broadcast on Monday nights, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. on Wednesdays.

Marion Claire, soprano star, will present Thomas' "Connais-tu-le Pays" from "Mignon" for her featured number. The augmented W-G-N chorus will form the background for Miss Claire's rendition of the "Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana.

The complete program follows:

Overture: "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" . Mozart
Orchestra.
"Connais-tu le Pays" from Mignon . . Thomas
Marion Claire.
"Tango" . . . . Albeniz
Orchestra.
"Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" . . . . Moore
Chorus.
Speech . . . .
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
"Voices of Spring" . . . . Strauss
Orchestra.
"Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana . . . . Mascagni
Marion Claire, Chorus.

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will lead the W-G-N Concert orchestra in selections from the works of Mozart, Albeniz and Strauss. The W-G-N chorus, under Weber's baton, will sing Moore's "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

'BLOSSOM TIME' NEXT

The life, love, and haunting music of Franz Schubert will live again for an hour when the Chicago Theater of the Air presents Sigmund Romberg's "Blossom Time" from 9:15 to 10:15 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network.

This will be the second presentation of "Blossom Time" in this series. The operetta was presented last spring with Marion Claire and Igor Gorin in the leading rôles. Mr. Gorin again will sing the rôle of Schubert; Miss Claire, that of Mitzi.

The success of the W-G-N operetta series has prompted the J. J. Schubert office, theatrical producers, to launch an operetta series at the Grand Opera House. "Blossom Time," with Everett Marshall as the star, will be the first of these. It will open Tuesday evening. Other light opera productions will follow.

W-G-N announced last night that because of the many requests for tickets to the Chicago Theater of the Air performances remaining to be filled, no additional applications for tickets to this series will be considered for the present.

The music of "Blossom Time," by Sigmund Romberg, is based on airs by Schubert, and the operetta itself is the story of his life, love, and music. In the climatic scene, Schubert plays the theme melody, "This Is My Song of Love," based on his "Unfinished Symphony."

The duet, "Ave Maria," by Mr. Gorin and Miss Claire, with its haunting refrain, "Peace, Peace to My Lonely Heart," will be one of the highlights of the show. Other familiar melodies will be the lovely, reminiscent, "There in Old Vienna," the throbbing "Marche Militaire," and in a lighter vein, "Tell Me Daisy." Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra.

The operetta will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

On W-G-N

Lola Lane of the Lane sisters of movie fame will make a guest appearance on "In Chicago Tonight" at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

NORTH AREA'S AMATEUR ACTORS FACE BUSY WEEK

Business Men, Students Cast in Dramas.

High school students, college graduates and men and women in the business world are all demonstrating their skill at amateur acting in numerous little theater productions on the north side this week. Perhaps the least sophisticated group, the Evanston Township High school drama students, has chosen to portray Washington society as depicted in "First Lady," Katherine Dayton's three act play which will be presented Friday and Saturday nights in the social hall.

Ian Keith Director.

The Evanston Guild theater's current production "Tonight at 8:30" opened Jan. 8 and will continue thru Feb. 1, showing the last four nights in each week.

Ian Keith is directing the Evanston production. Leading rôles are played by Don Brockell, Althea Murphy, and Leighton Carey, supported by Hope Summers, producer, Doris Hargis, Franz Graynor, Patricia Kivlan, and Burr E. Lee Jr.

Sigma Rho Upsilon, honorary speech sorority for Mundelein college graduates, will present the three act comedy, "No Women Wanted," at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening in River park fieldhouse, 5100 North Francisco avenue, under the direction of Edward P. Schager of Skokie.

Loyola to be Drama Host.

In accordance with a reciprocity plan started several years ago, the Loyola Community theater will be host to the Notre Dame players who will offer Max Marcin's melodrama, "Cheating Cheaters," tomorrow and Tuesday evenings in the theater, 1320 Loyola avenue.

"Morning Star" by Sylvia Reagan, the story of an immigrant mother and her four children, will be enacted by the Hudson players this evening and Tuesday night at 1352 North Clark street.

Present "Romance."

Mme. Maria Kurenko will be featured in the Uptown players' production of "Romance" by Edward Sheldon on Friday and Saturday nights in the Civic theater, 20 North Wacker drive. J. Bradley-Griffin, the director, also carries a rôle in the play.

The Columbia players from the Columbia College of Drama and Radio will offer "Counselor-at-Law" by Elmer Rice as their second production of the season at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday in the Chicago Towers club, 505 North Michigan avenue.

REMODELING OLD HOME INCREASES ITS USEFULNESS

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A letter has come to me telling of a worth while remodeling which was done last year in Antioch. The letter was from F. J. Berg, 410 Hardin street, Antioch.

It is interesting not only because of the work done, which was essentially practical and attractive and certainly a wise investment, but because it tells of an experience so many people are planning for the coming year.

The letter follows:

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Some time ago I wrote you for advice on siding for an old house which I had bought and wished to remodel.

"You replied and I want to thank you for your suggestions. Certain details lagged somewhat which accounts for my delay.

Old Porches Removed.

"We tore down both the front and side porches and built a bay in the front. We widened the house at the side and thereby increased the size of the dining room. At the rear of the house we removed a laundry and old woodshed and substituted a new back porch with a trellis. And off the dining room we built a new screened porch.

"We also changed the inside of the house considerably. We widened the opening between the dining room and living room, which gave the appearance of much greater space, and we arched several of the door openings.

Basement Excavated.

"A basement was excavated under all but the kitchen and retaining walls of concrete built. A warm air furnace was installed and, new roofs were laid and exterior walls of wide siding.

"Like all remodeling work it turned out to be a bigger job than I had figured, but now that it is done, Mrs. Berg and I are very satisfied with it all. We also feel quite proud of it as we planned it ourselves.

"J. F. BERG."

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 20.

Sow pansies, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, English daisies, vinca rosea, and similar plants now to obtain good strong plants for early planting. Pansies like the cool conditions of early summer and a rich, mellow soil. They like a bit of shade because the heat of summer soon affects them. Try selecting varieties for color effects.

Among the newest annuals are the wildfire marigolds, single, free flowering and in bright scarlet, deep orange, yellow, and mahogany, with variegated sorts; a new Swiss chard that looks like rhubarb and is colored like a delicate crimson foliage plant.

Tuesday, Jan. 21.

Paperwhite narcissus bulbs are still available and as they are so easily grown and are so useful for their decorative effect a few should be added to the window garden. Four to six inch pots may be used with a rich garden loam. Drainage should cover the hole in the bottom of the pots; water thoroly and stand in a cool dark place until well rooted.

Wednesday, Jan. 22.

Pruning shrubs is important. Shrubs that flower on wood made the past season should be pruned as soon as their blossoms fade. The following are examples: Deutzia, fringetree, goldenbell, Missouri currant, bush honeysuckle, except those with ornamental fruits; magnolia, lilac, most climbing roses, spirea, and weigela.

Thursday, Jan. 23.

Examine lilac bushes and if scales are present spray on a warm day with lime and sulphur. If branches become too infested they will be best removed entirely. Remember, too, that the plant flowers on wood made the previous season should be pruned after flowering.

Friday, Jan. 24.

Procure organic manures to spread over ground that is to be spaded in spring. These manures contain little food elements as compared with the commercial products, and the latter is about the only available source of food for city gardens. It is valuable on house plants.

Saturday, Jan. 25.

Spray the fern occasionally or simply dip the plant in a tub or bucket of water to remove dust. The ironclad plant [aspidistra] that has outgrown the pot should be separated and the sections potted.

[Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.]

HOME BUILDING SHOWS BIG INCREASE

PROPOSE TO ADD 4,565 ACRES TO FOREST AREAS

711 in Project for Northwest Sector.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Northwestern area forest preserves will be increased approximately 9 per cent under the terms of an expansion plan that is to come before the forest preserve board at its meeting next Tuesday.

The proposal calls for the acquisition of 711 acres of additional property to augment the 7,600 acres already a part of the famous system of reserves that virtually hem Chicagoland in with a garland of green.

This area expansion is part of a contemplated project to bring the preserve district's holdings up to the statutory limit of 39,000 acres, to which it was increased from 35,000 acres at the recent special session of the legislature.

There are now 34,442 acres of preserves in Cook county. The new plan calls for the purchase of 4,565 acres.

Three Year Plan.

It is expected that it will take about three years to make these purchases, an average of more than 1,300 acres a year. That is far above the recent yearly average.

Practically every facility of the forest preserve system will benefit from expansion, according to Clayton F. Smith, president of the board. Additional land will mean more woods and meadows for picnics or outings, larger parking areas, and more riding and hiking trails, he said.

Most of the proposed additions for the northwestern part of Cook county lie along the Des Plaines river from the Lake county line south to North avenue.

The largest single tracts are 100 acres each. One is in the vicinity of Lake avenue, adjoining the present preserves on the east. The other is on the western edge of the preserves just south of Higgins road.

One 90 acre tract included in the plan is an irregularly shaped plot just north of Golf road in Maine township which, if acquired, will broaden out an abnormally narrow strip of preserves.

Other Additions Listed.

Other tracts are one of 40 acres extending from Techny road southward past Willow road on the eastern edge of the forest, a triangular 31 acre plot at Montrose avenue and East River road, a 20 acre strip on the west river bank between Madison street and Roosevelt road, and an 18 acre plot near Rand and East River roads. The other properties are each 15 acres or less in area.

Numerous additions are proposed for the Elk Grove preserve near Mount Prospect. It is proposed to add 183 acres to the western edge of the forest area there, and 248 acres to the eastern side. These additions would fill the preserve out roughly to the shape of a shield with its tip pointed southward.

Immediate purchase of needed land is necessary for various reasons, according to Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve board. One is that land prices are expected to rise in the next few months. Another is that some of the desired land might be subdivided soon, and thus be lost to the preserves.

Bernard J. Kewin, head of the district's real estate department, said he and his associates are ready to proceed with the buying program as soon as it is authorized.

Would Pay Fair Price.

The first step, he said, will be to notify property owners that the district would like to buy their land. Conferences will then be arranged at which price and other details will be discussed, Kewin said.

Not infrequently all the important points are ironed out at the first or second meeting, he said. Occasionally, however, an owner is encountered who hopes to make an unreasonable profit. If amicable terms cannot be arranged condemnation proceedings are begun.

"We expect to pay a fair price for any land we acquire," Kewin declared. "We have the Chicago Real Estate board make an appraisal of each property, which we use as a guide.

"To guard against profiteers we always learn the history of each tract before we start negotiating for it. We know who the present and past owners were, how much they paid, how much is owing against the land, and the value of nearby or adjacent land.

"Thus we go into each deal with our eyes open. This forehandedness has enabled us to whittle down many an asking price, and to save the district many thousands of dollars."

Would Close Gaps.

Much of the proposed new property will border on or become a part of the projected forest preserve way. This consists of a right of way about 200 feet wide which when completed will join all forest preserve areas in any given unit.

It will, for example, link all the areas in the Des Plaines valley to each other and to the Salk Creek, Cantigny Woods and Palos Hills preserves. At present wide gaps exist.

Tabernacle Meetings.

W. Douglas Roe, associated with the Moody Bible institute, will conduct a series of nightly meetings at the Northwest tabernacle, 3550 West North avenue, this week. Each one will begin at 7:45 o'clock and the last will be next Sunday.

Schurz School Art to Depict History of City

BY JOHN T. McCUTCHEON JR.

Encouraged by the success of the murals which they did for the ceiling and walls of their library last year, Schurz High school art students are preparing sketches for additional paintings which will decorate the domed ceiling of a wing of the library.

With the help of Gustave A. Brand, 79 year old artist who retired as a professional painter to become city treasurer from 1935 to 1939, the 42 students, ranging in age from 14 to 18 years, hope to have the work completed by spring vacation. These students have been selected from some 100 volunteers and have been studying under Miss Katharine Schmidt, an art teacher at Schurz.

Mr. Brand has remained interested in civic affairs, and agreed to supervise the Schurz murals, which means virtually teaching a course, at the invitation of Albert G. Bauersfeld, school principal.

Depict City History.

The new work will consist of a panorama depicting outstanding scenes in the history of Chicago. It will start with Indians and progress thru Fort Dearborn, covered wagons, the fire, and the two world's fairs, to the present.

Mr. Brand will select the winning drawings from those submitted by the contestants, and will himself incorporate the ideas from these drawings into a final sketch. The students, under his guidance, will transfer the sketch to the ceiling and paint it. This work should begin shortly after the opening of the second semester, Miss Schmidt said.

Eleven of the students who are preparing drawings were among those who took part in the actual painting last year. They are Jack de Bartolo, Pat Haynes, Eleanor Klak, Robert Meyer, Evelyn Nitschke, Norman Patterson, Dolores Peterson, La Verne Rodland, Bill Schentzow, Shirley Seib, and Eleanor Wiele.

Portraits in Murals.

The set of murals already completed consists of portraits of 27 leading writers, composers, statesmen, and inventors of the world, and larger paintings depicting scenes in the growth of America.

Other students in the present contest are Frances Anderson, La Verne Baily, Donald Beckler, Ruth Berg, Adeline Birkner, Betty Bjoro, Lawrence Burkhardt, Ethel Carelson, Shirlie Drella, Audrey Egebrecht, Betty Frederick, Rosemary Haas, Darlene Hardy, Jane Harris, Dolores Hodge, and Thomas Howard.

KIWANIS CLUB TO INDUCT STAFF ON WEDNESDAY

Paul Ries Jr. will be installed as president of the Kiwanis club of Northwest Chicago Wednesday evening at the Pow Wow club, River road and Belmont avenue. Installations will be made by Frank Ramsey, lieutenant governor of Kiwanis district 2, beginning at 7 o'clock, and will be followed by an informal dance. Ries succeeds Carl Pretzel. Gunner Jensen will become vice president, Ferdinand Niehing secretary, and Frank Mittlacher treasurer, and the following will be the new directors: Dr. R. L. Borchert, James Fleming, F. G. Heidemann, A. H. Kannberg, Dr. H. O. Kemnitz, Dr. E. G. Klein, K. K. Kull, Mas Widtmann, and Dr. E. V. J. Young.

SUBURBAN WALTHER LEAGUES TO RALLY IN DES PLAINES TODAY

Approximately 200 members of the Northwest Suburban zone of the Lutheran Walther leagues will attend a winter rally this afternoon as guests of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran church in Des Plaines. They will be welcomed by the Rev. Otto C. Boecler, senior pastor of the Des Plaines church, and the Rev. A. H. Fedder, junior pastor and zone spiritual adviser.

Ruth Gehrs.

The activities will begin at 3 o'clock with a business meeting presided over by Theodore Meyer of Arlington Heights, northwest zone president. Walter Sill of Norwood Park is vice president, and Miss Ruth Gehrs of Arlington Heights, secretary-treasurer. Officers of local divisions will report and Hugo Malte, recently elected district vice president, will speak as a district representative. Walter Gerth of Bensenville, northern Illinois district junior handicraft chairman, will present his display of various types of handicraft work.

A supper and an evening's entertainment in the school auditorium will close the winter rally. Louis Fischer is general chairman. He is assisted by Irma Steuber, Melvin Mensching, Rose Mensching, Erna Meyer, and Pearl Koehling.

Schurz Students Plan New Series of Murals for Library

Plans for the second series of murals which Schurz High school art students are to put in their library are being submitted to Gustave Brand (left), well known painter and former city treasurer, who in his 79th year is devoting his time to aiding the Schurz students in their undertaking. Next to Mr. Brand is Albert G. Bauersfeld, principal of the school, who has promoted the decorative work. The three students are, from right to left, LaVerne Rodland, Casey Kwasigroch, and Betty Bjoro. They are among the 42 who have drawn sketches from which the final plan will be chosen by Mr. Brand.

KEEPS ABREAST OF MODERN LIFE ALTHO SHE'S 90

Mrs. Payton Finds Joy in Contrasts.

A singing telegram was one of the events of Mrs. Mary Payton's 90th birthday party last week, and she greeted it with the same glee which she finds in many features of modern life. Alert and active, Mrs. Payton refuses to live in the long memories of her past. Instead she listens eagerly for word of any new improvements, inventions or schemes which come to light in her beloved home city of Chicago.

Mrs. Mary Payton.

"When I think of the little we used to get for our taxes," is one of her favorite exclamations as she recalls high board sidewalks and floating blocks of cedar bridging the muddy roads of years ago, "why I've just no patience with people who kick on what they're paying today!" "Granny" Payton is glad she has lived to see so many modern things come to pass.

Forty Attend Party.

Forty friends and relatives joined in Mrs. Payton's 90th anniversary celebration, which was held in the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. B. Whitney, 5209 Dakin street. Some of them were men and women she used to treat to cookies on the back porch, when they were children.

Others were part of her family of seven children; Three daughters, Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. G. Austin Hinkley, 5229 Byron street, and Mrs. W. Edward Sabey, 5715 Byron street, and a son, William Payton, 2757 North St. Louis avenue.

Born in Present Loop.

The perfume from baskets of flowers surrounded the old lady at her party, and she sniffed and fingered them lovingly, altho she could not see their beauties. Altho totally blind, she has kept her ideas and her conversation up to date with the aid of her radio, her favorite amusement.

Mrs. Payton was born in 1851, in a house at Wells and Monroe streets, and likes to contrast that pioneer city life with the thriving metropolis of today.

Church Men Will Share Sports Dinner with Women

Because of the interest which women of the Norwood Park Presbyterian church have expressed in bowling, they have been invited to attend the Men's Fellowship club dinner at the church at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The meeting will be conducted by officers of the Fellowship Bowling league, and the speaker will be S. J. Owens, a director of the American Bowling congress and the Chicago Bowling association. Winchester C. Packard is president of the league.

Pick Queen for Ice Carnival

Elaine Olsen (right), 5001 George street, has been chosen Miss Chopin Park for 1941 to preside at the community's annual ice carnival scheduled for next Friday. The carnival is sponsored by the Chopin Park tennis club and blonde Miss Olsen was selected to preside by a group of civic and veteran leaders. The maid in waiting is Eleanore Tomaszewski, 5051 Roscoe street. Others of Miss Olsen's court of honor are Jean Olkowski, "Miss Poland"; Jeanne Drake, "America's Sweetest Girl," and Dorothy Glass, "Miss Forest Park" and last year's Chopin Park ice queen.

CIVICS CLASSES STUDY ACTIVITY AGAINST NATION

Subversive activity is the latest study topic for the civics classes of Maine Township High school. E. M. North, civics instructor, announced the classes will review the subject as a means of acquainting students with typical anti-American activities.

North said that the study concerns the methods used by groups whose objective is the overthrow, by force or violence, of the federal, state, or municipal governments, or of the existing social and economic order of the United States.

He added that class discussion so far had emphasized the remedial value of stringent immigration restriction, amendment of federal statutes in regard to subversive activities, and denial of the use of mails to organizations engaged in spreading subversive propaganda.

HOLY NAME UNIT IN SUBURB WILL FETE LEADERS

Past presidents of the Holy Name society of St. James' church in Arlington Heights will be honored at a banquet at 7 o'clock Thursday evening in the St. James' hall, 816 North State road in Arlington Heights.

Two Chicago White Sox baseball stars, John Rigney, pitcher, and Bob Kennedy, third baseman, will be guests and give brief talks.

A committee consisting of George Glow, Raymond Rizze, Edward Weidner, and Otto Wulbecker has been working with the Holy Name officers, John Kindler, president; August Toussaint, Norman Olson, and Richard Weidner, to complete banquet arrangements. The Rev. George Steir is pastor and spiritual director of the group.

PARKS SPONSOR NEW LESSONS IN AMERICAN WAY

Quiz Programs to Help Instill Patriotism.

Northwest parks, particularly those in Area 4 of the park district, have taken the lead in the new campaign to "Act American; Speak American; Be American." Fourteen northwest side fieldhouses are included in Area 4, which is bounded by Chicago, Southport, Diversey, and Narragansett avenues. This area has already held meetings to organize activities under the heading of Americanism, and was the first of the areas to compile its ideas and suggestions into printed form and thus offer a definite program of action to its member-parks.

The plan of usng the parks and similar recreation agencies to foster patriotism was set up at the request of the federal government.

Members of Committee.

The area committee consists of C. Meyers Bardine, Jeanne Hoch, Otto Lyng, Herbert Buell, John Ryback, John Maloski, Moe Winer, and Rose Sorenson, all northwest side park employés. O. C. Rose of the park district is the area supervisor.

Several of the area suggestions will be put into immediate effect. The popular quiz program idea has been utilized under one plan, and it has already begun in the various park fieldhouses. Parks now sponsoring this plan include Blackhawk, Eckhart, Hermosa, Holstein, Humboldt, Kelvyn, Kosciuszko, LaFollette, Mozart, Pulaski, Riis, Sayre, Simons, and Wicker. Some community groups and civic organizations are sponsoring the quizzes.

According to the quiz plan, 10 questions will be posted on the fieldhouse bulletin board each week. These questions will deal mainly with historical and patriotic subjects, such as "Who was Vice President when Grover Cleveland was President of the United States?"

Award for Best Answers.

Each week boys and girls will write out the answers to these questions, and hand them in to the park supervisors or to community committees. At the end of a month an assembly program will be held, and the boy or girl who has answered the most questions correctly will be given an award.

Another Area 4 plan is to make mimeographed copies of outstanding editorials on the subject of Americanism and America, taken from various newspapers and publications, and post them on the bulletin boards. Lobby displays, posters and flags will call attention to patriotic themes. Patriotic programs, such as Lincoln's birthday shows, will be emphasized, and the patriotic theme will be stressed at gymnastic shows, class meetings, and other programs. Park staff members are being organized as to their ability to speak or lecture, conduct community singing, direct dramatic talents, and other skills.

The parks and the park staffs hope to enlist the aid and sponsorship of every civic, fraternal, and service organization with which they have any contact. The parks prefer to serve in an advisory capacity, the area committee emphasized.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

TWO members of the faculty of the North Park college school of music will present a program of Schubert music before the Windsor Park Woman's club on the south side at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Miss Marcia Sandahl, contralto soloist who is also director of music at the Wellington Avenue Congregational church, will sing, while Howard Silberer, winner of the American Society of Musicians annual award in 1937, will accompany her on the piano. Both will be in costume.

AT Maine Township High school two faculty members have just written magazine articles on the subject of industrial arts. Readers of recent issues of the "Journal of the Illinois Vocational Association" will find an article by T. R. Foulkes, superintendent of the high school and junior college at Maine, in which he mentions the requirements which must be filled in order to have successful teaching of the industrial arts. The teacher, he says, must be a "real, live, vital, growing personality."

Readers also have a chance to decide whether H. P. Harshbarger, director of industrial arts at Maine, fits these requirements, for in the latest issue is an article he wrote himself on the relation between the industrial arts and national defense he warns against specializing too much for defense industries on the grounds, first, that most of them require little specific training and can be picked up in a short period of intensive training, and second, that when the emergency subsides the graduates will need to have had a sound comprehensive education.

JOHN E. PETERSON JR., 1534 North Leavitt street, is chairman of the "Sophomore Snow Ball," the first major social event of the new year at Illinois Institute of Technology, which will be held in the Belmont hotel Friday evening. Peterson represents the south side campus, formerly the Armour College of Engineering. Peterson attended the Schurz High school. Other northwest-siders assisting him are Refert D. Croon of Elmwood Park, Richard Guetzow, 5216 Lind avenue, Walter Hawrysh, 910 North Springfield avenue, Patricia Arns, 4618 Patterson avenue, and Arthur Petterino, 4820 West Kamerling avenue.

TEN CHURCHES TO HEAR FORMER COLORADO CHIEF

William E. Sweet, national moderator of the Congregational Christian denomination and former governor of Colorado, will address a mass-meeting of the members of 10 northwest side Congregational churches at 8 o'clock next Sunday evening.

The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Grand avenue Congregational church, 1305 North Hamlin avenue, of which the Rev. Ernest Morrill is pastor.

Mr. Sweet will speak on "Churchmanship and the Local Church." The Rev. Robert W. Putsch, pastor of the Ridgeview Congregational church of White Plains, N. Y., will discuss "Churchmanship in Its Wider Reaches." Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie, general director of the Chicago Congregational union, will preside.

Mont Clare, Medill and North Newland avenues, the Rev. Walter C. Heyl; Galewood, 6314 West Bloomingdale avenue [pulpit vacant]; Cragin, 2032 North Lavergne avenue, the Rev. John J. Bayne; St. Paul, 2255 North Keeler avenue, the Rev. Grant A. Butler; Fourth, 2625 North Talman avenue [pulpit vacant]; Forest Glen, 5048 Catalpa avenue, the Rev. John Craig; Irving Park, 4201 North Troy street, the Rev. Edwin T. Phillips; Pilgrim, Avers avenue and Thomas street, the Rev. Lawrence Upton, and Watson Park, 6337 Cornelia avenue, the Rev. D. M. Nicol.

These 10 churches are making a population study of their neighborhoods under the direction of the Chicago Congregational union's research and survey department in order to adapt their programs more scientifically to the needs of the respective communities.

Roosevelt Prom.

680 RESIDENCES IN NINE SUBURBS COST 4½ MILLION

Construction in City Also Gains.

BY ELAINE MINER.

An increased number of new homes is one of the ways in which the northwest side maintained its reputation as a fine residential district during 1940, recent survey figures show. It was estimated that home building in the city's northwest side totaled about 15 per cent over that done in 1939. In nine major suburban areas, the increase amounted to more than 29 per cent. In these suburbs 118 more new homes were built in 1940 than in 1939, at cost of more than one million dollars over the 1939 figures.

In both the city and suburbs, most of the new building was done in outlying, more newly developed regions. Districts which were already more than 85 per cent built up showed almost no increase.

It is to the tremendous volume of home building that the 1940 increases in total building activity may be ascribed. This, too, is illustrated in the northwest suburbs where, of the $5,003,190 total building of all types for which permits were issued, all but $500,506 went into new homes.

City Areas Expand.

The Chicago communities of Edison Park and Norwood Park probably had the greatest amount of home building, with 1940 figures averaging about 20 per cent higher than 1939, according to the estimates of Royal G. Knight, president of the Northwest Real Estate board and chairman of the renting and management division of the Chicago Real Estate board.

Forest Glen, however, had the highest percentage of increase, namely 40 per cent; while Sauganash also increased its number of new homes well over the 1939 figure. Mr. Knight pointed out that 1941 building may be a more expensive proposition for the homeowner, however, as federal defense work is absorbing so many carpenters and other workers that there will probably be a scarcity of labor by spring.

The 29 per cent increase in new homes in northwest suburbs can be compared to an average increase of 43 per cent in the 82 communities in the Chicago region surveyed monthly by the Bell Savings and Loan association. Building commissioners and local officials coöperate in furnishing the important information thru which building trends and community progress are studied.

150 in Park Ridge.

Park Ridge showed the greatest amount of home building during 1940, according to the figures supplied by James W. Cuthbert, building commissioner. A total of $1,205,073 was spent here to construct 150 new homes. This city led in home building in 1939 also, with 89 new homes costing $718,630.

Even more homes were built in Elmwood Park during 1940, their total, according to Harold A. Hommersand, village clerk, being 164. Their aggregate cost was $961,171, an increase of $381,971 over the amount of home building in this community the previous year.

Prospect Heights, which had ranked third in the amount of home building in northwest suburbs during 1939 maintained this position in 1940, the figures of Allen H. Dawson of Smith and Dawson indicate. The 95 new residences built here in 1940 cost $551,750, which was a slight drop from the 1939 figures of 108 new homes, totalling $555,350.

The only other northwest suburb which showed a decrease in home building was Arlington Heights where building totalled $369,645 for 43 homes in 1940; $449,350 for 54 homes in 1939; and $545,550 for 63 homes built in 1938. Paul C. Taege, building commissioner, is the source for Arlington Heights building statistics.

Other Village Figures.

Des Plaines, Edgar J. Friedrich, city clerk, 97 new homes, $517,773.

Barrington, Arthur C. Burandt, city clerk, 19 homes, $90,600.

The total amount of home building done in these nine suburban communities thus came to $4,502,684, spent for 680 new homes during 1940. In 1939 a total of 562 new homes were built in northwest suburbs at a total cost of $3,479,506.

The cost of new homes in these suburbs ranged from $5,310 to $8,596 during 1940. The 1940 average for the entire Chicago suburban region was $6,392. The Bell survey figures show that the cost of home building has steadily declined during the last few years. In 1936, when this particular information was first gathered, the average cost of homes built was $9,010 each. Thus tho the number of homes built in 1940 more than quadrupled the 1936 output, the value was only tripled.

SKIDS INTO $200 BILL.

I have often thought of writing to you in the hope that the slippery pavement on Harlem avenue between Chicago avenue and Division street could be brought to the attention of authorities. Now that my wife, who is a very good driver, skidded into a $200 repair bill there, I am writing you.

This half mile stretch is paved with brick and is worse, in wet weather, even than West Diversey avenue. Even while my wife was still at the scene of the accident, in which she had skidded into the opposite lane of traffic while applying the brakes, there were four other minor accidents. The surface was not even icy.

I don't know why no one else has written in about this, but I'm sure you'll find a lot of people who feel as I do about it.

NOISY COAL TRUCKS.

Heavy traffic by coal trucks on Kilbourn avenue between Armitage avenue and Cortland street in breaking down the pavement and leaving a trail of thick coal dust. These trucks go back and forth day and night. As you know heavily burdened trucks are noisy and each time one passes our home the whole house shakes, thus impairing a night's rest. I do not speak only for myself but also for all families living in this community.

MISS A. L.

The church is a great stabilizing force, and altho not so spectacular as other groups, it has laid the foundations for many successful lives.

The northwest side in particular is powerfully influenced by its churches and the promotion given them by the Northwest Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE is appreciated by many who thru it have learned of church activities in their neighborhoods.

44 NORTHWEST WOMEN RECEIVE RED CROSS PINS

Complete 144 Hours of Service for Others.

Forty-four northwest side women who have spent patient hours stitching garments and wrapping bandages of others recently received their rewards in the form of Red Cross service pins. Announcement was made by James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter, American Red Cross. The pins are given to volunteers who have completed 144 hours of service in the production of garments and surgical dressings for the chapter.

Approximately 30,000 women are registered in the various production units which meet at chapter headquarters at 616 South Michigan avenue, and in schools, churches, clubs, hotels and private homes thruout the chapter territory. Immediately after the Christmas holidays the units started making 3,000,000 surgical dressings for the United States army. They will also continue to make dressings for use in local hospitals and for overseas war relief needs.

NO. WEST CIVIC GROUP OUTLINES PLANS FOR 1941

A comprehensive program of improvements for the northwest side in 1941 was announced last week by the Northwest Civic association, headed by Joseph P. Winikates. New officers for the club will not be elected until early spring.

Transportation problems have occupied most of the group's time, and among the aims for 1941 are:

Adequate transportation facilities serving the 2,600 students of the new Taft High school, many of whom must travel four or five miles in a roundabout way to reach the school.

Opening of the dead end at Foster avenue between Milwaukee avenue and the Northwest highway.

Pushing of plans for the Avondale superhighway.

Recreational projects include urging the use of vacant school land at Bryn Mawr, Catalpa, and Menard avenues. The organization will continue its support of the Junior Olympics sponsored each fall by the Nor'Wes'Ton Congress.

Warmia Youth Dance.

The Warmia youth division of the Sea League in America will sponsor a variety program and dance at the Polish Women's alliance ballroom, 1309 North Ashland avenue, at 6 o'clock this evening.

ENGLISH WOMAN TELLS FEELINGS AFTER BOMBING

Letter Reveals Britishers Remain Calm.

Housewives in the Chicago area, who feel they have cause to complain when the routine of their daily tasks is interrupted occasionally by a broken gadget or a leaking faucet, should change places for a while with a woman in Croydon, England, who describes her war-time experiences in a Christmas letter recently received in Chicago.

Between the lines of the uncensored letter, there is the picture of the ordinary homekeeper whose "washing of the tea things" is disturbed by an exploding bomb that blows out the windows and doors and covers the furniture with soot.

Siren Is Moaning Mona.

Writing in a vein that mingles humor with tragedy, the English woman explains that she never goes down town at night for fear of being caught in an air raid and that she never goes to the 'pictures' for the same reason. Nicknames for the sirens, she informs, are "Moaning Mona," and "Wailing Willie."

The letter, in part, follows:

"On Nov. 8 two big bombs were dropped at the corner of the road behind a bank. The explosions were terrific. We felt the house rock and the ground heave under our feet. There was an awful roaring sound, and the breaking of glass and things falling. We were in the dining room and it was 6:45 p. m. I had just come out of the kitchen after washing the tea things. Fire came out in a wave of flame with each explosion and we were covered with soot, but we were unhurt. We went into the hall to go to the kitchen, thinking it would be safer. The hall door was blown open, the lock and bolts forced, and everywhere covered with broken glass.

"Nearly every bit of glass in the doors and windows was blown out, window frames blown in, part of four ceilings down, and most of the tiles off the back of the roof.

Houses Are Condemned.

"The damage is enormous. Every house in this road and the road where the bombs dropped have been damaged, some beyond repair. They have been condemned and the people evacuated, but no one was hurt. The bank was demolished but the people who lived over the bank escaped without a scratch.

"We have been blasted once and we pray we may never experience it again. We were very shaky but are getting over it now. The worst of it is we have all the windows done in black rubberoid stuff and have to keep the electric lights on all the time.

"We get 'Jerry' over day and night. We have not undressed since the blitz began. You would laugh if you could peep at us at night, one in each big arm chair with plenty of pillows and rugs, our feet propped up on stools, the curtains drawn and well blacked out, the fire on and a light burning. We go to sleep, if the noise of the guns and plane is not too bad. Usually we wake up between 1 and 2 in the morning and have a cup of tea and bread and butter.

"One of our friends, as soon as she heard about our house, wired for us to go to her house and make it our home. Bless her for the kind thought. But we feel we cannot leave our home because we cannot lock it up and secure it properly. There is such a lot of looting going on. It would be horrid to come back and find our house looted."

Modernization in Antioch

The home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Berg, 410 Hardin street, Antioch, after modernization. This view is from the back, showing rear trellis and new screened porch.

The Berg home before its renewal. Many changes were made, including a screened porch off the dining room and a new back porch and trellis where once was the laundry and woodshed.

REMODELING OLD HOME INCREASES ITS USEFULNESS

Antioch Couple Renews House Thruout.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A letter has come to me telling of a worth while remodeling which was done last year in Antioch. The letter was from F. J. Berg, 410 Hardin street, Antioch.

It is interesting not only because of the work done, which was essentially practical and attractive and certainly a wise investment, but because it tells of an experience so many people are planning for the coming year.

The letter follows:

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Some time ago I wrote you for advice on siding for an old house which I had bought and wished to remodel.

"You replied and I want to thank you for your suggestions. Certain details lagged somewhat which accounts for my delay.

Old Porches Removed.

"We tore down both the front and side porches and built a bay in the front. We widened the house at the side and thereby increased the size of the dining room. At the rear of the house we removed a laundry and old woodshed and substituted a new back porch with a trellis. And off the dining room we built a new screened porch.

"We also changed the inside of the house considerably. We widened the opening between the dining room and living room, which gave the appearance of much greater space, and we arched several of the door openings. I forgot to mention that all window sash was renewed and without much difficulty.

Basement Excavated.

"A basement was excavated under all but the kitchen and retaining walls of concrete built. A warm air furnace was installed and, new roofs were laid and exterior walls of wide siding.

"Like all remodeling work it turned out to be a bigger job than I had figured, but now that it is done, Mrs. Berg and I are very satisfied with it all. We also feel quite proud of it as we planned it ourselves.

"J. F. BERG."

The original house had stood for many years and had not been maintained in the manner it deserved. Now, inside and out, it has been brought up to modern standards, as have the surrounding lawns and walks.

Many people this last year, like Mr. and Mrs. Berg, bought an old home and transformed it, giving it countless years of new usefulness. Many people will do the same this coming year.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 20.

Sow pansies, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, English daisies, vinca rosea, and similar plants now to obtain good strong plants for early planting. Pansies like the cool conditions of early summer and a rich, mellow soil. They like a bit of shade because the heat of summer soon affects them. Try selecting varieties for color effects.

Among the newest annuals are the wildfire marigolds, single, free flowering and in bright scarlet, deep orange, yellow, and mahogany, with variegated sorts; a new Swiss chard that looks like rhubarb and is colored like a delicate crimson foliage plant.

Tuesday, Jan. 21.

Paperwhite narcissus bulbs are still available and as they are so easily grown and are so useful for their decorative effect a few should be added to the window garden. Four to six inch pots may be used with a rich garden loam. Drainage should cover the hole in the bottom of the pots; water thoroly and stand in a cool dark place until well rooted.

Wednesday, Jan. 22.

Pruning shrubs is important. Shrubs that flower on wood made the past season should be pruned as soon as their blossoms fade. The following are examples: Deutzia, fringetree, goldenbell, Missouri currant, bush honeysuckle, except those with ornamental fruits; magnolia, lilac, most climbing roses, spirea, and weigela.

Thursday, Jan. 23.

Examine lilac bushes and if scales are present spray on a warm day with lime and sulphur. If branches become too infested they will be best removed entirely. Remember, too, that the plant flowers on wood made the previous season should be pruned after flowering.

Friday, Jan. 24.

Procure organic manures to spread over ground that is to be spaded in spring. These manures contain little food elements as compared with the commercial products, and the latter is about the only available source of food for city gardens. It is valuable on house plants.

Saturday, Jan. 25.

Spray the fern occasionally or simply dip the plant in a tub or bucket of water to remove dust. The ironclad plant [aspidistra] that has outgrown the pot should be separated and the sections potted.

QUIZ KID STAR ADDS ACTING TO OTHER TALENTS

Joan Will Appear in Motion Picture.

When 14 year old Joan Bishop returned from New York and Washington recently she had added movie acting to her numerous other accomplishments. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Bishop, 4549 North Christiana avenue, Joan was one of the five Quiz Kids of radio who were chosen to appear in the first Quiz Kids motion picture short, a feature similar to the Information Please series, which will be released early in spring. From New York the group was invited by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to visit the White House and spend a few days sightseeing in Washington before their return to Chicago.

Joan Bishop.

Joan's store of knowledge won her public notice long before her recent radio activities, however. A recital performance she gave when she was 5 years old is fairly typical of her talents. She played 10 piano pieces.

Has Ideas on Volume.

She then sang Brahms' "Lullaby" to her own accompaniment. Some of the audience in the back row complained that they couldn't hear, and asked her to sing louder, but Joan did not believe in such an interpretation of her music.

"You can't get a baby to sleep if you holler at it!" she indignantly exclaimed, and continued the song in her own soft fashion. The young entertainer then closed her part of that recital with a toe dance.

One of Joan's outstanding accomplishments came in 1936 when, at the age of 11, she played with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, performing Mozart's Concerto in D Minor, with the Reinecke cadenza.

Mrs. Bishop is also a pianist, and has always encouraged Joan's talent. It was partly due to the time required for practicing—five hours daily—that Joan has never gone to school. She has, however, received a thoro education thru tutors and friends, is now attending the Chicago School for Adults, and expects to enter high school classes shortly.

Would Be Opera Star.

But the girl who was a symphony soloist at the age of 11 wants to be an opera star, not a concert pianist. This ambition dates back to the time when she was 5 years old, and couldn't make up her mind whether to be an opera star or a dancer when she grew up. She attended performances of both types, and found the elaborate costumes in the opera much to her liking. Thus arose the opera ambition which she still holds.

The young expert's most spectacular performance was given at her first Quiz Kid appearance. The children were asked to identify several musical passages as the studio pianist played them. One of the pieces was Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C Sharp Minor. Joan identified it immediately, but added, "But the pianist played it in C minor."

Play's the Thing

Tennis instructors of the park district point with pride to Seymour Greenberg, 5007 North Monticello avenue. Seymour is a distinguished tennis player, altho he is only 20 years old, and his skill is at least partly attributable to the training he received on the park district courts.

Much of this skill he inherited and learned from his father, Jacob, with whom he won the Western Father and Son tourney eight years ago, retaining the championship for five years. At one time he ranked as one of the nation's three leading junior tennists.

For the first time this year Seymour played in the major grass court meets in the east. He won over such high ranking players as George Toley and Bill Reedy of Southern California and Bitsy Grant and Hal Surface.

Seymour is a junior at Northwestern university and holds championships in Big Ten singles and doubles. His tennis skill was not gained at the expense of his mental training, either. When he was graduated from Lane Technical High school in 1938 he held the highest four year scholastic average in the history of that institution.

Tennis sort of runs in the Greenberg family. Seymour's sister, Beverly, was Chicago public park tennis champion in her age class [under 18] in 1939. Another sister, Vivian, 13 years old, shows great promise. Still another, Tobey, 7 years old, can hardly wait until she is big enough to play.

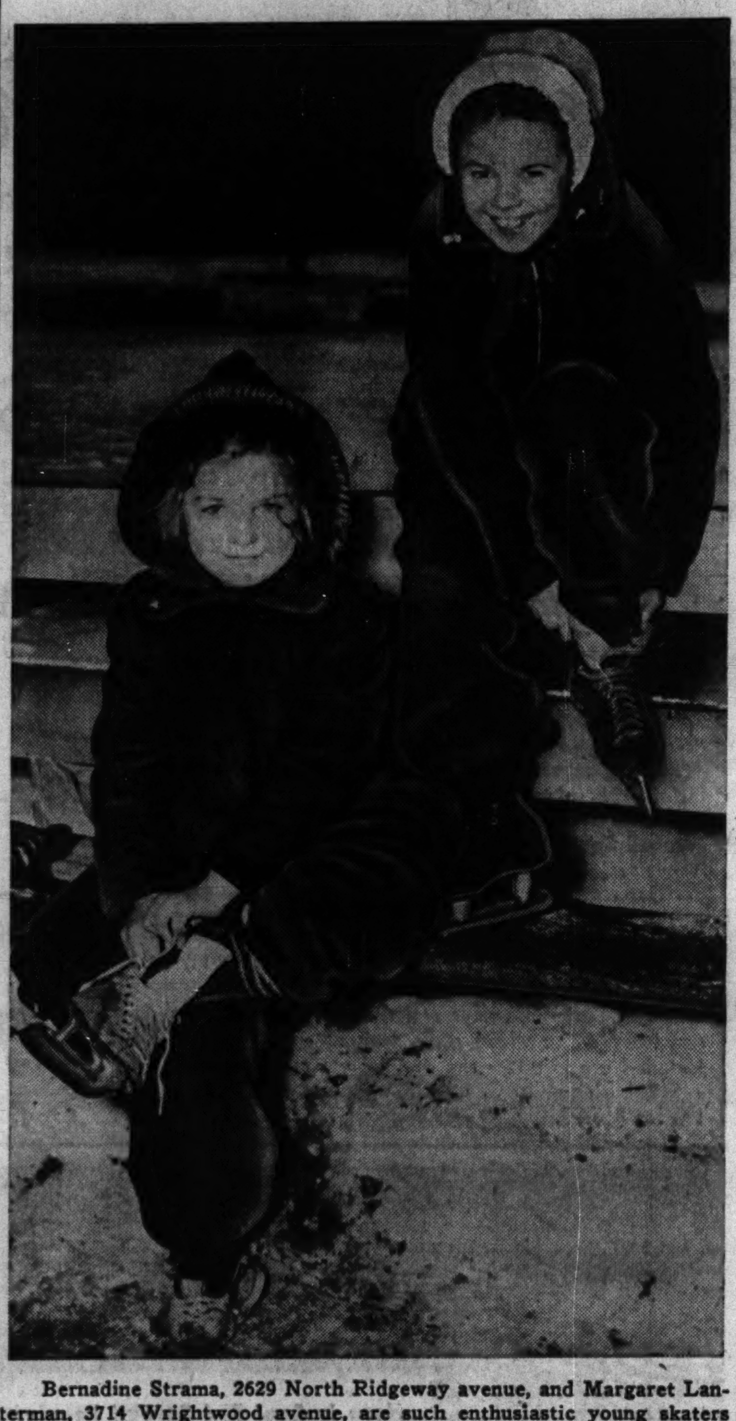
Enjoy Ice on Northwest Side



Bernadine Strama, 2629 North Ridgeway avenue, and Margaret Lanterman, 3714 Wrightwood avenue, are such enthusiastic young skaters that not even darkness and a two inch layer of snow can keep them off the ice. Late one afternoon last week they were found on a lonely bench in Kosciuszko park changing into their skates for a short spin around the ice. Bernadine is in third and Margaret in fourth grade at Our Lady of Grace school.

Heads Club

Mrs. Ottilie Budelman, 2917 North Keating avenue, new president of the Logan Square Athletic club auxiliary, will be in charge of a card party which the club will hold Tuesday evening at 2635 North Kedzie avenue. Those who will assist include Mrs. Elsie Fritz and Mrs. Evelyn Sieg, vice presidents; Mrs. Evelyn Yock, treasurer; Mrs. Jo Everson, secretary, and Miss Sylvia Ginger.

YOUR NEIGHBOR'S TRIP

Friends of Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Day, 6142 North Kirkwood avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Milo G. Beman, 5455 North Oriole avenue, are looking forward to hearing a lot about Mexico next week when the two couples return from a 16 day trip. Forty-one friends saw them off at the train recently, and the last words of the two couples were that they were going to forego sports so that they would have more time to sightsee. It is the first time any of them has been to Mexico.

Mrs. Jennie Kramer, 1956 West Chicago avenue, has left to visit a sister at Miami Beach, Fla. She took the train down and expects to spend most of her time on the beach, she said. She will be joined in several weeks by her son, Stanton, for his vacation from newspaper work.

Wendell A. Sebastian, 4431 North Troy street, and his two brothers, Frank and William, of Park Ridge, will have a lot of fish stories, and, they hope, a few fish, for friends to listen [or see] when they return from a month's deep sea fishing in the Gulf stream near Miami, Fla. They motored down "as the crow flies" so as to save time. Last year the three of them tried their luck at fishing in the Gulf of Mexico.

Daniel T. Superfine, 3218 Carmen avenue, will return soon from a two weeks' trip to Miami, Fla., as will Joseph W. Perry, 1408 North Honoré street, who is on a month's vacation.

Fifty Years in One Parish

The 50 years of marriage which Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sniegocki, 2234 North Campbell avenue, are celebrating today is marked by a permanence seldom achieved in modern life. Married in St. Hedwig's church, Webster and Hoyne avenues, 50 years ago, the couple have attended this same church, and lived in this same parish district, during their entire wedded life.

REMEMBERS DAY WHEN HE STABLED LINCOLN HORSES

Boyhood Incident Told by F. M. Smith.

"My great grandfather knew Abraham Lincoln," is the proud boast of 14 year old Robert Smeby of Mount Prospect.

F. Marion Smith.

"Aw, that's nuthin.' My great-great-grandfather knew George Washington," is the retort he may get from some of his classmates at Arlington Heights High school.

But Robert has proof, for his great grandfather, F. Marion Smith, is still living with a daughter, Mrs. Lee J. Bisdorf, at 5819 North Harlem avenue in Norwood Park. He is one of the few people still living who knew Lincoln. He will celebrate his 88th birthday Wednesday. He has two other great grandchildren living on the northwest side, Teddy and Glenn Johnson, aged 11 and 8 respectively, of 4341 North Kilbourn avenue, and seven living elsewhere.

Recalls Frequent Visits.

Mr. Smith was born in Indiana, but a year later his family moved to Clinton, Ill., about half way between Bloomington and Springfield, on a route often traveled by Lincoln, then a lawyer in Springfield.

His first meeting with Lincoln was overshadowed by the thrill of driving to the barn the surrey and team of horses which Lincoln had driven with a friend of the elder Smith's.

"Apparently Mr. Lincoln either liked our food or found that our home was just about the right place to stop for lunch while on his court circuit," Mr. Smith recalls, "because he stopped in mighty frequently."

He remembers showing the guest one of the McGuffy readers from which he was studying. "Mr. Lincoln pointed out a short poem and asked me to learn it by the next time he came around. I will never forget the expression in his eyes or the pat he gave me when I recited it to him perfectly," Mr. Smith said.

Gardening Is Hobby.

It was not until three years ago that Mr. Smith retired from the grocery business, in which he had been engaged for more than a quarter century, but his activity did not stop then. One of his hobbies now is playing Santa Claus at Christmas time for the neighboring children, and another, in good weather, is gardening.

"In bad weather I read The Tribune," he added. "I have read it every day for 50 years."

Harold A. Tepper, an attorney, will speak on "A Defense of Minorities" at a meeting of the Schurz Athena society at 3 o'clock this afternoon at 4308 West North avenue. Rothwell C. Back is president of the society.

Recently Married

Mrs. Edward F. Czerwin formerly was Miss Helen Lorraine Costa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Costa, 5248 Montrose avenue. She is a member of the Northwestern university chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Czerwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Czerwin of 4149 Wellington avenue, is a graduate of Central Y. M. C. A. college and John Marshall law school.

TRAFFIC STUDY TO BE MADE IN JEFFERSON PARK

Congestion on Thru Roads Is Major Problem.

A diagnosis of traffic troubles at the hodgepodge of busy crossings in Jefferson Park was initiated by the Northwest Area council of the Chicago Motor club last week as it tackled a problem which has long caused headaches in community improvement club meetings. A prescription for removing the congestion will follow a report on the diagnosis, Chairman John H. Kerr said.

Walter Miller, of the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs, is chairman of the committee which will investigate traffic problems in the region.

Members of Committee.

Other members are William Pasche of the Chicago Surface Lines; Vincent Rozycki of the Northwest Civic association; and Frank N. Block of the 42d Precinct Improvement club of the 41st ward.

Buses and street cars in this area come in contact with thru traffic on Foster avenue, Higgins road, and Northwest highway. Foster avenue is not open west of Milwaukee, and Higgins road is not protected by stop signs. All of these roads are arterial routes serving outlying sections of the city and suburbs.

Suggest Parking Limit.

Council members suggested limiting parking on Kimball avenue between Wilson and Foster avenues in Albany Park and North Park, so as to relieve traffic there. A two hour parking limit is being considered.

The state highway department reported that plans have been prepared for traffic signals at Laramie and Diversey avenues.

The first showing of "Maine in Action," a colored motion picture depicting the important events of the school year at Maine Township High school, will be presented Monday evening, Jan. 27, before a group of civic leaders of the township at the school.

The 1,200 foot film was financed and partially produced by the students, supervised by Einar J. Anderson of the faculty. It shows the activities of all the departments of the school.

It also includes many scenes of extra-curricular activities such as rehearsals for a play, last minute rush before a deadline of the Pioneer, student publication, and an orchestra demonstration.

Freeman, Ben Glitman, Jack Dobbs, and Dr. Leonard A. Slavin.

Military Ball Queen

Estelle Page, 5438 Parker avenue, a junior at Foreman High school, has been selected queen of the annual Military ball of Crane Technical High school. The ball will be held on Saturday night at the Congress hotel. Her escort will be Sergt. Clarence Glawe. Miss Page was selected during a contest in which the cadets submitted pictures.

"LOOK! DADDY'S NAME IN THE PAPER!"

"Local firm appoints rising young executive—not bad for a man who came up from the bottom, is it?"

As higher industrial activity increases the demand for skilled men, are you ready for one of the many better paid jobs now opening up?

If you are ambitious to step into the higher salary brackets, prepare yourself now. Select one of the regular or short courses of training offered to men and women in the Instruction, Trade Schools, Musical and Dramatic, Dressmaking and Millinery Schools and Dancing Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section.

"The Browns finally bought a house"

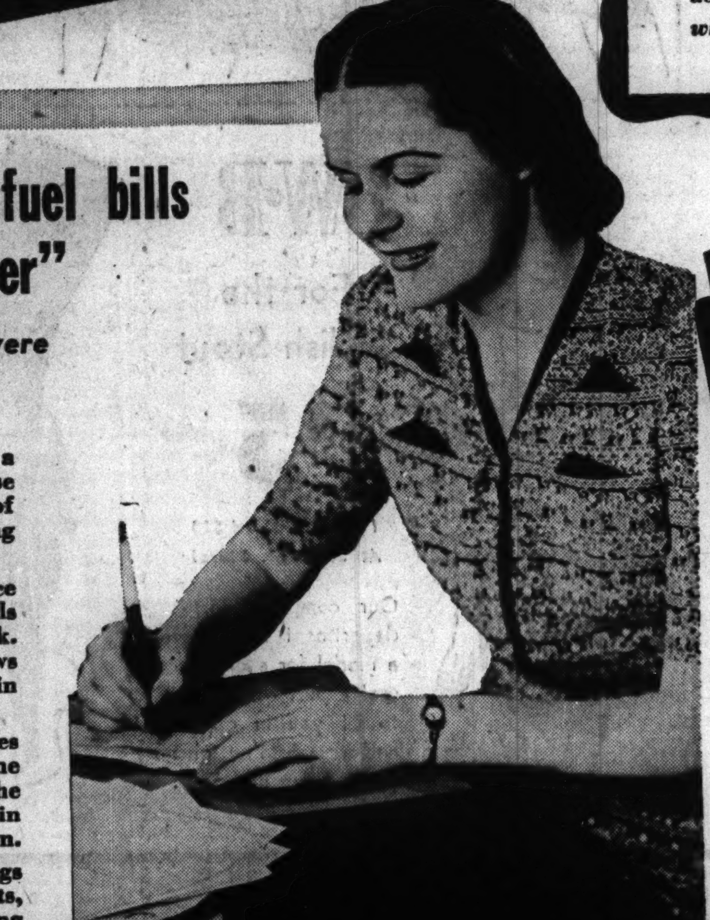
"It was a bargain they ran across in the Tribune want ads."

It stands to reason that the bigger the selection from which you choose, the better your chance to get a real bargain.

This is the advantage of watching the Real Estate columns in the Tribune want ad section. If you are in the market to buy, here is your most comprehensive guide. The Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined. You can be sure that no worthwhile value will escape your notice when you follow these columns. To find the home you want, follow the real estate want ads in the Tribune.

Or what have you?

Stop!—before you throw anything away, review the Barter and Exchange column in the Tribune want ad section. Articles you no longer want may interest the traders who advertise here. By the way, how about that old saxophone in the attic? Or what have you?



"This year's fuel bills are lower"

"Those storm windows were a good investment."

ARE you a slave to a heating plant? Is your house cold and drafty for lack of storm sash? Are you paying too much to get heat?

Installing a better furnace or boiler with proper controls may cost less than you think. Insulation and storm windows soon pay for themselves in fuel saved.

You can find opportunities to save money on these home necessities by watching the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section. There you will find offerings of lumber, millwork, paints, sash, plumbing and heating equipment at special prices. Review this helpful column in the Tribune want ad section.

THERE ought to be a society-for-the-prevention-of-trying-to-drive-worn-out-cars-in-winter. It would get over big with the wives and daughters who don't like tramping around in the snow.

If your car cannot be depended upon to give satisfactory service, review the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section. Chicago's largest selection of late model used cars is described there every day.

You can easily find a dependable, good-looking car with the power, styling and modern features you like. And your present car may be the only down payment required. See today's listings.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE — SERVING CHICAGO FOR 93 YEARS

SHORT STORIES COLLECTED IN RADIO STUDIOS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Haunting the studios during rehearsals and at broadcasts a radio reporter turns up amusing little incidents and anecdotes involving the big stars of radio. For example:

Anna Neagle had spent hours of rehearsing in W-G-N's main studio for the radio première of her new movie "No, No, Nanette" when Herbert Wilcox, her manager and director, reminded her that she had had nothing to eat all day. She admitted she was hungry.

So Mr. Wilcox sent out for tea and rolls. When they arrived Miss Neagle had returned to the stage to work on "Tea for Two!" For a few minutes it looked like tea for Mr. Wilcox and cold tea for Miss Neagle! But there came a break—and she got her tea.

Last week while Jane Froman was rehearsing a popular song for "In Chicago Tonight," her mother was an interested studio visitor. She had come up for the occasion from Columbia, Mo., where she formerly headed the vocal department at Christian college. Mrs. Froman recalled that for many years Jane and she had sung together. Their voices are similar. Mrs. Froman had hoped that her daughter would become an opera star. All of her training was pointed toward that goal. But Jane moved into the popular field after she came to the attention of Paul Whiteman. Her mother feels that the unique success Jane has attained as a songstress is in a large measure due to the good vocal training she had as a child.

Gerard Darrow, the 8 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, was interviewed a few weeks ago on the June Baker program. After recounting highlights of his meteoric career Gerard got around to telling about his hobbies. "I collect locks of hair," he said, extracting a curly specimen from his coat pocket.

"I even have one hair from Joe Kelly's head," he boasted. [Joe is the balding master of ceremonies of the Quiz Kids show.]

Alec Templeton, the blind pianist and impressionist, was a studio guest the evening Richard Bonelli and Marion Claire starred in "The Desert Song." In a few minutes he had memorized all the dramatic rôles, catalogued the voices portraying them and fastened the names of the actors firmly in his mind. Several of the voices he correctly identified with rôles in the daytime serials, of which he is an avid follower. Alec was particularly intrigued by the voice of Bobby Jellison and asked afterwards to meet him.

After the broadcast Alec was besieged by autograph fans. He invited them to send him written requests with their names and addresses.

While photographers were taking pictures after a recent broadcast of "In Chicago Tonight," the guest performers including Yvette, the "Creoriole," held an informal jam session. Bob Zurke played the piano and the Mills brothers contributed some of their liveliest harmony.

Yvette, whose specialties are Parisian songs and quaint tunes based on French nursery rhymes, joined in the hot music, too. She recalled that she got acquainted with jazz singing while attending a convent school in New Orleans. In the evenings the wailing blues of street singers were wafted within the convent walls.

Many W-G-N listeners will recall the story about the colored aviator carrying propaganda leaflets into Germany which Comedian Benny Baker told last week on W-G-N. Baker had an alternative story. But there was time for just one on the program, so he picked the one above. The other runs something like this:

A foreigner on arriving in America had difficulty with the language. A friend after days of struggle taught him the words "Apple pie and coffee."

Thus, the alien was able in a measure to satisfy his gastronomic wants in restaurants. Ultimately he tired of this diet and asked his friend to teach him some additional words. After a struggle lasting several days the newcomer mastered "Swiss cheese." Armed with his new vocabulary he entered a restaurant and sang out "Swiss cheese."

"On white or rye?" queried the waitress.

Befuddled, the foreigner paused for a moment and then exclaimed, "Apple pie and coffee."

Plans Visit to Poe Home.

The Edgar Allan Poe Foundation in Richmond, Va., site of the home of the famed American literary figure, will be visited by Ted Malone during his American Pilgrimage broadcast at 1 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

On W-G-N

Lola Lane of the Lane sisters of movie fame will make a guest appearance on "In Chicago Tonight" at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

BRITAIN STILL HEARS MUSIC, SZIGETI REPORTS

Bombing Raids Fail to End Concerts.

Despite nerve wracking bombings, blackouts, and the complete interruption of a normal social life, symphonic music still flourishes in war-torn England.

Joseph Szigeti, the great violinist, who is heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 6 p. m. every Sunday in a series with Alfred Wallenstein's orchestra, reported that he has recently received letters from friends in England which have contained thrilling accounts of the courage displayed by the concert stars to satisfy the desire which the English people still have to hear serious music.

Not only are concerts being given regularly in London, but symphony orchestras are taking their music to sections of the suburbs and provinces where concerts were rarely heard before the war.

Often, as an audience is listening to the swelling strains of some great symphony, the music is suddenly overwhelmed by the screech of air raid sirens, Mr. Szigeti reported. Those in the concert hall cannot leave until the raid is over. As a result, a unique kind of "air raid concert" has been developed.

When a raid keeps an audience in a concert hall after the scheduled program is completed, the musicians stage an impromptu concert that lasts until the "all clear" signal sounds. They improvise and play their favorite music. If any musicians are spotted in the audience, they are invited to join in. Sometimes these impromptu concerts last until morning.

Such noted artists as the pianist Myra Hess, he reported, give dozens of morale-bolstering recitals every week.

Sometimes they play even in underground shelters.

W-G-N-MUTUAL TO AIR INAUGURAL OF PRESIDENT

Three programs from Washington, all devoted to the inaugural ceremonies of President Roosevelt, will be heard over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network today and tomorrow.

The first broadcast will be an inaugural preview commentary from 2 to 2:05 p. m. today. Announcers and commentators covering the inauguration will bring radio listeners a preview of the inauguration plans.

As part of its coverage W-G-N—Mutual will present the Inauguration Concert at Constitution hall from 9:50 to 10 tonight. On this broadcast Charlie Chaplin will deliver his closing speech from "The Great Dictator," Nelson Eddy will sing, and Hans Kindler will conduct the National Symphony orchestra.

The President's departure from the White House and his ride to the inaugural stand as well as administration of the oath of office by Chief Justice Hughes, and Mr. Roosevelt's inaugural address will be broadcast from 10:15 to 12 noon tomorrow.

PAGEANT OF MELODY FOR TOMORROW NIGHT WILL BE CANCELED

Officials of W-G-N have announced that because of circumstances beyond their control the Pageant of Melody program which was scheduled from 9:30 to 10:00 p. m. tomorrow will not be broadcast. Those who have received tickets for the program will be admitted to a future Pageant of Melody program, if they make their request to the W-G-N ticket office, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

CONCERT HOUR TO BE AIRED AT 8:30 WEDNESDAY

'Blossom Time' Next on Theater of Air.

A variety of fine music ranging from Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" to the love hymn "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," will be heard on the Chicagoland Concert hour from 8:30 to 9 p. m. next Wednesday. This program, formerly broadcast on Monday nights, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. on Wednesdays.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Marion Claire, soprano star, will present Thomas' "Connais-tu-le Pays" from "Mignon" for her featured number. The augmented W-G-N chorus will form the background for Miss Claire's rendition of the "Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana.

The complete program follows:

Overture: "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" . . Mozart
Orchestra.
"Connais-tu le Pays" from Mignon . . Thomas
Marion Claire.
"Tango" . . . . Albeniz
Orchestra.
"Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" . . . . Moore
Chorus.
Speech . . . .
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
"Voices of Spring" . . . . Strauss
Orchestra.
"Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana . . . . Mascagni
Marion Claire, Chorus.

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will lead the W-G-N Concert orchestra in selections from the works of Mozart, Albeniz and Strauss. The W-G-N chorus, under Weber's baton, will sing Moore's "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

'BLOSSOM TIME' NEXT

The life, love, and haunting music of Franz Schubert will live again for an hour when the Chicago Theater of the Air presents Sigmund Romberg's "Blossom Time" from 9:15 to 10:15 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network.

This will be the second presentation of "Blossom Time" in this series. The operetta was presented last spring with Marion Claire and Igor Gorin in the leading rôles. Mr. Gorin again will sing the rôle of Schubert; Miss Claire, that of Mitzi.

The success of the W-G-N operetta series has prompted the J. J. Schubert office, theatrical producers, to launch an operetta series at the Grand Opera House. "Blossom Time," with Everett Marshall as the star, will be the first of these. It will open Tuesday evening. Other light opera productions will follow.

W-G-N announced last night that because of the many requests for tickets to the Chicago Theater of the Air performances remaining to be filled, no additional applications for tickets to this series will be considered for the present.

The music of "Blossom Time," by Sigmund Romberg, is based on airs by Schubert, and the operetta itself is the story of his life, love, and music. In the climatic scene, Schubert plays the theme melody, "This Is My Song of Love," based on his "Unfinished Symphony."

The duet, "Ave Maria," by Mr. Gorin and Miss Claire, with its haunting refrain, "Peace, Peace to My Lonely Heart," will be one of the highlights of the show. Other familiar melodies will be the lovely, reminiscent, "There in Old Vienna," the throbbing "Marche Militaire," and in a lighter vein, "Tell Me Daisy." Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra.

The operetta will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

IMMACULATA IS NEXT SCHOOL ON 'CITIZENS' HOUR

The Immaculata High school of Chicago will be the first Catholic school to be heard on the Chicago Tribune's radio program, Citizens of Tomorrow from 4:30 to 5 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N.

Msgr. D. F. Cunningham, superintendent of the Catholic schools of the archdiocese of Chicago, will be the guest speaker. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, member of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S editorial staff, who takes the rôle of the principal and is master of ceremonies of the program.

Featured on the half hour broadcast will be the Immaculata Glee club, under the direction of Walter Aschenbrenner. The girls will sing three numbers, "Hymn to Christ the King," by Rafael; "Alphabet," by Mozart, and "Lift Thine Eyes," by Mendelssohn.

HOLTZ, LOLA LANE TO BE FEATURED ON CHICAGO HOUR

Offer Music and Comedy on W-G-N Show.

Comedian Lou Holtz and Lola Lane of Hollywood fame will be two of the headliners to appear on In Chicago Tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday.

Lou Holtz.

Lou Holtz gained his reputation as a comedian both on the stage and then radio. He specializes in dialect stories, his best known tales revolving around the experiences of the fictitious character, "Sam Lapidus." Holtz is currently appearing at the State-Lake theater with a group of movie stars, including Miss Lane, Wendy Barrie, and Arlene Judge.

Lola Lane beat her other famous sisters to Hollywood, but Rosemary [who is appearing around the corner from her sister, at the Oriental] and Priscilla have caught up with her. They have been featured in the Warner Brothers' popular pictures series, the latest of which is "Four Mothers." Miss Lane was born in Macy, Ind., and made her name in vaudeville as a singer and dancer until she went to Hollywood in 1928.

Other features of the show will be the W-G-N chorus directed by Bob Trendler and the W-G-N Dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

ARTHUR HENNING TO START 7TH ANNUAL SERIES

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will start his seventh annual series of "Capital Comment" programs over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 7:30 tonight. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work, and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Henning has covered 20 national political conventions.

'Oath of Revenge' Story on Inside of Sports

The fields of boxing and basketball will be explored this week for the "once in a lifetime" tales on the "Inside of Sports." This popular sports program heard from 6:45 to 7 p. m. each week night over W-G-N and the Mutual network features the "once in a lifetime" thrills every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. Thursday will bring forth a strange story of an "Oath of Revenge," once taken against a famous heavyweight champion of the world, John Morrissey.

Off the Trail

Riding runs in the families of several members of the Schurz Saddle and Spurs club, judging from a peek at the membership roster. The Dudek family at 3143 Hirsch street has three representatives—Fred, ride leader, and his sisters, Ann and Vicki. Then there are the two Gerdes sisters, Caroline and Gertrude, from 2919 North Lowell avenue, and the brother-sister team of Wilbur and Muriel Netterstrom of 5459 North Parkside avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Jayne of the Greentree stables on Lawrence avenue are on a six-weeks' trip to Hawaii and intermediate points.

Miss Ann Spodyak, 4150 North Whipple street, is now on the swiftly growing list of winter riders. She rides from the Walnut Grove stables near Des Plaines, where her brother, William, and his wife keep their three horses.

Just to prove that its members can think of other things besides horses, the Elston Saddle club held a skating get-together Sunday evening.

Edward Proper, 5035 North Western avenue, whose health has kept him from the horse trails for several weeks, is telling friends that he and his wife, Julia, will soon be back among the equestrians.

SEEK 4,650 MORE ACRES FOR FORESTS

THIS FREE CLUB HAS 2,000 BUSY BOYS AND GIRLS

St. Michael's Serves All Russell Square.

Approximately 2,000 boys and girls are participating in the winter program of the St. Michael's Boys club. The program, which is free to every one in the community, offers basketball, pingpong, pool, billiards, tobogganing, skiing, skating, ice boating, handicraft, motion picture, and machine shop facilities. It runs from October thru March.

The club is operated by the Russell Square Community committee and facilities are provided by the Rev. John M. Lange, pastor of St. Michael's church, 83d street and South Shore drive. The committee was organized in 1933 and is financed principally by local residents.

Nearly 400 boys take part in the four divisions of basketball competition. The brackets are the midget [under 12 years old], junior [12 to 14], intermediate [to 18], and senior [over 18]. Each division has an average of seven teams and games are played in the club's huge gymnasium. There also are gym classes. There is a fine movie each week.

Shop Class Is Popular.

One of the most popular classes is in shop work. This class teaches lathe, shaper, drill press, forge and welding. The machinery is supplied by the NYA and teachers are WPA workers. The classes are open to boys over 17 years old.

The club has a $2,000 investment in a woodcraft shop which gives opportunity for leather work, archery, beadcraft, art, woodwork, carving, linoleum block printing, etc. Younger children may use a library which has 1,000 books.

The outdoor phase of the winter program is so extensive that the club's 42 passenger bus is in use daily. On snowy days the vehicle makes two round trips to Dan Ryan woods, where the club furnishes five 12 foot toboggans and 12 pairs of skis. The bus also is used for inspection tours.

The club floods 10 vacant lots in the community for ice skating. It also supplies 160 pairs of roller skates for skating to music in the basement of the St. Michael school building.

Offer Trips to Camp.

At the organization's Camp Lange on Walton lake, seven miles south of Michigan City, neighborhood boys are supervised in week-end trips which offer skating, skiing, ice boating and hunting diversions.

Besides its general program, the club supervises 20 "problem groups" or neighborhood boys in an activity program. Wienie and potato roasts and shack building projects are sponsored.

The committee's winter schedule dovetails with the program at nearby Russell Square park. The park sponsors the major share of the girls' activities and the club emphasizes boys' work.

Coöperation with the ward superintendent and inspectors recently was made a part of the winter program. Members of the club procured, painted and put handles on 250 barrels which are being used as garbage cans.

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE TO HOLD MEXICAN FIESTA

A Mexican fiesta will be held at International house on Saturday, Feb. 1, in the form of a celebration for Our Lady of Guadalupe, featuring legends connected with the famous Mexican shrine. Eleven authentic dances, some of them never performed before in the United States, will be presented by 30 dancers with a Mexican Tipica orchestra for background.

Helen Kunges will take the rôle of the virgin. Other dancers are Charlotte Sarett, Birute Kremianis, Wenetta Grybas, Miriam Rosenbloom, Lucille Bartkus, Alfas and Joseph Lankus, Kazys Dulys, Felix Tomas, Francisco de Leon, Dorothea Cahill, James Carroll, Richard Brzezinski, Alex Spear, and Louis Lewandowski.

The dances have been rehearsed under the tutelage of Finadar Beliajus, folk dance authority, who will take the part of the peon, Juan Diego, to whom the virgin appeared.

PLAN 3 SOUTH SIDE CONCERTS AT HIRSCH HIGH

Three concerts have been planned for the residents of the Grand Crossing-Chatham community in the Hirsch High school auditorium. They will be given Tuesday and on Feb. 4 and 14. The Dearborn Concert orchestra, the American Concert orchestra and the Mundy Jubilee Singers will supply the music in that order.

Purpose of the series is to bring good music to members of the community at comparatively small prices. Coöperating in sponsoring the concerts are the Grand Crossing-Chatham Chamber of Commerce, the Ministerial association, the local Lions club, the Chatham Woman's club, the Hirsch High school P.-T.A. and other organizations.

Tickets for the concerts may be procured by calling Mrs. Ruby Speakman, 6411 Champlain avenue, at Stewart 4633.

Carl J. Adams, 7350 Cottage Grove avenue, hasn't missed a Kiwanis club meeting in 20 years. This means that he has attended 1,040 weekly sessions in various parts of the United States and Canada—if necessary, on a stretcher or wheel chair. Officials of Kiwanis International, reviewing the records of 110,000 members, say they never heard anything like it.

In recognition of this achievement, the Woodlawn Kiwanis club recently presented him with a plaque at the installation of officers for 1941. Mr. Adams was a charter member of the club in 1921, and ever since then has played a major rôle in its activities, either as president, board member, or committee member.

Becomes a Habit.

"After I'd been a 'hundred percenter' for one year, then two years—and so on, it seemed like second nature for me to be at every one," he explained. "When I got around the country and saw other members with buttons for 8, 9, and 10 years of perfect attendance, I became determined to beat them all. After 12 years it became an obsession and a team of oxen couldn't have kept me away."

There was nothing in Mr. Adams' case history to account for this sudden and overwhelming passion for punctuality. As a schoolboy he was unremarkable, carrying home the average student's marks for absence on his report cards.

Now he began to arrange his life to harmonize with a Kiwanis meeting every seven days. He was obliged to plan his winter trips to Florida in such a way that he could attend meetings in towns along the way. Scores of times he arose in the gray dawn to drive 200 miles to make a meeting by noon. Other times he devised long detours in order to put himself in a position where he could hail fellow Kiwanians the following day.

Surmounts All Obstacles.

Mr. Adams, in fact, has sat with brother members in Ontario, Canada; San Antonio, Tex.; New York City; Terre Haute, Ind., and innumerable cities in California, Georgia, and Florida. Often, of course, these furious dashes presented obstacles, such as bad weather, but they only served to whet his appetite.

He admits that his wife and relatives are not always sympathetic to his schedule. There was a time, for example, when his brother-in-law [no Kiwanian] became mildly irritated because they had to stay an extra 24 hours in Ontario, Canada, so that Mr. Adams could attend a meeting there the following day.

"I've had to go to some meetings on crutches," he reminisces, "and I've made others by having my sons-in-law take me on a stretcher or in a wheel chair. You get to feel a kind of pressure when the time comes for the next meeting, you know, and you feel you've got to make it.

At an average of 65 cents a meal, his Kiwanis luncheons have cost him $676, but says the experience has been worth it. He wears his large button labeled "19" with a satisfied smile and is anxiously awaiting the arrival of No. 20, the only one in existence.

An undertaker, Mr. Adams has two married daughters—Mrs. Grace Whitesel, 9117 Houston avenue, and Mrs. Bernice Feldhoff, who lives with him—and four grandchildren. He predicts that there are at least five more years of perfect attendance ahead of him.

BRIGHTER 63D STREET ASSURED BY NEW LIGHTS

42 Lamps Have 1,000 Candlepower Each.

The $5,000 illumination project on 63d street between Wentworth avenue and Halsted street is expected to be completed this week. The new illumination will be provided by 42 lights placed on every other trolley pole. The new lights, 1,000 candlepower each, will add to the illumination provided by the present 600 candlepower lamps.

Bulbs and reflectors will be used instead of globes. The ordinance providing for this project, passed on Oct. 31, was introduced by Ald. William T. Murphy [17th], who worked with the Englewood Business Men's association, of which L. C. Smith is president, in campaigning for the lighting project.

Dissatisfaction with the former lighting system lay in the fact that the section was too dark after the stores close. So long as the 63d street stores between Halsted and Wentworth were lighted in the evening, there was sufficient illumination. When they were closed the street was left dark for the most dangerous hours of the night.

A future improvement on the southwest side will be stop and go lights at the intersection of West 76th street and South Ashland avenue. Accidents at this spot indicate it is one of the city's dangerous crossings. Ald. Bernard O'Hallaren [18th] has been working for the traffic lights.

SURVEY SHOWS HOUSING NEEDS OF SOUTH AREAS

First Report Rates 7 Communities.

A survey by the Chicago Plan commission reveals that seven near south side communities have an infant mortality rate that is 10 per cent higher than the average for the entire city. The area also averages more than twice as many cases of tuberculosis per 1,000 persons and has 5 per cent more juvenile delinquents than the average for Chicago. Dwellings average 15 years older than habitations outside the district and only 64.5 per cent are equipped with private toilets and baths, compared to 84.7 per cent for the city.

The communities are Armour Square, Oakland, Fuller park, Washington park, McKinley park, Bridgeport, and the near south side neighborhood between Roosevelt road, the river, and 26th street.

Picture in Statistics.

The study, released in booklets by George T. Horton, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, comprises part of the housing phase of the Chicago Land Use survey rapidly nearing completion. It offers statistics which are considered to be of vital importance in determining economic and social health, such as housing conditions, population composition and trends, and health and delinquency rates.

The survey further revealed that, with the exception of McKinley park, the communities exceed the whole city in birth rate, general mortality rate, communicable disease [not children's] morbidity rate, and epidemic meningitis morbidity rate. In one community the tuberculosis rate per 1,000 persons is more than three times greater than the average for the city, and in another community there are over four times as many juvenile delinquents per 100 males as there are in the city.

The median year in which the houses in these communities were built is 1891; while for the city the median year is 1906. Only 26 per cent of the families live in single structure dwellings, as against 42 per cent for the city. In most of these communities rentals are one-half the average for city rentals.

McKinley Park Average.

Closest to the city average in most of the data studied is the McKinley park community, which is bounded by the canal, the south fork of the Chicago river, West Pershing road, South Artesian avenue, Archer avenue, and the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago, and St. Louis railroad. It is almost exactly the same as the city as a whole as to structures in good condition needing minor repairs, infant mortality and general mortality rates, and epidemic meningitis morbidity rate.

It has less juvenile delinquency and more owner occupied buildings than the city average and a smaller communicable disease and children's disease death rate.

The near south side neighborhood [roughly lying between Roosevelt road, the river and 26th street] is most at variance with averages for Chicago. This community averages four times as many delinquents, three times as many cases of tuberculosis, and three times as much communicable disease as the city, and only 2.6 per cent of its buildings are occupied by owners.

The survey is expected to be of value for the future planning of Chicago and valuable as a reference for public agencies, civic organizations, public utilities, business firms, and other groups.

BIG EXPANSION PROPOSED FOR SOUTHERN AREA

Palos Hills Sector to Be Enlarged.

Acreage of the forest preserves on the south and southwest sides, already the most extensive in Cook county, is to be increased by 16 per cent under a plan that will be considered by the forest preserve board at its meeting next Tuesday.

This plan contemplates the purchase of about 2,600 acres in the southern end of Cook county in addition to the 16,500 acres now owned by the district in this area.

Altogether, a total of approximately 4,650 acres will be purchased by the district during the next three years, if the plan is approved. This will bring its holdings up to the statutory limit of 39,000 acres, to which it was increased from 35,000 acres at the recent special session of the legislature.

Half for South Area.

Thus the southern part of the county stands to receive more than half of the proposed new reserves.

Most of the new acquisitions are scheduled for the vast Palos Hills region, in which the district already holds 8,251 acres. This area will be increased by about 10 per cent under the new plan.

The Palos program calls for the acquisition of large tracts along the Calumet Sag channel to fill out the wide gap that now exists between the preserves to the north and south of the waterway.

It also calls for purchase of an extensive strip between Archer avenue and the Alton railroad, extending southwestward from the vicinity of 95th street, another big area in the neighborhood of 111th street and the Tri-State highway, and still another in the southeast corner of the McGinnes slough reserve.

In the Tinley Creek-Oak Forest region the plan would add three small tracts to Mascoutin woods and one to St. Mihiel woods.

Thorn Creek Addition.

It would extend the Thorn Creek reserve northeastward by the addition of a large tract along the creek north of 182d street, and nine smaller areas, most of them between 183d street and Joe Orr road. The proposal also calls for the addition of two large and three small tracts to the Little Calumet-Wolf lake units of the forest preserve.

Details of the plan were worked out by the forest preserve advisory committee, which is headed by Edward Eagle Brown. Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve district, announced that body would act on the proposal as soon as its members had finished a study of it. He expressed agreement with the advisory board's opinion that the purchase of new territory should be made as soon as possible.

Bernard J. Kewin, head of the board's real estate division, outlined the procedure usually followed in acquiring new property.

The first step, he said, is to notify the landowner by letter that the board would like to buy his property at a reasonable figure, and inviting him to a conference aimed at setting a fair price.

Learn Facts Beforehand.

In many cases agreement is reached at the first meeting, and the transaction is speedily completed. Some property owners hold out for an exorbitant price or otherwise raise obstacles, which makes it necessary for the board to start condemnation proceedings.

"We know all the angles," Kewin said. "Before negotiating for the purchase of a piece of property, we learn its history. We find how much was paid for it, how much is owed against it, what it should bring by comparison with other nearby property. We have it appraised by the Chicago Real Estate board.

"We don't hope to pick up additional property for nothing, but neither do we propose to pay more than a piece of property is worth. We have no trouble with those who understand those simple facts."

Several of the proposed new purchases are designed to provide missing links in the projected forest preserve way, a strip of land about 200 feet wide which will connect the various preserves.

LIKES CITIZENS' SHOW.

I was much interested in the "Citizens of Tomorrow" radio broadcast yesterday, it spoke so much of the past history of Hyde Park High school and the old Ray school. I attended both schools in the good old days, which now seem so far, far away. The broadcast took me back in thought and it was a blessing. I am in a nursing home in La Grange and naturally the time drags by interminably. A year ago a friend sent me a radio from the east and I don't know what I would have done without it. I enjoy the W-G-N programs very much.

HELEN EASTMAN KILNER,

PRAISE FOR CENTER.

I would like to thank the South Chicago community center publicly for what it has done to my boy. Here in South Chicago a mother worries about her child because there is much bad influence, if you don't watch out. But my younger boy goes regularly to the center where he not only can play basketball and other games but he can also learn something, like carving things in wood, or developing photographs—things that he can use when he is a man looking for a job. They seem to keep him busy there all the time, and all of it is free. MRS. L. J.

TWO CAR RIDER.

I live on East 79th street and I work on West 79th street. Naturally I ride the 79th street cars. Altho I stay on the same street I often need two cars to get to work. I ride along until just past State street. Then I'm invited to get off and board the car ahead. This doesn't always happen, but it frequently does. I don't know why. No one else seems to know why. 'Way back in the days of horse cars, I suppose the horses were tired. Maybe the custom was of shifting passengers at 79th and State is a holdover from the dobbin trolley era. A. P.

DOUBLE PARKING DANGER.

Isn't there some law against parking double in Chicago—even on East 71st street? I am obliged to drive down that congested street several times a day and each time I barely miss one or two persons stepping out from behind a car parked double. It's getting on my nerves, so I earnestly beseech our police force to enforce this restriction before some pedestrian is maimed or killed. E. S. Z.

MOTHERS GROUP TO CELEBRATE 40TH BIRTHDAY

Pageant to Show Growth of Woodlawn Club.

Woodlawn Mothers Round Table will celebrate its 40th birthday at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church, 6400 Kimbark avenue. On the program will be a pageant depicting the growth and accomplishments of the club since its organization.

Mrs. E. A. Johnson, president, will preside and Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, 7136 Euclid avenue, twice past president, will direct the pageant.

The club was organized in 1901 as a discussion group of young mothers and was known as the Presbyterian Mothers club. Two years later the present name was adopted and membership opened to women of all faiths. Play's the Thing

Participants in the recreation program at James R. Mann park at 130th street and Carondelet avenue who receive tips on basketball playing from Attendant J. V. McGowan will do well to listen intently to his advice.

"Mac," as his friends call him, has attained such proficiency at the game in the 17 years he has been playing it that his services are much in demand as a player. He is playing currently with the Chicago Bruins and the Hammond Cesars.

One reason "Mac" is generous about imparting secrets of his skill to park patrons is that he got his own start in the gymnasiums at Cornell Square and Sherman parks, under the tutelage of Mike Griffin and Bob Wach, athletic instructors for the park district.

He says his ambition is to coach basketball, even after he has ceased actual play. He also likes softball and tennis—in fact virtually every sporting activity, he declares. "Mac" lives at 6636 Maryland avenue.

SHORT STORIES COLLECTED IN RADIO STUDIOS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Haunting the studios during rehearsals and at broadcasts a radio reporter turns up amusing little incidents and anecdotes involving the big stars of radio. For example:

Anna Neagle had spent hours of rehearsing in W-G-N's main studio for the radio première of her new movie "No, No, Nanette" when Herbert Wilcox, her manager and director, reminded her that she had had nothing to eat all day. She admitted she was hungry.

So Mr. Wilcox sent out for tea and rolls. When they arrived Miss Neagle had returned to the stage to work on "Tea for Two!" For a few minutes it looked like tea for Mr. Wilcox and cold tea for Miss Neagle! But there came a break—and she got her tea.

Last week while Jane Froman was rehearsing a popular song for "In Chicago Tonight," her mother was an interested studio visitor. She had come up for the occasion from Columbia, Mo., where she formerly headed the vocal department at Christian college. Mrs. Froman recalled that for many years Jane and she had sung together. Their voices are similar. Mrs. Froman had hoped that her daughter would become an opera star. All of her training was pointed toward that goal. But Jane moved into the popular field after she came to the attention of Paul Whiteman. Her mother feels that the unique success Jane has attained as a songstress is in a large measure due to the good vocal training she had as a child.

Gerard Darrow, the 8 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, was interviewed a few weeks ago on the June Baker program. After recounting highlights of his meteoric career Gerard got around to telling about his hobbies. "I collect locks of hair," he said, extracting a curly specimen from his coat pocket.

"I even have one hair from Joe Kelly's head," he boasted. [Joe is the balding master of ceremonies of the Quiz Kids show.]

Alec Templeton, the blind pianist and impressionist, was a studio guest the evening Richard Bonelli and Marion Claire starred in "The Desert Song." In a few minutes he had memorized all the dramatic rôles, catalogued the voices portraying them and fastened the names of the actors firmly in his mind. Several of the voices he correctly identified with rôles in the daytime serials, of which he is an avid follower. Alec was particularly intrigued by the voice of Bobby Jellison and asked afterwards to meet him.

After the broadcast Alec was besieged by autograph fans. He invited them to send him written requests with their names and addresses.

While photographers were taking pictures after a recent broadcast of "In Chicago Tonight," the guest performers including Yvette, the "Creoriole," held an informal jam session. Bob Zurke played the piano and the Mills brothers contributed some of their liveliest harmony.

Yvette, whose specialties are Parisian songs and quaint tunes based on French nursery rhymes, joined in the hot music, too. She recalled that she got acquainted with jazz singing while attending a convent school in New Orleans. In the evenings the wailing blues of street singers were wafted within the convent walls.

Many W-G-N listeners will recall the story about the colored aviator carrying propaganda leaflets into Germany which Comedian Benny Baker told last week on W-G-N. Baker had an alternative story. But there was time for just one on the program, so he picked the one above. The other runs something like this:

A foreigner on arriving in America had difficulty with the language. A friend after days of struggle taught him the words "Apple pie and coffee."

Thus, the alien was able in a measure to satisfy his gastronomic wants in restaurants. Ultimately he tired of this diet and asked his friend to teach him some additional words. After a struggle lasting several days the newcomer mastered "Swiss cheese." Armed with his new vocabulary he entered a restaurant and sang out "Swiss cheese."

"On white or rye?" queried the waitress.

Befuddled, the foreigner paused for a moment and then exclaimed, "Apple pie and coffee."

Plans Visit to Poe Home.

The Edgar Allan Poe Foundation in Richmond, Va., site of the home of the famed American literary figure, will be visited by Ted Malone during his American Pilgrimage broadcast at 1 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

On W-G-N

Lola Lane of the Lane sisters of movie fame will make a guest appearance on "In Chicago Tonight" at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

BRITAIN STILL HEARS MUSIC, SZIGETI REPORTS

Bombing Raids Fail to End Concerts.

Despite nerve wracking bombings, blackouts, and the complete interruption of a normal social life, symphonic music still flourishes in war-torn England.

Joseph Szigeti, the great violinist, who is heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 6 p. m. every Sunday in a series with Alfred Wallenstein's orchestra, reported that he has recently received letters from friends in England which have contained thrilling accounts of the courage displayed by the concert stars to satisfy the desire which the English people still have to hear serious music.

Not only are concerts being given regularly in London, but symphony orchestras are taking their music to sections of the suburbs and provinces where concerts were rarely heard before the war.

Often, as an audience is listening to the swelling strains of some great symphony, the music is suddenly overwhelmed by the screech of air raid sirens, Mr. Szigeti reported. Those in the concert hall cannot leave until the raid is over. As a result, a unique kind of "air raid concert" has been developed.

When a raid keeps an audience in a concert hall after the scheduled program is completed, the musicians stage an impromtu concert that lasts until the "all clear" signal sounds. They improvise and play their favorite music. If any musicians are spotted in the audience, they are invited to join in. Sometimes these impromptu concerts last until morning.

Such noted artists as the pianist Myra Hess, he reported, give dozens of morale-bolstering recitals every week.

Sometimes they play even in underground shelters.

IMMACULATA IS NEXT SCHOOL ON 'CITIZENS' HOUR

The Immaculata High school of Chicago will be the first Catholic school to be heard on the Chicago Tribune's radio program, Citizens of Tomorrow from 4:30 to 5 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N.

Msgr. D. F. Cunningham, superintendent of the Catholic schools of the archdiocese of Chicago, will be the guest speaker. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, member of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's editorial staff, who takes the rôle of the principal and is master of ceremonies of the program.

Featured on the half hour broadcast will be the Immaculata Glee club, under the direction of Walter Aschenbrenner. The girls will sing three numbers, "Hymn to Christ the King," by Rafael; "Alphabet," by Mozart, and "Lift Thine Eyes," by Mendelssohn.

Announcer Charles Victor will select 6 girls from the 600 students in attendance at the broadcast to take part in the Tribune news quiz. Winners of the quiz are awarded $5 bills.

Three more names of outstanding Chicagoland students are to be added to the Citizens of Tomorrow Honor Roll. They are Jane Strohm, Indianapolis, Ind.; Wallace McLain, Hillsdale, Mich., and Donald Veile, Dixon, Ill.

'Oath of Revenge' Story on Inside of Sports

The fields of boxing and basketball will be explored this week for the "once in a lifetime" tales on the "Inside of Sports." This popular sports program heard from 6:45 to 7 p. m. each week night over W-G-N and the Mutual network features the "once in a lifetime" thrills every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. Thursday will bring forth a strange story of an "Oath of Revenge," once taken against a famous heavyweight champion of the world, John Morrissey.

CONCERT HOUR TO BE AIRED AT 8:30 WEDNESDAY

'Blossom Time' Next on Theater of Air.

A variety of fine music ranging from Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" to the love hymn "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms,"' will be heard on the Chicagoland Concert hour from 8:30 to 9 p. m. next Wednesday. This program, formerly broadcast on Monday nights, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. on Wednesdays.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Marion Claire, soprano star, will present Thomas' "Connais-tu-le Pays" from "Mignon" for her featured number. The augmented W-G-N chorus will form the background for Miss Claire's rendition of the "Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana.

The complete program follows:

Overture: "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" .. Mozart
Orchestra.
"Connais-tu le Pays" from Mignon .. Thomas
Marion Claire.
"Tango" .... Albeniz
Orchestra.
"Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" .... Moore
Chorus.
Speech ....
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
"Voices of Spring" .... Strauss
Orchestra.
"Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana .... Mascagni
Marion Claire, Chorus.

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will lead the W-G-N Concert orchestra in selections from the works of Mozart, Albeniz and Strauss. The W-G-N chorus, under Weber's baton, will sing Moore's "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

'BLOSSOM TIME' NEXT

The life, love, and haunting music of Franz Schubert will live again for an hour when the Chicago Theater of the Air presents Sigmund Romberg's "Blossom Time" from 9:15 to 10:15 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network.

This will be the second presentation of "Blossom Time" in this series. The operetta was presented last spring with Marion Claire and Igor Gorin in the leading rôles. Mr. Gorin again will sing the rôle of Schubert; Miss Claire, that of Mitzi.

The success of the W-G-N operetta series has prompted the J. J. Schubert office, theatrical producers, to launch an operetta series at the Grand Opera House. "Blossom Time," with Everett Marshall as the star, will be the first of these. It will open Tuesday evening. Other light opera productions will follow.

W-G-N announced last night that because of the many requests for tickets to the Chicago Theater of the Air performances remaining to be filled, no additional applications for tickets to this series will be considered for the present.

The music of "Blossom Time," by Sigmund Romberg, is based on airs by Schubert, and the operetta itself is the story of his life, love, and music. In the climatic scene, Schubert plays the theme melody, "This Is My Song of Love," based on his "Unfinished Symphony."

The duet, "Ave Maria," by Mr. Gorin and Miss Claire, with its haunting refrain, "Peace, Peace to My Lonely Heart," will be one of the highlights of the show. Other familiar melodies will be the lovely, reminiscent, "There in Old Vienna," the throbbing "Marche Militaire," and in a lighter vein, "Tell Me Daisy." Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra.

The operetta will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

ARTHUR HENNING TO START 7TH ANNUAL SERIES

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will start his seventh annual series of "Capital Comment" programs over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 7:30 tonight. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work, and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Henning has covered 20 national political conventions.

Test Pilot's Marital Woes on W-G-N Divorce Drama

How the dangers of a test pilot's hazardous duties cause marital strife will be the theme of the "I Want a Divorce" dramatic show over W-G-N and the Mutual network, from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Friday. The pilot's wife, will be played by Joan Blondell, famous movie actress.

DEFENSE BILL TO BE TOPIC OF REVIEW STAND

How the defense powers bill now before congress will affect the life of the average citizen will be discussed on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 10:15 today.

Dr. Earl H. DeLong, professor of political science and Stewart McMullen, professor of accounting and federal income taxes, both of Northwestern university, will answer questions about the effects of the President's proposals.

Some of the questions are: Will the new defense bill affect Mr. John Q. Public's pay check? Will it affect his cost of living? What will it mean to his children and to their future?

PAGEANT OF MELODY FOR TOMORROW NIGHT WILL BE CANCELED

Officials of W-G-N have announced that because of circumstances beyond their control the Pageant of Melody program which was scheduled from 9:30 to 10:00 p. m. tomorrow will not be broadcast. Those who have received tickets for the program will be admitted to a future Pageant of Melody program, if they make their request to the W-G-N ticket office, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

W-G-N AND MUTUAL TO BROADCAST THREE INAUGURAL PROGRAMS

Three programs from Washington, all devoted to the inaugural ceremonies of President Roosevelt, will be heard over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network today and tomorrow.

The first broadcast will be an inaugural preview commentary from 2 to 2:05 p. m. today. Announcers and commentators covering the inauguration will bring radio listeners a preview of the inauguration plans.

As part of its coverage W-G-N—Mutual will present the Inauguration Concert at Constitution hall from 9:50 to 10 tonight. On this broadcast Charlie Chaplin will deliver his closing speech from "The Great Dictator," Nelson Eddy will sing, and Hans Kindler will conduct the National Symphony orchestra.

The President's departure from the White House and his ride to the inaugural stand as well as administration of the oath of office by Chief Justice Hughes, and Mr. Roosevelt's inaugural address will be broadcast from 10:15 to 12 noon tomorrow.

Albany Link for Mutual.

WABY of Albany, N. Y., has joined the Mutual Broadcasting system as the network's 173d affiliate. WABY is t obe the key station in a projected regional hookup for central-northern New York state, with which Mutual will be allied.

HOLTZ, LOLA LANE TO BE FEATURED ON CHICAGO HOUR

Comedian Lou Holtz and Lola Lane of Hollywood fame will be two of the headliners to appear on In Chicago Tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday.

Lou Holtz gained his reputation as a comedian both on the stage and then radio. He specializes in dialect stories, his best known tales revolving around the experiences of the fictitious character, "Sam Lapidus." Holtz is currently appearing at the State-Lake theater with a group of movie stars, including Miss Lane, Wendy Barrie, and Arlene Judge.

Lola Lane beat her other famous sisters to Hollywood, but Rosemary [who is appearing around the corner from her sister, at the Oriental] and Priscilla have caught up with her. They have been featured in the Warner Brothers' popular pictures series, the latest of which is "Four Mothers." Miss Lane was born in Macy, Ind., and made her name in vaudeville as a singer and dancer until she went to Hollywood in 1928.

Other features of the show will be the W-G-N chorus directed by Bob Trendler and the W-G-N Dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

QUILL MATCHES HIS SKILL WITH AFRICAN FAKIRS'

Deepest and darkest Africa will provide the scene for the "Devil's Magic" episode of "Peter Quill" to be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. today over W-G-N and Mutual.

Gail Carson and Capt. Dorn penetrate the mysterious jungles of the panther worshipers in quest of an unknown drug which they have reason to believe is being used by a spy. When the purpose of their mission is discovered, the cannibals subject them to the inhuman "Rite of Ju Ju." They are saved from death in the pit of the black panther when Peter Quill arrives with a chemical trick or two that surpasses those of the African fakirs.

The weekly episodes of "Peter Quill" are written and produced by Blair Walliser. Marvin Mueller, Alice Hill, and Ken Griffin portray the leading characters.

ENGLISH WOMAN TELLS FEELINGS AFTER BOMBING

Letter Reveals Britishers Remain Calm.

Housewives in the Chicago area, who feel they have cause to complain when the routine of their daily tasks is interrupted occasionally by a broken gadget or a leaking faucet, should change places for a while with a woman in Croydon, England, who describes her war-time experiences in a Christmas letter recently received in Chicago.

Between the lines of the uncensored letter, there is the picture of the ordinary homekeeper whose "washing of the tea things" is disturbed by an exploding bomb that blows out the windows and doors and covers the furniture with soot.

Siren Is Moaning Mona.

Writing in a vein that mingles humor with tragedy, the English woman explains that she never goes down town at night for fear of being caught in an air raid and that she never goes to the 'pictures' for the same reason. Nicknames for the sirens, she informs, are "Moaning Mona," and "Wailing Willie."

The letter, in part, follows:

"On Nov. 8 two big bombs were dropped at the corner of the road behind a bank. The explosions were terrific. We felt the house rock and the ground heave under our feet. There was an awful roaring sound, and the breaking of glass and things falling. We were in the dining room and it was 6:45 p. m. I had just come out of the kitchen after washing the tea things. Fire came out in a wave of flame with each explosion and we were covered with soot, but we were unhurt. We went into the hall to go to the kitchen, thinking it would be safer. The hall door was blown open, the lock and bolts forced, and everywhere covered with broken glass.

"Nearly every bit of glass in the doors and windows was blown out, window frames blown in, part of four ceilings down, and most of the tiles off the back of the roof.

Houses Are Condemned.

"The damage is enormous. Every house in this road and the road where the bombs dropped have been damaged, some beyond repair. They have been condemned and the people evacuated, but no one was hurt. The bank was demolished but the people who lived over the bank escaped without a scratch.

"We have been blasted once and we pray we may never experience it again. We were very shaky but are getting over it now. The worst of it is we have all the windows done in black rubberoid stuff and have to keep the electric lights on all the time.

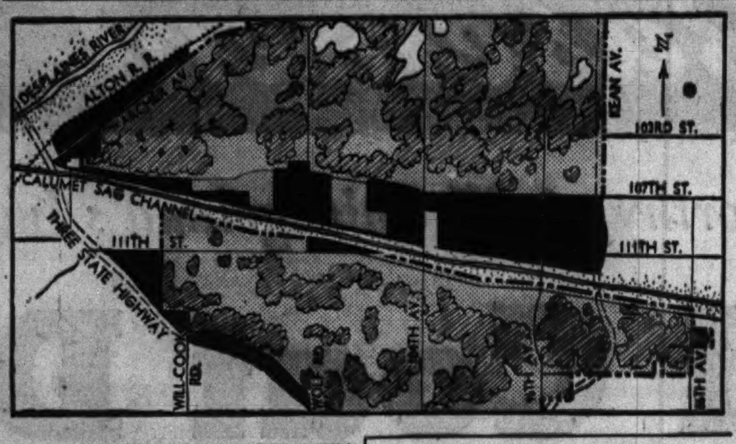
"We get 'Jerry' over day and night. We have not undressed since the blitz began. You would laugh if you could peep at us at night, one in each big arm chair with plenty of pillows and rugs, our feet propped up on stools, the curtains drawn and well blacked out, the fire on and a light burning. We go to sleep, if the noise of the guns and plane is not too bad. Usually we wake up between 1 and 2 in the morning and have a cup of tea and bread and butter.

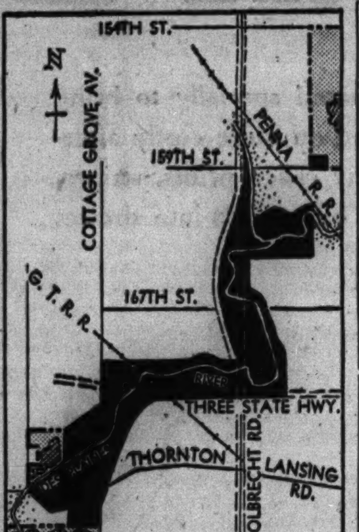
Try to Be Normal.

"We civilians are in the front line. We have all got our chins well up. We are all very grateful for the help you are giving us in every way, for your sympathy as well as material help. We will prove ourselves worthy of it. Everyone is calm and brave, going about and trying to live our normal lives as much as possible.

"One of our friends, as soon as she heard about our house, wired for us to go to her house and make it our home. Bless her for the kind thought. But we feel we cannot leave our home because we cannot lock it up and secure it properly. There is such a lot of looting going on. It would be horrid to come back and find our house looted."

Proposed Forest Additions





These maps show (in black) the location of much of the land the forest preserve district proposes to add to its extensive holdings in southern and southwestern Cook county. The district trustees are expected to act on the expansion proposal next Tuesday.

Woodlawn Auxiliary.

The Woman's auxiliary of the Woodlawn hospital will hear Rudolph J. Mohr, horticulturist, speak on the care of plants and method of propagation Wednesday afternoon.

NATION'S STATUS IN AIR IS TOPIC FOR B'NAI B'RITH

Flyer-Photographer to Lecture Wednesday.

The South Side B'nai B'rith lodge will hear Canfield Cook talk on "America Prepares in the Air" at the meeting in Hirsch center, 4622 South Park way, Wednesday evening. Mr. Cook, who saw active service as a member of the Royal Air force in the last war, recently completed a color film for the United States Air corps entitled "Flying for Security."

The lodge's drama group will give a one act play, "The Inside Story," at the meeting. Directed by Earl George, the cast will include George Spelvin, Betty Fishbein, Arthur Grossman, Irving Zongere, Irving Freeman, and Lester Plotkin.

Four south siders are among the dozen leaders in the Chicago B'nai B'rith council drive to enroll 7,500 new members before the national triennial convention here in March. They are Harry Goodman, 5208 Drexel boulevard; Charles Louer, 1755 East 55th street; Benjamin Samuels, 5421 Cornell avenue, and I. B. Yallowitz, 7828 Phillips avenue. The south side lodge leads the 13 other Chicago lodges in membership so far, having recruited 174 persons.

Prof. Frederick Schuman, lecturer on political science and foreign affairs, will be heard at International house Wednesday evening in the second of a series of public lectures sponsored by the B'nai B'rith Hillel foundation. He will speak on "America Faces the Caesars." Dr. Schuman formerly was associated with the University of Chicago and has taught summer school at Harvard university and the University of California. Currently he is the Woodrow Wilson professor of government at George Williams college.

The men's club and sisterhood of the South Side Hebrew congregation will give a dance at the Covenant club this evening. Proceeds will go toward building a recreational community center for children, the men's club project, and paying the deficit of the religious school, the sisterhood project.

The Rodfei Zedek sisterhood will present Miss Viola Roth in a reading of the Broadway play, "George Washington Slept Here," tomorrow noon in the community house, 1022 East 54th place. A graduate of the Northwestern University School of Speech, Miss Roth is a faculty member of the Chicago Conservatory of Music. Mrs. Maurice Goldblatt is president of the group, Mrs. Bernard Jadwin is program chairman and hostesses for the afternoon are Mrs. Jacob May and Mrs. Joseph Goodman.

REMODELING OLD HOME ADDS YEARS TO USEFULNESS

Antioch Couple Renews House Thruout.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A letter has come to me telling of a worth while remodeling which was done last year in Antioch. The letter was from F. J. Berg, 410 Hardin street, Antioch.

It is interesting not only because of the work done, which was essentially practical and attractive and certainly a wise investment, but because it tells of an experience so many people are planning for the coming year.

The letter follows:

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Some time ago I wrote you for advice on siding for an old house which I had bought and wished to remodel.

"You replied and I want to thank you for your suggestions. Certain details lagged somewhat which accounts for my delay.

Old Porches Removed.

"We tore down both the front and side porches and built a bay in the front. We widened the house at the side and thereby increased the size of the dining room. At the rear of the house we removed a laundry and old woodshed and substituted a new back porch with a trellis. And off the dining room we built a new screened porch.

"We also changed the inside of the house considerably. We widened the opening between the dining room and living room, which gave the appearance of much greater space, and we arched several of the door openings.

Basement Excavated.

"A basement was excavated under all but the kitchen and retaining walls of concrete built. A warm air furnace was installed and, new roofs were laid and exterior walls of wide siding.

"Like all remodeling work it turned out to be a bigger job than I had figured, but now that it is done, Mrs. Berg and I are very satisfied with it all. We also feel quite proud of it as we planned it ourselves.

"J. F. BERG."

The original house had stood for many years and had not been maintained in the manner it deserved. Now, inside and out, it has been brought up to modern standards, as have the surrounding lawns and walks.

Plan For Future.

Many people this last year, like Mr. and Mrs. Berg, bought an old home and transformed it, giving it countless years of new usefulness. Many people will do the same this coming year.

Only last week a man said to me: "My wife and I were just married last summer but we've already bought an old house and have started to do it over. We liked the lot, 10 big trees on it and all kinds of shrubbery and bushes and vines. The house is pretty down at the heels but we're looking forward to some real fun doing it over. We had an architect tell us frankly what he thought about the purchase before we went ahead. He was for it. The house is sound, all right. It's just been neglected. We feel we have a real buy—and real fun ahead."

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 20.

Sow pansies, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, English daisies, vinca rosea, and similar plants now to obtain good strong plants for early planting. Pansies like the cool conditions of early summer and a rich, mellow soil. They like a bit of shade because the heat of summer soon affects them. Try selecting varieties for color effects.

Among the newest annuals are the wildfire marigolds, single, free flowering and in bright scarlet, deep orange, yellow, and mahogany, with variegated sorts; a new Swiss chard that looks like rhubarb and is colored like a delicate crimson foliage plant. The All-American annuals are petunia blue brocade, petunia radiance, petunia first lady, and marigold spry.

The new marigolds are useful for city gardens, but where annuals are grown the gardener should never neglect thinning if the seed is sown broadcast. Scabiosa peace is recommended, for it stands upright better than the taller sorts and is fine for cutting.

Tuesday, Jan. 21.

Paperwhite narcissus bulbs are still available and as they are so easily grown and are so useful for their decorative effect a few should be added to the window garden. Four to six inch pots may be used with a rich garden loam. Drainage should cover the hole in the bottom of the pots; water thoroly and stand in a cool dark place until well rooted.

Wednesday, Jan. 22.

Pruning shrubs is important. Shrubs that flower on wood made the past season should be pruned as soon as their blossoms fade. The following are examples: Deutzia, fringetree, goldenbell, Missouri currant, bush honeysuckle, except those with ornamental fruits; magnolia; lilac, most climbing roses, spirea, and weigela.

Summer and spring blooming shrubs also include the barberry, coralberry, hydrangea, matrimonyvine, snowberry, and others. When ordering shrubs include a few that attract birds for the fruits they bear, such as the cornelian cherry, mulberry, a small tree, mountain ash, and wild grapes to serve as a screen.

Thursday, Jan. 23.

Examine lilac bushes and if scales are present spray on a warm day with lime and sulphur. If branches become too infested they will be best removed entirely. Remember, too, that the plant flowers on wood made the previous season should be pruned after flowering.

Friday, Jan. 24.

Procure organic manures to spread over ground that is to be spaded in spring. These manures contain little food elements as compared with the commercial products, and the latter is about the only available source of food for city gardens. It is valuable on house plants.

Saturday, Jan. 25.

Spray the fern occasionally or simply dip the plant in a tub or bucket of water to remove dust. The ironclad plant [aspidistra] that has outgrown the pot should be separated and the sections potted.

Do not allow the Christmas cactus to dry out and do not overwater it or the buds will drop. When the poinsettia plant drops its leaves it is indicative that the resting period has arrived.

WORKERS STUDY THEIR JOBS IN LIBRARY BOOKS

Chicago Lawn Office Makes Report.

Chicago Lawn workers and prospective workers are interested in giving worthwhile service for their paychecks if the reading trend at the Chicago Lawn branch library is indicative.

Mrs. Florence Richards, branch librarian, has been making out her annual report. She finds that the second largest gain in circulation is in useful arts, the trade and professional books. The top gain is always in fiction, she says, so the second largest figure is likely to be the interesting one from a community trend standpoint.

Mrs. Richards has a little extra information on her records. She knows not only what books are being read, but who reads them. She's had an occupation file since July of 1939. A few years ago, psychology, books stood second on the list. Now that classification has dropped to sixth at Chicago Lawn.

Factory Workers Join Readers.

Counting fiction and useful arts as first and second on the reading list, the other classifications are, in order: fine arts [including much opera reading], biography, sciences, and, finally, psychology.

Mrs. Richards' employment record finds the year's biggest group reading gain among factory workers. Last year there were no factory workers among the borrowers. This year 21 have taken books. Gains are checked by losses, however. While 111 housewives borrowed a year ago, only 63 read library books last year. The office worker file dropped from 98 to 53, and the 15 school teacher borrowers lost one.

More Trades Represented.

Mrs. Richards believes that her figures are interesting, however, in the classes of readers gained. Six mechanical trades employés took books in 1939; 37 borrowed in 1940. Professional men and women readers increased by an even dozen; waitresses and domestics doubled their number, laborers jumped from two to eight. There were gains among grammar school and high school readers, also. College readers more than doubled.

Evidently those who look forward to retirement as a period for reading don't carry thru that plan. Chicago Lawn had one borrower listed as "retired" in 1939; last year, there were two, a good showing in percentage, but not in actual count, Mrs. Richards says.

A Railroader for 50 Years Still on Job

Harry M. Durkee, 68 years old, known as the "dean of railroad conductors," has a golden eagle emblem to prove his seniority now. He received the award last week in recognition of 50 consecutive years of service with the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad.

Now the veteran railroader will wear the eagle on his uniform coatsleeve in place of the star and four bars denoting 45 years of service. Mr. Durkee and his wife reside at 5936 Normal avenue.

The story of Mr. Durkee's career is necessarily the story of railroad development. He began working on the C & E I when he was 18 years old. He was a passenger brakeman on general suburban service.

Remembers Stove Heat.

In 1898 he became a conductor. He recalls that his duties as a conductor in 1898 were very different from now. His biggest job in the old days, he says, was to keep the passengers comfortable.

He explains, "The cars were heated by coal stoves, and the passengers huddled around to keep warm. The conductor had to try to see that both the passengers and the stoves rode well. Then there were oil lamps for lights, and there were open platforms to keep an eye on. When we were going 40 miles an hour we were really sailing thru the country."

There was a first-time rider on nearly every train Durkee took out in the early days. Now train riders are pretty sophisticated.

Recalls Early Miami.

Mr. Durkee has the Chicago-Evansville run on the Dixie Limited, one of the C & E I Florida trains. When he went to work 50 years ago the road had only one Florida train. He and Mrs. Durkee went to Miami on their honeymoon 37 years ago, then little more than a stop on the railroad.

When Mr. Durkee isn't riding on a train he is likely to be riding on a boat. His favorite vacation is a lake cruise. And his hobbies appear to be the kind that keep him traveling, for when he hasn't time for a cruise he likes to go on long walks. Mr. and Mrs. Durkee have a son, Edward M. Durkee.

SURVEY SHOWS HOUSING NEEDS OF SOUTH AREAS

First Report Rates 7 Communities.

A survey by the Chicago Plan commission reveals that seven near south side communities have an infant mortality rate that is 10 per cent higher than the average for the entire city. The area also averages more than twice as many cases of tuberculosis per 1,000 persons and has 5 per cent more juvenile delinquents than the average for Chicago. Dwellings average 15 years older than habitations outside the district and only 64.5 per cent are equipped with private toilets and baths, compared to 84.7 per cent for the city.

The communities are Armour Square, Oakland, Fuller park, Washington park, McKinley park, Bridgeport, and the near south side neighborhood between Roosevelt road, the river, and 26th street.

Picture in Statistics.

The study, released in booklets by George T. Horton, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, comprises part of the housing phase of the Chicago Land Use survey rapidly nearing completion. It offers statistics which are considered to be of vital importance in determining economic and social health, such as housing conditions, population composition and trends, and health and delinquency rates.

The survey further revealed that, with the exception of McKinley park, the communities exceed the whole city in birth rate, general mortality rate, communicable disease [not children's] morbidity rate, and epidemic meningitis morbidity rate. In one community the tuberculosis rate per 1,000 persons is more than three times greater than the average for the city, and in another community there are over four times as many juvenile delinquents per 100 males as there are in the city.

The median year in which the houses in these communities were built is 1891; while for the city the median year is 1906. Only 26 per cent of the families live in single structure dwellings, as against 42 per cent for the city. In most of these communities rentals are one-half the average for city rentals.

McKinley Park Average.

Closest to the city average in most of the data studied is the McKinley park community, which is bounded by the canal, the south fork of the Chicago river, West Pershing road, South Artesian avenue, Archer avenue, and the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago, and St. Louis railroad. It is almost exactly the same as the city as a whole as to structures in good condi-

BIG EXPANSION PROPOSED FOR SOUTHERN AREA

Acreage of the forest preserves on the south and southwest sides, already the most extensive in Cook county, is to be increased by 16 per cent under a plan that will be considered by the forest preserve board at its meeting next Tuesday.

This plan contemplates the purchase of about 2,600 acres in the southern end of Cook county in addition to the 16,500 acres now owned by the district in this area.

Altogether, a total of approximately 4,650 acres will be purchased by the district during the next three years, if the plan is approved. This will bring its holdings up to the statutory limit of 39,000 acres, to which it was increased from 35,000 acres at the recent special session of the legislature.

Half for South Area.

Thus the southern part of the county stands to receive more than half of the proposed new reserves.

Most of the new acquisitions are scheduled for the vast Palos Hills region, in which the district already holds 8,251 acres. This area will be increased by about 10 per cent under the new plan.

The Palos program calls for the acquisition of large tracts along the Calumet Sag channel to fill out the wide gap that now exists between the preserves to the north and south of the waterway.

It also calls for purchase of an extensive strip between Archer avenue and the Alton railroad, extending southwestward from the vicinity of 95th street, another big area in the neighborhood of 111th street and the Tri-State highway, and still another in the southeast corner of the McGinnes slough reserve.

In the Tinley Creek-Oak Forest region the plan would add three small tracts to Mascoutin woods and one to St. Mihiel woods.

Thorn Creek Addition.

It would extend the Thorn Creek reserve northeastward by the addition of a large tract along the creek north of 182d street, and nine smaller areas, most of them between 183d street and Joe Orr road. The proposal also calls for the addition of two large and three small tracts to the Little Calumet-Wolf lake units of the forest preserve.

Details of the plan were worked out by the forest preserve advisory committee, which is headed by Edward Eagle Brown. Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve district, announced that body would act on the proposal as soon as its members had finished a study of it. He expressed agreement with the advisory board's opinion that the purchase of new territory should be made as soon as possible.

Bernard J. Kewin, head of the board's real estate division, outlined the procedure usually followed in acquiring new property.

The first step, he said, is to notify the landowner by letter that the board would like to buy his property at a reasonable figure, and inviting him to a conference aimed at setting a fair price.

Learn Facts Beforehand.

In many cases agreement is reached at the first meeting, and the transaction is speedily completed. Some property owners hold out for an exorbitant price or otherwise raise obstacles, which makes it necessary for the board to start condemnation proceedings.

"We know all the angles," Kewin said. "Before negotiating for the purchase of a piece of property, we learn its history. We find how much was paid for it, how much is owed against it, what it should bring by comparison with other nearby property. We have it appraised by the Chicago Real Estate board.

"We don't hope to pick up additional property for nothing, but neither do we propose to pay more than a piece of property is worth. We have no trouble with those who understand those simple facts."

Several of the proposed new purchases are designed to provide missing links in the projected forest preserve way, a strip of land about 200 feet wide which will connect the various preserves.

BRIGHTER 63D STREET ASSURED BY NEW LIGHTS

The $5,000 illumination project on 63d street between Wentworth avenue and Halsted street is expected to be completed this week. The new illumination will be provided by 42 lights placed on every other trolley pole. The new lights, 1,000 candlepower each, will add to the illumination provided by the present 600 candlepower lamps.

Bulbs and reflectors will be used instead of globes. The ordinance providing for this project, passed on Oct. 31, was introduced by Ald. William T. Murphy [17th], who worked with the Englewood Business Men's association, of which L. C. Smith is president, in campaigning for the lighting project.

Dissatisfaction with the former lighting system lay in the fact that the section was too dark after the stores close. So long as the 63d street stores between Halsted and Wentworth were lighted in the evening, there was sufficient illumination. When they were closed the street was left dark for the most dangerous hours of the night.

A future improvement on the southwest side will be stop and go lights at the intersection of West 76th street and South Ashland avenue. Accidents at this spot indicate it is one of the city's dangerous crossings. Ald. Bernard O'Hallaren [18th] has been working for the traffic lights, and the plan has been approved by the city council.

Specifications are being drawn to submit to the state highway department. When that department passes the project, the lights ill be installed. O'Hallaren is working now to obtain ordinances for lights at West 76th street and South Loomis boulevard and at West 76th street and South Damen avenue. He explains that increasing traffic at both intersections makes signals necessary.

TWO CAR RIDER.

I live on East 79th street and I work on West 79th street. Naturally I ride the 79th street cars. Altho I stay on the same street I often need two cars to get to work. I ride along until just past State street. Then I'm invited to get off and board the car ahead. This doesn't always happen, but it frequently does. I don't know why. No one else seems to know why. 'Way back in the days of horse cars, I suppose the horses were tired. Maybe the custom was of shifting passengers at 79th and State is a holdover from the dobbin trolley era. A. P.

BOOST FOR FENGER.

My children attend Fenger High school, one of the best in the city. Its rooms and corridors are large and airy. The teachers are excellent, and the principal makes a real effort to keep in contact with his charges. I want to express my appreciation for the fine work the faculty of Fenger is accomplishing. For the first time in their lives my children really enjoy going to school. MRS. P. T. R.

DOUBLE PARKING DANGER.

Isn't there some law against parking double in Chicago—even on East 71st street? I am obliged to drive down that congested street several times a day and each time I barely miss one or two persons stepping out from behind a car parked double. It's getting on my nerves, so I earnestly beseech our police force to enforce this restriction before some pedestrian is maimed or killed. E. S. Z.

SURVEY SHOWS HOUSING NEEDS OF SOUTH AREAS

First Report Evaluates Seven Communities.

It has less juvenile delinquency and more owner occupied buildings than the city average and a smaller communicable disease and children's disease death rate.

The near south side neighborhood [roughly lying between Roosevelt road, the river and 26th street] is most at variance with averages for Chicago. This community averages four times as many delinquents, three times as many cases of tuberculosis, and three times as much communicable disease as the city, and only 2.6 per cent of its buildings are occupied by owners.

Booklets in Libraries.

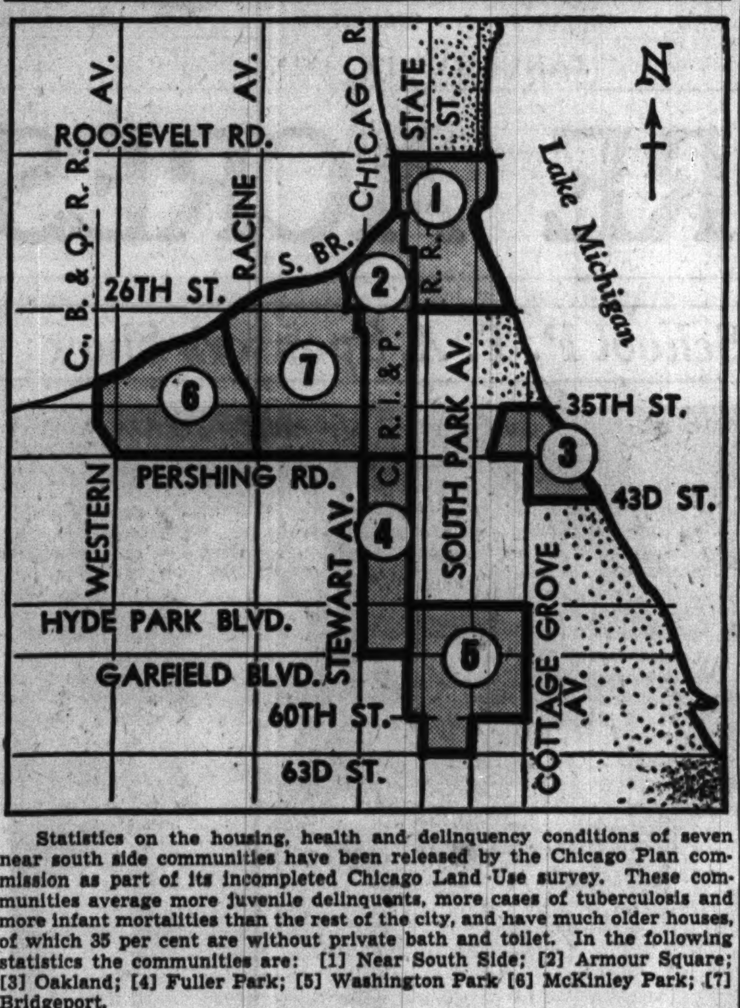
Booklets showing complete statistics of the survey, which was compiled by 3,000 workers, have been delivered to libraries, business and community organizations and other interested civic bodies. Other copies are available for public reference at the offices of the Plan commission, 208 West Washington street.

The survey is expected to be of value for the future planning of Chicago and valuable as a reference for public agencies, civic organizations, public utilities, business firms, and other groups.

BOARD OF IRISH CLUB TO SPONSOR DANCE SATURDAY

A musical program and dance will be given by the supreme board of the Irish club Saturday evening at the V. F. W. Cosmopolitan dance pavilion, 7938 South Halsted street. The program will include Irish and American dancing and a variety show. Officers and members of all units of the Irish club will be present along with representatives of south side community organizations. Officers and delegates from the club units make up the supreme board. Thomas Kelly is general chairman.

Housing Survey Reports on Seven Areas



Statistics on the housing, health and delinquency conditions of seven near south side communities have been released by the Chicago Plan commission as part of its incompleted Chicago Land Use survey. These communities average more juvenile delinquents, more cases of tuberculosis and more infant mortalities than the rest of the city, and have much older houses, of which 35 per cent are without private bath and toilet. In the following statistics the communities are: [1] Near South Side; [2] Armour Square; [3] Oakland; [4] Fuller Park; [5] Washington Park [6] McKinley Park; [7] Bridgeport.

CORNELL SQUARE READY FOR NEW INDOOR ACTIVITY

Cornell Square fieldhouse in the park at 51st and Wood streets is freshened up with newly finished floors and a newly decorated library. The girls' gymnasium classes have been interrupted twice in the fall and early winter renovating program. Once the girls had to stay away for five weeks, and another time they had to miss classes for 10 days.

Robert Wach.

Now the gym program is scheduled to run steadily for the remainder of the season, and, in addition, Robert Wach, park supervisor, is planning additional entertainment features. These include a truth or consequences program, drill dancing, progressive games, social dancing, and Bohemian singing groups.

Mrs. Dorothy Egan, girls' gym instructor at Cornell, is inviting girls to begin classes now.

Supervisor Wach is now organizing a recreation program for evenings. He is rehearsing a group of 15 boys in a month's program of the truth or consequences program which he hopes to open within the next few weeks. This feature will be patterned after similar ones on the air.

Mr. Wach has mapped a tentative schedule which he hopes to have operating at the square in at least a month. Monday evenings will be devoted to Bohemian singing groups.

Wednesday evening is date night, and Wach is willing to help along by making it a social evening for the boys and girls in the park gym classes. He hopes to develop a dancing group. Progressive games will take place on Thursday evenings, and the truth and consequences show will be on Friday evenings.

SHORT STORIES COLLECTED IN RADIO STUDIOS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Haunting the studios during rehearsals and at broadcasts a radio reporter turns up amusing little incidents and anecdotes involving the big stars of radio. For example:

Anna Neagle had spent hours of rehearsing in W-G-N's main studio for the radio première of her new movie "No, No, Nanette" when Herbert Wilcox, her manager and director, reminded her that she had had nothing to eat all day. She admitted she was hungry.

So Mr. Wilcox sent out for tea and rolls. When they arrived Miss Neagle had returned to the stage to work on "Tea for Two!" For a few minutes it looked like tea for Mr. Wilcox and cold tea for Miss Neagle! But there came a break—and she got her tea.

Last week while Jane Froman was rehearsing a popular song for "In Chicago Tonight," her mother was an interested studio visitor. She had come up for the occasion from Columbia, Mo., where she formerly headed the vocal department at Christian college. Mrs. Froman recalled that for many years Jane and she had sung together. Their voices are similar. Mrs. Froman had hoped that her daughter would become an opera star. All of her training was pointed toward that goal. But Jane moved into the popular field after she came to the attention of Paul Whiteman. Her mother feels that the unique success Jane has attained as a songstress is in a large measure due to the good vocal training she had as a child.

Gerard Darrow, the 8 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, was interviewed a few weeks ago on the June Baker program. After recounting highlights of his meteoric career Gerard got around to telling about his hobbies. "I collect locks of hair," he said, extracting a curly specimen from his coat pocket.

"I even have one hair from Joe Kelly's head," he boasted. [Joe is the balding master of ceremonies of the Quiz Kids show.]

Alec Templeton, the blind pianist and impressionist, was a studio guest the evening Richard Bonelli and Marion Claire starred in "The Desert Song." In a few minutes he had memorized all the dramatic rôles, catalogued the voices portraying them and fastened the names of the actors firmly in his mind. Several of the voices he correctly identified with rôles in the daytime serials, of which he is an avid follower. Alec was particularly intrigued by the voice of Bobby Jellison and asked afterwards to meet him.

After the broadcast Alec was besieged by autograph fans. He invited them to send him written requests with their names and addresses.

While photographers were taking pictures after a recent broadcast of "In Chicago Tonight," the guest performers including Yvette, the "Creoriole," held an informal jam session. Bob Zurke played the piano and the Mills brothers contributed some of their liveliest harmony.

Yvette, whose specialties are Parisian songs and quaint tunes based on French nursery rhymes, joined in the hot music, too. She recalled that she got acquainted with jazz singing while attending a convent school in New Orleans. In the evenings the wailing blues of street singers were wafted within the convent walls.

Many W-G-N listeners will recall the story about the colored aviator carrying propaganda leaflets into Germany which Comedian Benny Baker told last week on W-G-N. Baker had an alternative story. But there was time for just one on the program, so he picked the one above. The other runs something like this:

A foreigner on arriving in America had difficulty with the language. A friend after days of struggle taught him the words "Apple pie and coffee."

Thus, the alien was able in a measure to satisfy his gastronomic wants in restaurants. Ultimately he tired of this diet and asked his friend to teach him some additional words. After a struggle lasting several days the newcomer mastered "Swiss cheese." Armed with his new vocabulary he entered a restaurant and sang out "Swiss cheese."

"On white or rye?" queried the waitress.

Befuddled, the foreigner paused for a moment and then exclaimed, "Apple pie and coffee."

Pageant of Melody for Tomorrow Is Canceled

Officials of W-G-N have announced that because of circumstances beyond their control the Pageant of Melody program which was scheduled from 9:30 to 10:00 p. m. tomorrow will not be broadcast. Those who have received tickets for the program will be admitted to a future Pageant of Melody program, if they make their request to the W-G-N ticket office, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

On W-G-N

Lola Lane of the Lane sisters of movie fame will make a guest appearance on "In Chicago Tonight" at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Jan. 20.

Sow pansies, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, English daisies, vinca rosea, and similar plants now to obtain good strong plants for early planting. Pansies like the cool conditions of early summer and a rich, mellow soil. They like a bit of shade because the heat of summer soon affects them. Try selecting varieties for color effects.

Among the newest annuals are the wildfire marigolds, single, free flowering and in bright scarlet, deep orange, yellow, and mahogany, with variegated sorts; a new Swiss chard that looks like rhubarb and is colored like a delicate crimson foliage plant. The All-American annuals are petunia blue brocade, petunia radiance, petunia first lady, and marigold spry.

The new marigolds are useful for city gardens, but where annuals are grown the gardener should never neglect thinning if the seed is sown broadcast. Scabiosa peace is recommended, for it stands upright better than the taller sorts and is fine for cutting.

Tuesday, Jan. 21.

Paperwhite narcissus bulbs are still available and as they are so easily grown and are so useful for their decorative effect a few should be added to the window garden. Four to six inch pots may be used with a rich garden loam. Drainage should cover the hole in the bottom of the pots; water thoroly and stand in a cool dark place until well rooted.

Wednesday, Jan. 22.

Pruning shrubs is important. Shrubs that flower on wood made the past season should be pruned as soon as their blossoms fade. The following are examples: Deutzia, fringetree, goldenbell, Missouri currant, bush honeysuckle, except those with ornamental fruits; magnolia, lilac, most climbing roses, spirea, and weigela.

Summer and spring blooming shrubs also include the barberry, coralberry, hydrangea, matrimonyvine, snowberry, and others. When ordering shrubs include a few that attract birds for the fruits they bear, such as the cornelian cherry, mulberry, a small tree, mountain ash, and wild grapes to serve as a screen.

Thursday, Jan. 23.

Examine lilac bushes and if scales are present spray on a warm day with lime and sulphur. If branches become too infested they will be best removed entirely. Remember, too, that the plant flowers on wood made the previous season should be pruned after flowering.

Keep out suckers that form and the center open. Old plants that become shapeless and fail to flower may be cut back severely, the soil replenished, and given a new start.

Friday, Jan. 24.

Procure organic manures to spread over ground that is to be spaded in spring. These manures contain little food elements as compared with the commercial products, and the latter is about the only available source of food for city gardens. It is valuable on house plants.

Suburban gardeners who enjoy a vegetable garden should investigate irrigation systems and install one if possible. The propagation bedding plants may be started.

Saturday, Jan. 25.

Spray the fern occasionally or simply dip the plant in a tub or bucket of water to remove dust. The ironclad plant [aspidistra] that has outgrown the pot should be separated and the sections potted.

Do not allow the Christmas cactus to dry out and do not overwater it or the buds will drop. When the poinsettia plant drops its leaves it is indicative that the resting period has arrived.

The plant can then be placed on its side and water withheld until spring when it is repotted and again started into growth. Cuttings can be made from the young growths that come from along the stems.

CONCERT HOUR TO BE AIRED AT 8:30 WEDNESDAY

'Blossom Time' Next on Theater of Air.

A variety of fine music ranging from Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" to the love hymn "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," will be heard on the Chicagoland Concert hour from 8:30 to 9 p. m. next Wednesday. This program, formerly broadcast on Monday nights, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. on Wednesdays.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Marion Claire, soprano star, will present Thomas' "Connais-tu-le Pays" from "Mignon" for her featured number. The augmented W-G-N chorus will form the background for Miss Claire's rendition of the "Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana.

The complete program follows:

Overture: "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik". Mozart
Orchestra.
"Connais-tu le Pays" from Mignon.. Thomas
Marion Claire.
"Tango" .... Albeniz
Orchestra.
"Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" .... Moore
Chorus.
Speech ....
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
"Voices of Spring" .... Strauss
Orchestra.
"Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana .... Mascagni
Marion Claire, Chorus.

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will lead the W-G-N Concert orchestra in selections from the works of Mozart, Albeniz and Strauss. The W-G-N chorus, under Weber's baton, will sing Moore's "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

'BLOSSOM TIME' NEXT

The life, love, and haunting music of Franz Schubert will live again for an hour when the Chicago Theater of the Air presents Sigmund Romberg's "Blossom Time" from 9:15 to 10:15 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network.

This will be the second presentation of "Blossom Time" in this series. The operetta was presented last spring with Marion Claire and Igor Gorin in the leading rôles. Mr. Gorin again will sing the rôle of Schubert; Miss Claire, that of Mitzi.

The success of the W-G-N operetta series has prompted the J. J. Schubert office, theatrical producers, to launch an operetta series at the Grand Opera House. "Blossom Time," with Everett Marshall as the star, will be the first of these. It will open Tuesday evening. Other light opera productions will follow.

W-G-N announced last night that because of the many requests for tickets to the Chicago Theater of the Air performances remaining to be filled, no additional applications for tickets to this series will be considered for the present.

The music of "Blossom Time," by Sigmund Romberg, is based on airs by Schubert, and the operetta itself is the story of his life, love, and music. In the climatic scene, Schubert plays the theme melody, "This Is My Song of Love," based on his "Unfinished Symphony."

The duet, "Ave Maria," by Mr. Gorin and Miss Claire, with its haunting refrain, "Peace, Peace to My Lonely Heart," will be one of the highlights of the show. Other familiar melodies will be the lovely, reminiscent, "There in Old Vienna," the throbbing "Marche Militaire," and in a lighter vein, "Tell Me Daisy." Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra.

The operetta will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

ARTHUR HENNING TO START 7TH ANNUAL SERIES

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will start his seventh annual series of "Capital Comment" programs over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 7:30 tonight. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work, and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Henning has covered 20 national political conventions.

Test Pilot's Marital Woes on W-G-N Divorce Drama

How the dangers of a test pilot's hazardous duties cause marital strife will be the theme of the "I Want a Divorce" dramatic show over W-G-N and the Mutual network, from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Friday. The pilot's wife, will be played by Joan Blondell, famous movie actress.

HOLTZ, LOLA LANE TO BE FEATURED ON CHICAGO HOUR

Comedian Lou Holtz and Lola Lane of Hollywood fame will be two of the headliners to appear on In Chicago Tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday.

Lou Holtz.

Lou Holtz gained his reputation as a comedian both on the stage and then radio. He specializes in dialect stories, his best known tales revolving around the experiences of the fictitious character, "Sam Lapidus." Holtz is currently appearing at the State-Lake theater with a group of movie stars, including Miss Lane, Wendy Barrie, and Arlene Judge.

Lola Lane beat her other famous sisters to Hollywood, but Rosemary [who is appearing around the corner from her sister, at the Oriental] and Priscilla have caught up with her. They have been featured in the Warner Brothers' popular pictures series, the latest of which is "Four Mothers." Miss Lane was born in Macy, Ind., and made her name in vaudeville as a singer and dancer until she went to Hollywood in 1928.

Other features of the show will be the W-G-N chorus directed by Bob Trendler and the W-G-N Dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

IMMACULATA IS NEXT SCHOOL ON 'CITIZENS' HOUR

The Immaculata High school of Chicago will be the first Catholic school to be heard on the Chicago Tribune's radio program, Citizens of Tomorrow from 4:30 to 5 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N.

Msgr. D. F. Cunningham, superintendent of the Catholic schools of the archdiocese of Chicago, will be the guest speaker. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, member of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's editorial staff, who takes the rôle of the principal and is master of ceremonies of the program.

Featured on the half hour broadcast will be the Immaculata Glee club, under the direction of Walter Aschenbrenner. The girls will sing three numbers, "Hymn to Christ the King," by Rafael; "Alphabet," by Mozart, and "Lift Thine Eyes," by Mendelssohn.

Announcer Charles Victor will select 6 girls from the 600 students in attendance at the broadcast to take part in the Tribune news quiz. Winners of the quiz are awarded $5 bills.

Three more names of outstanding Chicagoland students are to be added to the Citizens of Tomorrow Honor Roll. They are Jane Strohm, Indianapolis, Ind.; Wallace McLain, Hillsdale, Mich., and Donald Veile, Dixon, Ill. The next school to be saluted will be the J. Sterling Morton High school of Cicero.

Hound of Baskervilles to Bay Next Friday

The baying of the Hound of the Baskervilles will proclaim the mysterious deaths of three brothers in an exciting episode of the "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" to be heard over W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. next Friday. The Baskerville story is being told in six instalments.

W-G-N AND MUTUAL TO BROADCAST THREE INAUGURAL PROGRAMS

Three programs from Washington, all devoted to the inaugural ceremonies of President Roosevelt, will be heard over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network today and tomorrow.

The first broadcast will be an inaugural preview commentary from 2 to 2:05 p. m. today. Announcers and commentators covering the inauguration will bring radio listeners a preview of the inauguration plans.

As part of its coverage W-G-N—Mutual will present the Inauguration Concert at Constitution hall from 9:50 to 10 tonight. ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR IMPROVING EAST AUBURN PK.

List 7 Point Community Program.

Arthur E. Mealiff, 431 Winneconna parkway, president of the East Auburn Park Improvement association, last week announced a seven point community program which his association will put into operation in 1941. The committees for working on the program have been tentatively set up.

Arthur E. Mealiff.

The seven points are: A definite program for the stimulation of the community's business; restriction of property to maintain present living standards, purchasing power, and property values; better sidewalks; extension and intensification of the antilitter campaign; elimination of community traffic hazards in an effort to make East Auburn Park southtown's safest community; improvement of a community area, and, finally, a resolution to serve all in a nonpartisan, nonsectarian, nonpolitical manner for the expansion of the entire community.

Mr. Mealiff himself will have to keep track of the program's development from a distance. A veteran of the world war, Mealiff has been ordered into the army again under the selective service act. He will report for duty tomorrow and will go to Camp Grant shortly. He will be in public relations work. He was in the medical corps in the world war and has been a reserve officer since. He is unmarried.

Advocates Safety Program.

In explaining the program, Mealiff said that East Auburn's sidewalks were the old style cement slabs. These have been loosened by the spreading roots of big trees in the area. He asserted that many of the walks tilt at such angles that they are a menace to pedestrians in wet and icy weather.

The safety campaign will be pointed toward removing the heavy truck traffic from Eggleston and Normal avenues. Another item will be the effort to control traffic on Winneconna parkway around St. George's hospital. Mealiff and association members have noticed that many hurried drivers swing off of 79th street onto Winneconna and go around by the hospital and then cut thru to 79th again, thus managing to avoid two stoplights.

"Since they take this short cut to save time," Mealiff declared, "those drivers don't slow down much for that trip around Winneconna parkway. We believe that the practice constitutes a traffic hazard and we're going to try to find some way to eliminate it."

Launch Membership Drive.

The association is promoting a membership drive along with its community betterment plan. Membership committee members are Max Becker, Oscar Peterson, Tom Murray, James Smiley, Pete Alex, Harry and John Demas, John Glassburn, Henry Schwarting, James Wilson, John Gilroy, Richard Bolt, Astrid Axelson, Mrs. Tom Sullivan, George Mahringer, and Mrs. G. W. Benton.

The association's regular meetings fall on the third Thursday of each month. They are held in Fern's Community hall, 734 West 79th street. Harry William Godley is association secretary, and Dr. Frank Douglass treasurer. East Auburn Park is bounded on the north by 75th street, south by 79th street, on the east by Vincennes avenue, and on the west by the Rock Island tracks.

Friday is Lei day at Gage Park High school, 55th and Rockwell streets. Gage Park is one of the newest city high schools, and Lei day is to raise funds for the school's first annual to be published in June. The Lei day dance will begin at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the girls' gymnasium.

Marilyn Klix is in charge of lei sales. Students and faculty members will buy the colorful strands and wear them for the benefit of the annual and also as a tribute to the seniors, Gage Park's first graduating class.

Cadets Win Tribune Gold Medals

QUITS U. S. ARMY AFTER 32 YEARS; HE'S LONESOME

Lindblom R. O. T. C. Loses Sergt. Depke.

Master Sergeant Edward J. Depke retired from the army recently after 32 years of service, 16 of which were spent as military instructor of the R. O. T. C. unit at Lindblom High school.

Sergt. E. J. Depke.

On his retirement, Sergt. Depke received many commendations as to his ability, not only from the R. O. T. C. headquarters, but also from present and former students of the school.

Sergt. Depke helped the Lindblom unit to win honor ratings for four years, and always maintained a standard of military training that kept the school high in the top brackets of the city's units.

Gets Double Credit.

Altho Sergt. Depke is only 47 years old, he has 32 years of steady army duty to his credit. This is due to the fact that he served time in the Philippines, which is counted as double time. He first enlisted in December, 1911, and has not missed a day of duty since.

In 1912 he went to the Philippines where he remained more than two years. He reënlisted in 1914 and was transferred to Arizona with the 11th infantry. Upon America's participation in the world war he went overseas and was for 14 months with the 52d infantry as a first sergeant.

After his discharge in 1919 he enlisted again and was transferred to Fort Brady in Michigan. In 1924 he was sent to Chicago to become an instructor for the R. O. T. C. units. He spent one year at Austin High school, and then went to Lindblom, where he remained.

Takes a Vacation.

With nine honorable discharges, all reading "character excellent," in back of him, Sergt. and Mrs. Depke have left for Florida for a vacation. They plan to devote about four weeks to touring the south, and then will return to see if his application for a position in the Quartermaster corps has been accepted. The army has been his whole life, and he has no intention of abandoning it.

His one regret is in leaving Lindblom where, he said, "I spent the best years of my life, and received wonderful treatment from both the students and faculty. I shall miss them a great deal."

Lindblom Football Mothers Name Officers for 1941

Mrs. Anna Yonaitis is the new president of the Lindblom Football Mothers' club for 1941. She succeeds Mrs. Betty Kveton. Other new officers are Mrs. Hazel Hoffman, vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth Vynanek, treasurer; Mrs. Alice Cisar, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Molengraft, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Anna Hoblick, publicity chairman. The club will assist at the annual Lindblom "L" banquet at 6 o'clock Saturday evening in Thoburn Methodist church.

CRESCENDO MUSICAL CLUB TO HEAR FOUR IN PROGRAM AT TEA

Crescendo Musical club members will attend a candlelight musical and tea at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the home of Mrs. William Rathje, 9900 Longwood drive. Artists on the program will be: Charlene Brewer, violinist; Richard Beidel, cello; Elva Gamble, soprano; and Hazel Simms Beidel, accompanist. Mrs. Arthur H. Haigh is president of the Crescendo club and will invite members and guests to tea with Mrs. James Matchett and her committee after the program.

Mrs. Arthur Haigh.

Mrs. Brewer, a member of the club, was soloist with the Philharmonic orchestra of Havana, Cuba. Richard Beidel has been cellist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra since 1929 and was the 1924 winner of the American Society of Musicians award.

Mrs. Gamble has been a soloist with the United States Navy band. She is a former member of the W-G-N staff and is now with NBC.

Play's the Thing

The Southwest Kiwanis club, Beverly Y. M. C. A., WPA, and the Gresham Methodist church are coöperating in providing a recreation center at the church, 87th street and Emerald avenue. There will be games every Thursday evening. Boys and girls of grade school age are invited to come from 7 to 8 o'clock to play shuffleboard, checkers, table tennis, volleyball and other games.

Older boys and girls are to play from 8 to 10 o'clock Thursday evenings. Emile Falc will represent the church, and James E. Smith the other agencies providing this community recreation center. Children not known at the church must be accompanied by adults when coming to the games for the first time.

The Kiwanis playground on the northeast corner of 87th street and Emerald avenue is being flooded for skating thru the courtesy of the owner, Mrs. James McLaughlin.

ENGLISH WOMAN TELLS FEELINGS AFTER BOMBING

Letter Reveals Britishers Remain Calm.

Housewives in the Chicago area, who feel they have cause to complain when the routine of their daily tasks is interrupted occasionally by a broken gadget or a leaking faucet, should change places for a while with a woman in Croydon, England, who describes her war-time experiences in a Christmas letter recently received in Chicago.

Between the lines of the uncensored letter, there is the picture of the ordinary homekeeper whose "washing of the tea things" is disturbed by an exploding bomb that blows out the windows and doors and covers the furniture with soot.

Siren Is Moaning Mona.

Writing in a vein that mingles humor with tragedy, the English woman explains that she never goes down town at night for fear of being caught in an air raid and that she never goes to the 'pictures' for the same reason. Nicknames for the sirens, she informs, are "Moaning Mona," and "Wailing Willie."

The letter, in part, follows:

"On Nov. 8 two big bombs were dropped at the corner of the road behind a bank. The explosions were terrific. We felt the house rock and the ground heave under our feet. There was an awful roaring sound, and the breaking of glass and things falling. We were in the dining room and it was 6:45 p. m. I had just come out of the kitchen after washing the tea things. Fire came out in a wave of flame with each explosion and we were covered with soot, but we were unhurt. We went into the hall to go to the kitchen, thinking it would be safer. The hall door was blown open, the lock and bolts forced, and everywhere covered with broken glass.

"Nearly every bit of glass in the doors and windows was blown out, window frames blown in, part of four ceilings down, and most of the tiles off the back of the roof.

Houses Are Condemned.

"The damage is enormous. Every house in this road and the road where the bombs dropped have been damaged, some beyond repair. They have been condemned and the people evacuated, but no one was hurt. The bank was demolished but the people who lived over the bank escaped without a scratch.

"We have been blasted once and we pray we may never experience it again. We were very shaky but are getting over it now. The worst of it is we have all the windows done in black rubberoid stuff and have to keep the electric lights on all the time.

"We get 'Jerry' over day and night. We have not undressed since the blitz began. You would laugh if you could peep at us at night, one in each big arm chair with plenty of pillows and rugs, our feet propped up on stools, the curtains drawn and well blacked out, the fire on and a light burning. We go to sleep, if the noise of the guns and plane is not too bad. Usually we wake up between 1 and 2 in the morning and have a cup of tea and bread and butter.

Try to Be Normal.

"We civilians are in the front line. We have all got our chins well up. We are all very grateful for the help you are giving us in every way, for your sympathy as well as material help. We will prove ourselves worthy of it. Everyone is calm and brave, going about and trying to live our normal lives as much as possible.

"One of our friends, as soon as she heard about our house, wired for us to go to her house and make it our home. Bless her for the kind thought. But we feel we cannot leave our home because we cannot lock it up and secure it properly. There is such a lot of looting going on. It would be horrid to come back and find our house looted."

Women's Card Party.

The annual card party of the Washington Heights Ridge Women's club will take place at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the 102d street fieldhouse.

YEARS IN CHINA TEACH WORKER VALUE OF LAUGH

Settlement Secretary Cites Experience.

Whether she's in China or in Chicago, Miss Elsie Anderson lives and works in an international atmosphere. Her record of 16 years as a Y. W. C. A. secretary in China, a year of graduate study at Columbia university, New York, and five years as social service secretary at the University of Chicago Settlement house back of the yards have given her contacts and friendships with all nationalities and races.

Comparing her work in China with her work here, Miss Anderson points out, "No one is trying to obtain Chinese citizenship in China. So he remains what he is. Here, of course, we are trying to be Americans no matter what other land may have been the birthplace of our parents. So there isn't quite the strong difference here."

Works Out of Job.

But the similarity lies in the fact that Miss Anderson finds a spirit of friendliness among foreign groups. She landed in Shanghai on Christmas day of 1918. From there she went to Canton, where, with 86 other foreigners, she worked at the Y. W. C. A. Her job was the find jobs for other folks and to work herself out of a job. After 13 years she accomplished that.

She was among the last of the foreign workers when she left Canton. The Y. W. C. A. was turned over to native workers. Miss Anderson went on to Shanghai, where she worked for three years before returning to the United States. And in both Chinese cities she found friendship. Now, here in Chicago's back of the yards area, where more than a dozen nationality groups may be found, Miss Anderson finds friendship and coöperation.

One of the most interesting developments in China, she recalls, is adult education. "I think that the Chinese began working on that seriously even before the United States went at it in earnest. Of course the Chinese had the Japanese gunfire to hurry them along a bit."

Youths Train Others.

Miss Anderson was in Canton when fighting began there in 1932. The Chinese students wanted to get into the war at once, but Chiang Kai-shek explained that the young men and women with education were needed to train others. So the students went into the interior to found coöperatives and set up universities.

Result of the Japanese aggression has been speeding the development and unionization of interior China. Miss Anderson learned that a Chinese could be induced to do almost anything if the proposition were put to him humorously. "I think that's a lesson we could use here in this country. I know I keep trying to remember it," she says.

Zonta Club.

The Chicago South Side Zonta club will meet Friday evening in the Lindquist cafe, 5540 Hyde Park boulevard.

REMODELING OLD HOME ADDS YEARS TO USEFULNESS

Antioch Couple Renews House Thruout.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A letter has come to me telling of a worth while remodeling which was done last year in Antioch. The letter was from F. J. Berg, 410 Hardin street, Antioch.

It is interesting not only because of the work done, which was essentially practical and attractive and certainly a wise investment, but because it tells of an experience so many people are planning for the coming year.

The letter follows:

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Some time ago I wrote you for advice on siding for an old house which I had bought and wished to remodel.

"You replied and I want to thank you for your suggestions. Certain details lagged somewhat which accounts for my delay.

Old Porches Removed.

"We tore down both the front and side porches and built a bay in the front. We widened the house at the side and thereby increased the size of the dining room. At the rear of the house we removed a laundry and old woodshed and substituted a new back porch with a trellis. And off the dining room we built a new screened porch.

"We also changed the inside of the house considerably. We widened the opening between the dining room and living room, which gave the appearance of much greater space, and we arched several of the door openings. I forgot to mention that all window sash was renewed and without much difficulty.

Basement Excavated.

"A basement was excavated under all but the kitchen and retaining walls of concrete built. A warm air furnace was installed and, new roofs were laid and exterior walls of wide siding.

"Like all remodeling work it turned out to be a bigger job than I had figured, but now that it is done, Mrs. Berg and I are very satisfied with it all. We also feel quite proud of it as we planned it ourselves.

"Again thanking you I remain,

"Your truly,

"J. F. Berg."

The original house had stood for many years and had not been maintained in the manner it deserved. Now, inside and out, it has been brought up to modern standards, as have the surrounding lawns and walks.

Plan For Future.

Many people this last year, like Mr. and Mrs. Berg, bought an old home and transformed it, giving it countless years of new usefulness. Many people will do the same this coming year.

Only last week a man said to me: "My wife and I were just married last summer but we've already bought an old house and have started to do it over. We liked the lot, 10 big trees on it and all kinds of shrubbery and bushes and vines. The house is pretty down at the heels but we're looking forward to some real fun doing it over. We had an architect tell us frankly what he thought about the purchase before we went ahead. He was for it. The house is sound, all right. It's just been neglected. We feel we have a real buy—and real fun ahead."

SEEK 336 ACRES FOR WEST PRESERVES

HOUSING FACTS REVEAL LACK FOR WEST AREA

Facts on housing in the west side's "melting pot" never before available to the public were released last week by the Chicago Plan commission. Figures on tuberculosis cases, juvenile delinquency and infant mortality are contained in the Chicago Land Use survey booklets prepared by the Works Projects administration.

The three west side communities covered in the initial report of the survey, extending westward from the Chicago river to Kedzie avenue between North avenue and 31st street, are below the city-wide average in rentals, private bath facilities and condition of buildings.

George T. Horton, chairman of the commission, announced the booklets have been delivered to libraries, business and community organizations in the areas concerned. The three communities in the west side on which facts have been released are designated as the lower west side, the area between 16th street and the Illinois Michigan canal; West Town, which is between North avenue and Kinzie street and the near west side, between Kinzie and 16th streets.

Disease Rate High.

In the near west side the communicable disease morbidity other than children's diseases per 100,000 population is 1178.2 per cent as compared with the city-wide percentage of 456.7. In this community there are 74.3 births per 1,000 women as compared with the city-wide rate of 50.6. Infant mortality is 63.4 per cent per 1,000 births as compared with 45.3 for the city. The meningitis morbidity per 100,000 population is 27.6 per cent as compared with 8.3 per cent in the city-wide column.

In this same area the median rental is $17.52 as compared to the $33.93 city-wide average. Only 13.8 per cent of the buildings are occupied by the owner as compared with 26.2 per cent for all of Chicago. Only 71.7 per cent are in good condition as compared with 92.1 per cent for the city. The median year the buildings were erected for this area is 1887. The median for the city is 1906.

The West Town and the lower west side follow a close second and third with these low figures. The median rental for the lower west side is lower. It is $13.60 in comparison with the $33.93 median for the city. The percentage in good condition is higher with an 85.2 per cent.

There seems to be a much closer parallel between bad housing and deaths and disease than bad housing and delinquency. The rate of tuberculosis cases is 134.8 per cent per 100,000 population as compared with the city-wide rate of 59.9 per cent.

The information in the booklets was procured thru two major operations. Certain basic facts, such as the value of the land and buildings and the year each building was built, were taken from the records of the Cook county assessor. From a house to house enumeration information regarding individual parcels and dwelling units was obtained. This also was the source of information concerning the number and size of dwelling units, monthly rental, number of vacant units, plumbing and heating equipment and the extent of overcrowding.

Many Need Repairs.

Almost 52 per cent of all dwelling units in the near west side area were physically deficient which means structures needing major repairs or unfit for use.

A comparison of average figures in the three areas is contained in the following résumé:

While the figures give the average picture of the communities, they do not give an exact one of certain neighborhoods in the areas. In the western sectors of the near west side and West Town, there are scattered neighborhoods of $100 monthly rentals, but these are cut down in the average by the backward neighborhoods.

Rosary College Girls Prepare for Snow Outing in Wisconsin

An intermission to quizzes, experiments, and essay writing for Rosary college girls will be the snow train that will pull out of the Union station at 12:50 o'clock Friday afternoon for Deer Trail lodge near Tomahawk, Wis., where the students will fill their week-end with skiing, skating, and tobogganing. Miss Grace Ryan (left), a senior, is chairman of the student committee planning the trip and she is showing the winter vacation area to Miss Loretta Omara. Miss Catherine Shirz, director of physical education at Rosary, who will chaperon the trip says that more than 50 girls have registered for the winter holiday. In the second picture Miss Jane Casey demonstrates the trying on of sports equipment going on thru Rosary's dormitories.

In other parts of the dormitories there is plenty of elbow grease and ski wax going into the preparation for the excursion. Bette Jane Rock, a sophomore, and Jane Waldron (right), a senior, show how the job is done. Warm woolens, breeches, and tassel caps are being packed into Marion Kranhold's suitcase, while Marie McNamara laughs over all she's trying to get in. It's a college girl's perogative to strain a suitcase to the breaking point. Out on the campus three members of this week's snow train have a preliminary tryout. From left to right are Betty Russell, Jean Kilgallon, and Dorothy Harris seeing how easy it is to stand on skiis. Jean models a pair of warm white mittens along with her ski suit.

Sunday School Leader Quits —Just in Part

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Sunday school is as much a part of the Albert J. Ollendorf family as the Sunday dinner. Mr. Ollendorf, 117 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, retired this month after 30 years as Sunday school superintendent of Washington Boulevard Methodist church. He has attended Sunday school as pupil, teacher, and superintendent since he was in the cradle roll. His father, Albert Ollendorf, was superintendent of the Sunday school at Humboldt Park Methodist church for many years.

Albert J. Ollendorf.

E. A. Neiberger, who was to be his father-in-law, succeeded his father as superintendent. Then Mr. Ollendorf succeeded him. He met his wife when they were both children in the primary department at Humboldt Park church. She was Laura Neiberger and she became church organist. He also sang in the choir.

"Well, now you'll be able to sleep Sunday mornings," Mr. Ollendorf was told when he retired from the place at the Washington Boulevard church.

No Late Sleeping.

"Nothing doing," he said. "Now I'll have a chance to stand at the back of the room and shake hands with the 200 boys and girls who are, the children and grandchildren of my first Sunday school pupils." He will also take over the active leadership of the membership committee of the church. Of the new appointment the Rev. H. L. Eagle, pastor, says, "No man in the church is better qualified to head this very important lay activity than is Mr. Ollendorf."

Seven pastors served the church while the Sunday school superintendent remained at his post. Each year he was reëlected and for most of the year members forgot to ask him whether he would accept or not. He and Mrs. Ollendorf were present 32 years ago today when the church was founded. Every third Sunday in January Mr. Ollendorf read the list of children present that day.

Some of Mr. Ollendorf's pupils caught his spirit of regular attendance. Wilbur H. Grim, the assistant superintendent, started to attend Sunday school when he was a baby. His mother, Mrs. Fanny E. Grim, moved to Oak Park with her children when Wilbur was less than 1 year old. He went thru all the departments, finally taught in all of them and became Mr. Ollendorf's assistant.

Born in Chicago.

The elder Mr. Ollendorf was born in Chicago when the city was 17 years old. He was an office boy in the business district long before there was any "loop." In his young manhood he went every Sunday to conduct church services in the Chicago municipal sanitarium.

His son followed in his footsteps. When the Ollendorfs were married 35 years ago they went to Austin and became members of the Austin Methodist church. When Dr. James Rowe, secretary of the Chicago City Missionary society, helped to found the new little church that was to become the Washington Boulevard, he came to Mr. Ollendorf.

"Albert," he said, "that little church needs you." And that's what the mission that became the Humboldt Park Methodist had said to his father before him.

PLAN TO EXPAND FOREST GROUND ON SALT CREEK

Des Plaines Woods Also Involved.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Addition of 336 acres to the forest preserves on the west side and in western suburbs is called for in a new expansion plan to come before the forest preserve board at its meeting next Tuesday.

If approved and carried out, this program will add an estimated 9 per cent to the preserve area in the western part of Cook county. This area now totals almost 3,900 acres, which lie along the Des Plaines river and its Salt Creek tributary.

This proposed expansion is part of a county-wide plan to increase the preserve district's holdings immediately to the statutory limit of 39,000 acres. The district now owns almost 35,000 acres, which was the legal limit until it was raised at the special legislative session last year.

Three Years to Carry Out Plan.

It is expected that it will require about three years to carry out the new plan. This will call for a sharp increase in the district's land buying activity.

The new acquisitions will affect virtually every activity of the district, according to Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve board. It will add hiking, bicycle and horse trails, additional picnic areas, extra woodlands, and parking space.

Much of the proposed new west side forest preserve area consists of ten 3 to 63 acre tracts, totaling 255 acres along Salt creek in the area bounded on the north by 22d street, on the east by Harlem avenue, on the south by Ogden avenue, and on the west by Wolf road.

Additions to Des Plaines Area.

The Des Plaines river unit plan calls for the purchase of a 12 acre tract just south of North avenue, on the west side of the reserve, one of 10 acres just south of Lake avenue, another of 10 acres, just north of 22d street between the river and Des Plaines avenue, and a 20 acre strip along the west side of the river extending from Madison street south to Roosevelt road.

In Cantigny woods, near the Calumet Sag channel, it is proposed to add a 36 acre tract lying between the two parts of the preserve which do not now adjoin.

Reasons for Expansion.

Immediate expansion of the forest preserves is desirable for several reasons, according to Robert Kingery, secretary of the advisory committee. It will widen narrow strips of reserve, fill in missing connections, and expand some reserve areas to permanent boundaries such as cemeteries, roads or streams.

Moreover, it will facilitate completion and extension of forest preserve improvements, and provide enough room to enable the district to relieve overcrowded forest and grass areas that need periodic rest.

How the board will proceed toward fulfillment of the expansion plan if it is adopted was outlined by Bernard J. Kewin, head of the district's real estate department.

First, he said, the property owner will be notified by mail that the district desires to buy his land, and he will be invited to discuss price and other terms with district representatives.

Quite often the negotiators arrive at complete agreement in the first meeting, Kewin said. Some owners, however, hold out for exorbitant prices or refuse altogether to sell, whereupon condemnation proceedings become necessary.

Claim Fair Price Offer.

Both Kewin and George A. Basta, chief attorney for the district, said that not infrequently they discover plots to extract enormous profits from forest preserve purchases. Almost without exception these schemes are discovered and foiled, they said.

"We are willing to pay fair prices, but no more," Kewin said. "We have the Chicago Real Estate board appraise all land we would like to buy. We learn the complete history of the property, including how much it cost, who has owned it, how much is owed against it, and what is the value of nearby and adjoining property.

"Thus we are adequately forearmed for almost any eventuality. This advance preparation has saved the district a great deal of money."

Much of the land to be purchased will border on or be a part of the proposed forest preserve way, a right of way about 200 feet wide that will afford a continuous connection among all forest preserve areas in any of the district's units. At present there are several wide gaps in both the Des Plaines river and Salt creek units.

Kerr, one of the first trustees; Tom McNichols, George Hammerschmidt, Christ Boldebuck, Harry Robillard, Clarence Bailey, Roy Work, Fred Albrecht, Harry Hesse, Paul Albert, Joseph Sutton, John Armstrong, F. J. Brinsmaid, and Fred Fiebrandt.

Mr. Brinsmaid, now past 80, was one of the first secretaries. Mr. Fiebrandt has been tyler of the lodge since it was organized in 1927.

Present officers include M. C. Lockwood, chairman of the board of trustees, and Fred C. Runge, secretary.

PEACE IN CONSERVATORY.

The other day I was walking down Lake street when I saw a glass covered building. I walked in and found myself in Garfield park conservatory. Straight ahead of me was the fern room, so magnificent that I sat down at its entrance. I was in a new world of green and luxuriant growth. Eden's garden must have looked like that. The Utopia that all mankind dreems of will some day look like that. The air in that fern room is moist and clean. A rivulet runs down a rocky ledge and dampens the feet of the moss that creeps along and peers into the water. There are all varieties of ferns, long graceful leaves and fat short ones. The room is a study in green of all shadings. If ever a heaven could be made of leaves, this study in symmetry is it. My congratulations to the Chicago park district's horticulturists.

A CITY BRED GARDENER.

ANTIWAR FORMULA.

I can't understand why people in bunches are so awful. A person alone is rather human but let him get in a crowd and he's an animal with no manners and no conscience. I notice when a crowd of boys get together they will scream and yell and sometimes even throw things. A crowd of girls in a bus is noisy and bad mannered. A crowd of women doing Christmas shopping is like a herd of buffalo let loose. A group of men at a noon luncheon can tell the dullest stories and laugh the coarsest of any animal. I guess this fact is a reason for wars. A crowd can be coaxed on to do anything. Man alone in a room by himself is fairly harmless.

A CYNIC.

SEES SNOW REMOVED.

However people criticize city management I must voice my approval of the action evident when it snows. Even for the duration of the snowstorm I see city trucks on the streets with ashes trying to reduce icy dangers. When the snowstorm has died away there are men with shovels and trucks clearing away the snow piles and making it safe for motorists. This is especially true along the boulevards. When taxpayers see their money going for such works, it is a pleasure.

A CHICAGOAN.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 20.

Sow pansies, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, English daisies, vinca rosea, and similar plants now to obtain good strong plants for early planting. Pansies like the cool conditions of early summer and a rich, mellow soil. They like a bit of shade because the heat of summer soon affects them. Try selecting varieties for color effects.

Among the newest annuals are the wildfire marigolds, single, free flowering and in bright scarlet, deep orange, yellow, and mahogany, with variegated sorts; a new Swiss chard that looks like rhubarb and is colored like a delicate crimson foliage plant. The All-American annuals are petunia blue brocade, petunia radiance, petunia first lady, and marigold spry.

Tuesday, Jan. 21.

Paperwhite narcissus bulbs are still available and as they are so easily grown and are so useful for their decorative effect a few should be added to the window garden. Four to six inch pots may be used with a rich garden loam. Drainage should cover the hole in the bottom of the pots; water thoroly and stand in a cool dark place until well rooted.

Wednesday, Jan. 22.

Pruning shrubs is important. Shrubs that flower on wood made the past season should be pruned as soon as their blossoms fade. The following are examples: Deutzia, fringetree, goldenbell, Missouri currant, bush honeysuckle, except those with ornamental fruits; magnolia, lilac, most climbing roses, spirea, and weigela.

Summer and spring blooming shrubs also include the barberry, coralberry, hydrangea, matrimonyvine, snowberry, and others. When ordering shrubs include a few that attract birds for the fruits they bear, such as the cornelian cherry, mulberry, a small tree, mountain ash, and wild grapes to serve as a screen.

Thursday, Jan. 23.

Examine lilac bushes and if scales are present spray on a warm day with lime and sulphur. If branches become too infested they will be best removed entirely. Remember, too, that the plant flowers on wood made the previous season should be pruned after flowering.

Friday, Jan. 24.

Procure organic manures to spread over ground that is to be spaded in spring. These manures contain little food elements as compared with the commercial products, and the latter is about the only available source of food for city gardens. It is valuable on house plants.

Saturday, Jan. 25.

Spray the fern occasionally or simply dip the plant in a tub or bucket of water to remove dust. The ironclad plant [aspidistra] that has outgrown the pot should be separated and the sections potted.

Do not allow the Christmas cactus to dry out and do not overwater it or the buds will drop. When the poinsettia plant drops its leaves it is indicative that the resting period has arrived.

DINNER TO OPEN FUND CAMPAIGN FOR GLEN ELLYN

Expect 250 to Attend Rally Jan. 30.

Approximately 250 residents of Glen Ellyn are expected to attend a dinner on the evening of Jan. 30 in the guild hall of St. Mark's Episcopal church to launch the Glen Ellyn Fund campaign for $6,800. Charles B. Weaver is financial director of the drive.

Interest is centered in the drive as being the second step toward a Community Chest project, the first step having taken place last year when the Y. M. C. A. and the Boy Scouts conducted a joint campaign for funds for their 1940 budgets.

This year, the United Charities of Du Page county, under the leadership of the Rev. Gowan C. Williams, rector of St. Mark's church, joined forces with the Boy Scouts and the Y. M. C. A.

Girl Scouts to Aid.

Unity was given the campaign when the Girl Scouts indorsed the drive and promised their coöperation even tho they would not participate in the funds in 1941 because their campaign for this year was completed last November.

Representing the various organizations in the joint fund committee are Mrs. A. L. Wanner, Mrs. Glen L. Butler, Wayne Meigs, F. H. Leslie, Herman Fischer, J. E. Kelly, F. L. Biester, and the Rev. Gowan C. Williams.

Officers of the committee are C. W. Whitlock, treasurer; B. R. Ryall, organization chairman; F. H. Leslie, secretary; Charles W. Barr, chairman of special gifts; and Daniel H. Thompson, chairman of publicity.

The campaign, which will last thru Feb. 11, will coincide in part with Boy Scout week, and Mr. Leslie, who is district chairman of the Boy Scouts, is planning several special events to emphasize the importance of the campaign.

Civic Groups Indorse.

Indorsement of the fund has been given by the Chamber of Commerce, the Civic club, the Lions club, and the League of Women Voters.

"If the drive is successful this year," said Mr. Weaver, "I believe we can safely predict that the Glen Ellyn joint fund will become a 'one for all, all for one' campaign next year on the order of the Community Chest."

OLD SOCIAL CLUB RECALLS WHIST, ANAGRAM DAYS

Nakama Group Will Have 51st Birthday Party.

The history of the Nakama club of Oak Park is a half century history of entertainment. On Thursday in the 19th Century club of Oak Park the 51st birthday party of the oldest social club in Oak Park will be held. Special tribute will be paid to Mrs. H. M. Buckman, the oldest member, who will be 88 years old on Tuesday.

The club is an outgrowth of the women's auxiliary of the old Prairie club for men. The sole purpose of the Nakama club was to meet for entertainment every Thursday. For 51 years every Thursday afternoon in Oak Park there has been a meeting of the Nakamas. Today there is a completely new membership and only contract bridge is played now.

Anagrams and Whist.

In 1896 the leading ladies of Oak Park had an entertainment program that included physical culture, progressive anagrams, razzle dazzle, sewing bees and German whist. On June 4 of that year the club sponsored a public entertainment and showed stereopticon views of Japan.

The same year an outdoor dramatic program had been arranged. The event was heralded in a loop paper, the Chicago Chronicle, under the heading, "Oak Park's exclusive set provides amateur dramatics." When the day rolled around it had to be postponed because of rain. The story ran in the paper next day, "The inclement weather made the sod on the grounds so soft that chairs would not rest firmly. Besides, the streets were muddy and bicycles could not be used very well."

In 1905 there was a shirtwaist lawn party. That was only a few years after a book called Halley's "Pictorial Oak Park" revealed the fact about the village, "It is a home of luxury and refinement. Animals are not allowed to roam at large and a cow or hog is seldom seen on the streets of Oak Park." In 1900 the women played euchre. In 1901 they played fan-tan and held old fashioned spelling schools.

Bicycle Pump Is Prize.

In 1904 they had a thimble party. For one of the early parties such prizes were listed as a bicycle foot pump donated by C. A. Stannard, a jar of beef extract given by Melancthon Smith, and a box of water colors given by Stanley Carleton.

In 1913 the women played a game called "lillies" which none of the members can remember now. They also played royal auction, "500" and held a tango tea. In 1914 they had boat parties and lawn parties and during the time of the world war the game was "500" almost entirely. Auction bridge slowly took over and finally in the early '30's the Nakamas started playing only contract bridge.

Mrs. B. B. Cutton has been a Nakama member for 38 years and Mrs. J. Warren Vanderslice for 36 years. Other members past the quarter century mark in membership are Mrs. Donald S. Stratton, Mrs. James Rankin, Mrs. W. J. Gilbert, and Mrs. William E. Watters.

Past Presidents Active.

A few years after the club took the name of Nakama which is a Japanese word meaning friendship, C. B. Scoville built the women the Nakama hall at South Boulevard and Oak Park avenue. Later they met in the Colonial club. Past presidents who are still attending the Thursday afternoon meetings are Mrs. Harold Hilton, Mrs. G. Wilson Jones, Mrs. David A. Bauld, Mrs. Roy Jones, Mrs. Dunning Payne Jones, Mrs. Theodore H. Goodnow, Mrs. Charles E. Cadle, Mrs. Frederick T. Wright, Mrs. Robert Parker Jr., Mrs. Mary A. Baldwin, Mrs. A. T. Perkins, and Mrs. William W. Swing. Mrs. Howard M. Butters is in her second year as president.

DINNER TONIGHT FOR LEADERS IN PALESTINE DRIVE

More than 600 are expected at the dinner to be held this evening in the Midland hotel, 172 West Adams street, for Charles Pozin. Mr. Pozin is chairman of the Landsmanshaften division of the Palestine Labor campaign which is arranging the dinner.

The guest speaker will be Judge Jarry M. Fisher. Ben-Ami Fox, violinist, will play, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Evelyn Hattis Fox. Also on the program will be the cantor, Carl Urstein, accompanied by Peter Sher.

Chairman of arrangements for the dinner is Henry Dubow and Henry Lax is the secretary. Offices of the Palestine Labor campaign are at 3322 Douglas boulevard.

THIRD UNITARIAN CHURCH DESIGN SPELLS 'MODERN'

Novel Edifice Now in Its Fifth Year.

The west side church that doesn't look like a church is now five years old. Modern in both religious philosophy and architecture, the Third Unitarian church, 301 North Mayfield avenue, is glad it didn't spend more for stained glass windows and gold appointments.

"For if we had," explained the pastor, the Rev. Edwin H. Wilson, "we wouldn't have been able to pay for it."

The fifth anniversary of the church building, which has received recognition in three architectural magazines, will be celebrated this year by a program of minor improvements. Changes will be made in the ventilating system. There will be additions to the lighting system, of which the new fluorescent lights in the basement are the first. The trees will be trimmed and the lawn reconditioned.

Noted as Individual.

Because of its individuality, the Third Unitarian church has attracted much favorable architectural comment. Yet the church is on a small corner lot, is made of common Illinois brick with ordinary lumber stained with linseed oil.

The south wall is almost entirely opalescent glass windows. There is a balcony to take care of the overflow from the auditorium, which seats 200. The chancel is undecorated except for a huge pair of wooden candlesticks on a plain table and a square pulpit. The walls on the inside are also common brick.

A member of the congregation designed the modernistic lights and a sheet metal worker in the church made them. The idea for the church originated five years ago when the 65 year old congregation wanted to build a new church and not get deeply into debt. Members gave an architect, R. Paul Schweikher, a list of their needs.

They wanted to keep the cost down. They wanted a church auditorium with a chancel that could also be used as a theater stage. They wanted a kitchen so community organizations could use the building as a meeting place.

Entire Cost $25,000.

The entire cost, including the dishes, kitchen, and the pews, was $25,000. The congregation paid it all except $6,000. In the last five years $2,800 more has been paid.

The pastor explains the connection between the practical architecture and the philosophy of the Unitarian church. "Our church," he says, "stands for the principal of individual religious liberty. We have no creed nor dogma because we believe that thinking people at work on the same facts arrive at similar conclusions."

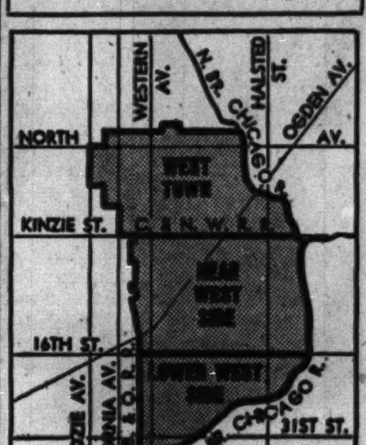
The church auditorium is a center for music and drama recitals in Austin. Next Sunday evening there will be a service in memoriam to Robert Burns, Scottish poet of the 19th century. The Scottish Choral union will give the music program. The church has held this service for the last 12 years and 300 men and women of Scottish ancestry from all over the city attend.

On Wednesday, Jan. 29, in the church auditorium, J. Bradley Griffin, dramatic reader, will give a recital of a Robert Sherwood play.

Card Party.

Siena Mothers' club and auxiliary will hold its annual junior-freshman card party at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the school auditorium, 5600 W. Washington boulevard.

Areas in Survey



The three areas designated here are those covered in the first reports released by the Chicago land use survey. Statistics on all three far exceed the city-wide average for infant mortality, juvenile delinquency, and meningitis.

ENGLISH WOMAN TELLS FEELINGS AFTER BOMBING

Letter Reveals Britishers Remain Calm.

Housewives in the Chicago area, who feel they have cause to complain when the routine of their daily tasks is interrupted occasionally by a broken gadget or a leaking faucet, should change places for a while with a woman in Croydon, England, who describes her war-time experiences in a Christmas letter recently received in Chicago.

Between the lines of the uncensored letter, there is the picture of the ordinary homekeeper whose "washing of the tea things" is disturbed by an exploding bomb that blows out the windows and doors and covers the furniture with soot.

Siren Is Moaning Mona.

Writing in a vein that mingles humor with tragedy, the English woman explains that she never goes down town at night for fear of being caught in an air raid and that she never goes to the 'pictures' for the same reason. Nicknames for the sirens, she informs, are "Moaning Mona," and "Wailing Willie."

The letter, in part, follows:

"On Nov. 8 two big bombs were dropped at the corner of the road behind a bank. The explosions were terrific. We felt the house rock and the ground heave under our feet. There was an awful roaring sound, and the breaking of glass and things falling. We were in the dining room and it was 6:45 p. m. I had just come out of the kitchen after washing the tea things. Fire came out in a wave of flame with each explosion and we were covered with soot, but we were unhurt. We went into the hall to go to the kitchen, thinking it would be safer. The hall door was blown open, the lock and bolts forced, and everywhere covered with broken glass.

"Nearly every bit of glass in the doors and windows was blown out, window frames blown in, part of four ceilings down, and most of the tiles off the back of the roof.

Houses Are Condemned.

"The damage is enormous. Every house in this road and the road where the bombs dropped have been damaged, some beyond repair. They have been condemned and the people evacuated, but no one was hurt. The bank was demolished but the people who lived over the bank escaped without a scratch.

"We have been blasted once and we pray we may never experience it again. We were very shaky but are getting over it now. The worst of it is we have all the windows done in black rubberoid stuff and have to keep the electric lights on all the time.

"We get 'Jerry' over day and night. We have not undressed since the blitz began. You would laugh if you could peep at us at night, one in each big arm chair with plenty of pillows and rugs, our feet propped up on stools, the curtains drawn and well blacked out, the fire on and a light burning. We go to sleep, if the noise of the guns and plane is not too bad. Usually we wake up between 1 and 2 in the morning and have a cup of tea and bread and butter.

"One of our friends, as soon as she heard about our house, wired for us to go to her house and make it our home. Bless her for the kind thought. But we feel we cannot leave our home because we cannot lock it up and secure it properly. There is such a lot of looting going on. It would be horrid to come back and find our house looted."

THATCHER WOODS NAME ADOPTED FOR SCOUT AREA

Supplants Oak Park as Designation.

The Oak Park Area council of Boy Scouts is no more. At a recent annual business meeting it was decided to change the name of this scout organization which serves ten west suburbs to the Thatcher Woods Area council. The ten villages represented in the council are Bellwood, Broadview, Elmwood Park, Forest Park, Franklin Park, Maywood, Melrose Park, Oak Park, River Forest, and River Grove.

The change was considered necessary in order to avoid the error that all scouts in the Oak Park area are residents of this one village. When the name change was decided upon, the committee suggested that a contest be held among all the troops of the council. Each troop not only was to suggest a name but write a paper on why that name should be chosen.

Flag to Winning Troop.

A report to the executive board by the committee recommended at the annual council business meeting on Jan. 9 that the name be the Thatcher Woods Area council. For submitting the winning name, troop No. 40 sponsored by the Men's Brotherhood of the United Evangelical Lutheran church, Oak Park, with George Strand, scoutmaster, and troop No. 4, sponsored by the Irving P.-T. A. of Oak Park, Douglas Finlayson, scoutmaster, will receive a new troop flag lettered with the name of the council.

An eight year search for a new camp site for scouts of the Thatcher Woods Area council has ended. A special camp site committee has agreed that a 90 acre tract including one half mile of sandy shore line in east central Wisconsin will answer the needs. The site is on the east shore of Big Twin lake in Waushara county, Wisconsin.

Adjoins Other Camp.

One of the advantages of this property for scouting is the fact that the Twin Lakes Area council of Oshkosh, Wis., holds almost all of the remaining shore line of the two lakes. The purchase agreement has been drawn up and before the snow melts in 1941 it is believed the property will be in the possession of the scouts.

Some work will be done on the ground this coming summer in the way of landscaping, reforestation and the layout of building sites.

The Chicago public schools will act as hosts this week to the annual music clinic of region 3, comprising Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio. Principals, school conductors, and musical groups from the four states will attend the clinic to hear band, orchestral, and vocal music which will be used in the School Music festivals for 1941.

The clinc will be held at Lane Technical High school, 2501 Addison street, starting Thursday and will last thru Saturday. The clinic presents an opportunity for school conductors to demonstrate their ideas and methods to others, and also serves as a testing ground for various compositions.

Judges to Rate Music.

Choral, band, and orchestral groups from Chicago's high schools will be directed by guest conductors before a panel of judges. The selection of the music to be used by schools thruout the country in the festivals rests with the judges.

On Saturday members of the clinic will attend a concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and will then watch the broadcast of the operetta, "Blossom Time" at W-G-N.

The 16th annual choral competition among the city high schools is now under way, and the winning choral groups will represent the city in competition against groups from other cities. The instrumental competition is held in the spring.

Leaders of Clinic.

National officers of Region 3 Music clinic are A. R. McAllister, band, president of the National School Band association; Adam P. Lesinsky, orchestra, president of the National School Orchestra association, and Mabelle Glenn, vocal, executive chairman of the National School Vocal association.

Off the Trail with HAROLD SMITH

Three of the men who helped organize the Suburban Troopers 10 years ago are still active in its membership. They are George J. Dietz, marshal, and E. F. Schiller and J. L. Fordon, all of Berwyn. Schiller and Fordon serve with George J. Kriza and A. P. Haeger on Dietz's associate staff. The Troopers have headquarters at the Stalford stables near La Grange.

Seven west siders are among the 51 members of the up and coming Schurz Saddle and Spurs club which rides out of the Christensen stables on the near north side. They are Betty Ash, 1531 North Central Park avenue; Anne, Vicki, and Fred Dudek of 3242 Hirsch street [Fred is ride leader]; Earl Clark of Maywood, and Gene Goodrich of Elmwood Park.

Ruth Sweet of Hollywood suburb has just joined the Friday evening riding group at the Oakbrook stables, near Hinsdale, which is headed by Mrs. Sara Peyton.

Four Maywood girls have taken rank among the inveterate winter riders. They are Betty McEvoy, Erika Wesphal, Beverly Burbank, and Barbara Reese, who do their riding from the Wagner stables on 5th avenue in the suburb.

Daniel M. Weed of Elgin has just purchased for his daughter, Joan, one of Gene Fletcher's Tennessee walking horses, Snip McDonald, which will be kept at the Pottawattomie stables near St. Charles.

Mrs. L. F. Gunnison of St. Charles, hospitalized several days ago when her horse slipped on the icy pavement, is expected to be back riding in a short while.

"LOOK! DADDY'S NAME IN THE PAPER!"

"Local firm appoints rising young executive — not bad for a man who came up from the bottom, is it?"

AS higher industrial activity increases the demand for skilled men, are you ready for one of the many better paid jobs now opening up?

If you are ambitious to step into the higher salary brackets, prepare yourself now. Select one of the regular or short courses of training offered to men and women in the Instruction, Trade Schools, Musical and Dramatic, Dressmaking and Millinery Schools and Dancing Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section.

"The Browns finally bought a house"

"It was a bargain they ran across in the Tribune want ads."

IT stands to reason that the bigger the selection from which you choose, the better your chance to get a real bargain.

This is the advantage of watching the Real Estate columns in the Tribune want ad section. If you are in the market to buy, here is your most comprehensive guide. The Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined. You can be sure that no worthwhile value will escape your notice when you follow these columns. To find the home you want, follow the real estate want ads in the Tribune.

Or what have you?

Stop!—before you throw anything away, review the Barter and Exchange column in the Tribune want ad section. Articles you no longer want may interest the traders who advertise here. By the way, how about that old saxophone in the attic? Or what have you?

"This year's fuel bills are lower"

"Those storm windows were a good investment."

ARE you a slave to a heating plant? Is your house cold and drafty for lack of storm sash? Are you paying too much to get heat?

Installing a better furnace or boiler with proper controls may cost less than you think. Insulation and storm windows soon pay for themselves in fuel saved.

You can find opportunities to save money on these home necessities by watching the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section. There you will find offerings of lumber, millwork, paints, sash, plumbing and heating equipment at special prices. Review this helpful column in the Tribune want ad section.

THIS IS NO FUN

THERE ought to be a society-for-the-prevention-of-trying-to-drive-worn-out-cars-in-winter. It would get over big with the wives and daughters who don't like tramping around in the snow.

If your car cannot be depended upon to give satisfactory service, review the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section. Chicago's largest selection of late model used cars is described there every day.

You can easily find a dependable, good-looking car with the power, styling and modern features you like. And your present car may be the only down payment required. See today's listings.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

SHORT STORIES COLLECTED IN RADIO STUDIOS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Haunting the studios during rehearsals and at broadcasts a radio reporter turns up amusing little incidents and anecdotes involving the big stars of radio. For example:

Anna Neagle had spent hours of rehearsing in W-G-N's main studio for the radio première of her new movie "No, No, Nanette" when Herbert Wilcox, her manager and director, reminded her that she had had nothing to eat all day. She admitted she was hungry.

So Mr. Wilcox sent out for tea and rolls. When they arrived Miss Neagle had returned to the stage to work on "Tea for Two!" For a few minutes it looked like tea for Mr. Wilcox and cold tea for Miss Neagle! But there came a break—and she got her tea.

Last week while Jane Froman was rehearsing a popular song for "In Chicago Tonight," her mother was an interested studio visitor. She had come up for the occasion from Columbia, Mo., where she formerly headed the vocal department at Christian college. Mrs. Froman recalled that for many years Jane and she had sung together. Their voices are similar. Mrs. Froman had hoped that her daughter would become an opera star. All of her training was pointed toward that goal. But Jane moved into the popular field after she came to the attention of Paul Whiteman. Her mother feels that the unique success Jane has attained as a songstress is in a large measure due to the good vocal training she had as a child.

Gerard Darrow, the 8 year old fireball of the Quiz Kids, was interviewed a few weeks ago on the June Baker program. After recounting highlights of his meteoric career Gerard got around to telling about his hobbies. "I collect locks of hair," he said, extracting a curly specimen from his coat pocket.

"I even have one hair from Joe Kelly's head," he boasted. [Joe is the balding master of ceremonies of the Quiz Kids show.]

Alec Templeton, the blind pianist and impressionist, was a studio guest the evening Richard Bonelli and Marion Claire starred in "The Desert Song." In a few minutes he had memorized all the dramatic rôles, catalogued the voices portraying them and fastened the names of the actors firmly in his mind. Several of the voices he correctly identified with rôles in the daytime serials, of which he is an avid follower. Alec was particularly intrigued by the voice of Bobby Jellison and asked afterwards to meet him.

After the broadcast Alec was besieged by autograph fans. He invited them to send him written requests with their names and addresses.

While photographers were taking pictures after a recent broadcast of "In Chicago Tonight," the guest performers including Yvette, the "Creoriole," held an informal jam session. Bob Zurke played the piano and the Mills brothers contributed some of their liveliest harmony.

Yvette, whose specialties are Parisian songs and quaint tunes based on French nursery rhymes, joined in the hot music, too. She recalled that she got acquainted with jazz singing while attending a convent school in New Orleans. In the evenings the wailing blues of street singers were wafted within the convent walls.

Many W-G-N listeners will recall the story about the colored aviator carrying propaganda leaflets into Germany which Comedian Benny Baker told last week on W-G-N. Baker had an alternative story. But there was time for just one on the program, so he picked the one above. The other runs something like this:

A foreigner on arriving in America had difficulty with the language. A friend after days of struggle taught him the words "Apple pie and coffee."

Thus, the alien was able in a measure to satisfy his gastronomic wants in restaurants. Ultimately he tired of this diet and asked his friend to teach him some additional words. After a struggle lasting several days the newcomer mastered "Swiss cheese." Armed with his new vocabulary he entered a restaurant and sang out "Swiss cheese."

"On white or rye?" queried the waitress.

Befuddled, the foreigner paused for a moment and then exclaimed, "Apple pie and coffee."

Hound of Baskervilles to Bay Next Friday

The baying of the Hound of the Baskervilles will proclaim the mysterious deaths of three brothers in an exciting episode of the "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" to be heard over W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. next Friday. The Baskerville story is being told in six instalments.

On W-G-N

Lola Lane of the Lane sisters of movie fame will make a guest appearance on "In Chicago Tonight" at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

HOLTZ, LOLA LANE TO BE FEATURED ON CHICAGO HOUR

Air Music and Comedy on W-G-N Show.

Comedian Lou Holtz and Lola Lane of Hollywood fame will be two of the headliners to appear on In Chicago Tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday.

Lou Holtz.

Lou Holtz gained his reputation as a comedian both on the stage and then radio. He specializes in dialect stories, his best known tales revolving around the experiences of the fictitious character, "Sam Lapidus." Holtz is currently appearing at the State-Lake theater with a group of movie stars, including Miss Lane, Wendy Barrie, and Arlene Judge.

Lola Lane beat her other famous sisters to Hollywood, but Rosemary [who is appearing around the corner from her sister, at the Oriental] and Priscilla have caught up with her. They have been featured in the Warner Brothers' popular pictures series, the latest of which is "Four Mothers." Miss Lane was born in Macy, Ind., and made her name in vaudeville as a singer and dancer until she went to Hollywood in 1928.

Other features of the show will be the W-G-N chorus directed by Bob Trendler and the W-G-N Dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

IMMACULATA IS NEXT SCHOOL ON 'CITIZENS' HOUR

The Immaculata High school of Chicago will be the first Catholic school to be heard on the Chicago Tribune's radio program, Citizens of Tomorrow from 4:30 to 5 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N.

Msgr. D. F. Cunningham, superintendent of the Catholic schools of the archdiocese of Chicago, will be the guest speaker. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, member of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's editorial staff, who takes the rôle of the principal and is master of ceremonies of the program.

Featured on the half hour broadcast will be the Immaculata Glee club, under the direction of Walter Aschenbrenner. The girls will sing three numbers, "Hymn to Christ the King," by Rafael; "Alphabet," by Mozart, and "Lift Thine Eyes," by Mendelssohn.

Announcer Charles Victor will select 6 girls from the 600 students in attendance at the broadcast to take part in the Tribune news quiz. Winners of the quiz are awarded $5 bills.

Three more names of outstanding Chicagoland students are to be added to the Citizens of Tomorrow Honor Roll. They are Jane Strohm, Indianapolis, Ind.; Wallace McLain, Hillsdale, Mich., and Donald Velle, Dixon, Ill.

ARTHUR HENNING TO START 7TH ANNUAL SERIES

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will start his seventh annual series of "Capital Comment" programs over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 7:30 tonight. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work, and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Henning has covered 20 national political conventions.

CONCERT HOUR TO BE AIRED AT 8:30 WEDNESDAY

'Blossom Time' Next on Theater of Air.

A variety of fine music ranging from Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" to the love hymn "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," will be heard on the Chicagoland Concert hour from 8:30 to 9 p. m. next Wednesday. This program, formerly broadcast on Monday nights, will be heard henceforth at 8:30 p. m. on Wednesdays.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Marion Claire, soprano star, will present Thomas' "Connais-tu le Pays" from "Mignon" for her featured number. The augmented W-G-N chorus will form the background for Miss Claire's rendition of the "Church Scene" from Cavalleria Rusticana.

The complete program follows:

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will lead the W-G-N Concert orchestra in selections from the works of Mozart, Albeniz and Strauss. The W-G-N chorus, under Weber's baton, will sing Moore's "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

'BLOSSOM TIME' NEXT

The life, love, and haunting music of Franz Schubert will live again for an hour when the Chicago Theater of the Air presents Sigmund Romberg's "Blossom Time" from 9:15 to 10:15 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network.

This will be the second presentation of "Blossom Time" in this series. The operetta was presented last spring with Marion Claire and Igor Gorin in the leading rôles. Mr. Gorin again will sing the rôle of Schubert; Miss Claire, that of Mitzi.

The success of the W-G-N operetta series has prompted the J. J. Schubert office, theatrical producers, to launch an operetta series at the Grand Opera House. "Blossom Time," with Everett Marshall as the star, will be the first of these. It will open Tuesday evening. Other light opera productions will follow.

W-G-N announced last night that because of the many requests for tickets to the Chicago Theater of the Air performances remaining to be filled, no additional applications for tickets to this series will be considered for the present.

The music of "Blossom Time," by Sigmund Romberg, is based on airs by Schubert, and the operetta itself is the story of his life, love, and music. In the climatic scene, Schubert plays the theme melody, "This Is My Song of Love," based on his "Unfinished Symphony."

The duet, "Ave Maria," by Mr. Gorin and Miss Claire, with its haunting refrain, "Peace, Peace to My Lonely Heart," will be one of the highlights of the show. Other familiar melodies will be the lovely, reminiscent, "There in Old Vienna," the throbbing "Marche Militaire," and in a lighter vein, "Tell Me Daisy." Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra.

The operetta will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

W-G-N-MUTUAL TO AIR INAUGURAL OF PRESIDENT

Three programs from Washington, all devoted to the inaugural ceremonies of President Roosevelt, will be heard over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network today and tomorrow.

The first broadcast will be an inaugural preview commentary from 2 to 2:05 p. m. today. Announcers and commentators covering the inauguration will bring radio listeners a preview of the inauguration plans.

As part of its coverage W-G-N—Mutual will present the Inauguration Concert at Constitution hall from 9:50 to 10 tonight. On this broadcast Charlie Chaplin will deliver his closing speech from "The Great Dictator," Nelson Eddy will sing, and Hans Kindler will conduct the National Symphony orchestra.

The President's departure from the White House and his ride to the inaugural stand as well as administration of the oath of office by Chief Justice Hughes, and Mr. Roosevelt's inaugural address will be broadcast from 10:15 to 12 noon tomorrow.

REMODELING OLD HOME ADDS YEARS TO USEFULNESS

Antioch Couple Renews House Thruout.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A letter has come to me telling of a worth while remodeling which was done last year in Antioch. The letter was from F. J. Berg, 410 Hardin street, Antioch.

It is interesting not only because of the work done, which was essentially practical and attractive and certainly a wise investment, but because it tells of an experience so many people are planning for the coming year.

The letter follows:

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Some time ago I wrote you for advice on siding for an old house which I had bought and wished to remodel.

"You replied and I want to thank you for your suggestions. Certain details lagged somewhat which accounts for my delay.

Old Porches Removed.

"We tore down both the front and side porches and built a bay in the front. We widened the house at the side and thereby increased the size of the dining room. At the rear of the house we removed a laundry and old woodshed and substituted a new back porch with a trellis. And off the dining room we built a new screened porch.

"We also changed the inside of the house considerably. We widened the opening between the dining room and living room, which gave the appearance of much greater space, and we arched several of the door openings. I forgot to mention that all window sash was renewed and without much difficulty.

Basement Excavated.

"A basement was excavated under all but the kitchen and retaining walls of concrete built. A warm air furnace was installed and, new roofs were laid and exterior walls of wide siding.

"Like all remodeling work it turned out to be a bigger job than I had figured, but now that it is done, Mrs. Berg and I are very satisfied with it all. We also feel quite proud of it as we planned it ourselves.

"J. F. BERG."

The original house had stood for many years and had not been maintained in the manner it deserved. Now, inside and out, it has been brought up to modern standards, as have the surrounding lawns and walks.

Plan For Future.

Many people this last year, like Mr. and Mrs. Berg, bought an old home and transformed it, giving it countless years of new usefulness. Many people will do the same this coming year.

Only last week a man said to me: "My wife and I were just married last summer but we've already bought an old house and have started to do it over. We liked the lot, 10 big trees on it and all kinds of shrubbery and bushes and vines. The house is pretty down at the heels but we're looking forward to some real fun doing it over. We had an architect tell us frankly what he thought about the purchase before we went ahead. He was for it. The house is sound, all right. It's just been neglected. We feel we have a real buy—and real fun ahead."

QUILL MATCHES HIS SKILL WITH AFRICAN FAKIRS'

Deepest and darkest Africa will provide the scene for the "Devil's Magic" episode of "Peter Quill" to be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. today over W-G-N and Mutual.

Gail Carson and Capt. Dorn penetrate the mysterious jungles of the panther worshipers in quest of an unknown drug which they have reason to believe is being used by a spy. When the purpose of their mission is discovered, the cannibals subject them to the inhuman "Rite of Ju Ju." They are saved from death in the pit of the black panther when Peter Quill arrives with a chemical trick or two that surpasses those of the African fakirs.

The weekly episodes of "Peter Quill" are written and produced by Blair Walliser. Marvin Mueller, Alice Hill, and Ken Griffin portray the leading characters.

Here's Rosemary Lane, who with her sisters, Lola and Priscilla, and Gale Page play the title rôles in "Four Mothers." Jeffrey Lynn and Eddie Albert are leading male players.

Deanna Durbin's ninth film is "Nice Girl." She's the one in the middle, and the other two are Anne Gwynne (top) and Ann Gillis.

"Back Street," which was produced in 1932, starring Irene Dunne and John Boles, has been filmed again. In this version Margaret Sullavan and Charles Boyer are co-starred. Here they are as they appear in the picture.

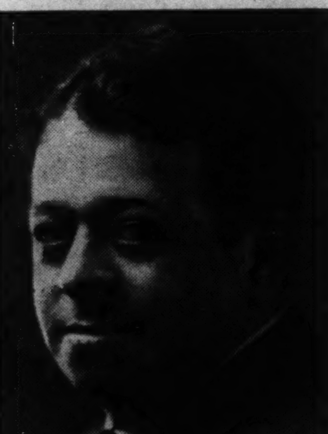
Operetta "Blossom Time" Returns Tuesday Night

By Cecil Smith

"Blossom Time," the perennially popular operetta based upon an apocryphal version of the life of Franz Schubert, and filled with Schubert tunes translated into operetta style by Sigmund Romberg, comes back to the Grand Opera house Tuesday night for a limited engagement. Everett Marshall, who headed the cast in our last "Blossom Time" revival two years ago, will again sing the rôle of Schubert.



Douglas Leavitt

As it happens, "Blossom Time" is the third in a series of musical attractions which have been announced for an opening in the Grand Opera house this week. According to first plans, Dennis King was to have appeared in his new and costly musical comedy. Tryout performances in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh revealed, however, that the book needed extensive revision if not complete rewriting, and the show was taken off the boards altogether. As a replacement, "Yokel Boy" was announced, just a few days before Joe Penner's sudden death caused the disbanding of that company.

As a source of supply for Chicago theaters, Broadway has temporarily broken down. There was no single touring attraction to take over the "Yokel Boy" booking. Nor is there, even yet, any play in sight to relight the darkened Selwyn. Because fall production began slowly in New York, because of the uncertainty of international affairs, new productions have been slow to replace successful old ones, and the turnover which formerly sent plays spinning out onto the road has not taken place.

Evelyn Daw

Gracie Worth

Then, too, there seems to be a shortage of new plays worth producing. This state of affairs is illuminated by a joint statement recently issued by Katharine Cornell and Guthrie McClintic: "Another cause of the scarcity of production is dearth of scripts which will hold up until tomorrow or the day after. The theater, like the arts, is a reflection of life. With events moving as fast as they are today, it is difficult to find something which can stand up against the rush of the history we see written today."

And so, since no novelties are ready to move in the direction of Chicago, this has seemed like a good time to restore the tried and true "Blossom Time" to the loop. This operetta has never yet failed to draw an audience, and probably it never will. Starting with the initial advantage of a Viennese locale—which is practically foolproof in itself—it adds the asset of an effective and likeable sentimental story, in which Schubert is portrayed as a shy, impecunious artist whose frustrations lead him to express himself in a torrent of matchless song. If the libretto of "Blossom Time" does not tally with the established facts of Schubert's life, at least its suitability to the requirements of romantic operetta compensates for its unabashed lack of historicity. And the Schubert melodies with which the tale is embellished do, of course, deserve their enduring popularity. In my unregenerate opinion, the best of them all is the "Song of Love," which is considerably more Romberg than Schubert, and which attains a purely operatic sort of climax that was foreign to Schubert's essentially untheatrical temperament. Let musical purists rail as they will at Romberg for distorting the Schubert melodies; the fact remains that it is Romberg and not Schubert who made most of the tunes theatrically salable and vo-

Trend in Theater Is Toward Fantastic and Ridiculous

Murder Plays Catch Popular Fancy in N. Y.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—We appear to be running enthusiastically to murder in the theater. Happily, they are mostly comic murders, as in the case of "Arsenic and Old Lace," which was the popular hit of the week. The corpus delicti in "Eight o'Clock Tuesday," a second contribution, is not very funny in itself, but it takes on certain amusing angles when it persists in coming back to life to reënact its rôle in the illustration of alibis submitted in evidence.

The best of them, as intimated, is "Arsenic and Old Lace." Written by Joseph Kesselring, and produced by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse with a part of the profit they have made from "Life with Father," this is probably the most hilarious murder farce of which the theater has record.

Now it happens that I am one of those old killjoys who do not react enthusiastically to the obviously artificial and wholly fantastic farce. The believable drama is my weakness—the drama that you either do believe or want to believe. Therefore I found myself sitting sober faced and with nary a stitch in either side many times during the evening, while all about me my seatmates were threatened with bursting blood vessels and hysterical emotional spasms.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" seems quite likely to prove sensationally popular. For one thing, the trend in theater taste is toward the fantastic and the completely ridiculous. For another, this particular play is as well cast and as expertly directed as any comedy farce has been since the memorable "You Can't Take It With You" of two years ago.

The Brewsters of Brooklyn furnish plot and story for this comedy. Aunt Abby and Aunt Martha Brewster have lived in the old brown stone homestead all their lives. They are as sweet a pair of darlings as any family ever produced. Yet they have a fatal passion. Whenever among their roomers they come upon a lonely old gentleman with nothing much to live for they cannot rest while they poison him and bury his body in the cellar. Their record up to playtime is twelve.

Teddy Brewster lives with his aunts. Teddy is a nice fat, harmless boy who imagines that he is Teddy Roosevelt. Looks like T. R., too. Every time he starts upstairs he recalls San Juan hill and dashes, with unearthly screams, to the top. To Teddy the cellar represents Panama, and the poison victims, lying row on row, are yellow fever victims.

IN MURDER MELODRAMA

[James Hargis Connelly Photo.]

Then there is Jonathan Brewster. Jonathan was really a bad boy before he left home. He used to bite worms in two and wanted to be a great surgeon. Around the world he went in for murder in a big way, and, finally, to escape the law, he had his face lifted until he came to look like Boris Karloff [who plays the part]. Jonathan comes home, bringing the remains of his latest victim with him. But the sisters will not let him bury an entire stranger in their cellar. This leads to complications.

• • •

Finally there is Mortimer Brewster. He is entirely sane, except that he has become a drama critic. When Mortimer discovers what the other Brewsters are up to he has to do a tall bit of scheming and work fast, first, to keep the police from finding out, and, second, to have them all committed to a nice, quiet asylum before they can do any more harm.

Josephine Hull.

This he accomplishes and is then free to marry the ingénue because he discovers that he really is not a Brewster. He is an illegitimate orphan, adopted by the aunts when he was a baby. The fact that he is both illegitimate and a drama critic offers a perfect combination for the authors to play with.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" is perfectly, even inspiringly, played. Josephine Hull and Jean Adair are ideal as the aunts—especially Miss Hull, the fussier and more meticulous of the two. Boris Karloff plays his horror man of the screen perfectly. Allyn Joslyn is the sane Mortimer, and John Alexander the insane Teddy.

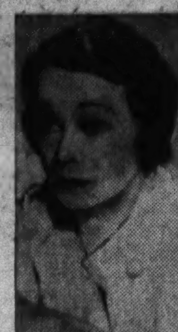
Pauline Lord's adventure in murder is also interesting, but not exciting. "Eight o'Clock Tuesday," as you might suspect, is concerned with the discovery of a cadaver at approximately that hour of the day.

Most of you probably can remember back to the flashback classic called "On Trial." In that play Elmer Rice visualized the testimony being taken in a courtroom and, scene by scene, pushed the evidence back to the commission of the crime itself.

In "Eight o'Clock Tuesday" Mignon Eberhardt and Robert Wallsten turn the same trick, but without the aid of turntable stages. In their play Ivan Godden [McKay Morris] is found dead in his library by his young wife [Celeste Holm] and his older sister [Pauline Lord]. Next door an intimate neighbor and old friend is giving a dinner party and among the guests arriving about 8 o'clock are several who had no reason to love Mr. Godden and could easily have sought an interview with him by crossing the yard separating the houses.

The police are notified. Two detectives arrive and the investigation is on. The senior detective, however, is no common flatfoot of the force. He is an amateur psychoanalyst and he has a theory that any guilty person can be tripped into a confession if scientifically interrogated.



Pauline Lord.

Detective Wait [Bramwell Fletcher] begins his questioning. As each witness comes to the point of his last contact with the dead man the lights are turned off. When they are turned on the testimony is acted out under the spotlights, with the dead man come to life to reënact his part.

There is skill in the staging and direction, but the successive flashbacks become a little monotonous because of their sameness. In the end, tho the sister tries to assume the blame, it is fastened on a girlhood lover, who had always hated the dead man.

The performances are uniformly excellent, tho also routine. Miss Lord fits her staccato style into one scene, which serves to display her gifts as an actress at their best.

'Blossom Time' to Be Revived Tuesday Night

cally effective. According to an ambitious advance announcement, "Blossom Time" is to be the first of an extensive series of musical comedies and operettas. "Cyrano de Bergerac," never presented in Chicago but heard over W-G-N last night, is planned as the second in the repertory. The announcement continues: "In addition to new works to be presented in this series, prior to their Broadway opening, will be a revival of old favorites, among which will be 'Countess Maritza,' 'My Maryland,' 'Rose Marie,' 'Firefly,' 'Maytime,' 'Princess Flavia,' 'Three Waltzes,' 'Nina Rosa,' 'Miss Springtime,' 'Frederika,' to mention but a few." [Italics mine.]

In addition to Mr. Marshall, who graduated from the Metropolitan Opera company into musical comedy and operetta, the cast of "Blossom Time" includes a number of other expert practitioners of the lyric theater. Evelyn Daw, recently of the "Yokel Boy" company which we were destined not to see, and a season ago a member of the cast of "Three After Three," will impersonate Mitzi, the little Viennese girl upon whom Schubert sets his affections. Martha Errolle, who made her Chicago debut last month in "Night of Love," will sing Bella Bruna. Other principal performers are Frank Hornaday, Douglas Leavitt [the comic of our last "Blossom Time"], Driscoll Wolfe, Gracie Worth, Betty Davis, and Joseph Toner.

The announcement of Tuesday's première carries the name of no producer, but it will be noted that the principals are drawn from a list well known to the Shubert office. It may, therefore, be reasonably surmised that the production has been created with the assistance of the Shuberts, who know more about "Blossom Time" than all the other theatrical producers in the world put together.

Piano Winners

Of the 11 young pianists to reach the semifinal auditions in the third annual contest sponsored by the Society of American Musicians and the Adult Education council only two are men, Marvin Gross and Harry Sukman. The nine young women who will compete with them are Alice Baram, Beatrice Eppstein, Dorothy Crost, Constance Clare, Clara Friend, Jean Graham, Jacobeth Kerr, Alice Martz, and Clara Siegel. The auditions for the selection of finalists will be held on Monday, Jan. 27, at 7:30 o'clock in Kimball hall. The four pianists then chosen will compete at an audition in Orchestra hall at a date to be announced. Both semifinal and final contests will be open to the public at a slight admission charge.

Last year's winner of the contest, Wanda Paul, will appear on this season's Musical Arts Piano series, playing in Orchestra hall on Feb. 4.

Notes of Music and Musicians

A program of solos and duets, almost entirely from the operatic répertoire, will be sung in Orchestra hall on Wednesday night by Virginia Pemberton, soprano, and Ladis Kiepura, tenor.

Seven songs from Schumann's "Dichterliebe" are listed on Marian Anderson's program in the Auditorium theater next Sunday afternoon. Also scheduled are two arias by Handel, a recitative and chorale from one of Bach's cantatas, "Pleurez mes yeux" from Massenet's "Le Cid," two songs by Villa-Lobos, numbers by Tavares and Varona, and the customary group of Negro spirituals. This will be the only Chicago recital by the great colored contralto. During the current season she is booked to make some 90 appearances within five months.

Marian Anderson.

Vladimir Horowitz will be heard in a piano recital in Orchestra hall next Sunday afternoon. On his program are listed Beethoven's Sonata in E flat major, Op. 31; Schumann's Arabesque, Op. 18; Chopin's Sonata in B flat minor; Jelobinsky's Six Short Etudes [first Chicago performance], and four Liszt études.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" will be staged in the Goodman theater next Sunday evening by the Chicago Concert and Opera guild. Silvio Insana, founder and general director of the organization, will conduct.

Jerry Sirucek, oboist, will be soloist with the American Concert orchestra on its "Musical Matinées for Young People" program in the Illinois music concert hall on Saturday afternoon. Ralph Cissne will, as usual, conduct.

Argentinita and her ensemble of Spanish dancers and instrumentalists have added a second appearance in Chicago to that already scheduled. They were due to dance in the Auditorium theater on the History and Enjoyment of Music series on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 9. In addition they will now give a program in the Auditorium that same evening.

Tomorrow is the final day on which applications may be made to the Music guild, 218 South Wabash avenue, for those who wish to appear on its proposed Beethoven-Schubert series.

The Northwestern university concert band, conducted by Glenn Cliffe Bainum, will present a concert in Cahn auditorium of Scott hall on the university campus this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Special items on the program include Mancini's Symphonic March, Don Malin's arrangement of Handel's "Water Music" suite, and three 16th century instrumental pieces.

As part of the University of Chicago's 50th anniversary celebration the department of music will sponsor two performances of Lortzing's comic opera, "The Armorer" ["Der Waffenschmied"], on Feb. 9 and 10, in Mandel hall, 57th street and University avenue. The work will be sung in English by Henrietta Chase, Bertha Brotman, Winfred Stracke, Robert Spiro, Frank Finn, and members of the Swedish Choral club. Dr. Siegmund Levarie of the music department will conduct.

The appearance of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall on Monday evening, Jan. 27, will be a benefit for the Greek War Relief fund. Dimitri Mitropoulos, the dynamic Greek conductor of the Minneapolis organization, will conduct a program consisting of Schumann's Second Symphony, Mozart's Overture to "Don Giovanni," Debussy's "La Mer," and the Bach-Weiner Toccata in C major.

When the Apollo Musical club gives its annual spring concert on Feb. 18 in Orchestra hall it will dedicate the event to Ignace Jan Paderewski in honor of the 50th anniversary of the Polish pianist's American debut. The concert will include three works: Beethoven's Choral Fantasie, Bach's Magnificat, and Elgar's "The Music Makers." Soloists will include Eileen Law, Bernice Rickman, Le Roy Hamp, Michael Stewart, and Elsie Alexander. Edgar Nelson will conduct.

Two ballet companies will visit Chicago early next month. The Littlefield Ballet will dance in the Civic Opera house on Saturday night, Feb. 1, presenting three of their most popular numbers—"Aurora's Wedding," "Café Society," and "Barn Dance." The next day, Feb. 2, the San Francisco Opera ballet will appear in the Great Northern theater in the afternoon. This group is directed by Willam Christensen.

This afternoon the Chicago Symphonic choir, Walter Aschenbrenner, director, will sing a brief vesper service, starting at 4:30, in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel, 59th street and Woodlawn avenue.

Serge Prokofieff, now residing in Moscow, has written to his good Chicago friend, Ephraim F. Gottlieb, that he is making a symphonic suite from portions of his latest and successful opera, "Semyen Kotko," which he will send to the Chicago Symphony orchestra for performance next season. The Russian composer is also at work on a lyric-comic opera, based on Sheridan's "The Duenna."

The Chicago Artists' association will accept applications for its forthcoming scholarship contest until Jan. 31. They should be addressed to Lucy Hartman Delano, 135 South La Salle street.

On Tuesday night the association will give an organ recital at St. James Methodist church, Ellis avenue and 46th street. On the program will be William Lester, Lucille Sternberg, and the St. James choir, Bethuel Gross, conductor.

Gounod's opera, "Faust," will be sung in English by the American Opera company in the Chicago Woman's Club theater tonight under the direction of John Wigent. The cast will include Florence Brown as Marguerite; Margaret Lundquist, Martha; Rachel Hile, Siebel; Arthur Wilkensen, Faust; Martin Boughan, Valentine; Robert Ladoff, Mephistopheles; Edward Early, Wagner.

Vaudeville

After a record breaking 29 week engagement at the Empire room Ray Noble and his orchestra have moved to the Chicago theater. The band leader is featuring several of his own popular songs and a Gershwin medley in his stage appearance. "Santa Fe Trail," with Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, and Raymond Massey, is being held over for a second week as the film.

At the Oriental theater Rosemary Lane makes her first local stage appearance since becoming a name in pictures. Other acts include Franklyn D'Amore and Anita, dancers; Joey Ross and Gladys Bennett, comedians; the Hollywood Co-eds, and Ben Beri, comedy juggler. Leo Heim, Chicago pianist, is featured with the theater orchestra in "Musical Scrapbook." On the screen is "Hullabaloo" with Frank Morgan and Virginia Grey.

Lou Holtz, an excellent dialect comedian, famous for his "Sam Lapidus" stories, heads the bill at the State Lake theater. Appearing with him is the aforementioned Rosemary's sister, Lola; Wendy Barrie and Arline Judge, two more film actresses; Diana Del Rio; Jack Sidney, dancer, and Ruth Day, Universal starlet. The film is "The Phantom Submarine," with Anita Louise and Bruce Bennett.

Soloman Returns as Conductor of Illinois Symphony

Weekly Series of Concerts to Open Tomorrow

By Edward Barry.

In Izler Solomon Chicago possesses one of the nation's most gifted young conductors. Altho his regular appearances here and the occasional enthusiastic newspaper notices which these appearances evoked began about four years ago, the city as a whole refused to assess Mr. Solomon at anything approaching his true value until such distant places as New York, Philadelphia, and Montreal had engaged him for guest appearances.

Now he has in addition the prestige of a weekly chain radio broadcast, and his home city has quite probably acquired enough interest in him to justify a few paragraphs of background and biographical information. The immediate reason for putting him at the head of today's column is the fact that tomorrow evening he will return to his first local love, the Illinois Symphony orchestra, to begin a series of weekly appearances as its conductor.

Izler Solomon was born in St. Paul, Minn., in 1910. His musical education included study of the violin under Myron Poliakin and Michael Press, of composition under Vittorio Giannini, and of conducting under Eric DeLamarter in the Civic Orchestra of Chicago's training school.

He served as conductor of the Lansing, Mich., orchestra and as director of the Federal Music project's Michigan division. About four years ago he became associated with the Illinois Symphony orchestra of Chicago, at that time a unit of the Federal Music project. Such was his success that the Woman's Symphony orchestra engaged him first as guest conductor, then as permanent conductor. He has just completed his second season in the latter capacity.

In the meantime he had been making a number of guest appearances—in Buffalo, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Chicago [Grant park], and New York [NBC Summer symphony concerts]. His 1940 record is impressive. Besides numerous Chicago concerts of the Woman's symphony and Illinois Symphony orchestras, he took charge of similar events in Montreal [Les Concerts Symphonique], New York [an all-American concert in Carnegie hall and two NBC Summer symphony concerts], and Philadelphia [Robin Hood dell].

The qualities which make Mr. Solomon a good conductor are partly the qualities which go to make any good interpretive musician. He has the imagination necessary to penetrate the composer's musical desires, the integrity to reproduce the music according to these desires, and a healthy curiosity about new music in unconventional idioms. In addition he seems to have a way of his own with musicians. He is able to get from them a unified, fresh, full hearted sort of response. Despite the fact that the orchestras he has regularly conducted here are not composed exclusively of extraordinarily able musicians he is able to make them sound sometimes like virtuoso bands. He has a knack for getting the best out of people.

• • •

Mr. Solomon's soloist tomorrow evening is the Chicago pianist, Esther Linder. The complete program for this concert, which will be given in the Great Northern theater, follows:

Concerto Grosso, "Winter," from "The Four Seasons"....................Vivaldi
Edited by Bernardino Molinari.
First performance in Chicago.
Violin solo by Herman Clebanoff.
Symphony No. 1, "The Santa Fé Trail"....................McDonald
First performance in downtown Chicago.
El Salón México....................Copland
Concerto for Piano, No. 3, C Major, opus 26....................Prokofieff
Esther Linder.

• • •

One of the world's great violinists, the Russian, Nathan Milstein, comes to Orchestra hall this week to appear as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Hans Lange's direction at the Thursday night and Friday afternoon concerts. Mr. Milstein is a native of Odessa. His first professional concert experiences came at the age of 19. When he arrived in western Europe, friendless and penniless, in 1925, his good reputation had preceded him and he found backers to launch him upon his world career.

That career has been brilliantly successful. Mr. Milstein's virtuosity, sound musicianship, and personal modesty have won and held the loyalty of a huge audience. This is his 13th appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and it should be one of the climactic points of the golden jubilee season.

Thursday and Friday he is doing something which only a well established artist would dare do—playing only a single movement of a concerto. His action seems wise, in view of the fact that 90 per cent of the musical value of the Paganini First Concerto is concentrated in the opening movement. He is also doing the Bach E Major concerto complete.

• • •

Hans Lange loves to find attractive 18th century symphonies which are unknown or almost unknown to his audiences. The Mozart C Major symphony which is being played this week has had only one previous performance at these concerts, and that 27 years ago. It is the "Linz" symphony, composed in 1783.

The complete program follows:

Overture, "Ruy Blas," opus 95.Mendelssohn
Symphony, C Major [Kochel 425]...Mozart
Concerto for Violin, E Major............Bach
Nathan Milstein.
Rapsodie Espagnole....................Ravel
Allegro maestoso, from Concerto for Violin, No. 1, D Major, opus 6....................Paganini
Nathan Milstein.

• • •

At next Saturday evening's popular concert, which Frederick Stock will conduct, the Chicago pianist, Bertha Ostrar, will appear as soloist. She was the winner of the contest conducted by the Musicians Club of Women. The program:

Overture to "The Improvisatore"..d'Albert
Symphony No. 8, F Major, opus 93....................Beethoven
Concerto for Piano............Shostakovich
Bertha Ostrar.
Symphonie Fantaisie.............Miaskowsky
Benedictus....................Otis
Ballet Music from "Le Cid"......Massenet

SOLOIST WITH SYMPHONY

On tomorrow night's concert in the Great Northern theater by the Illinois Symphony orchestra Esther Linder will play Prokofieff's Third Piano Concerto. Izler Solomon will conduct. [Nelidoff Photo.]

Talented Civic Orchestra Will Be Heard Today

By Cecil Smith.

The Civic orchestra, by all odds one of Chicago's most valuable and important musical institutions, plays its first public concert of the season in Orchestra hall this afternoon. Hans Lange will conduct a program including the first three movements of Mahler's second symphony [two of the three movements being entirely new to Chicago audiences] and the Haydn symphony in B-flat nicknamed "The Queen of France."

The annual set of four Orchestra hall concerts is the outward token of the inward activity of a musical organization which keeps exceedingly busy, day in and day out, from October to June. The Civic orchestra is far more than a performing instrumental ensemble. It is a school, devoted to the training of young orchestral players, and administered by the Orchestral association under the supervision of Dr. Frederick Stock and the trustees of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

• • •

The immediate destinies of the orchestra are guided by Hans Lange, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. With the assistance of Clarence Evans and other skilled veterans of the senior orchestra, Mr. Lange conducts daily rehearsals of his 103 young instrumentalists. Under his experienced guidance they learn to play together as coöperating members of a symphonic ensemble; to understand and obey a conductor's indications; to adapt the technique of their instruments to the proper interpretation of orchestral music; they become acquainted with many of the staple classics of symphonic repertory, and they learn to sight-read new music with professional exactness and speed. The music played publicly in the orchestra's four concerts represents only a tiny fraction of total musical bulk included in a year's course of study.

Hans Lange.

Mr. Lange and the others in charge of the Civic orchestra are convinced, however, that technical dexterity is not the sole mark of a desirable musical performer. From year to year the curriculum has been constantly enlarged to include increasing requirements in the fields of harmony and general musical theory, composition, musical history and musical esthetics. The theoretical subjects are most competently taught by Remi Gassmann, whose long study with Paul Hindemith has made him one of the best trained young musical theorists in this vicinity.

• • •

The eagerness of the Civic orchestra students is an unending marvel and an unceasing joy. If I speak with special appreciation, it is because I have just attained, for the first time, an inside acquaintance with the group. This winter Dr. Stock and Mr. Lange have bestowed upon me the privilege of lecturing each week to the 79 boys and 24 girls, and this experience has given me an immediate sense of the creative enthusiasm with which the students approach their work. In the half hour before lunch I do not think many music students would concentrate as attentively as they did upon the function of a transitory modulation to the subdominant key in the bridge passage connecting the first and second themes in the recapitulation section of a Mozart sonata. The secret, of course, is that these students are intelligent enough to realize that they do not want to turn into musicians who merely play notes without comprehending either the structural or the emotional meaning of the music they play.

If you attend this afternoon's concert [for a top price of 50 cents] you will hear honest, competent, lively playing. You will be hearing young musicians who glory in their first opportunity to show their mettle, and you may be certain that the concert will not contain a desultory moment.

The program is as follows:

Overture, "Fingal's Cave"......Mendelssohn
First three movements from Symphony No. 2, G minor....................Mahler
[First and second movements played for the first time in Chicago.]
Symphony No. 85, B-flat major, "The Queen of France"..............Haydn
Overture to "Rienzi"..............Wagner

Percy Grainger, the wild-haired Australian born pianist and composer, will be a headliner this afternoon in the Congress hotel, in a British benefit program. Proceeds from the concert will be used to buy milk for infants in the bombed areas of Great Britain.

Mr. Grainger will play a group of piano solos, including Debussy's Toccata in C-sharp minor, R. Nathaniel Dett's "Juba Dance," and three of his own folksong arrangements. Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N symphony orchestra, will play violin solos. Other artists include Marie Sidenius Zendt, Chicago lyric soprano; the Trepel string trio, whose members are three Canadian sisters, and three artist pupils of Anna Fitzu—Mona Bradford, Shirley Dickinson, and William Tabbert. Blanche Van Buren's original one act play, "When Lilacs Last," will be presented under Lilacs Last," will be presented.

Recordings

The Chicago Committee for Music Appreciation has completed its series of weekly releases of low priced recordings of excerpts from opera. Until the supply is exhausted, any or all of the 13 albums may be obtained at either of the committee's two distribution headquarters—65 E. Lake street and 14 N. Franklin street.

The operas represented in the series are "Faust," "Carmen," "Tannhäuser," "Lohengrin," "Tristan and Isolde" [tmo albums], "The Marriage of Figaro," "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," "Aida," "La Bohème," "Madame Butterfly," and "Pagliacci."

The committee is insuring still larger distribution for the recordings by placing them in many schools, in the radio council of the Chicago Board of Education, and in the Chicago Public library. Recordings both of the recent operatic series and last summer's symphonic series may be drawn from the library.

New Edition of Education Guide Ready

By the Rev. John Evans.

The third edition of "Higher Education, a Guide to Students in the Selection of a College or University," will go to press this week. As in former editions, all comparative statistical data will be based on the report of the American Council on Education. The most recent report was for 1940 report if significant changes had 25 cents, postage paid.

However, presidents of all colleges were permitted to revise the council's 1940 report if significant changes have been made since its publication. The first two editions contained chapters on definitions used in higher education, such as the difference between a liberal arts college and a university, accrediting agencies, the university, the liberal arts college, what is engineering?, the engineer, and college or university expense.

• • •

The new book will contain authoritative suggestions concerning premedical education as outlined by the Association of American Medical Colleges; a list of approved private day and boarding preparatory schools in the Chicago area which fit students for entrance examinations of the academically exclusive colleges of the country; accredited law schools and prelegal education.

The first tabulation in the new book will show the comparative financial structures of 24 liberal arts colleges shown by the American Council on Education to have $2,000,000 or more investments in buildings and equipment, exclusive of land. To include land values would import wide variations not effecting educational advantages. A country campus of 1,000 acres, for instance, would have little educational advantage over a city campus of 10 acres worth several times as much as the country campus.

Establishment of seven scholarships at Wilson college, Chambersburg, Pa., available to girls unable, without financial aid, to attend that college are announced by the president, Dr. Paul Swain Havens. These scholarships carry an annual value of $500, and a potential value of $2,000, since they will be renewed for the entire four year course subject to academic proficiency.

The American Association of Schools of Social Work will hold its annual convention, Jan. 30 to Feb. 1, at the Knickerbocker hotel and at the University of Chicago. What social workers can contribute to national defense will be the discussion topic. This convention is one of the national conclaves in connection with the university's fiftieth anniversary celebration. More than 200 directors and faculty members from about 40 schools are expected to attend.

I. College Financial Structures

Standard liberal arts colleges having investments in buildings and equipment in excess of $2,000,000 [land values not included]. The table shows also total endowments, and endowment and investment per student. Financial data were originally compiled from the American Council on Education, report for 1940. However, administrators of institutions were invited to revise those figures as of the end of the current fiscal year.

Music Who's Who

The 1941 edition of Who Is Who in Music has just been published by the Lee Stern Press. It is a mammoth volume of about 900 pages containing not only a large biographical section but also a great variety of other features. Its purpose is to give a comprehensive picture of world musical activities and musical personalities.

There are more than 100 articles and regional surveys by authorities in various fields. Some of the writers represented are Leonard Liebling, Edwin Franko Goldman, Noble Cain, Artur Rodzinski, John Barbirolli, Edwin McArthur, Walter Damrosch, Rudolph Ganz, Ruth Page, Frederick Stock, Serge Koussevitzky, Hans Rosenwald, Pitts Sanborn, Oscar Thompson, Eugene Ormandy, Deems Taylor, Todd Duncan, Vladimir Golschmann, Eric Sorantin, Lauritz Melchior, Ebba Sundstrom, Earl V. Moore, Sir Ernest MacMillan, Nicolas Slonimsky, Alexander Savine, and Herbert F. Peyser.

In addition there is a symposium on popular music by Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman, Hal Kemp, Gene Krupa, Kay Kyser, and Raymond Scott.

The new Who Is Who contains classified lists of persons active in every branch of music and classified lists of business enterprises which have a direct or indirect relation to music. There is a very large picture section, a helpful list of recent books on music, a "Five Foot Shelf" of noteworthy recordings, and a huge master record catalog which includes both standard and popular music.

There is even a musical quiz section of 14 pages.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Rex Harrison's name in a cast always gives me a tingle of anticipation. I KNOW that, regardless of any defects in his picture vehicle, there'll be ONE smooth and engrossing performance. Mr. Harrison's.

In "Night Train" this fine English actor runs true to form. New life is injected into the film with his every appearance. And he has excellent support and direction — AND an intriguing story. . . . Speaking of his support, Margaret Lockwood, charming!! . . . Basil Radford and Naunton Wayne, who did so much to make "The Lady Vanishes" the winner that it was, are also very much present in this number.

* *

This movie tells a tale of present day international conspiracy. Action starts in Prague, just before the Nazi invasion, and circles round the appearing and disappearing persons of a brilliant English scientist and his daughter. The former's armor plating formula was to have been utilized by the Czechs. It is known of by the Germans, who greatly desire it. . . .

Scientist Bomasch escapes to England and goes into hiding before the Nazis can catch up with him. . . . His daughter, Anna, is held as hostage in a concentration camp. . . . And now, ah-h-h-! She's enabled to escape by a young fellow prisoner whom she wots not is a Nazi agent. . . The object of this release is, thru her movements, to ascertain the whereabouts of her father. . . . [The Nazi man ! ! !]

Anna DOES rejoin Bomasch thru an enemy inspired "personal" in the papers and the assistance of a carefree [?] song plugger [?]—Gus Bennett, who is not what he seems to be. I may add here that Mr. Harrison assumes a number of identities with ease and composure. . .

And now complications follow thick and fast leading up to a melodramatic finale which only the Harrison technique saves from being ten, twent', thirt'. . . .

* *

The piece is fast moving and very exciting. . . . It is tangy with the condiments of romance and suspense without which a spy drama would be flat indeed.

Remember, as you watch, that "Night Train" was made under fire. . . . For the British carry on even in their motion picture studios. . . . Honor and glory to these gallant entertainers for their efforts toward and success in upholding a nation's morale.

See you tomorrow.

Blackhawk Offers Something New in Night Club Revues

'Grandfather's Follies' Is a Gay Burlesque of Old Melodramas

By Will Davidson.

That elusive "something different" is on display at the Blackhawk. It is called "Grandfather's Follies" and you've never seen anything quite like it around here.

You may be pretty tired of the can-can, and of burlesqued singing waiters and corny imitations of the old melodramas, but the way those old standbys are put together in this fast and zephyrish revue gives them something of an illusion of contemporaneity. The basic ingredient is ham, but it is well garnished with good humor.

Seen from behind an almost impenetrable phalanx of waiters and customers, the visual qualities of "Grandfather's Follies" must remain something of a mystery to me, at least until a more auspicious and less busy evening arrives. But the laughter of the non-Annie Oakley brigade, and the post-curtain comments of those who could see bore out my hunch that this is a corking good entertainment stunt.

The Blackhawk's bandstand has been converted into a stage, giving Mr. Ted Fio Rito and his musicians the ornery task of playing a very heavy score from a crowded side stand, and then transferring back to the stage for their dance sets. But Mr. Fio Rito and his boys survive and do both jobs eminently well.

It's Knight and Dale in the Camellia House now. The Drake hotel imported Bob Knight from the east's more longnetted rendezvous Tuesday night, and he fits the room very neatly. He has a rather simple style of playing, with the jogging sort of rhythm that seems to be popular in the east. Knight's strength lies in the mellowness of his music, and his own work on a specially built console electric guitar is an important factor in that quality. Personally he's an engaging young gent.

Dale Evans—charming and music wise—long ago earned her Chicago popularity. The versatility that enabled her to follow a successful run at the Chez Paree with an equally successful one in the Balinese room now fits her neatly into the more ostentatious atmosphere of Camellia House. Whether she sings "Sweet Leilani," "I Can't Get Started," "Taint Necessarily So," or a subtle little Conga, if you can imagine any Conga being subtle, Miss Evans is unfailingly effective.

The Trianon ballroom has its first double header of the year today, with Bill Bardo joining Lawrence Welk in the music making. Dick Jurgens handles the Aragon alone.

Mike Todd is having overflow trouble, so he has added a third show to his Friday night schedule. Friday, Saturday, and Sunday now have three shows a night.

Eddy Duchin at the Palmer House Thursday, and Ray Herbeck at the Edgewater Beach hotel last night, were the other big scheduled openings of the week. Rufe Davis came in to finish out the current Chez Paree show, too.

Those Monday night Cuban carnivals are really exciting the Rush street Latins who catch them at the Colony club. Bobby Ramos and Monchito combine musical forces to make them jam sessions in the manana manner.

When any list of unusual entertainers is arranged, the name of Georges Stefanescu of the Yar should be near the top. One of very few men who can play the pipes of Pan, Stefanescu does it superbly, and the thin, tenuous little tunes he produces are delightful to hear.

Boswelling the Bistros: A Monday night glance at the Pump room crowd takes in Joe E. Lewis, Johnny Green, Dick Himber, Lee Wiley, Ramon Ramos, and Michael Bartlett recharging their own show room to hear Maggi McNellis make angelic music out of her own "Caballero," and such other tunes as "Latins Know How" or "We Can Live on Love." Maggi's opening night corsage, incidentally, from Matty Malneck and his band bore a card signed "Matti and the Boys." . . . I'm waiting starry eyed for a chance to cover these openings some day: Joe E. Lewis at the Pump room, Maggi at the So Ho, Siren Tange De Voe at the Camellia House, Ray Noble and Veloz and Yolanda in the Balinese room, and the Yar's Georges Scherban at the Panther room. . . .

Lou Hoffman, comic juggler, is in Art Kassel's new show in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel, along with Collette and Barry and the Hadley girls. . . . Ding Bell seems to be at least temporarily permanent in the Bismarck's Ranch room. . . . Dick Jurgens was given a 30th birthday party at the Aragon Saturday night. . . . Ruby Mercer, prima donna of Mike Todd's revue, is an amateur animal trainer. An amateur trainer of animals, that is. . . . Gray haired Emil Flindt is back at the Paradise ballroom, featuring Eddy and Eddy, dance champions. . . .

The Harry Lim jam sessions have been renewed in the Panther room on Sunday afternoons. . . . Griff Williams is recording the yowls of daughter Holly, whereas most dads try to forget. . . . Jerry Bergen is walking under Hi Hat tables again. . . . And don't fail to ask Sammy Williams [Gibby's] for his swing version of the funeral march.

PALMER HOUSE HEADLINER

The lad with the Lochinvar look is Eddy Duchin, who has returned to the Empire room of the Palmer House as the star of the new 1941 revue. Eddy and his orchestra have been away two years and the grand piano has been polished up for his triumphal return.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.
[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Leaving aside for the nonce all questions of skill and confining our attention to the matter of temperament, most bridge players can be divided into two classes, lambs and wolves.

It is a moot point which of these make the worst partners. The lambs are apt to get us into less trouble, but in crucial situations they might as well be absent from the bridge table, for all the good they are in helping us make hairline decisions or in cooperating on tough defenses. Their dearest wish is to avoid responsibility; it almost seems that they would rather have us go down four tricks at our suit and strictly on our own bidding than go down two tricks themselves by daring to open their mouths.

The bridge table wolf is an even more infuriating specimen. This is the gentleman [or lady] who picks up the reins when he [or she] sits down and never thereafter relinquishes them. Saxon Fairwood, writing in the Bridge World magazine, aptly calls them "control hoggers" and drives home his point in heavily satirical fashion, as follows:

"It's a well known fact that partners were made to be sat upon; and unless they are properly squelched at least twice during the course of each rubber they have a way of becoming quite unmanageable. Why, only three months ago one of my friends allowed himself to be so outmaneuvered that his partner played a hand at notrump. It'll be a long time before he lives that down!

"Now, unless you're willing to face such prospects as that, you have to keep certain principles in mind during the bidding of each hand. The most important of them all is: Never let your partner make a decision! Even when holding a complete Yarborough, it is correct to take a deep breath before each pass—just to remind your partner that you are there, ready to make whatever decisions are necessary for the combined hands.

"I can get down to cases by showing you a few bidding situations just as they occurred in a well known New York bridge club. They may appear to be a little disconnected, but if you think about them for a while you'll see that the central theme of all is the seizure of control of the bidding in spite of any feebleminded protest from partner.

"Take a case where you have opened the bidding, quite normally, with one heart, holding:

♠AQ7 ♥AQ1084 ♦Q3 ♣654

Your partner bids one spade, and now it's up to you again. Here, I'm pleased to note, the experts [save the mark!] are in some disagreement. But control hoggers need not hesitate.

"Most experts bid two spades, on the theory that such a bid does not guarantee any substantial strength not shown by the opening bid; it simply shows a near-minimum bid which contains spade support. They reason that partner may have the type of hand which looks pretty bad unless there is a spade fit but which is probably good for a game if there is a spade fit. Other experts hesitate to support the spades for fear of showing too much strength or four card spade support; they rebid the hearts, thus beginning a sign-off.

"These reasons, of course, are the wildest outpourings of fevered and disordered minds. I just repeat them to show you to what lengths they go to imitate the forms of logic. The only sound bid, as every practical player knows, is one notrump. Then, whatever happens, if your partner feels like going on, you and not your partner can play the hand at notrump. The chances are that you can make three notrump just as easily as four spades; if not, well nobody's perfect, so don't fret about it.

"Of course, you want to be just the wee-est bit careful not to let your partner know your reasons for your bidding. I still remember the case of a dear friend of mine who was a little too frank with an uncivilized partner. Twice during the same week he had the type of hand just shown. His partner's cards on these two occasions were:

♠KJ65 ♥J52 ♦KJ87 ♣AQ

"The bidding went one heart, one spade, one notrump on both occasions. The first time the uncivilized gentleman bid two spades, which my friend naturally passed. The hand unfortunately made four spades very easily, and declarer screamed that he'd have bid four spades if his imbecile of a partner had only had the good sense to bid two spades instead of one notrump.

"The second time the same uncivilized gentleman was my friend's partner; and after my friend had rebid one notrump, the U. G. went to three notrump. Unfortunately, a club was led thru the A-Q, and since both the heart and club kings were offside, the game was beaten. The U. G. stated very grimly that my friend should have bid two spades and that he [the U. G.] would have bid three notrump just the same; and that he would have made that contract no matter what opening lead was chosen.

"It was at this critical point that my poor friend allowed himself to observe that playing notrump hands was a sort of hobby of his, a specialty of the house, ha ha! It was a source of great comfort to his family that he died laughing!

"Now let's take up another familiar situation. Mr. M. had a part score of 30, not vulnerable, and opened the bidding with one spade, holding:

♠AQ8642 ♥J4 ♦A103 ♣Q5

His partner went to two notrump, and naturally Mr. M. snickered. He knew that he'd simply have to bid and rebid spades until he had taught his partner a lesson. But just then the fellow at M.'s right bid three hearts, vulnerable. So now M. could make a free rebid of three spades to show that the suit was really rebiddable.

"The bid of three spades was made with an overtrick, thus making both sides vulnerable. And after M. had played the hand so beautifully, his partner had the effrontery to complain, just because three hearts could have been set a paltry 1,400 points!

"But once again I ask: How was M. to know? Suppose his partner did double three hearts, would M. allow the double to stand? Not unless he happened to be in a very mellow mood and felt like letting the children play. And suppose his partner couldn't double three hearts after all, what would he do next? When this point was raised, M.'s partner remarked that having bid two notrump, if he couldn't double three hearts or find some other satisfactory bid, he'd drown himself.

"And that is just typical of how these poor incompetent players argue. I realize that it's a bit of a strain on your partner at first when you take control of all his bids and plays, but in the long run it's very good for him. Life becomes very simple for him. All he has to do is pick up cards and look at you trustfully for your approval of whatever innocuous bids and plays he manages to get in. As for those who object to your control taking methods, the sooner you drive them completely crazy the better off they'll be. They shouldn't expect to have things all their way, anyway!"

Hearts are trump and South leads. North and South are to win six tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads a club. If West covers, North trumps with the seven and leads the spade four. South wins the spade and leads his remaining club, upon which North discards the spade queen. South then leads whichever is the top spade, ace or ten, according to East's previous play.

If West discards the club, North discards the diamond. When South leads the trump, North makes two tricks by underplaying if West plays an honor second hand. If West trumps the high spade with the eight, North overtrumps and leads the diamond which South trumps.

If West trumps the spade with an honor, North discards the diamond. Now if West leads the club, North trumps with the three and South overtrumps with the five.

A weak defense is for West to refuse to cover the first trick, as North will discard the spade queen and trump the second club lead with the seven, regardless of West's play. Then North will lead the spade four for South to win and return.

Notes on Drama and Events of Theater World

If she can work it into her schedule Estelle Winwood of "Ladies in Retirement" [at the Selwyn] may possibly want to drop over to the Goodman theater to see the student production of "The Admirable Crichton."

On two different occasions in her varied and distinguished career Miss Winwood has played in the Barrie comedy; once, before transplanting her career to America, she appeared as Lady Mary with the famous Liverpool Repertory theater; and later, in 1931 in New York, she appeared in an all-star revival with Walter Hampden and Fay Bainter, playing the part of Tweeny, the in-between maid. Chicago has not seen much of Miss Winwood of late, her only recent assignment having been in the Noel Coward "Tonight at 8:30" cycle in 1938. A year ago Milwaukee had the good fortune to see her as Lady Bracknell in Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," but the production was not allowed to stop off in Chicago on its way to Broadway.

Ronald Graham, who sings romantic tunes in "Du Barry Was a Lady" at the Erlanger theater, is a Scot, educated in England and Scotland, and also, upon reaching this country, at the University of California. He left college at 20 to try his luck in vaudeville and night clubs. Before "Du Barry Was a Lady," New York had seen and heard him in "Virginia," a lavish piece staged in 1937, which never came this way, and in "The Boys from Syracuse," which unfortunately did not tour either. His only prominent midwestern appearances have been at the St. Louis Municipal Opera, where he has sung in "Show Boat" and "White Horse Inn."

Out at the west edge of the continent a new play by William Saroyan, the self-confident author of "The Time of Your Life," will be given its world première on Feb. 11 at the Pasadena Community playhouse. Mr. Saroyan, never at a loss to express his enthusiasm for his own work, says of his latest play [called "Across the Board on Tomorrow Morning"], "In my opinion it is an incredible play, even for me, and may be a great play, and it ought to be a real theatrical experience both for those who play it and for those who witness it:"

The cast of "New Pins and Needles," the Labor Stage revue at the Studebaker theater, includes one Negro player. Dorothy Harrison, who projects effectively the song called "Mene, Mene, Tekel," found herself without a job one night when she came to the night club where she had not turned to the craft of dressmaking she could not have found her way into "New Pins and Needles," for all of the players were at one time—even tho briefly—employed in the garment making industry.

With Saturday evening's performance, "Life with Father," at the Blackstone theater, equals Chicago's post 1929 long run record. This is the 49th week of the spectacular engagement. In 1936-'37 "You Can't Take It with You," the Pultizer prize winning comedy by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, played for 49 weeks at the Harris theater. "Life with Father" will celebrate the conclusion of 52 weeks, which to all intents and purposes is a year, with a gala backstage party on Feb. 15.

Vinton Freedley, Lee Shubert, and Buddy De Sylva are all reported to be seeking Bert Lahr's services for one forthcoming musical or another.

Current Music News

Mme. Olga Samaroff-Stokowski, author, pianist, and pedagog, will lecture before the Musicians' Club of Women tomorrow night in the Cordon club in the Fine Arts building. The speaker's latest book is her autobiography, "An American Musician's Story."

The producer who manages to talk Bert into a contract for next year will have to wait, of course, until "Du Barry Was a Lady" finishes its tour, and from the looks of the box office situation at the Erlanger the show is likely to linger on in Chicago for some time to come. Is he considering signing a contract, Bert was asked, and if so, with what producer and for what show? His reply was a model of frankness and lucidity. "Yes and no," he answered, adding hastily, "But don't quote me."

For its third production this season the Uptown Players will revive Edward Sheldon's "Romance," starring Marie Kurenko as Margarita Cavalini. Mme. Kurenko, the famous opera and concert star now residing in Chicago, has already played the rôle twice—once in Russia, using her native language, and once in Paris, using the French tongue. This will be her first performance of the part in English. J. Leslie Walker, Louis Rousseau, Mme. Puel, and J. Bradley-Griffin also are in the cast, with the last named directing. Performances will be given on Friday and Saturday nights in the Civic theater.

The Notre Dame Players, directed by J. Paul Ardresser, will present two performances of Max Marcin's comedy, "Cheating Cheaters," on Monday and Tuesday as guests of the Loyola Community theater, 1320 Loyola avenue.

Performances of Sidney Kingsley's "The World We Make" are being given nightly except Monday by the Actors Company of Chicago at its headquarters, 218 South Wabash avenue.

At the Arts club on Tuesday morning the Russian Trio will give another of its series of six concerts. The program will be devoted to Tschaikowsky's Trio, opus 50, well known to Chicago Symphony audiences in Frederick Stock's orchestral transcription, and the Third set of Miniatures by the English composer, Frank Bridge. Since their last program the Russian Trio has had two of its first recordings released, Arbos' "Sequidillas Gitanas" and Turina's Second Trio, opus 76. They carry an R. C. A. label. Nina Mesirow-Minchin, pianist; Hans Muenzer, violinist, and Ennio Bolognini, cellist, make up the ensemble.

Richard Czerwonky will conduct the De Paul University Symphony orchestra in a concert in Thorne hall on Tuesday night. Students from the school of music will be soloists in the program, which follows:

Symphony, No. 5, E Minor, op. 64... ....Tschaikowsky
Violin Concerto, A Minor.........Vieuxtemps
Raymond Niwa.
Piano Concerto, A Major [Köchel 488] ....Mozart
Boris Barer.
Recitative and Scene, from "Dinorah" ....Meyerbeer
Hortense Love
"The Bamboula"...........Coleridge-Taylor

A series of lectures, entitled "The Visual Arts and Music," is currently being given on Friday mornings at 11 o'clock by Helen Parker, head of the department of education, at the Art institute. The series will attempt to "correlate the great periods of art with the music of the time" by means of slides and recorded music.

The Gordon String quartet will make its first appearance in Chicago in some time when it is presented in a concert in Kimball hall on Tuesday night, Jan. 28, by the Chicago Woman's Musical club for the benefit of its scholarship fund. A feature of the program will be the world première of a Quartet in C major by the Evanston composer, David Van Vactor. Also on the program are Beethoven's Quartet in F minor, opus 95, and Sibelius' Quartet in D minor, opus 56, labeled "Voces Intimáe." Members of the quartet are Jacques Gordon, Samuel Weiss, William Lincer, and Fritz Magg.

David Moll, violinist, and Marion Hall, pianist, will be the guest artists on the Chicago Woman's Aid music tea tomorrow at 2 o'clock. The organization meets at its headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue.

Writer Looks at Aspects of Recent Shows

By Edith Weigle.

The winter home furnishings shows, held here at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart, are just concluded, leaving a stream of new ideas in their wake.

The attendance of retail buyers [the shows are not open to the public] was record breaking. Here are excerpts from our notebook, made as we visited displays in both marts:

One southern manufacturer is bringing out really distinguished replicas of fine antiques: three sideboards of great distinction, each a gem of the 18th century English design carried out in Honduras mahogany with inlays of boxwood; excellent copies of some of the most beautiful of Sheraton's side chairs; an aristocratic example of Duncan Phyffe's dining room tables; a reproduction of the huge and impressive Chippendale mahogany highboy that belonged to the Lee family and is in one of the bedrooms of the Lee mansion at Arlington; a charming colonial mahogany bed, the four posts of which may hold a canopy, or may be unscrewed to make a low four poster; a stunning, absolutely simple, limed oak modern grouping, one for the bedroom and one for the dining room, including a number of small occasional tables; a delightful colonial mahogany dressing table that reveals plenty of beautifully finished mahogany drawers when the curved arms to which the flounced skirt is attached are swung back.

• • •

A Chicago manufacturer of living room upholstered furniture introduced some unusually interesting coverings, among them the following: a boldly printed, delightful linen in clear yellow, deep rose, and green used on a hostess chair and edged in rose silk moss edging; a large, modern couch upholstered in a fabric of contemporary weave that had a bamboolike design in tones of beige, beige-gray, and palest yellow; a curved love seat done in periwinkle blue velvet, the base trimmed in deep, heavy silk fringe; a barrel chair of graceful line, upholstered in Empire green velvet, also with fringe; a chair in vivid apricot quilted velvet and another utilizing a beautiful off-white tapestry with a dull rose and gold flower, widely scattered, which had all the charm of linen but the durability of the heavier, stronger weave.

An enterprising importer, just returned from a plane flight to the countries of South America, was showing a number of interesting old crystal chandeliers, the first of shipments including silver, pottery, china, and textiles to arrive. He also had a fascinating collection of glass paperweights, hand blown by the son of a craftsman who had produced them many years ago in Pennsylvania and who is now starting the business again.

• • •

New modern furniture, designed by the Chicagoan Edward Wormley, is carried out in a pale tone of mahogany, simply called "beige," to distinguish it from a darker wheat or harvest finish, and a lighter, bleached effect. Some stunning lounge chairs were upholstered in a tweedy print of tropical plants and palms designed by Scott Wilson, and a long, low, refectory type of coffee table was lacquered black and then given a delightful spatter-dash effect in bright coral and blue paint. A center, sunken receptacle held plants.

Unusual and extremely good looking plaid and striped materials from Scotland were used on a large couch and smaller sofa. These are only a few of Mr. Wormley's many new designs.

By Clotilde.

Designed especially for mature figures, these slenderizing dresses are flattering and pure magic in concealing excess weight. Slim paneling, long lines, full bodice, and smartly styled sleeves perform the trickery.

No. 3151 uses fabric and color contrast for stunning effect. There's a bolero jacket to create an ensemble.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

It is interesting to note that stoker dealers are announcing the completion of a four hour winter installation plan. This means that it is possible for families to change to "modern" heating without discomfort in cold weather. Under this plan the stoker can be installed, after fire in furnace is "pulled," and then the fire rebuilt before the house grows cold.

One manufacturer of home appliances announces: A little compartment in refrigerator which conditions butter for just the right table consistency, an automatic dishwasher which uses a timer as an integral part of control mechanism, so you can press a button and dishes are sprayed, washed, rinsed, and dried without further attention from the home mistress.

A large manufacturer of insulating materials has added a new type blanket insulation designed primarily to be applied between studs, joists, or rafters. Its core is a flexible sheet of wood cellulose which contains millions of air cells and is treated chemically to repel mold, termites, and water.

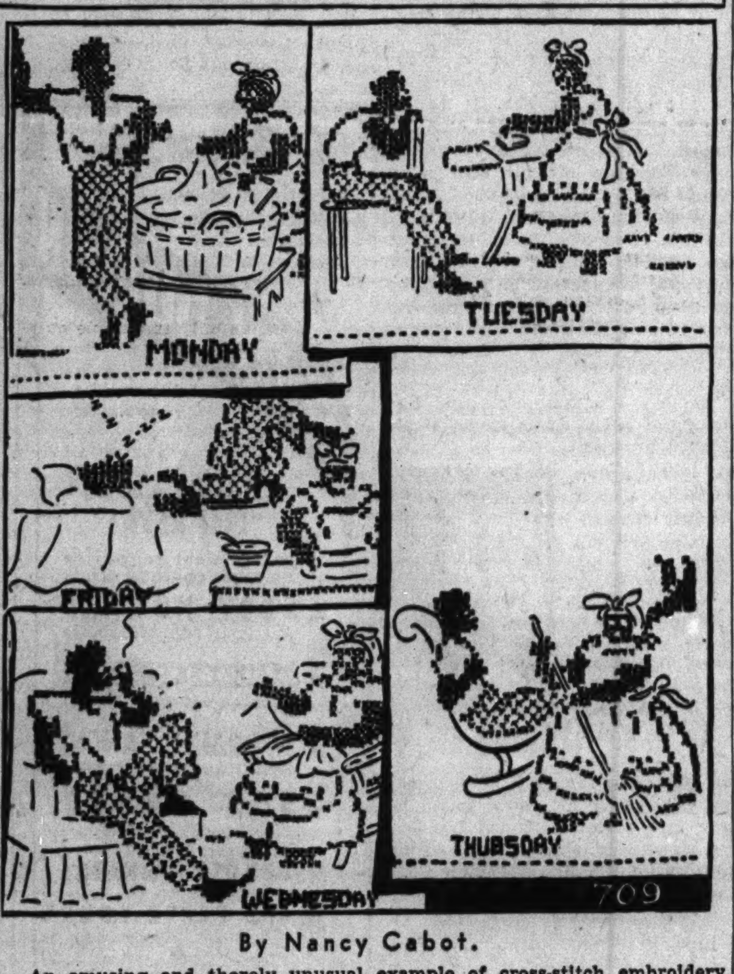
"Helpful Sam" Embroidery

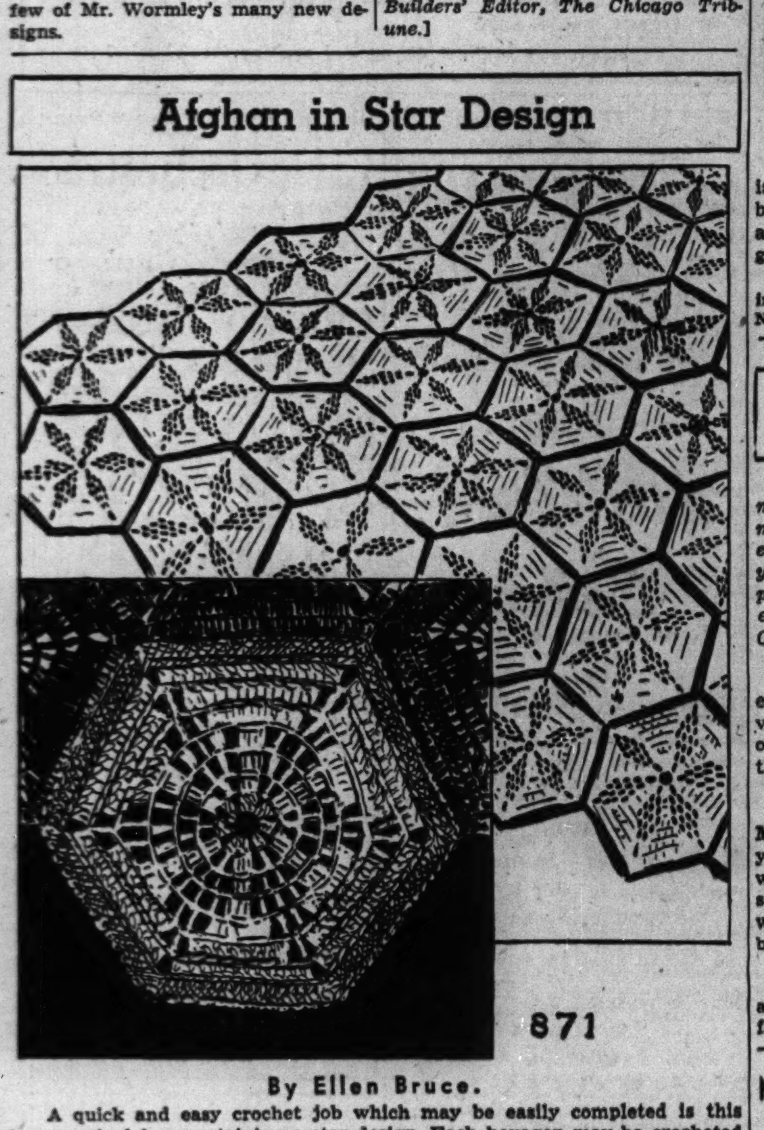


By Nancy Cabot.

An amusing and thoroly unusual example of cross-stitch embroidery is the series of cross-stitch motifs of "Helpful Sam." These may be embroidered on days-of-the-week towels, or used as individual themes to serve as wall hangings. The hot iron transfer pattern contains five motifs, together with complete directions for embroidering.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of "Helpful Sam," No. 709, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Afghan in Star Design



By Ellen Bruce.

A quick and easy crochet job which may be easily completed is this hexagonal afghan containing a star design. Each hexagon may be crocheted in a solid color or from two to four shades of wool. Ombre knitting worsted also creates an unusual effect in this pattern. The medallion may be crocheted in about half an hour, and each afghan contains from 60 to 72 hexagons, depending upon individual choice as to size.

For instructions in crocheting the hexagonal afghan in star design, No. 871, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Give Children Protection, but Not Too Much

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

Can you protect your child too much?

Should you wrap him in cotton wool?

Or should you expose him to all influences, with the idea that he has to "eventually, so why not now?" be toughened?

Answering "yes" to either one would be an extreme decision that would surely be harmful. We don't expose a tender, immature plant to cold and heat, downpour and draft. Neither do we expect the sturdy mature plant to be guarded from every unfavorable condition. In a similar way we can think over this matter of protecting our child from unfavorable influences that surround him—whether they happen to be his environment in general, older people, or other children.

It is a difficult thing to decide, because it has more than one angle, and you don't want to lose your perspective and be narrow about it.

Protection of your children has got to be done, wherever it is humanly possible, without their knowing it. They can't understand what lies behind your action and it wouldn't be well to explain, even if they could understand.

I think we all agree that a too-careful shielding of children does not prepare them for life. It is apt to make them too tender, too sensitive —to unfit them for the time when they have to "get out on their own." Then life won't handle them with gloves, tho I am not, by any means, one of those who feel as some people do, that life is a thug who lies in wait behind each corner with a blackjack in his hand. We must admit, however, that life for most of us holds very varied regulations, and our childhood should, to a moderate degree, fit us for that.

This sort of generalization has behind it always the qualifying influence of common sense. Each age with children requires its own degree of shelteredness, of freedom, of independence, from babyhood, which is practically totally shielded, thru the tender days of toddling, thru the threes and fours and fives—onward and outward. The younger they are, the more helpless and more plastic, and the more they must be guarded. The child of 9 has an imperviousness to outside influences that the child of 5 has not. But at any age it is possible to overstep the mark and to shield too much.

There are some parents who believe in the very opposite of the cotton wool treatment—who are strong for the hardening process. "Turn him loose," they say, "and let him develop his own protection." And there are some who have no particular conviction about it—they turn their children loose only because it's the line of least resistance and for the time being is the least trouble. In either case the result is the same.

Well, I've seen some of these young cacti and I don't think so much of the result. They bear the marks of the toughening process. Sometimes the toughness and warping and spininess of the cactus are visible, and sometimes they aren't. But they're there despite what the advocates of this treatment may say. If you could know the inner selves of these children when they have grown up you would find them bearing the spiritual scars.

Once I heard a group of men who had struggled thru against heavy [and sordid] odds to make something of themselves, agree in regretting that in their boyhood they had been exposed to so many unfortunate influences, the marks of which they still carried with them, and always would. And yet we would not think of adopting such heroic measures with young plants or valuable animals, as these people do with their children.

At the other extreme we find a group of young people described by a prominent educator. "They have been treated to so much idealism unrelated to life that they will be shocked and disillusioned when they leave. Some have already had that bitter experience."

• • •

What the elimination of these two extremes leaves us, then, is a medium course—something between too much protection and too little, with the hope that we'll obtain a product that is between the cactus and the hothouse plant, something that has stamina and hardihood, grace and individuality and a wholesome natural relation to society. To do so we must try intelligently to provide them with moderate freedom, moderate care, moderate cultivation.

All this of course requires judgment and more especially as our boys and girls grow older. For nowadays, more than ever before, there are agencies which present to our children certain aspects of life vividly and before they are ready for them. So our judgment comes into play in interpreting to them what the movies, the radio, the newspaper and magazine often blazon forth.

The Stamp Collector

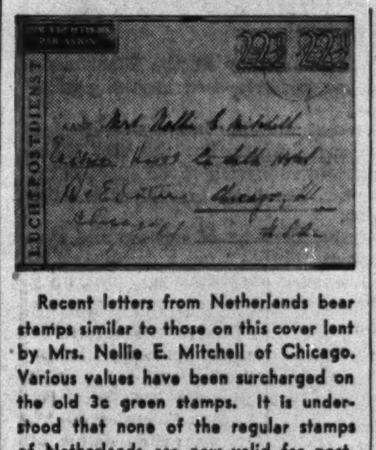
By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Often collectors are in such a hurry to fit new stamps into the proper spaces that they cannot delay the few hours required to soak the stamps off the paper and properly dry them. This practice should be stopped before it becomes a habit if the collection is to be worth showing at all.

Nearly all the stamps in use today may be soaked, in quantity, in water without danger of harming them. A few deep shades of red sometimes are slightly water soluble and bleed, as it is called, so it is advisable to put dark red stamps aside and soak them one at a time. Other stamps which should be handled separately are those on lined envelopes, those on colored wrapping paper and those with colored ink cancellations. Lined envelopes are usually made of thin paper with a dark colored tissue lining but in some cases the lining is printed on the inner surface of the envelope. As a rule tissue linings are made by staining white paper with a water soluble dye and a small piece of this lining can ruin almost any number of stamps if soaked in still water. Running water will prevent damage to some of the stamps but will not help those in contact with the dyed paper.

Colored wrapping papers, particularly green and orange red, should be suspected until it has been proven that they are made with fast colors. Some of these stain the stamps in spite of every precaution and the only procedure is to peel the paper carefully from the stamp bit by bit, using a sharp knife and tongs. Steaming will not help as the dye in the paper will start to run into the stamp before the gum is loosened.



Recent letters from Netherlands bear stamps similar to those on this cover lent by Mrs. Nellie E. Mitchell of Chicago. Various values have been surcharged on the old 3c green stamps. It is understood that none of the regular stamps of Netherlands are now valid for postage.

Stamps with colored cancellations are not so dangerous since the amount of soluble ink is small. This rarely stains stamps not in actual contact with the cancellation. However, it requires careful treatment to preserve freshness in these colored cancellations. Those of Central America are prone to wash out, leaving a nondescript faint mark, while the heavier parcel post markings of the United States bleed out into the stamp and ruin it.

Ordinarily the gum on modern stamps dissolves readily in water, and the speed of the operation increases with the temperature of the water, but it is wise to use only warm water and to limit the soaking time, for the glue sizing which is responsible for the finish and durability of ordinary stamp paper is also water soluble and if removed leaves a more or less porous paper. Some stamps have very obstinate gum which defies any attempt at removal by simple soaking. This gum softens, however, and may be removed by scraping. A little vinegar in the soaking water will make this gum loosen faster and when the stamp can be peeled from the paper it should be placed face down on a smooth surface and rubbed with the finger, or as a last resort, scraped with a thin blade not sharp enough to cut the wet paper. Use plenty of water while scraping and expect to have a few accidents until you become expert.

The bleeding of indelible ink marks on stamps may be prevented to a certain extent by soaking the stamp in strong brine to set the color of the ink. The addition of a little alum to the soaking water has a tendency to fix some soluble inks. The old stamps of Austria and Russia which have the diagonal bars or lozenges of varnish printed on the face should not be soaked in overly hot water as the varnish will turn white.

In United States stamps the 2 cent value of 1890 bleeds readily. To a limited extent the same is true of the deep red shades used for several of the 2 cent values of the Famous Americans series. The 1894 and 1895 issues of United States postage due stamps were printed in water soluble ink and must not be immersed in water.

When the stamps are free from gum they may be laid out on clean newspapers to dry and later flattened by pressing in a book. High grade stamps should be dried between blotters under a moderate pressure.

A large number of British colonial stamps of the Victorian and Edwardian issues were printed in water soluble ink or on chalk surfaced paper, and there are certain stamps of other countries which are equally sensitive. Methods for removing paper from such stamps will be discussed in a future article.

The postoffice department has established in Newfoundland the first postoffice in connection with the leased bases in British colonies. It is a branch of the New York postoffice and is officially designated "American Forces in Newfoundland." It will be located on board the transport America until shore quarters are built. Domestic rates will apply to all mail matter originating within the present limits of the domestic postal system and addressed to American Forces in Newfoundland, care Postmaster, New York.

A question program recently broadcast the erroneous information that dollars circulate only in the United States and Canada. There are Straits Settlements dollars as well and the dollar is the unit of currency in Hongkong, Trinidad, and Tobago, Newfoundland and British Honduras, to name a few, altho metallic dollars are not in circulation in all of the latter.

There is some uncertainty regarding just what constitutes a first day cover from Pitcairn Island. The date originally set for Oct. 15 was postponed to Nov. 15. On this latter date the stamps were placed on sale in Fiji, which now administers the postal affairs of Pitcairn, but the notice of postponement evidently did not arrive at Pitcairn as covers have been seen bearing the date Oct. 15.

Vocations—Now we have a third combination of the one vocation. This is a very strong one, giving the pioneering, individualistic expression of the one not only in the total of the number itself, but as the first number of the combination, and then with it the all embracing, universal appeal of the nine expression. It isn't surprising that we have such names as David Livingston, Sven Hedin, Ferdinand de Lesseps, Charles H. Mayo, and Orville Wright as examples of the pioneers in their fields and of Edgar Allan Poe as the individualist and pioneer in literature. Lanny Ross, who was born on Jan. 19, has something to live up to, hasn't he? How about you? Are you making the most of your vocation number?

Three Desserts for Service to Large Groups

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Cooking for 50 or 100 persons is quite a different problem than cooking for five to ten. Many a housewife discovers this when she is faced for the first time with planning a luncheon or dinner for her club or church society. If the organization possesses satisfactory equipment for preparing food in large quantity, the job can be done efficiently and without difficulty.

Of course large scale recipes are a necessity, for few family scaled formulas give the right answers to multiplication. Here are three good, tested recipes for simple desserts, and they belong in the recipe file of any group which is in the habit of serving food for 25 or more.

DATE TORTE.
[2 pans, 9 by 14 inches; 48 servings.]

1 pound [4½ cups] pecans
1 ounce [2⅔ tablespoons] baking powder
3¼ pounds [2 quarts] dates
8 ounces [2 cups] flour
1 teaspoon salt
1½ pounds [3 cups] sugar
1¼ pounds [2½ cups] egg whites

Chop pecans and dates coarsely. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar twice. Combine with dates and nuts. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into the first mixture. Fill baking pans which have been greased lightly, then floured. Bake in a slow oven, 275-300 degrees, for 25 to 30 minutes. Cut into squares when cool and serve with whipped cream. Twenty eggs will be needed.

• • •

FUDGE PUDDING
[2 pans 9 by 14 inches; 48 servings].

10 ounces [1¼ cups] butter
2 pounds [4 cups] white sugar
1¼ pounds [5 cups] flour
3 squares chocolate
2 teaspoons salt
1¼ ounces [3½ tablespoons] baking powder
2½ cups milk
12 ounces [3 cups] walnuts
3 tablespoons vanilla

Topping: 2 pounds [5⅓ cups] brown sugar, 2½ pounds [5 cups] white sugar, 3 ounces [¾ cup] cocoa, 2 teaspoons salt, boiling water. [See directions following.]

Use a mixing machine. Have all ingredients at room temperature. Cream butter 10 minutes, or until of whipped cream consistency. Add sugar and continue creaming for 10 minutes. Add vanilla and melted chocolate and mix until well blended. Sift flour with salt and baking powder, several times. Add all of flour mixture, then all of milk, and mix on first speed 2½ minutes, and on second 10 seconds. Add nuts and mix them in. Place batter in two lightly greased pans.

To prepare the topping mixture, combine dry ingredients thoroly. Sprinkle half the mix over each pan, and pour 4½ cups boiling water over each pan. Do not stir. Bake at 350 degrees for an hour. Serve crust side down, and garnish each serving with whipped cream.

• • •

Here is an apple cheese crisp which is not hard to prepare:

APPLE CHEESE CRISP
[50 servings]

8 pounds [about 24] apples
1 cup water
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 pounds [6 cups] sugar
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 pound [4 cups] flour
1½ teaspoons salt
1 pound [2 cups] butter
1½ pounds [6 cups] grated cheese

Peel, quarter, core and slice apples and arrange in shallow greased baking pan. Add lemon juice and water. Mix sugar, cinnamon, flour and salt and work in butter to form a crumbly mixture. Add grated cheese, stirring it in lightly. Spread the mixture over the apples and bake at 350 degrees from 30 to 35 minutes, until apples are tender.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Toilet water, beautifully perfumed, serves a dozen purposes of which grandmother never thought. It may be used as a daytime perfume, as an after-bath lotion, and as a delicate scenting agent for hair, hands, or lingerie.

Among perfume users there's one large group that we think is ignored. It's composed of women of neither small nor large income, with a sense about their own problem of dressing that is neither high style nor dowdy, and with tastes in scents and in all other things that are neither exotic nor sugar-sweet. Ask these women, whether they're careerists or housekeepers, what kind of perfume they like, and they'll almost invariably tell you that they have a difficult time finding one that seems to them suitable in character or price.

These are the women who are scared off [and who can censure them for this?] by the claims that such and such a perfume will turn a charming Nellie Gray into a Panama Hattie with one whoosh of the atomizer. They don't want to be home wreckers, but neither do they want to be charming Nellie Grays, and perfumes too sweet for words give them the willies, too!

We know exactly how they feel. They want a perfume with sparkle, charm, and distinction. The two qualities they object to most are vulgarity and the other extreme of gentility so cloying it unsettles the appetite.

For them, and for our own self any day, we like a perfume that originated in England a couple of years ago. It gives the life you ask of a perfume. It has durable, characterful charm and it's neither brazen nor blah. We've always liked it because it struck us as rather an aristocratic perfume.

• • •

This same perfume has been incorporated in a toilet water that is superb. The woman who fears to be overperfumed will love it as a daytime scent. It's lasting and lovely and, of course, not as expensive as the highly concentrated perfume is. It's wonderful after the bath and you can use it generously. We rather hate to use a word that has been so abused, but "refined" is the word for this.

The toilet water has an ingenious atomizer. It may be used with one hand. And we suggest that you use an atomizer for this. It is the sort of fragrance that should be applied in a frothy mist.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. By Sally Joy Brown.

Any one who has been bedridden for even a short length of time can appreciate the blessings of radio, which brings the world to those who are shut off from it. Long days and nights of suffering or merely monotony and isolation are relieved by the diversified music, education, and entertainment available at the turning of a dial.

For the aged, it is an equal delight and companion. There are programs to suit every taste, and the elderly person unable to leave his room is no longer a lonely individual, dependent upon occasional calls from friends or relatives.

• • •

Our daily mail proves that all this is doubly true when applied to the needy. Invalids, living on relief, have few of the small luxuries which could make their status a little easier to bear. Elderly couples, confined to tiny rooms by failing strength or eyesight, are frequently lonely and depressed.

Radios of any kind are beyond the means of such persons, so we receive frequent appeals for them. If you're planning on buying a new model, and your old one is in good working order, wouldn't you like to place it with one of the following cases?

Mr. J., who lives on the near north side, suffers from arthritis. He is too ill for any activity, and now is on relief. Except for weekly trips to the clinic for medical attention, he spends most of his time in his small furnished room. A radio [direct current type] would bring him endless pleasure.

Mrs. G. is elderly and crippled with arthritis. Her husband does the necessary work and cares for her to the best of his ability. She is unable to leave her home and would be most appreciative if some reader could give her a discarded, but usable, radio. This address is on the south side of the city.

Mr. W., also on the south side of the city, is 73 years old. His only income is a state pension of one dollar a day. He is confined to his room or to bed except for occasional trips to the clinic for treatment. His room rent is almost five dollars a week, and carfare, food and medicine must be eked out of the remainder of his income.

Mrs. R. is an elderly woman living on the near north side of the city in a poor district. She is so badly crippled that she must use a wheel chair, and the agency which is assisting her provides some one to clean and get provisions for her once a week. Her eyesight is failing rapidly, and since she lives all alone, she has no one to read to her or to provide company of any kind. She would be most grateful for a radio, but because of her physical condition it would have to be delivered.

The Lady of the House

"If Winter Comes."

We no more than get thru the holidays when we are plunged right into spring and summer—at least in the travel, tour and cruise news, in fashion articles and in shops. I suppose it is great fun to pack smart luggage with lovely, fresh cruise clothes and be off to warm sunshine and south winds for just the right shade of tan. I "wouldn't know."

Time was when winter was winter. After Christmas we settled down to a long stretch of it. Spring was something far off and not even to be thought of for quite a while. O, sometimes on a sunny day in February, when maybe a tiny strip of green showed at the edge of a snowbank and the winter underwear and woolen stockings began to itch a bit, a piece of bright print in a shop window made our thoughts reach tentatively toward spring.

• • •

Mostly it was a time of snow forts, snowball fights, sledding and skating, with long drowsy winter evenings by the fire. Several barrels of apples in the cellar; hickory nuts and butternuts from October's nutting forays in the attic, to be cracked on the old flatiron inverted anvil-wise between the knees. Corn to pop. Quaint old games and puzzles. Skating on the river and coasting by moonlight on the hills and slopes of the town. Only yesterday a friend laughed over the time she went skating with her best beau in "toe slippers, so her feet would look nice." Skates were clamped to shoe soles, or buckled on with straps in those days.

There was even a Toboggan club with a most exciting slide. Men and women of the town took the sport quite seriously, rigging themselves out in bright stripped coats and "toboggan caps" with jaunty tasseled tips. The toboggans were loaded on a small platform; then, released by some mechanism, they whizzed with breath-taking speed down the steep tracks, over the flats below and out onto the river.

A Curling club, too, but, with the advent of inclosed rinks and other creature comforts with winter sports, the brooms and "stanes" and Scotch caps vanished from the river and it lost much of its color and interest. Hitching bob sleds is a sport unknown to our rising generations. The jingle of sleigh bells is heard only on those rare occasions when some lover of horses hitches a spanking team to a rejuvenated cutter and drives thru the town. There are ski slides now, and protected hills for coasting, and outdoor rinks; and you should hear the youngsters complain if the city crews don't scrape and flood and make ready promptly; the while a few oldsters warm their shins and sigh for the "glare ice" and long, sweeping curves of the river.

Rummaging thru a box of old patterns the other day I came upon a design of flower clusters to be embroidered on a shawl. I wondered if I couldn't use it now, since shawls are making such a valiant bid for a place in the fashion scene. That got me to thinking about shawls and the part they played in what might be called the shawl and bonnet era of the 19th century.

There were those thick beaver shawls for cold weather, woven in two tones and heavily fringed. Lighter and smaller shoulder shawls in checks and plaids and stripes. The brochés with their raised figures and softly bright colors. Spanish shawls of lace and heavily embroidered silks.

• • •

Topping them all was the Cashmere shawl—often also called camel's hair or India shawl—originally made in Cashmere [Kashmir] from the soft wool found beneath the hair of the cashmere goat, the yak of Tibet and the wild sheep of the Himalayas.

A fine woolen shawl closely imitating the Cashmere was made in Paisley, Scotland, from about the beginning of the 19th century. So if you have a genuine old Paisley in your possession, guard it well.

Some beautiful eastern shawls also came from Persia and Assyria; some of the later ones being knit in lacy stitches of natural silk.

Somehow I always associate fine shawls with long billowy skirts, tiny papilletted and beribboned bonnets, lace fans, and the stately measures of the minuet; the heavier, coarser ones with the rough woolens, knitted hoods, stout shoes and sure step of our pioneering grandmothers; yet both must have hung with sheltering grace over strong, protective, motherly arms.

You will remember that Lincoln wore a shawl and I think that is significant of many things about the man. M. M.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey

Sailor collars, middy blouses, braid, chevrons, and eagles are all over the fashion scene as the patriotic fervor continues to possess the style world. We want to make our little contribution, and the dress illustrated today is it.

To give this sailor frock an authentic touch, we've employed a "dicky" at the neckline like those of real gob uniforms. Braid is all over the place, on collar and cuffs, and there's a slide fastener from neckline to hipline. Notice the swing of the full, gored skirt, paneling that is part and parcel of the princess lines employed thruout.

Naturally, the only acceptable color scheme for this sailor dress is navy blue with white braid. However, if it isn't a sailor frock you want, but merely a trimly tailored daytime model, you might follow the scheme at the left, with contrasting collar and cuffs, twin pockets, self material or contrasting leather belt, and fly front. Both versions of the pattern make up beautifully in sheer woolens.

Style No. T-8702 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 54 inch material, with 3½ yards of braid for sailor dress; 4 yards of 39 inch fabric with ⅓ yard contrasting for fly front style.

Home Reflects Renewed Interest in Regency Style

The revival of interest in the Regency style, a mode popular in early 19th century England, has swept thru the decorating field and is felt, as well, in architecture. A handsome new seven room home, just completed at 9447 North Hamline avenue, Skokie, provides all the modern requirements for comfortable living while following the traditions of this earlier period.

The house is set back from the street and its exterior presents the formal, dignified façade for which the years of the Regency were famous. A spacious entrance hall commands a vista from front to back, an architectural detail copied by hundreds of southern homes in our country that were built during the first part of the last century.

On the first floor are the living and dining rooms, a powder room and bath, a maid's room and the kitchen. On the second floor ample closet space is a pleasing feature. Two of the three bedrooms open on a sun deck which overlooks the rear lawn and garden.

High cost of construction was cut down by utilizing stock parts for such details as cornice moldings, blinds, door trim, and the stair rail. Carved ornaments on the doors and pediment were, however, especially designed.

This lovely home makes a perfect background for the fashionable contemporary version of Regency furniture, floor coverings, wall papers, drapery fabrics and upholsteries, lamps, china and glassware and other accessories. The color schemes have been so correlated that any one tone of fabric or wall color harmonizes with all the others in the plan.

The architects were C. A. Hemphill and associates.

Designer Shows Original Hats in Novel Shop

By Rea Seeger.

• • •

Taking one of the high, narrow old houses on one of Chicago's smartest streets, Lester Gaba, another American artist of decoration and color schemes and also the clever originator of the world renowned mannequin, Sylvia, a blonde beauty wearing clothes with perfection and yet never talks, accomplished a record for speed and decorative dramatics with a typically smart foil for Dache hats. Blackamoors in black and dull white, the famous rubber tree, the branches loaded with jewelry, exciting new creations in hats and bags, gloves, and fur muffs, and the delightfully droll idea of taking Mrs. O'Leary as a mascot, settling the good lady in a glass showcase outside in the startling company of a swanky, black, French poodle, together with a brilliant red painted door, all make for flawless showmanship.

Here you will find hats that are never dull, hats that are conversation pieces, exciting hats, dramatizing hats and flattering hats, all models that are peculiarly American in their color appeal, in unmistakable dash and distinction. No one ever has used fine furs with the smooth, flattering, unbulky results as has this designer. No one can tie a bow, drape a turban, or contrast subtle, and to other people slightly dangerous, colors as can Dache. And no one anywhere can mass flowers, compose sprays and nosegays with the understanding and artistry of this dynamic maker of hats that always "do something" for the head that wears them.

Hats for immediate wear, the toppers for fur coats, fur trimmed winter ensembles, for smart theater, cocktail, and dinner costumes, and the turbans have made reputations wherever they are worn. Others equally effective and still others ready to be made for the individual and the special occasion are always featured in this smart shop with the red painted door and romantic interior. Dreams of a garden center, to house a horticultural library and auditorium, and eventually a horticultural expert on home beautification are about to be realized following 10 years of persistent effort.

The center will serve as a memorial to Charles Torrey Simpson, beloved Florida naturalist, and also will preserve one of the last bits of native jungle within walking distance of Miami's shopping center. Sixteen additional lots were added to the sanctuary last summer. Construction will begin in a short time.

The 10th annual series of garden tours sponsored by the local council of garden clubs in the interest of the memorial, inaugurated last Monday, will include visits to six estates.

The first tour visited the estate of Miss Bertha Evans on Bay Road, noted for its magnificent royal palms. Tomorrow the Calvin P. Bentley estate on Star Island will be open. Club members, trained for the service and familiar with the plants and flowers of the Bentley garden, will act as guides. The estate is known for its magnificent rock gardens, roses, bougainvillea and hibiscus collections. Both bougainvillea and hibiscus varieties propagated here and named for Mrs. Bentley, an ardent gardener, are included.

Society Takes Time Out from Whirl of Parties to Attend Lectures

By Cousin Eve.

With all this avalanche of lectures, this hurricane of war propagandists, paid and unpaid, and the hootlooing about far away Russia and the still further Argentine, it was almost too much joy to see a good play. Last fall Dr. William Nitze of the University of Chicago said to be sure not to miss "Ladies in Retirement" if it came again—"it was a perfect drama." And one didn't miss it.

The play is English and beautifully done by a company of seven British players. A psychological study, it takes place in a cozy old English country house on the edge of a marsh, owned by a retired chorus girl. It is the most intense drama seen in years, and revolves around a neatly performed murder.

Adventures in lecture-going last week were hectic indeed. The evening affair at the Woman's Athletic club when Sterling Morton of America First committee debated Clifton Utley, commentator member of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, was a tense affray in which one needed life insurance. Eleven hundred guests participated on the side lines, and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, the club's handsome president, was more than usually smiling and bland at the surging audience.

Dinners where demure dress was in order preceded the debate and then the scrimmage was on to get seats. Our most revered citizens were seen pushing and crowding up the stairs to the ballroom.

The point of Mr. Utley's argument seemed to me to be that we could have our aid to Great Britain convoyed to Iceland where the British might pick it up, instead of sending it direct to the war zone in our own ships. Sterling Morton analyzed the meanings, temporal and financial, of matters pending in Washington. A very witty man is Sterling, and when the "mike" suddenly blew up with loud screeches, he pointed to Utley saying "sabotage," and there was much laughter. The speaker ridiculed the idea of our government by the people becoming totalitarian in order to save democracy.

Tuesday's luncheon lecture by Louis Fischer before hungry and avid Foreign Relationists, presided over by Donald McPherson, was about "Stalin and Hitler." This speaker, a long time Russian resident, had a sense of humor, and his summing up of his gloomy subject was quite amusing. He made a picture of three million Germans armed to the teeth, and with nowhere to go, on Russia's frontiers from the arctic circle to the Black sea. Therefore, argues Mr. Fischer, Mr. Stalin is not going to quarrel with Adolf Hitler. The pact is good and will hold. Again Mr. Fischer was droll when he sketched the desert territory awarded to Russia by Adolf Hitler in parceling out "spheres of influence." He said it would take Russian bathing beauties three weeks on donkey back to reach the sea across these trackless sands.

Among Mr. Fischer's bright sayings were: "The soviets have supplied China with arms for years.

"Stalin has adopted the worst features of czarism and Karl Marx, superimposed on Peter the Great, who is on top at the moment. Russia is in greater danger than ever."

"Nothing can save the Balkans if Hitler wants to take them. He will occupy Bulgaria if he wishes, then Turkey.

"Stalin won't move unless Britain wins: So Russia's key is in Washington, D. C."

The attendance was large and chic that day.

At this time in other new years, Betty and Roy McWilliams have descended in Chicago from Biarritz and cosily spent the winter. The most charming of married teams — Betty with her delightful reserve and quaint New England style, Roy with his flashing wit and geniality — we miss then when they fail to come.

The McWilliamses have a house at Bidart, a suburb of Biarritz, where many of us have stayed or at least broken bread. Roy McWilliams has been American vice consul these many years, and I shall quote at random from three family letters written by Mrs. McWilliams in September, October, and November, 1940. Biarritz: "Social talk is out, for society no longer exists. Ration cards make it hard to give luncheons or dinners, so you ask only people you really want.

"That would be nice, except that there is no locomotion but the bicycle, and Bidart is beyond the bicycling powers of most of our friends who are nearly all 'decrepit' like us. Because of the consulate our lives are far from dull. Every day brings a melodrama worthy of Phillips Oppenheim. It's a godsend to have this consular work and our clients say we are a godsend to them. They cling to us and implore us not to leave, especially the British, who aren't allowed to move. Without the consulate I should have no outlet—golf is impossible with no gas to get us to the club. We had hoped to use the stocks of packages sent to soldiers, and forward food and clothing to prisoners. But no packages are allowed nowadays.

"I know what the people on Pitcairn Island feel like when one of their semiannual ships heaves in sight. The sense of isolation is hard to bear and I hope is over. It is pure luck what is allowed to arrive and what isn't. I am rereading 'Gone With the Wind,' which is singularly interesting just now, and can better understand Scarlett's fanatical love for Tara, when I think of the long years that may stretch ahead before we again see our beloved America.

"I can spend plenty of money without leaving the consulate — as we seem to run a relief bureau, a bank, a travel agency, an employment office, a circulating library, and a sort of club where people drop in to discuss the news of the day. This gives variety to life that might otherwise be monotonous. We are like a minister's family getting gifts from grateful parishoners, and have many legacies from departing Americans—100 bottles of wine from some one's cellar, another's stock of woods, 50 cigars for Roy, and now some gasoline — the most precious fluid in Europe.

"How odd it will seem to be in America and hail a taxi!

"You mustn't fear that lacking money we are starving; our credit is good and even at times of real privation, as now, there are "princes of privilege" and we are among them. This is the moment when paying one's bills and a pleasant smile are reaping dividends. I don't believe either our servants or tradespeople would let us lack for anything.

"We have been on the edge of great events here. The armored train of the illustrious visitor [Hitler], antiaircraft guns fore and aft under a circling convoy overhead, passed thru the valley below our house on its way to the Pyrrenean frontier. To celebrate the occasion, all the old British men and women remaining [some 200] were locked in one of the hotels for four days. There were wild rumors of hostages, reprisals, and internment if anything happened to the illustrious traveler, but all went well.

"The British were well treated and released, rather thrilled at the experience. The departure of Americans was accelerated, however. It seemed to give them a queer feeling to see their British friends peering out of their incarceration, a gray head at every window—but held valiantly, I will say."

An out of town visitor of the week was Mrs. Jefferson Caffery, wife of the American ambassador to Rio de Janeiro, who came to spend a last few days with her mother, Mrs. Daniel McCarthy, before sailing. The Cafferys have been in Washington, where every hour of the day is a round of engagements, some public, some private. Among the interesting Sunday luncheons in their honor was the Brekenridge Longs' party at their estate in Maryland. And last Sunday Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis' breakfast for 50 at the F Street club, where the guests were divided among four beautiful floral tables, Mrs. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Caffery, and Mrs. "Breck" Long each presiding at one. The Hon. and Mrs. William R. Castle have something on for the Cafferys this week and Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Welles are giving a farewell dinner tomorrow night, which means a fairly long drive out into the country.

One of the interesting parties of last week was Mrs. Truxton Beale's tea in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, who are giving up their Georgetown house to Harvard university.

Mrs. Beale lives in great style in a quaint old mansion on a corner across from the White House. Of all the Washington cave dwellers, this hostess is perhaps the most so, maintaining a reputation for distinction and elegance in all that she does.

This tea was a rite at which a scrapbook was turned over to her and Mrs. Bliss. Therein were photographs of various groups taken at their Georgetown estate, with signatures of all the guests, who had also been invited that day to join in the celebration at Mrs. Beale's.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bliss had preceeded Mr. and Mrs. Caffery at Rio by some years and have been popular hosts in Washington since their return.

Careerists' Defense Role Will Be Topic

The part that career women will play in the national defense program will be the principal topic of discussion at a board meeting of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to be held today and tomorrow in New York.

Miss Margaret Hickey.

On her way to the meeting, Miss Margaret A. Hickey of St. Louis, Mo., the federation's education chairman, stopped in Chicago Tuesday to discuss this subject with federation members in the Chicago area.

"To keep the vocational fabric sound is our first job," Miss Hickey reminded several hundred women at a dinner sponsored by the Presidents' council of district one, Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, that evening.

"Already the demand for women trained in administrative skills and for well qualified beginners is on the increase."

• • •

Indications are that the great demand for women workers will be in the industrial field, Miss Hickey has found. A lawyer, business woman and educator, Miss Hickey for the last eight years has directed her own training school for secretaries, and necessarily has kept in touch with vocational trends. As a federation leader she recently has visited 18 states.

"The last war, you remember, brought the first great flood of women workers into offices," Miss Hickey declared. "This time women will be drawn into the blue collar jobs, semiskilled jobs in airplane and machine shops."

Miss Hickey's own career began during the world war, when as a university student she set forth on a speaking tour in behalf of a liberty loan drive. She has been "speechifying," as she says, ever since.

• • •

Another aspect of national defense will be discussed by David L. Goldy, executive assistant in the division of placement and unemployment compensation, state department of public labor, under the auspices of the Cook County League of Women Voters, at 10:30 o'clock Friday at league headquarters, 225 North Michigan avenue. "The Need for Maintenance of Labor Standards in National Defense" will be Mr. Goldy's subject.

Centralized purchasing, township government, and the local civil service situation will be considered at the league's school of government Tuesday at league headquarters.

"Consumer Relations — a Vital Force in National Defense" will be the topic discussed at a dinner meeting of the Women's Advertising club of Chicago, Tuesday at the Chicago Woman's club. Mabel G. Flanley, eastern director of consumer relations for a national manufacturing concern, will speak. Mrs. Prudence Allured heads the club.

• • •

Another timely talk will be that of Roger Holden, director of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, before the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs tomorrow morning at the Auditorium hotel. Kendall Lingle, managing director of the Citizens' Civil Service Association of Illinois, will speak in the afternoon.

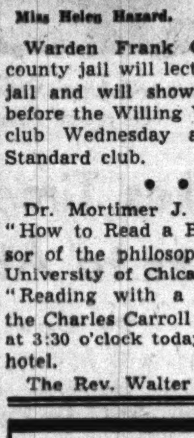
President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago is to speak at a joint luncheon meeting of the Children's Scholarship league and the Scholarship Association for Jewish Children, Friday noon at the Standard club. "The Hope of the World" will be the title of the address.

"Uncensored Communiques from the Front Lines of Education" is the theme of a luncheon to be sponsored by the Association for Family Living on Wednesday at Carson Pirie's tea-room. Robert J. Havighurst, professor of education and chairman of the committee on human development at the University of Chicago, and Fritz Redl, lecturer on the mental hygiene of adolescence at the University of Michigan and research worker on child study techniques for teachers at the University of Chicago, will speak.

• • •

"Need of Health Centers in Chicago" will be the topic of Dr. Arthur G. Falls at a civic forum of the Woman's City club Friday afternoon. Dr. Falls heads the Cook County Physicians' association and is a member of the health division of the Council of Social Agencies' executive committee.

Miss Helen Hazard, superintendent of the state reformatory for women at Dwight, Ill., will discuss "Reformatory Problems" before the Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations Friday afternoon at federation headquarters, 209 South State street. Dr. Paul Teschner, assistant director of health education of the American Medical association, will talk on "Popular Medical Fallacies."



Miss Helen Hazard.

Warden Frank G. Sain of Cook county jail will lecture on life at the jail and will show moving pictures before the Willing Workers Woman's club Wednesday afternoon at the Standard club.

• • •

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, January 24, 1893.

Dear Julia: What a sad and unfortunate week this has been for our country! Is there something in the astrologers' claims of a fortunate or unfortunate conjunction of the planets? I am loath to believe it, but once in a while it seems as if sorrows and troubles do come in troops. . . . "One woe doth tread upon another's heels," as Shakespeare says. Ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes is dead in Ohio; Bishop Phillips Brooks dead in Boston. In Chicago we have had a disastrous fire, which destroyed the Calumet club's building at 20th street and Michigan avenue, and, in addition, burned beautiful works of art owned by the club.

Phillips Brooks.

More than any other similar organization in the city, the Calumet club has stood as the patron of art, having collected many beautiful paintings and always offering each year an art reception, when members loaned their private collections to the club, so they might be viewed. Another annual event the Calumet club gave was a reception to the Old Settlers of Chicago, a party which all the old-timers of the city looked forward to. It was one of the prosperous and outstanding clubs of the city, all the wealthy and distinguished men of the south side belonging to it. N. K. Fairbank is president; C. C. Adsit is treasurer. Some of the names of members are known even outside Chicago, Marshall Field, P. D. Armour, Columbus R. Cummings, Clarence Buckingham, Uri Balcom, Arthur Caton and Fred Tuttle. It had more than 400 members.

Its most brilliant reception was one held in 1879 in honor of Gen. and Mrs. U. S. Grant when they were returning from a trip around the world.

The fire occurred in the late afternoon, fortunately, or there would have been much loss of life, for several members have rooms there, among these being Frank Lowden, a brilliant young lawyer of whom Will is fond. Will thinks there was bad management on the part of some one, for the manager had had the paintings taken down and put out in the hall, ready to be taken out, when orders came to let them remain. The result was that they were all burned. One of these was "The Peacemakers," by G. P. A. Healy. Another portrait mourned by the club is the last picture painted of Grant. This was by Thomas La Clear. Others lost were likenesses of Silas B. Cobb, "Long John" Wentworth and John McCullough, the actor, in his rôle of "Virginius."

The club had just been refurbished at a cost of $28,000 in order to present a fine appearance to the world's fair visitors they expected to entertain. Well, with so many rich members, they can easily rebuild. Mr. Fairbank says that's what they will do at once, and that the new building will be even handsomer than the one burned this week. He naturally would like to have it put up again, as his own residence is less than two blocks away. The Fairbank home is at the southeast corner of Michigan avenue and 18th street.

I know you, as a good churchwoman, are feeling the death of Phillips Brooks very deeply. His passing is a loss not only to the Episcopal church, but to all other denominations. His mother must have felt blessed, indeed, that four of her six sons chose the church as their work in life. Of course, none was so prominent as Bishop Brooks, but Arthur Brooks, who was rector of St. James' Episcopal church, Chicago, was much loved here. As I read of Bishop Brooks' life today I was surprised to note that he was not successful as a teacher. The boys of the Boston Latin school were too much for him, and his failure there was always mortifying to him. But I suppose it was the Lord's way of making him see he was to be a preacher. His sermons were great, but I think most of us will remember him for his Christmas hymn, "O, Little Town of Bethlehem," written for his Philadelphia Sunday school and sung in 1868.

With love, your old friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

The Calumet club was rebuilt on its old site and the building still stands at the northeast corner of 20th street and Michigan avenue, tho the club itself has gone out of existence.

Phillips Brooks [1835-1893] was one of the best beloved ministers of his time. S. Weir Mitchell said of him: "He was the only man who seems to me entirely great." A statue by St. Gaudens of this great churchman stands near Trinity church, Boston, a church of which H. H. Richardson was the architect.

The Old West Side.

Mrs. Merle F. Eschbaugh, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kane, lived on Ashland boulevard in the '80s and '90s, writes: "I grow a bit impatient at the gibes cast on that once lovely part of town. No one who ever really belonged there does that. Mrs. Charles FitzSimons was the dowager duchess of the neighborhood and there were the Eckharts, Weekses, J. Harley Bradleys, John McLaren [president of the board of education for many years and whose daughter married James Simpson], the George R. Nicholses, Owsleys, Harrisons, Camps, Rosses, Schuttlers, Hotzes, Baxters, Marshalls [Benjamin Marshall, the architect], Autens [Cora Auten was one of the most beautiful and popular girls in the city], Fultons, Yaggys, and a host of others. Some of these moved north, some to New York or California, but one old lady, Mrs. Edward Downs, refused to move at all, staying on Ashland until her death about two years ago. I wonder if you know that many people over there were of southern blood and that many of them went to the Waller school, run by the Misses Waller of Kentucky ancestry. Of course I went, my mother being from Virginia and Presbyterian besides. The Episcopalians attended St. Margaret's."

Poem of the Week.

It is our purpose, if reader response warrants it, to offer a "Poem of the Week" to those who send stamped self-addressed envelope. This week's poem is "Burial of Sir John Moore." Address Herma Clark, care CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The Jewish Big Sisters Feting 25th Birthday

For 25 years the Jewish Big Sisters have helped underprivileged girls and women. Tuesday they will celebrate their 25th anniversary at a luncheon at the Standard club. Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai congregation and a sponsor of both the Big Brother and Big Sister movements, will share the program with Margaret Ayer Barnes, author and Pulitzer prize winner, and several musicians.

Thru the interest of the Big Sisters, hundreds of girls have been developed into useful citizens. Friendship and guidance are foremost in the Big Sister program, with scholarships, allowances, medical and dental care, clothing, and other material assistance provided as the case of each girl requires.

A program of recreation and cultural activities also is offered by the Jewish Big Sisters. Four clubs give Little Sisters an opportunity to develop social graces and various talents and interests.

Mrs. A. M. Krensky is chairman of a membership drive that is being conducted in connection with the anniversary. Mrs. Philip P. Sachs heads the organization; Mrs. Raymond Pohn is chairman of club leaders; Mrs. Harold Shlensky, chairman of recreation; Mrs. S. S. Hollender, program chairman; and Mrs. Philip Goodman, chairman of the case advisory committee.

The Service Council for Girls, Protestant Big Sister organization, will hold its annual open meeting tomorrow morning at the Woman's University club. Luncheon will follow the business meeting and election, which will be conducted by Mrs. Frank M. Specht, president.

Another silver anniversary celebration of the week will be that of Lloyd George chapter, Daughters of the British Empire, Tuesday evening at the House of Biggs. Mrs. George Cooke-Adams organized the group, which has made a notable philanthropic record. More than $20,000 was raised by its members for the British Old People's home to endow two rooms, and a third room now is being maintained. Miss Elizabeth Harvey is regent of the chapter.

Twelve Chicago Sisterhoods affiliated with the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods will take part in the National Uniongram day celebrating the 28th birthday of the federation Tuesday.

For this celebration each of the 55,000 members of the federation in various parts of the world has been requested to send at least one Uniongram message to some one somewhere. These Uniongrams, sent thru the mails, provide the funds thru which the federation has supplied scholarships to Hebrew Union college students and others who are now Jewish leaders. Other educational projects also are financed by the messages.

Grounded Liner Creates a Stir in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA. Many of the most delightful private parties center about the Everglades club, tombola luncheons and backgammon tournaments proving especially popular. Two large and distinguished audiences heard Sir Norman Angell, who spoke twice on Tuesday—once at the Everglades club, and later at the Breakers. Sir Norman, who appeared under the ægis of the Palm Beach Round Table, was the guest while in Palm Beach of an interesting English couple, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Glasgow, who entertained in his honor.

Announcement has been made that the Palm Beach Garden club will sponsor a tour of five of the handsomest estates in the resort in lieu of holding the usual flower show. All proceeds will go for British war relief. The club recently purchased a mobile canteen unit to be sent to Great Britain.

• • •

The biggest thrill Palm Beach has experienced in either a blue moon or a coon's age was the unexpected visit of the S. S. Manhattan. Life here was proceeding at its customary early season gait. Holiday headaches were becoming a throbbing memory. Society was settling down in its accustomed grooves. Then pouf! by a singular whim of fate a glittering luxury liner was set down practically at this resort's front door.

Last Sunday night there hung in the tropic skies the sort of a moon about which poets go divinely mad. They indite sonnets to a moon of such delight, addressing it as fair Diana, or at least, pale Luna. Vying with the moon was the circulating beam from the Jupiter lighthouse which swept its radiant arc across a sea of tourmaline. This same lighthouse has sent its beam across the waves since the 1840s; the only time that it was dimmed was during the civil war. The S. S. Manhattan, blazing with lights from stem to stern, was on her way south to California with 200 passengers. So far, so good. Then, jolt! bump! and stillness!

The rest is history.

And Palm Beach is still chuckling about the fact that while all bars were doing a landoffice business, it was a sand bar which landed Palm Beach on the front pages of the world.

• • •

Cruise ship passengers in the interval were furnished luxurious shelter in the Palm Beach Biltmore hotel, where everything possible was done to aid them in collecting their wits, their baggage, and—more poignant—their mislaid dogs. The lounges and Cascade bar of the Biltmore were teeming with these "refugees" who seemed to take the accident good naturedly. Those who suffered most annoyance were the ones who had automobiles on board and who had planned to motor. Those who wished refunds were paid off in crisp 20 dollar bills, money for this purpose being quickly obtained from local banks.

BETROTHED

Miss Shirley Bell's engagement to Irwin H. Cohen has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Irene Bell of Cornelia avenue. Mr. Cohen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cohen of Fairfield avenue.
[Johnson Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nitze of Chicago were among those who found themselves visitors in Palm Beach when they thought they would be only in hailing distance of friends here. But when the Franklin Millers read their names in the passenger list published, they immediately invited them to join a cocktail party at The Breakers on Tuesday afternoon which they were giving in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gould Foote, who are spending their honeymoon in Palm Beach. The marriage of the former Mrs. Maude Alexander of Highland Park and Mr. Foote was an event of Saturday, Jan. 11, in Belleair, Fla.

Attractive Mrs. Foote was wearing one of the new spring prints and a small white straw hat, set at a becoming angle. As the orchestra on The Breakers terrace played the wedding march, the health of the bride and groom was toasted.

Mrs. Nitze, dark eyes sparkling and lovely, vivid countenance aglow, told of their experience in descending the waving 40 foot ladder and being tossed—literally—to a sailor on board the small rescue boat. She and Mr. Nitze told of the amusing reactions of many of the passengers: of the 80 year old woman who had been in a wheel chair and was left at the bottom of the ladder in the care of a sailor while all hands stopped to rescue two small boys whose catboat had turned over. They said that instead of being harmed, the aged lady was regaling friends with her ordeal, and her nurse had reported that it seemed to have done her no lasting harm.

Mr. Nitze told of the man who was threatened with a nervous breakdown and who had been ordered by his physician to take a long, leisurely cruise. That Monday, with his wife temporarily separated from him by the rescue party, his luggage in parts unknown of the ship, and all his best-laid plans gone aft a-gley, the man was calm and poised. In fact, Mr. Nitze said, the patient said he didn't have a nervous symptom left.

Mrs. Nitze was a svelte figure in black. Her luggage hadn't yet been located and so she was wearing the frock in which she went over the side. Having been in Europe in 1914, Mrs. Nitze is no stranger to adventure. In fact she said that outside of the annoyance, "it wasn't bad at all."

Mme. Ricardo de Soriano of Biarritz and New York, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. I. Sheldon Tilney at their home on Pendleton avenue. Mme. de Soriano recently renounced her title. She is the former Italia Blair of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hooper Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland are guests in Palm Beach. Miss Felicite Reynolds of Winnetka is the guest of Mrs. H. Mitchell Harper. Mr. Harper is expected soon.

• • •

Mrs. Raymond Hitchcock [Flora Zabelle Mangasarian of Chicago] and Mrs. Thomas Meighan, widow of the famous movie star of silent days, who were passengers on the Manhattan, were guests of the John Charles Thomases during their Palm Beach sojourn.

Several Clubs Planning Parties of Social Nature

Husbands and friends of Chicago members of the woman's auxiliary to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers will be guests of the Chicago section at a dinner-dance and card party Saturday at the Windermere East hotel. Mrs. Carl T. Hayden is receiving reservations.

Miss Ethel Slavick.

The annual dinner-dance and "gentlemen's evening" of the Chicago Woman's Ideal club will be held Saturday evening at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Lane R. Cooper is handling arrangements.

• • •

Another gay party will be Chicago Junior Hadassah's formal membership ball next Sunday evening in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. The dance will close the current membership campaign. Miss Ethel Slavick, membership chairman, is in charge, with Miss Mary Lubliner, social vice president, assisting.

The Chicago Catholic University club will sponsor dancing and entertainment after its annual election of officers this afternoon at the Midland hotel.

• • •

Two plays will be presented before the Dorothy Kahn Club for Crippled Children tomorrow afternoon at the Standard club. The Jack and Jill Players will appear in "Prodigies on Parade," and the Chicago Woman's Aid Players in "George Finds a Home."

A Jaunt Back to Early Days in the Ozarks

By Pearl Anoe.

If you'd like to move right back into the galloping, hectic past of Daniel Boone, John Appleseed, and the Dalton, James, and Younger boys, go register at the old Grand Central hotel in Eureka Springs, Ark. There stagecoach passengers stopped years ago after a terrifying ride up and down Ozark trails right on to Mud street, where once a pair of husky mules sank down to die in the deep mud of what is now the paved main street.

This isn't the story of hotel service in the little Swiss village of the Ozarks, with its goats grazing on the hills, its cows staked out in the "hollers," its little white Leghorn roosters crowing thru the days and at regular intervals thru long, cool nights; its "plate glass windowed" stores squatting side by side with old world business blocks where you walk on smoothly paved sidewalks and then suddenly bump into uphill slabs of rock, like corrugated paper, where you plod upward with quickened breath as you go on up to the postoffice, the library, and the trails above the town.

It's the story of 65 year old Grand Central hotel on Mud street, where first the town began mushrooming toward its 30,000 inhabitants, now dwindled to around 2,000.

The hotel register will show names of famous folk who once slept in the rooms where you'll sleep now. Rooms with lofty ceilings, and old-fashioned woodwork on the walls, and linoleum rugs on floors of wide, sturdy boards.

The promenade deck extends clear around the second floor. Below is a barber shop which reminds one of the drug stores of today. You not only can get a shave and a haircut, but you can get your watch repaired while you wait. What's a broken mainspring to one of these barbers? Then, if you really want to be sociable, you can sit down and scan the magazines in the deep windows—magazines so old that Father Time has forgotten them.

Later you can listen to these barbers play music which makes the old itch come into your feet as you tap the rhythm of their homemade instruments. World war veterans, these boys, who know how to handle tunes as well as they do razors and wheels in clocks and watches. And they make their music pay. Dances, frolics in the hills—watch these hillbilly musicians go!

There's a feed and flour store next door. Thirty-five years it's been doing business. The owner came to this little town in 1879, saw the mules drown in Mud street, and saw ditches dug beside the street to keep the stagecoaches from rolling completely over.

Now go up the twisting, wide stairs thru double swinging doors to the second floor, then turn to your right and go into the office. There's a wood stove, along with other furniture, antique and modern, and a long desk which might have been a bar, but isn't now. And there's the register! Rooms 50 cents a night, with bath, towels, soap, and a good bed thrown in. Meals are 25 cents, and as good as any 50 cent to $1 meal you ever ate. All home cooking and home baking, and served family style. So it behooves you to be the first one of the family to reach the table if you want the white meat of the chicken, hot corn bread, honey, milk gravy, mashed potatoes, carrots or beans, cabbage or spinach, salads, butter, coffee, tea or milk, and pies like mother used to bake.

If you want to stay a while, the Grand Central will "sleep you and eat you" for a dollar a day. Of course there's only a community bathroom or, rather, two of 'em—but there are hot water and a pitcher and bowl in each room. And such rooms! Some are double. In fact, one walks thru an entrance hall to get there. There are wood stoves and somebody to bring the wood up, even build the fire, if need be.

But the rooms, with their high ceilings, their uneven floors, their crooked corners, are worth seeing, as are the high cathedral halls, with a skylight over the middle stairway. So are the windows, five of them on the sides and three on each end, with the Ozark sun shining down on the wide stairs, and on halls which couldn't recognize a straight line after all these years.

Windows in each room look out upon a picture no artist has yet succeeded in transferring to canvas. Yonder the sky dips down to meet the gold-tipped trees—cedar, pine, oak, maple—hundreds of varieties. Down below is a little store with walnuts falling on to the roof from big trees near by, and the winter cordwood stacked alongside the long building.

Up one narrow, sandy road the houses climb to the top of whispering pine mountains, and around the bend the same road comes back to reach the Grand Central again. In traveling this curving trail you'll pass the old Carrie Nation home, now the artists' colony, and Mrs. Nation's cave and spring across the street. You'll pass Little Eureka spring, with some of the world's purest water. You'll stop to marvel at a white gate with its sign, "Little Switzerland," where the town landscape gardener has built terraced walls, tier upon tier, of natural flowers and shrubs.

You'll go around the bend, where you'll hear a hillbilly mother singing her baby to sleep to the tune of "Hell Among the Yearlin's" or "Black-Eyed Susan," and then you'll see a modern garage, built upon the hill and facing a house which has the street for a front porch and whose back door is beside the creek three stories down.

You'll pass the home of Polly House, perhaps the oldest newspaper woman in the United States and still working for the town's daily paper. Now go down a steep hill and you're back at the Grand Central. All trails begin and end here, and each one is worth traveling.

Dinner's almost ready in the dining room where an old-time square dance could be held and still have room for the wall-flowers to be comfortable. So get out of your hiking clothes and be ready in your best bib and tucker when that "cowbell" dinner gong rings.

There'll be many an increase in the "family" if the squirrel season is open, or if it's quail time in the Ozarks.

After all the bass fishin' in White and King's rivers, we thought we'd say good-by to this land of smiles, but we're still here!

Yachting enthusiasts are awaiting the annual Miami to Nassau races, starting Feb. 11. This has been more or less of a one craft event for several years.

A new racing feature—an ocean dash for powered yachts—has been arranged. The race is to take place March 14 and requires all craft to make the run between Miami and Havana, with a stopover at Key West before attempting the long overseas haul to the Cuban capital.

STARTING THE ROAD BUILDER

By RUPERT HUGHES

(Copyright: 1941: By Rupert Hughes.)

INSTALMENT I.

IT was an eagle. An eaglet! A golden eagle! A mountain eagle, a war eagle—all the ringing names for it.

As Craig Fleming clambered gasping up the steep slope, clutching at roots, digging toeholds where clods or stones crumbled and slid, he had envied the birds their wings. When he reached the top of the long ridge he lay on his back to let his heart and lungs race back to normal.

He hated hills and hill climbing. He was a leveler by profession, a civil engineer whose religion was the building of smooth roads over rough places with the least possible degrees of ascent and descent. He believed in cutting down hills and filling up depressions so that wayfarers might go smoothly and never think of the road or its builder.

Fleming's first upward glimpses had led him to guess the bird a buzzard or one of the larger hawks. But now that he lay supine with nothing but the vast blue and its few clouds before his eyes, he recognized the skyfarer for what it was. An eagle.

A small cloud drifted across the sun and he could stare hard while the sidelong rays warmed the bird's brown body into a ruddy glow and set a cap of gold on the back of its head and neck. It was the king of birds—not the white-crested sea eagle called the American eagle, but the great golden eagle himself. In person. The first of his kind that Craig Fleming had ever seen.

He forgot the business that had brought him to this height—if he could call it a height now, this stubborn pile of rocks that he had crawled up so heavily. Height was what that eagle knew—and plainly loved and reveled in. He was soaring up and up on a trace like a road that climbs a mountain in long loops, turning back above itself in hairpin curves. There was something beyond beauty, beyond majesty in that lone being steepling the sky, till it was lost at last in the invisible.

No, here it came again! It came slashing down the air in such a power dive as a test pilot gives a new plane, as if trying to tear its wings off and crash to ruin on the ground.

He rose quickly to his feet to study this golden eagle's skill. He could see across the top of the broad ridge to the distant sky, and the eagle was coming straight down, straight down. Fleming caught his breath for the exact last moment when the bird must level off. But the eagle did not check his speed nor spread his wings at all. He vanished into the earth with such momentum that Fleming expected to hear the thud of his body, see it bounce high, fall again, and lie still. He heard nothing, saw nothing.

Tired and breathless as he was, he hurried across the plateau to study the dead monarch—another victim of brakes that did not work.

But the eagle was up again. He shot right out of the rocky soil. Two eagles, in fact, went climbing in interlacing spirals in the mutual dance of twin stars revolving about each other. They mounted to the very dome.

Fleming was dazed. Was he seeing things and seeing them double?

He was on top of a mountain; not much of a mountain, but hard enough to climb. The maps of the region were poor. The Topographical Survey had not got round to this section. But what maps there were showed that the ridge he was on was nearly a mile wide, with not even a ravine to break its mass.

As Fleming ran, the ground rose sharply to a row of trees. The upgrade slowed his speed, and that was lucky for him, because he came near pitching over a sudden precipice. Just in time he clutched a tree at the edge, and hung out over a deep, winding valley with a placid brook idling along its floor.

The trees at the rim had masked it. On the opposite rim there were other trees to match these. Indeed, a forest covered both sides of the valley, which fell away in a gentle slope, save at the point here, where some old avalanche had broken the earth down and left a bare cliff. The trees stood like an army halted in its march, across the valley and on up the opposite steep.

Fleming smiled to see how easily the mystery of the eagle, of the two eagles had been solved. The ignorance of the mapmakers and the illusions of his own sight had imagined solid earth where there was a deep gorge. This was not the first time he had noted how much people assume knowledge where there is really an abyss of ignorance.

He smiled wider as his eyes made out on a ledge of the opposite precipice an old lightning-blasted, lightning-stripped tree, naked, forlorn and wan. On its broken top was a wagonload of dead branches, sticks, and tufts of pine, moss, weeds. He saw cornstalks, too, and hay, which proved that the eagles must have flown far to fetch the materials for their penthouse. In the heart of the trash he could just make out two or three little twitching masses of white down. Those must be eaglets.

Suddenly his amusement at his own stupefaction when the eagle struck solid earth and pierced it turned to a laugh of exultation at what he had found. His heart leapt with the thrill of discovery. He had found something new! He was Balboa! He was "stout Cortes gazing on a peak in Darien"—better yet, on a valley in a California sierra where no valley had been suspected, and yet where no valley could be more welcome. He was "the first that ever burst into this silent sea," into this sea of silence.

Out of deference to the royal birds, he'd name the place "Eagle Pass." That rather lacked novelty, tho. He might indulge in a bit of vanity and name it after himself; Fleming Valley—or Fleming Fjord. It might be a kind of fjord, since it probably wound about and reached the Pacific ocean at its farther end.

He was panting harder now than when he first gained the peak, for he was breathing deep of glory. He'd have his name on a map—that last word in immortality. He felt so grand and all that he wished was Sue Tipton were here. Sue did not think much of climbing mountains. She could play golf or tennis all day like mad, and dance all night; but scrambling up rough rocks, clutching at dirt, and scraping the hide off hands and knees were not to her taste.

He didn't blame her—much. She had such pretty hands—and knees. In fact, she showed her knees oftener, almost, than her hands, for she liked gloves. She believed the advertisments about the power over men excited by soft, lovely hands; had certainly seized on Fleming's heart and held it fast—hurt it, too.

Inspiration for Naming Valley Moves Fleming

He must hurry back to the nearest town and send her a telegram; or better yet, he would telephone her, long distance, and shout "I've made a great discovery!" His heart sank. She was too far away to be reached with ease. She was half-way across the Pacific ocean.

But another inspiration moved his spirits. He would name the valley after her; Tipton Pass, Sue Tipton Valley, Tipton Vale. What gift could equal that? He had often writhed with envy because some of the young men-about-Sue—and some not so young—gave her presents that he could not afford. But the richest of them could never surpass his new gift.

As a student at California Tech, he had first met little Miss Tipton in Pasadena. She had been proud of his attentions. Being a junior of strange and awful technical knowledge, he had overawed her by his mere notice, young thing that she was. But when he graduated a year later, she seemed to have graduated, too, from some school older and even more scientific than the California Institute of Technology.

Worse yet, when he stepped out of the institute it was like stepping off a precipice, for he had to begin humbly at the bottom of his profession and scramble upward ever so slowly. But when she stepped out of girlhood into young womanhood, she seemed to go soaring into space as volatile as a bird, and as unafraid of falling.

He was Balboa! He was "Cortez, gazing on a peak in Darien."

Fleming had had to start from scratch, of course, and begin as the humblest member of a surveying party. He was only a chainman, tho his official title was junior engineer's aid. And the state highway commission paid him $120 a month for chaining.

His work was confined to the county of Los Angeles, which was very handy to Sue. He could have saved something out of his wages, if it had not been that Sue was a rather expensive girl to court. She was one of those girls who simply draw presents from men.

She was a tackhammer for extracting gifts. She expected flowers all the time, tho her father's garden was overrun with them. Flowers were cheap, but they had to be often. You might as well be paralyzed as have no car in California, and cars have an unslakable thirst for gasoline.

Fleming's 15 days of vacation were spent in Sue's vicinity, but they cost him more than he had saved, without saving him from suffering pangs of jealously and throes of humiliation before his rivals.

Sue Tipton was plainly shopping round among her lovers. Of course, a girl had as much right to follow her profession, which was apparently marriage, as a man to follow his; yet few men are entirely emancipated yet from the ancient idea that it is a woman's place to grasp at love in a cottage.

The old Adam in every young man expects any woman he honors with his selection to accept him on his own terms, follow him where his ambition leads him, and live on what he can spare, or sit at home and wait till he comes back from wherever he may think it wise to travel. Sue Tipton, like another Eve, declined to accept Adam's views on paradise.

The second year out of college brought Fleming an unusual compliment. He was promoted from chainman after only a 12 month period, and made instrument man.

Worse yet, his work took him far from town now, and Sue had little time for writing letters. He had lonely evenings to fill with pen-and-ink conversations. Evenings were her office hours.

It was a long year for Fleming, but he managed his transit so unerringly that he won promotion again. He was made chief of party! Now he gave orders to transit man, chainman, rodman, stakeman, and axman. Some day he would be a locating engineer and have eight or nine parties under his control. But while he was surveying old roads and new in dreary stretches of countryside, Sue Tipton was surveying Europe. He dreaded to think of the foreigners whose evil eyes were surveying Sue.

When she came back at last she dazzled Fleming by her sophistications, her finished beauty, her exceeding desirableness. She had a way of tucking in French words and speaking English words with an English accent that annoyed him a little. But it tantalized him, too.

He had only a day or two to be annoyed and tantalized, for he was sent out on a construction job replacing a mountain road that had been torn to shreds by a cloudburst.

He made so good a record that he was transferred to a better job in the San Luis Obispo district and made an assistant resident engineer, on a fascinating problem; taking an old highway full of sharp curves and heavy grades—a relic of horse and buggy days—and fitting it for a flood of fast-flying motor cars.

Thrills at Thought of Creating Highway

It meant gouging deep cuts out of hilltops, and pouring them into deep cuts, throwing big and little bridgeways and causeways over ravines and marshes, at immense cost to the state and little gratitude from the speedmaniacs, who merely went a little more maniacally. It meant dirt and sweat, hot days, cold rains, bad food, rough lodging; but Fleming loved it because it was his career.

And, besides, he felt that he was building a road to Sue Tipton's possession. Yet she seemed to get very little excitement out of his vivid letters, and something always prevented her from motoring out to see the grand work he was doing. But his vacation was coming 'round, and he would spend it in her company.

"Darling! Congratulate me! I've just had a bid to go on a yachting party all the way to Honolulu. I'm horribly sorry to miss seeing you and I wish to high heaven you could come along, but I can't afford to miss the chance. It's so educational, you know, ha! ha! You know I'm long on education, especially in heavenly Honolulu. When I get back I'll tell you all about it. Be true to me, and I'll be as true to you as Hawaii or what-have-you. Lovingly, Sue.

Worse yet, she did.

And that was why Fleming was up here exploring eagle-haunted mountains instead of going back to town and flirting violently as he knew Sue would be. An urge for solitude had carried him off on a sort of busman's holiday.

Among the state road builders there had been much talk of late concerning the next big project. They all thought it would probably be the pushing of a new highway thru this wild pile of low mountains rolling westward to the sea which it overhung in a long bastion of cliffs, broken only by infrequent canyons and short stretches of neglected beach. The only north and south highway in use ran far inland and was hardly more than patchwork—still a dressed-up old wagonroad of steep and twisting ascents and steep and twisting drops; maddeningly slow for motorists, and very dangerous, dusty, subject to infuriating traffic jams on holidays.

There had long been a cry for a modern road, and people wanted it to run along the oceanside. But there had been an obstacle. A vast tract of the land was owned by a rich Mrs.

O. K. FOR SOUND

By ELSIE JANIS

(Copyright: 1941: By Elsie Janis)

"MORGAN! Did we get the ticking clock effect all right?"

"O. K. for sound!" . . . the verdict boomed thru the loud speaker on the set. When young Morgan said "O. K.", it meant no retake. Every director at Colony studios admitted that Morgan was the best sound "mixer" on the lot—and the fussiest.

Stars had often left the set in a rage because of Morgan's repeated "N. G. for sound," when they were giving "their all" vocally—but the same stars sent Morgan presents after previews. He would mix and blend until the virile hero's voice matched his strong chin. To satisfy Morgan, the delicate heroine's emoting had to touch ear and eye simultaneously.

Robert Flood was directing. "Listen, Morgan," he spoke into the microphone the players had just used, "I want the clock's ticking to dominate Miss Adair's stifled sobs."

"O. K. for sound!" Hal Morgan said no more, but thru the glass window of the sound booth he tossed a smile. It went over Flood's shoulder and landed squarely upon Colony studio's latest singing find—Iris Adair.

To her, Morgan's "O. K. for sound" meant "O. K. for Iris Adair." . . . It meant "O. K. for Iris Morgan," any time she wanted to accept the young man's invitation to a change of name. These two comparatively new entrants in the Hollywood game had their own set of signals. Her whispered "Hello, darling," breathed into any microphone near which she was standing, reached his ears only. His "May I hear the last speech again, please?" called thru the loud speaker, meant, "Hello, darling, yourself" to Iris Adair.

"Mixers" don't usually mix anything with sound in the studios, but Hal was in love. Iris was "in right" with the executives since they had seen the "rushes" on this picture. The fact that they were all raving about her voice was due a great deal to Hal's "mixing"—but the fact that Hal was a very attractive six footer who could be described as "O. K. for cameras" himself, was what made Iris walk to a little lunchroom across the street from the Colony lot with him.

"Well, honey," Hal said as Iris snuggled back into their hideaway booth, "how would you like to be a radio star?"

The Adair eyes of baby blue snapped into turquoise. "I'll have a hamburger, please. What are you suggesting, my very 'sound' young man? That I shall cut myself a hunk of air?"

"The sky might be the limit. Blystone, a king of the networks, wants me to go to New York . . . says he will pay me double whatever I get here and make me head of the engineers. In radio they apparently don't 'mix' sound—they engineer it. Want to honeymoon in the metropolis?"

Iris leaned forward quickly. "Would you really ask me to give up pictures for you, Hal?"

The hamburgers relieved tension by arriving before Hal answered. "Two coffees, please," he said to the waitress. "No, dear, I would not. I have refused Blystone's offer."

Silently Iris held out her hand and, as silently, Hal kissed it. "Blystone told me a lot about it. He tells me the radio stars have their own 'mixers' . . . pardon . . . 'engineers.'"

"Speaking of that, you made me sound so nice in the lullaby scene we shot yesterday I thought I was some one else. You haven't seen the 'rushes,' have you?"

"Yes—before you did. You are going to make an enormous hit, lady."

"Thanks to you, gent! Hirsh made me promise not to tell, but I can't keep the news from you, Hal. I'm to sing the lead with Pietro Monelli!"

Hal sat up straight. "Monelli? Then they've really got him? I thought he wouldn't come out."

"He didn't like any of the tests of the leading women they sent him, so Hirsh took mine east with him, without testing any one and——"

"And Monelli fell for you!"

"For my voice . . . that is 'our voice.' He arrives next week so you see you couldn't go east and leave me with a wild Latin."

"I couldn't go east and leave you with your grandmother, but I'm going to see that they put me on Signor Monelli's first Colony film, my lady."

"Handsome, talented, a great tenor voice, and yet of all picture fans in his own country"—the press announced when Pietro Monelli arrived. "Spoiled, arrogant, and temperamental"—the staff at Colony studios announced after two days.

In his sound booth Hal watched his love being submerged in the waves of Latin sophistry. Listening, he heard the voice of his love being drowned by the same waves. A life preserver lay in Hal's strong, sensitive fingers—he tossed it Iris' way with a few deft turns of the dials on the control boards.

After the first day's "shooting," Hal waited as usual for Iris, only to watch her from their own "meeting corner," as she came thru the studio gates, seated beside Monelli in his roadster.

He was on the job as usual next day, looking, listening, and "mixing" sound. Hal ducked the arguments on the first day's "shots," and hid in his sound booth, literally praying that Signor Monelli was not interested in "rushes."

At noon he started for the lunchroom across the street, alone. Lens Greenough, head cameraman, joined him. "Well, what do you think of 'Mussolini's contribution' in the 'rushes?'" Greenough asked as they climbed aboard the lunch counter stools.

"I thought he looked swell," Hal countered warily.

"They didn't bring him over just for camera fodder. Adair was singing rings around him in the 'rushes' this morning. She's got everything, that kid, and she's improving every minute. What do you think?"

"Yes . . . I think so," Hal said vaguely. "I guess Monelli doesn't look at the 'rushes'—or does he?"

"Sure, but we'll have to run them in the evenings. The signor has all he can do to get up in time to sing. He'll see them tonight. Looks like Iris Adair has fallen for him . . . they went off to lunch, hand in hand."

Hal Puzzled at No Complaints from Monelli

A week passed with no complaints from Monelli. Hal was puzzled. "Either the guy is so in love with Iris that he is generous—or he's so in love with himself that he's deaf, dumb, and blind," was his mental decision.

Their love scenes rang bells in Hal's ears, but when a scene was over and the director yelled "Cut!" Iris would quickly lead Monelli away from the microphones—for fear the "sound department" might pick up dialogue which was not in the script.

However, when Flood directed that Monelli sing a solo, mostly in profile—while Iris sat on her balcony, facing the audience, the sound department, and every one on the lot not wearing earmuffs, heard dialogue that had never been in any script.

"What do you teenk I am?" yelled the signor, "a seengin' Barrymore, that I musta tak all deesa on de profila? When Monelli seeng, he seeng to hees publico . . . not to deesa—deesa——" [his English, exceptionally good when he was not upset, failed him completely as he tried to think of something to call Iris Adair] "—deesa—deesa—amatura! Deesa peenk and white leetle upstarta!"

At that moment the "upstarta" burst into tears and left the balcony. Monelli had plenty of listeners without her. "I geeva her deesa chance because she has preety face and body but I weel not seeng to deesa—deesa——" [again he was stumped].

But Robert Flood was not. He had directed a foreign invasion before. "Lights!" he yelled. They went out as one. This added to Monelli's fury.

"How dara you, you beeg steef? You calla yourself director? You are to me . . . Niente . . . and you dare to put Monelli een de darka!"

Hal stepped out of the sound booth to watch as well as listen, when Flood interrupted. "To me you are also 'niente' . . . and as for putting you in the dark you've been there ever since we started the picture, or you would know that Iris Adair is the one the public will want to see and hear. I'm making the picture for the public—not you—and if you hadn't been so busy making pretty speeches offstage to the girl you call an 'amatura' you would have heard how you sound in the 'rushes.' That's all for today, ladies and gentlemen . . . I must get some air. . . . Garlic always did stifle me."

It took all of the Monelli interpreter's prowess to translate the line about Iris Adair being the one the public would want to hear. He was dismissed.

He strode across the lot to the dressing rooms and, as had become his habit, he beat a rat-tat-tat-tat on Iris' door. There was no response.

"Bambino! Bambina, mia! O, my darleeng, forgeeve your povero Pietro. Cara mia, open de door! See, Monelli ees on hees knees!"

Hal, unable to resist the "kick" of seeing him thus, flung open the door to find Monelli standing erect, an inch taller than himself, smiling expectantly.

"What ees dees? . . . Why are you here?" Without waiting for an explanation, Monelli brushed past Hal and directly to the couch where Iris huddled, sobbing. "Bambina!" he knelt beside the couch. Before she could speak he was kissing her wet cheek and caressing the blonde curls. Everything was forgotten, including Hal, who closed the door with a bang and walked briskly away.

Monelli saw the "rushes" that afternoon; Iris saw them with him. Blinded as she still was by tears—and Monelli's proximity, her hearing was unimpaired. She realized that the tenor voice sounded harsh and fuzzy as compared to the "little upstarta's" mezzo soprano.

"Well, I hope you both know what you want, and get it."

"There's no doubt about you bein' the best 'mixer' on the lot, Morgan," Hirsh said, "but you got to give others a break on sound. Iris Adair ain't the only one in the picture. You've got her soundin' like Lily Pons . . . and Monelli sounds like he was singin' thru soup. He won't finish the picture with you on the job, so I'm transferring you to——"

"I'm transferring myself to New York, Mr. Hirsh. . . . Thanks just the same. It's not my fault if Monelli sounds like he was in the soup. He is . . . and if you ask me, so are you for bringing him so far to upset the entire studio."

Hirsh started walking the floor, chewing his cigar. "You can't do this to me! I'll see that you never work in Hollywood again!"

"I'll save you that trouble" Hal said and walked out of the office.

Naturally, he went to Iris' room; naturally, Monelli was there. At the sight of Hal he jumped at conclusions.

"No! No! I weel not, I tell you. Not one note weel I seeng with such a lousee meexer!"

Iris turned to Hall and said: "I'm sorry about all this, Hal, but I'm just sort of helpless. You see what I mean, don't you?"

Hal snapped into a businesslike tone. "Yes . . . I see what you mean, Miss Adair. In fact, it was all pretty clear yesterday when Signor Monelli was apologizing."

Iris could not meet the cool gray eyes. She turned away.

"I hope," Hal continued, "that you will be content with apologies from now on. I wouldn't count on much else. And I hope you both know what you want—and get it! I want the first plane for New York and I'm practically aboard it now."

Two months later, Hal Morgan, despite the fact that all promises made by the "king of the networks" had been fulfilled, was about the most miserable young success in New York.

He was spending his night off in his newly acquired apartment. To complete the "busman's holiday," atmosphere his radio was blasting away tirelessly. This was Saturday night. . . . What was Iris doing at this moment? The blessing of that difference in time between oceans is immeasurable to thwarted lovers—it soothes the agony of imagination.

"Hollywood Highlights" . . . the announcer's voice boomed. The voice that knows who's-who, what's-what, and why-not in the film center, started right off with a bullseye shot. . . . "Pietro Monelli and Iris Adair left today by plane for New York. They will broadcast and make a personal appearance with Monelli's picture, 'Love Leads the Way.' Whether love will lead the way to a preacher in the metropolis they would not say—but Miss Adair's grandmother, who accompanied them and who is making her first flight, laughingly said to reporters, 'This is my first time—but Monelli and Iris have been up in the air ever since they met.' We hope that the charming Adair will realize soon that hitching her wagon of undisputed talents to the temperamental Latin tornado caused a decided empasse on her route to stardom . . ."

Hal flicked "Hollywood Highlights" away unceremoniously. "O, boy! If he could only 'engineer' that broadcast!"

Inside of two days New York was decidedly Monelli ridden. Colony film saw to that. Cameras and the press lads met the plane at Newark. . . . Iris was played more as the romantic interest than for any other ability. . . . Grandma was photographed, to add that certain dash of "comme il fault."

She was talking to Hal on the phone before Monelli and Iris had finished telling the press "how thrilled they were to really be in New York."

"Why, Gram, I'm delighted that you even remember me," and Hal meant it.

"Remember you . . . don't be silly. I want you to see Iris. She needs you, Hal."

"Gram, dear, if she needs me, all she has to do is say so—but I can't barge in on their romance."

"It's already barged in on . . . but she is too proud to admit it. O, Hal . . ." Grandma's voice broke "he is ruining her career."

"Steady, Gram! Where are you?"

"O, they've planted me up here at the hotel, but I can get out. Won't you go with me to the picture . . . and just see his idea of a personal appearance for Iris? Please do, Hal boy."

"I'll meet you there, Gram, but promise me you won't let Iris know. I want to hear from her if she wants to see me."

"Well, I'll meet you in the lobby."

From the balcony they watched Monelli . . . and listened to Monelli . . . and hated Monelli, together. Iris was brought on only to take a bow.

"Now about the broadcast . . ." Colony's New York representative, Hiram Hinklebaum, also chewed cigars. He was chewing well, while trying to swing a trick at supper that night. ". . . after this personal appearance, radio is our dish! We got an audition for you two, that will mean 13 weeks if it's O. K."

Three days later in the control room, our young ace of Radio City engineers emerged from the mental fog he had been in since Iris' arrival, when Bill Breen said, "What's the matter? . . . No food today, Morgan?"

"I've given up eating in favor of 'Sun-touched Lipstick.' Those birds have listened to 10 auditions so far . . . and always at lunch time. Maybe that's why sponsors are so crabby . . . they're all on a diet."

"What are they listening to today?" Breen asked.

"I don't know. It's the usual secret setup. Everybody in the joint knows about it but the engineer."

Thru the door from the main corridor, Hal saw George Wilks, of the production department, entering the studio, followed by Hamlin and Hobbs, staff "baby grand" experts. Hall clicked the "open sesame" switch, that makes it possible for radio engineers to hear everything said, sung, and even whispered in the studio, when interested.

Wilks waved a script at him, and walked to one of the microphones. "I'll see you in a minute," he said.

"Now, don't worry," Wilks was saying to the pianists, "just don't let him get your goat. Iris Adair, herself, is a honey but this guy, Monelli, hogs everything. I must take the script in to Morgan. I asked for him especially today because he knows all the Hollywood tricks." Wilks started for the control room.

Hal switched off "sesame" and was busily reading his Radio City Weekly when Wilks arrived. His hand was shaking too much for impressive reading.

"Hello, Morgan! Have you heard about this program?" Wilks drew up a chair.

"Good Lord, no! I'm only the engineer. Some day they'll tell one of us what's going on here, and the program will be off the air because the engineer died of shock." Hal was talking loud, to top the thumping of his heart.

"Monelli is a tenor from Italy to radio via pictures. 'Sun-touched Lipstick' is auditioning him for the lead in the operatic series. They are also auditioning Iris Adair . . . a peach, incidentally . . . who has a lovely voice when this chap, Monelli, isn't leaning all over it. Now, what I want you to do——" Wilks glanced at his watch and to the clock on the wall, ". . . they'll be here at 1:00 . . . it's 10 of . . . just look thru this script of the first episode."

Wilks rushed toward the stage where an announcer and the two pianists were waiting. Hal took time from reading the script to flick "sesame" on. He was definitely in the eavesdropping business on this assignment. At that moment, he saw Wilks rushing forward to greet a slim figure, entering the big studio.

Wilks led Iris onto the stage, and right up to the soloist's microphone. "See if this is O. K. for Miss Adair, will you, Morgan?" Wilks said.

Iris stood directly in front of the "mike." Her voice trembled a little, as she followed the usual test procedure. "Is this all right?" she said.

Hal's finger found the loudspeaker button with difficulty. His glance swept the studio in search of Monelli. "O. K. for sound!" he said ". . . and welcome to radio!"

"Hal! Oh, my dear!" . . . it was only a whisper.

"Will Mr. Monelli be very late? In radio, time waits only for the sponsor," Wilks said testily.

Iris Talks in "Mike" So Only Hal Can Hear

Iris was holding onto the "mike's" slender base and talking to Hal, just as she had done so many times in Hollywood. "I'm so sorry, Mr. Wilks. I'm quite helpless, as usual, with Monelli. I warned him that he must be on time, but I'm always warning him and he . . ."

"I'll see if, by chance, he has gone to the wrong studio. You might run thru a number and let Mr. Morgan, our engineer, get a balance." Wilks dashed away.

Iris glanced at the two pianists quickly. They were looking over some music. She moved close to the "mike." "O, Hal! I can't believe this really . . . It's too wonderful!" She talked very softly, knowing well that he could hear her perfectly. "Are you glad to see me?" she whispered—when, for the benefit of Bud Hamlin, who was approaching, "Are you sure this is all right, Mr. Engineer?"

"O. K. for sound!" came Hal's well known code message. "Miss Adair," continued Hal formally via loud speaker, "I want you to know that I am here to help you in any way I can. Perhaps, you had better run thru a song for me now, as Mr. Wilks suggested."

She was singing when Monelli and Wilks arrived. Hal was bringing out every tone in her voice that he loved.

"Bambina! . . . Forgeeve me!" Monelli cried, stopping her abruptly. "Eet was dees lady from de press." He nearly knocked the microphone over in his effort to impress the onlookers with his hand kissing. "Why do you seeng before I arrive?" he whispered savagely between kisses.

THE ROAD BUILDER

Anastasia Rebble, widow and heiress of Dr. Rebble's Own Remedies, which were said to have made him a million dollars.

Mrs. Rebble was cranky and could afford it. She would not grant a right-of-way across her domain. She talked about the beauty of unspoiled nature, and she hated motorists anyway.

Efforts had been made from time to time to force a road thru the realm of Rebble, and to condemn enough of her property for a highway. But she had put up warning signs and padlocked gates and carried on a long litigation. She fought one suit all the way up to the Supreme court of the United States.

At last a bill was jammed thru the legislature empowering the highway commission to enter and survey any property on a simple order from the Superior court. If a road seemed feasible and desirable, the step was easy to the purchase of a right-of-way. Most property holders were glad to donate a strip for the added value of a highway brought to their property. But Mrs. Rebble died before the state voted away her independence.

Then the depression struck, and killed the project. After a time the same depression revived it; for, in the effort to find employment for the armies of idle, roadbuilding came into high favor. You could always crowd a new road in between two old ones, or doll up a country lane into a concrete highway.

And so Craig Fleming was now reconnoitering on his own initiative the roadless realm of Mrs. Rebble, in the thought that it might be the site of the next job. He had no commission, of course, and no authority. He was merely on pleasure bent, but he had discovered a way to save the state millions of dollars and miles on miles of useless detouring.

The state would probably not be very grateful to him for saving it money and toil, because it was doing its best to get rid of its cash by inventing jobs. And the motoring millions would not be grateful to Fleming, either. They would zoom along an almost uninterrupted level thru the lovely long-hidden valley and they would cast heedless glances at the grandeur of the seascapes, then go on chewing their gum.

But Fleming was a passionate roadbuilder, and roadbuilders, unlike poets and actors, do not work for praise and personal fame. Which is a good thing, since they would get neither. It was joy and pride enough for Craig Fleming to think that he would be helping in the forging of another link in that chain of dream-highway which is to run from Alaska to the Andes. He was so happy that he took off his hat to the golden eagles and said aloud, a little startled to hear his own voice:

"Mr. and Mrs. Eagle, I salute you. Or may I call you Ferdinand and Isabella?"

Discovers His Realm Is Already Populated

He remembered the picture of Christopher Columbus discovering America and planting on the soil the standard of his master, the king of Spain. So, being all alone and having nobody to bandy humor with but himself, he wrenched a leafy branch from a tree, stabbed it into the turf, and proclaimed:

"Oyez, oyez! I claim this valley in the name of my lord and master, the California state highway comm—"

The word split off in his mouth. His glad eyes glazed. The very bough he had torn away had opened a little window in the tree, and thru it he saw a ramshackle cabin inside a ramshackle fence, and moving about the yard a ramshackle man and woman.

Fleming kicked over the great standard he had erected, and his spirits fell with it. He was disgusted with himself and his conceited hopes. Like Columbus, he had discovered a realm already peopled, and discovered often and long before he stumbled upon it.

"Hey you! Where the hell d'you think you're goin'? What the hell you doin' up here anyway? Git the hell offen my prop'ty before I throw you off!"

The start the voice from nowhere and everywhere gave Fleming may have looked like fear, but it was only surprise. His rage at himself carried over. He whirled and looked about him to find the speaker. But he could not, he launched into the general air a general defiance:

"You and who the hell else?"

For answer, a sharp stone came hurtling for his head, and would have found its mark but for a branch that turned it aside. Looking upward, Fleming could see thru the screen of leaves a tall, lean man standing on a ledge of rock.

Picking up the stone that had just missed him, Fleming pushed forward thru the thicket. If it came to throwing things, he was ready to accept the challenge. He had been a pitcher on baseball teams since childhood, and he was big and brown and brawny from his outdoor work. The way he poised himself and held the missile in his hand was threat enough to any native American, who would instinctively judge a hurler's ability. The man above ducked behind a tree, a big live oak.

There was a girl in front of the tree, and she was plainly as willing to shield the man as he was to be shielded.

In a momentary truce, Fleming had time for a brief study of the girl. She leaned against the trunk as if she were a dryad just stepped outdoors from her own oak.

Girl Fits Fleming's Conception of Nymph

The matter-of-fact Fleming had often talked about nymphs in his culture classes at California Tech. It had amused him to argue that if there had ever been nymphs they could never have been those sleek snow-white marble queens, or those pinky slinky chorus girls the sculptors and painters always offer the world as nymphs of tree or stream. Living as nymphs must have lived, if they had lived, they must have been sunburned and freckled and rain-stained and as tawny as the satyrs they were always running away from. Since they did not go to school or read books, they must have been illiterate, too, and uncouth.

Well, if this girl was a nymph, she fitted Fleming's specifications to a T. Yet after all there was something Grecian about her lithe round form standing out in high relief against the dark bole of the oak which was covered with the gray-green patina of old bronze. Her dress was a mere calico sack, but it clung to her scant breasts and lean loins like a sculptured tunic and left her throat and arms bare, and her slim shins down to the rough shoes that covered her feet. She was brown as an autumn leaf and her short hair clung in curly shavings about her head.

Whether she were really pretty or not, Fleming could not tell, for her features were contorted like an angry cat's and she spat out at him in a fury that made her thin lips quiver about her teeth:

"You throw that rock and I'll splounce down on you and rip your eyes out!"

Fleming had to laugh at that, and she nearly expired with rage at the insult. She snarled over her shoulder:

"I'll holt him here, Bop, whilst you run fetch your rifle and blow his gizzard loose. Or you holt him and I'll git the gun. Or I'l' holler to Paw."

There was a leopard's fury in her eyes when Fleming laughed again and even louder, but her rage amused him; it was so much too big for her sparse frame. It was like the frenzy of a kitten. He grinned up at her in mockery.

"Or suppose you and Bop holt each other and I'll go fetch the rifle and blow my own gizzard loose. Where's the rifle at?"

This flippancy had the success with the girl of a bad joke in a church. She began to shriek.

"Paw! O, Paw-aw!"

But Fleming's amiable mood seemed to reassure the man, who came out from behind her and tried argument in place of threat.

"What right you got trespassin' on our rights?"

"Your rights? You're old Dr. Rebble himself, I presume."

"Rebble nothin'. M'name's Shaddick. What's your'n?"

"Fleming."

The girl broke in with that oversize temper again:

"Well, you better start flemin' yourself outen here. What you doin' up here, anyways?"

"I was just reconnoitering, Miss Shaddick."

"My name ain't Shaddick, and you can just reconnoiter yourself back where you came from."

"I was thinking of putting a nice highway thru here, Miss— Miss—"

She did not tell him Miss Who she was, but she shrieked:

"Highway? Thru our property?"

"A good road always enhances the value of property immensely. You could sell lots, and watch the motor cars go by."

Bop's high voice shrilled till it crackled.

"My gawsh, ain't there goin' to be no place left where folks can have peace and quiet? We come up here to git away from folks, 'specially motorin' folks. We don't like folks. Go on away and leave us be."

"My road wouldn't bother you none up here. I was planning to carry it thru the valley, down yonder."

"But that's where we fish," Bop howled, "and raise our garden truck. We don't want no road and we ain't agoin' to allow no road."

Girl's Fierce Gesture Carries Dire Threat

The girl was impatient of reasoning with the intruder. She made a fierce gesture.

"Git back where you come from, you! And don't you never show your ugly face up here agin. If Paw ketches you around here he'll fill you fuller o' holes than a potato scraper."

"Does your Paw own this whole mountain and the valley and all, Miss— Miss— ?"

Bop filled the gap.

"Kimbo's the name."

"Thanks," said Fleming. "I repeat, Miss Kimbo, does your father own——"

But his stubborn smile, his unanswerable question and his evident intention to linger drove the girl into a spasm of blind hatred.

"Bop, if you don't fetch the gun, I'll git it and shoot him m'self."

Bop clutched her arm in a lank hand, and said, "Keep your shirt on, Theby."

She tried to twist free, and she was just setting her teeth in Bop's wrist, when Fleming saw that her wrath was fairly torturing her. He did not enjoy teasing any animal into suffering, so he said:

"Don't bite Bop, or you'll both die. I'll go along. I really can't stop to tea. But thank you just the same. Au revoir!"

He walked to the edge of the steep, filled his eyes with a long last picture of his valley, and then tossed the stone to the ground, lifted his hat, bowed, and turned his back on his seething hostess.

A rock whizzed thru the branches, and he whirled quickly enough to see the girl in the arrested attitude of one who has just hurled a discus. She was strangely statuesque somehow, like an old brown marble of a young Diana.

But her name was Theby—Theby Kimbo.

O. K. FOR SOUND

He turned to Wilks, smiling . . . "Monelli ees ready!"

"So is Morgan!" . . . might have been heard thru the loud speaker, had not the mutterer snapped off all connections until they were ready to rehearse.

Wilks rushed into the control room. "All right, let's go! I hope 'Sun-touched' don't ask for me as producer, if they take this guy." He pressed the loud-speaker button brutally. "All right! Please, Signor Monelli . . . Miss Adair . . . let's start for balance and sound."

Hal could see Monelli, arms waving, as he talked to Iris in the corner.

The two pianos collaborated. The duet began. The magic Morgan fingers were "mixing." Skilfully Hal blended the voice that he loved . . . with the one he hated. The result was thrilling. A slightly discordant sound, which any sentimentalist might have heard, was Cupid biting his nails.

"Right on the nose!" Wilks cried at the finish of the rehearsal. The phrase meant "perfect timing," but in this case, it meant everything was perfect—at least, for listeners.

The phone in the sound booth rang. The script girl answered. "Yes, sir," she said—and to the sound room coterie, 'Sun-touched' is waiting!"

"Five minutes to go!" Wilks shouted.

Iris and Monelli walked to the side of the stage. His arms were still waving. They stopped in front of the announcer's microphone.

Hal hesitated only a second. "Hey! Bob!" he said to the announcer, "go and move that center 'mike' a foot nearer the left piano, will you?" The announcer obliged.

Hal picked up the vocalizing on the arm waves easily . . . "What do I care eef you are nervous! Queet making Monelli so! Always you are want to singe. Seeng your one solo and be glad you have eet!"

"Please listen, Pietro," Iris' voice was soft and tremulous. She knew that Hal could hear even a sigh. "If you cared anything about me, you would want me to do my best. If you . . ."

"Eef I . . . Eef I . . . I am seek of question. Who has made you what you are? . . . Monelli! Who has teach you how to act when you do? . . . Monelli! Eef dees theeng ees success, eet will be Monelli!"

Three minutes to go! Hal glanced at the clock. "Lord! tell me which way to go," he thought. Iris answered his thought.

"Whether this audition is a success or not, I'm thru with you, Pietro," she whispered.

"And I'm glad," he snarled, "I go back to Italy . . . No more peenk and white amatura for Monelli!"

The announcer stepped to the microphone. "Excuse me, folks, we're just about on the air."

Iris moved quickly to his microphone. "Oh! Mr. Engineer, I do so need your help!"

Hal's earphones were throbbing. He clicked the control room contact. The program was on! Hal sat back to mix himself a bit of happiness.

In the sponsor's glass house, above the control room, the gentlemen, about to foot the bill . . . if pleased, sat. They wore their usual "show us" expression. When Iris Adair started to sing, they sat up and lit cigars—a very good sign, sponsor-arily speaking.

"She's good!" said one, as if the idea of hearing anything good had never occurred to him.

"Nice voice!" said another with the same rising inflection, suggesting that the unexpected had happened.

"She's a cinch for the leading woman . . . and if you like her, wait until you hear this guy, Monelli," the enterprising young advertising agent said. They waited.

Monelli's Big Test Proves a Failure

In the control room, Wilks also waited to hear the voice, that had sent him rushing into the commercial department, crying "Monelli's a knockout!" Knockout was right!

"What's the matter with him? He's gone all to pieces. Hop him up, Hal!" Wilks leaned over the control board desperately.

"We had the same thing with him in Hollywood. He'd rehearse like a million . . . and then . . ." Hal's fingers seemed to be searching deligently for some solution to the mystery.

"I can't understand anything he says," the script girl said plaintively.

"When he gets excited, his English always goes sour . . . but I don't see why he should be so nervous," Hal sighed hopelessly. "Maybe he'll be better in the duet."

Monelli was worse in the duet, because Iris Adair was even better than she had been in her solo.

When the audition was over, Monelli stood smiling triumphantly as Wilks came forward. "Thank you both very much!" Wilks said.

"Was gooda, eh? Monelli can tella when he ees een de voce . . . voice. Ah! Bambina! . . . you see?" He turned . . . to see Iris walking out of the studio.

Wilks was gathering his scripts together. "I have another audition at five, so I must rush. Again, thanks!"

"But, Meester Wilks, eet was big success? . . . Yes?"

"Ah! Signor Monelli, in radio no one can say . . . that is, no one except the sponsor, and he has to think it over, of course."

Monelli walked along beside Wilks, puzzled—but confident, as always. He had yet to learn that buck passing is the most popular game in radio, and that for every broken heart there is a sponsor "thinking it over" somewhere.

In a New York edition of their Hollywood hideaway Hal and Iris were doing a "retake" after the audition.

"Here's to 'Sun-touched'!" Hal lifted the drink, that he wanted—and he knew Iris must need.

"Was it really all right?" She sipped her drink.

"You were swell! I haven't been so happy in months!" Hal was beaming.

"Monelli was in great voice, wasn't he?" Her tone was slightly dubious.

Hal ducked adroitly. "The audition was just as it should be. When are you going to be married, my sweet?"

Her baby blue eyes opened wide at the old familiar term of endearment. "I don't know . . . When are you?"

"When you say you're tired of tenors and want a 'sound' young man. I asked you once before . . . how you would like to honeymoon in the metropolis? I repeat the question, darling." Hal reached for her hand. It met his gratefully.

"You know I love you more than ever, don't you?" he added.

"Oh darling! I believe you do . . . and Gram thinks I should marry you."

"Can't you think of any other reason why you should marry me?"

"Yes! . . . Because I love you! Is that all right for you, Mr. Engineer?"

"O. K. for sound!" Hal whispered.

There was no sound, as "hands across the table" became "lips across all obstacles."

Rio Dolls Up for Carnival in February

Rio de Janeiro once again has started preparations for its celebration of Carnival.

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL. Greatest holiday of the South American calendar, this event will take place Feb. 23, 24, and 25, and for it the entire city will turn out in costume.

The leading Carnival organizations are planning their floats, clubs and various social groups are preparing for dances and masked balls, and in the course of the next few weeks pre-Carnival celebrations will get under way. Already small books of songs are on sale, and people are beginning to hum the various tunes. As the holiday approaches, the less popular ones will be eliminated and by Carnival time one will emerge as the song of the year.

• • •

The celebration will open with the arrival of King Momo, monarch of laughter. He will be greeted by revelers and in his royal robes will rule over the festival.

Rio residents who make small incomes begin saving months in advance so they can buy masquerade clothing. Groups dressed as Indians, prisoners, acrobats, devils, explorers, and cowboys appear on the streets, and thousands in individual garb throng the avenues. All costumes are of light materials, since the city is now in the midst of summer.

During Carnival work is forgotten. Stores are closed and servants slip away to join the fun. Taxis keep going, but they are booked weeks in advance by special groups, which spend their time driving about the city, tossing confetti, and watching the merrymaking. Other crowds walk along the avenues, likewise throwing confetti and squirting cheap perfumes at passersby.

• • •

The music is the beat of tom toms and drums. Drums seem to throb incessantly during this period, and their sound is always starting some group off on a dance. Night has its music, too, for at the parties two orchestras usually play and the music does not let up a minute.

Each night of the fête one spectacular ball is held. The greatest is the Municipal, which is usually attended by the president of Brazil. Each of the three famous casinos, the Copacabana, Urca, and Atlantico, also has a big dance.

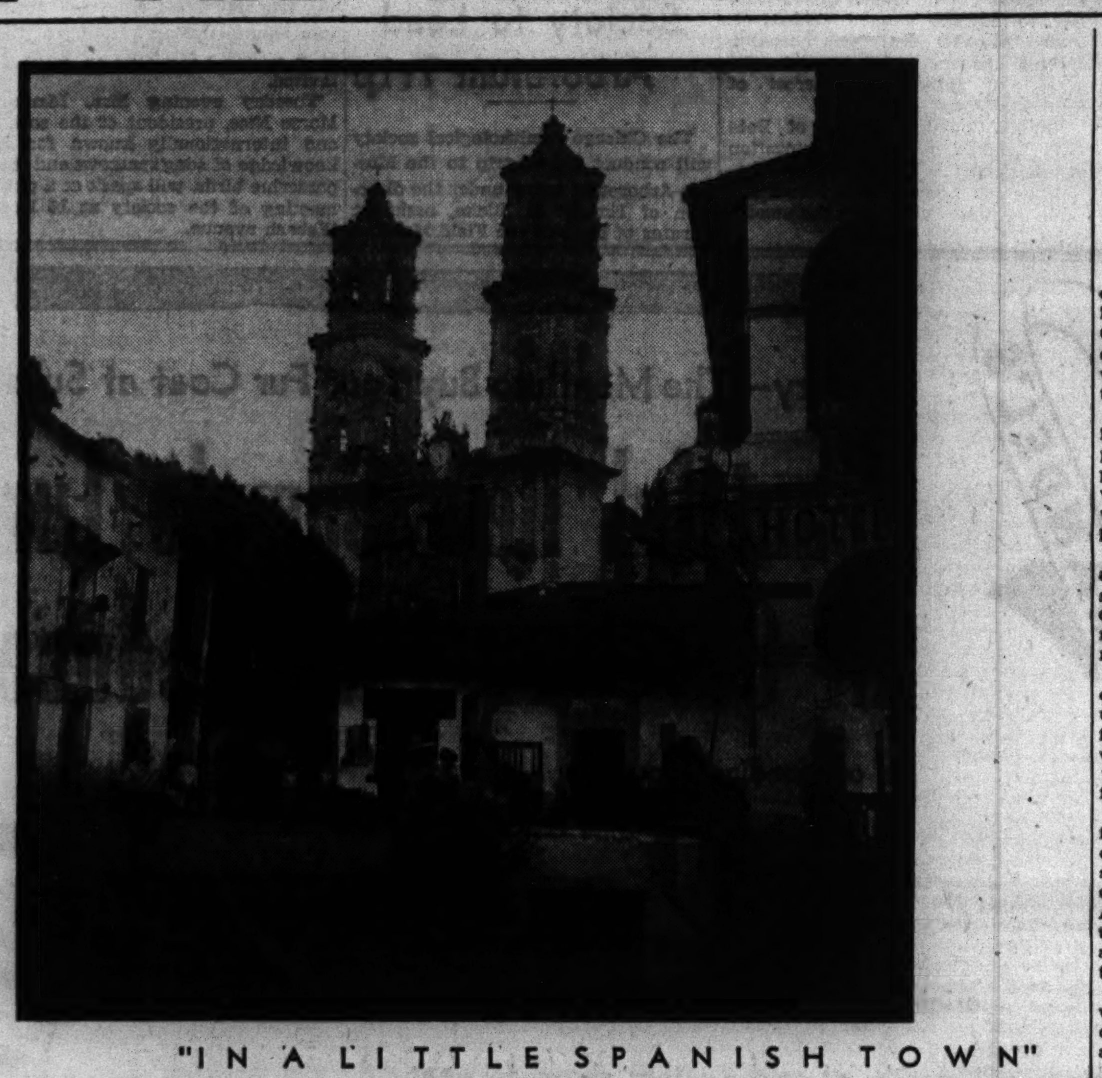
The climax comes Shrove Tuesday with the parade. For it the city subsidizes the leading clubs about $10,000 so that they may build elaborate floats. Some floats are huge and beautiful, some humorous, some satirical of persons and events in the news.

After the parade the revelry continues the rest of the day and night and not until Wednesday does Rio go back—rather reluctantly—to its normal life.

Tennis Stars Play at St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 18.—Aristocrats of dogdom were courting the admiration of the winter colony here today, as the American Kennel club's all-breed show attracted owners and fanciers to Recreation pier.

Stars of the tennis courts will entertain the colony in matinée and night exhibition matches all next week. Bitsy Grant, Don McNeill, Bobby Riggs, and others are to play at the St. Petersburg Tennis club in Bartlett park.



"IN A LITTLE SPANISH TOWN"

Taxco, two hours by motor from Mexico City, has undergone almost no changes since it was built by the Spaniards 400 years ago. A center of silver working, pottery, and weaving, it also is a rendezvous for American artists and writers. This view is across the square toward the cathedral.

Tourists Look at the Turtles, and Vice Versa

Key West, Fla., Jan. 18.—The first turtle boat of the season is due to arrive at Key West early next week. The cargo of the A. M. Adams, Capt. Allie O. Ebanks, is likely to be one of several hundred turtles, as the boat has not put into port since the hurricane season.

The arrival of the turtles always attracts the winter visitors, who gather at the dock to watch the transfer from the A. M. Adams, which lies off shore, to the barges, and from there to the dock and the crawls.

Caught off the coast of Nicaragua, the creatures frequently weigh 300 pounds or more. They are ranged in rows on the deck of the ship, their flippers securely tied, and they are hosed down at intervals in the course of the long journey.

A large crew awaits them, and, as each turtle is checked off the barge, two men take it by the flippers and releases the bonds before pushing it down the chute into the crawl or dock. There the captive awaits the trip to the soup cannery.

Sightseers Flock to St. Augustine

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 18.—Predictions that the nation's oldest city was to have the greatest winter season in its 375 year history have been borne out as thousands of visitors have swarmed thru the ancient city gates.

In December 25,290 sightseers explored the Castillo de San Marcos [Fort Marion national monument]. This edifice, rising above Matanzas bay, took 87 years to build at a cost of more than 17 million dollars.

St. George street, running thru the center of the city, with doorways abutting the curb, has been a favorite promenade. Found here are the Spanish treasury, dating from 1690, and the old wooden schoolhouse, a quaint little clapboard structure of hand-hewn red cedar planks.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

ROMANCE AND ADVENTURE.

Park Ridge, Ill., Jan. 12.—To the Travel Editor: A word of thanks for bringing back so vividly my memories of Guatemala. I enjoyed your series of articles to the utmost, and so I am giving way to the impulse to write you and tell you so.

Puerto Barrios! You compared scenes in the movie, "Torrid Zone," with that particular spot. Perhaps we saw the port from different angles, but I agree with you. It sounds like a long time ago when I say "nine years," but it seems like yesterday that we were there.

Mr. Tibbetts and I met there, and, after much running around and confusion, we finally ducked over to Punta Gorda, in British Honduras, and were married. Guatemala City on our honeymoon!

The Palace hotel—you were there, of course, but I wonder if you stayed out until after midnight, and returned to find the big doors locked. I remember we had to ring a bell that must have waked every guest, and then tiptoe in, feeling like a pair of very bad children.

Then there was Guatemala City's colorful market place, with all its smells, queer, dry looking meats, and beaded and scarfed babies. It was lovely. Are the ox-drawn, two-wheeled carts still there? And the Indian women doing that dog trot of many miles down from the hills as they balance those huge baskets on their heads? I hope it never changes!

Did you visit the hospital when you went to Quirigua? Is Dr. McPhail, splendid old Scotchman, still in charge? We all loved him.

The Mayan ruins are, of course, the real high spot for visitors to Quirigua. I believe the stelae have been set up and placed on concrete bases [rather a shame to have to do it], but I'll always remember them as we saw them—toppling over, grass-covered, and very much in ruins.

You might be interested in a harrowing experience we had one evening in Livingston. We had gone over there with the commandante—six of us as his guests—to attend a dance. As the evening wore on and the drinks became stronger and more frequent, the commandante, very much under the influence, asked one of the girls in our party to dance with him, and she tactlessly declined. Fireworks, and how!

Guns were brandished. We six made a hurried exit and hustled down the hilly, cobblestone street to the waterfront, intending to board the commandante's launch and get out of harm's way. But our political friend had told the soldiers to hide it so that we couldn't return to Puerto Barrios. Hostile soldiers hovered around us. Our escorts took it calmly enough, but we young women were badly frightened.

There was a commotion, and down the hill came a young native lawyer, accompanied by a soldier who snapped to attention almost in front of us and started firing over our heads. My husband, who speaks Spanish, quickly called the young lawyer to account. But it developed that the attorney had merely ordered the soldiers to salute the young women for him!

At that point a German storekeeper [a man of some importance in Livingston, altho I cannot recall his name] came racing down the hill and rescued us from what might have developed into quite a situation. We repaired to his home until a launch could be obtained, and finally we pulled into Puerto Barrios at 4 a. m., a group of tired, nerve-wracked youngsters.

Perhaps I am boring you with all this. I hope not, but in any event I am grateful for the opportunity to let off steam.

And, by the way, I like the casual way in which you refer to the machete knife—the sweet little thing the Caribs use for everything, from spanking the baby to laying a man wide open. I trust you didn't bring one back with you.

The words are tumbling over themselves in my mind, but I mustn't take any more of your time or mine. But this I ask: Make a deep wish that some day I may go back to that land of romance, sunshine, and—sometimes—grim adventure.

MARAGARET C. TIBBETTS.

Women Artists' Salon Holding Annual Exhibit

By Edith Weigle.

The Women Artists' Salon of Chicago is holding its fourth annual exhibition of members' work at the Findlay galleries until Jan. 25. Forty-two oils, water colors, and pieces of sculpture make up the show.

Maude Phelps Hutchins is represented by "At the Opera," an extremely modern canvas of a woman's figure done in vivid yellow, green-blue, and reds. A more conventional portrait is Macena Barton's "Flamingo," a painting of a girl wearing a pink gown and hat, seated beside a table with a pink Victorian lamp and seen against a blue wall. Thru a nearby window one sees the vivid color of flamingos in a bit of blue water.

As fragile, gay, and piquant as Lillian Gish herself is Peggy Palmer Burrows' amusing little water color done on black and titled: "Lillian Gish as Mme. Recamier." Lucie Hartrath has created a dreamy, softly toned landscape, "The Valley in November," and Ruth Van Sickle Ford has contributed a water color in grays and black, "The Covered Bridge" seen in winter.

"Tina" is a terra cotta study of a child's head, the work of Mary Andersen. The brilliant, clear colors of the tropics vibrate in Frances Badger's "Fortin," a painting of a petunia pink house with two natives, one a woman carrying fruit on a tray on her head, the other a white clad man, in the foreground.

At the Chicago galleries for the rest of the month is a group of three shows. The first is a collection of water colors done in the Big Horn country of Wyoming by Hans Kleiber. Mr. Kleiber paints wooded landscapes in a mantle of fresh-fallen snow, a clear mountain brook running thru them, and often a few wild fowl on the wing, seen against the gray branches of trees or leaden sky. He also does studies of native birds, perfect in detail and coloring.

The second group of paintings is a number of oils by Tunis Ponsen, many of them done in the Gaspé peninsula. Clear, clean scarlet, greens and yellows flood "Still Life with Gourds" with color. The limpid clarity of water in shadow distinguishes "Bridge in Jackson Park."

The third of the Chicago galleries' current shows is a collection of oils by Paul Lehman, ex-soldier and cowboy. As might be expected, the artist paints with great force and vigor. Two large canvases of pioneer days and roundup times are done in the manner of illustrations. Quite different is "From My Window—Tamaulipas," a painting of tall palms bending in the rain, small cabins seen thru the storm, and a blue pool in the foreground. This and most of the other canvases were done in Mexico, where Mr. Lehman lived for some years.

Until Feb. 5 an exhibition of paintings in oil and tempera by Svetoslav Roerich is being held at the Tretyakov galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue. A member of an ancient Russian family, the artist is the son of Nicholas Roerich and has spent part of his life in India. The verdant Kulu valley in the Punjab in British India is the subject for many of his canvases which are marked by free use of an amazing amount of color that seems exaggerated to western eyes, but is said to be true to nature's palette in that section of the Himalayas.

Most notable of the paintings are portraits of the people: A child whose head and shoulders are limned against the white torrent of a stream in flood; a smiling "Woman from Spiti"; the struggling figures of a pack train as they climb "Over the Pass." Mr. Roerich has painted his father against the vast Himalayan country. And he has also done the head of a girl that is a sonata in soft blues and white, simply called "Ludmila," a distinguished canvas.

On Jan. 22 at 11 a. m. in Fullerton hall Miss Clara Laughlin will give the third in her series of four talks on the new exhibition of Mrs. James Ward Thorne's miniature rooms, this time her subject being "The South." Miss Laughlin tells of the historical background of these fascinating pieces of Americana, and illustrates her remarks with slides. The lectures are free to the public.

The Chicago Society of Artists is having an exhibition during January at the America Fore building, 830 Rush street. It is made up of drawings, small sculpture, and prints. The galleries are open daily from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Art from modern architecture and city planning to medieval masterpieces and the influence on Goya of Spanish bull fights will be discussed by art authorities at the annual meeting of the Chicago Art association which will be held at the University of Chicago Jan. 29-Feb. 1. More than 250 artists, critics, historians, and teachers from all parts of the country will attend.

At the Chicago Woman's Aid club are two exhibits of paintings by Shirley Friend and James Harold Noecker and one of sculpture by Eli Zimmer.

The Chicago Academy of Fine Arts has on display in its foyer an exhibit of 50 Walt Disney originals until Jan. 22. Mr. Disney is a former student of the academy.

The trustees of the Art institute announce the formation of the new Society for Contemporary American Art associated with the institute for the purpose of buying works of contemporary American artists for the permanent collection. Pictures chosen by the members of this group are now on exhibit. At the conclusion of the show one painting will be selected as a gift for the Art institute. Officers of this new society are: President, William D. Darrow; vice presidents, Hi Simons and Mrs. Inez Cunningham Stark; treasurer, William N. Eisendrath, and secretary, Henry S. Monroe.

Chicago Flyer Takes Bride on Air Honeymoon

By Lolita Linn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

The brides of yesterday came to Arizona in covered wagons. The brides of today come in planes. But we doubt if the grandmothers were any more starry-eyed than are the granddaughters. The west is an old hand at charming sophisticated young ladies.

Mrs. Wrigley Offield, the former Edna Jean Headley of Cincinnati, O., is a fortunate bride. She is seeing the west for the first time on her honeymoon and she is seeing it from the front seat of her husband's big, red plane.

Wrigley Offield, son of the James R. Offields of Chicago, has flown over the country around Phoenix for the last three winters. He has ridden over it, cow pony style, all his life. One could find no better pilot, for his enthusiasm for the Arizona scene is boundless. The other afternoon he let us down softly on clouds and tilted his plane at just the right angle so we could watch the shadows of late afternoon creep up the mountainsides.

To fly over the Salt river valley is to be impressed anew by the great contrasts of Arizona. The desert, pale and mysterious, ends abruptly where the water line and the green fields begin. The towers of modern Phoenix seem puny, man-made gestures beside the rugged, ageless mountains which surround the city. Austere saguaros, that have learned to take in their belts when a drouth comes, look across the road at carefully tended citrus groves and pampered date palms. On one side of Squaw peak is the colorful and symmetrical Arizona Biltmore, an architect's dream done in rectangles, ovals, and arabesques. On the other side is Paradise valley, a paradise which would be lost except on those who see beauty and design in untamed and barren desert.

The Offields have been staying at the Arizona Biltmore and visiting Mr. Offield's grandmother, Mrs. William Wrigley Jr. They flew over to Catalina Monday and will continue their flying honeymoon up the California coast. On their return flight to Phoenix, Wrigley Offield hopes to show his bride one of his favorite stopping places on the desert, about 60 miles due north of Palm Springs. There a lonely prospector for semiprecious stones welcomes visiting pilots who have the temerity to land between the two great rocks which bound his domain. He likes airmen and has tunneled out a guest room in the rocks for their use. But for lost and unlucky motorists who come his way he has only the utmost contempt and the coldest of receptions.

The tower of the Westward Ho hotel is a favorite landmark for those who fly over Phoenix. The Westward Ho is one of Arizona's favorite vacation spots for those who like to have their city and their country too. The hotel is situated just where the business and residential sections of Phoenix meet; but its large tropical patio might as well be out in the country, so protected is it by a high wall and by a thick hedge of oleanders.

Life at Westward Ho is very satisfying to those who like to take their desert just a bit diluted. The guests putt and sun themselves in the patio and go on desert picnics during the daytime. But at night they dine and dance in sophisticated surroundings, secure in the knowledge that a picture show is within walking distance.

Among the Chicagoans wintering at the Westward Ho are the Oliver R. Hogues and the Frank G. Houghs of Highland Park, the Charles C. Kawins of Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Collins and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Duncan of Chicago.

Mrs. William E. Lewis and Mrs. Anna Halls of Chicago arrived at the Westward Ho just before New Year. Mrs. Lewis has returned to Chicago, but Mrs. Halls will stay in Phoenix all winter.

News of a middlewestern migration to Arizona continues to come in. Recent arrivals at Camelback inn include Mrs. Sidney Porter of Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne R. Bellows, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Walker of Wilmette, the Philip Harringtons of Crystal Lake, and Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago. The Martin G. Hauslers of Chicago and their daughters, Edith and Alice, have been at Camelback since early in the season.

Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Lake Forest and her young son have come to Remuda ranch at Wickenburg for the rest of the winter. Mrs. Hollis Kirk has returned to the ranch after spending Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hollis of Chicago. Miss Helen Haseltine of Chicago is another all season visitor at Remuda. The Robert Dickinsons, formerly of Lake Forest, spent last week in Guaymas, Mexico. They are returning to oversee the building of their ranch home, the Lazy Y, on the Agua Fria river near Rock Springs. The Eugene Ketterings of Hinsdale and their three children arrived at Remuda ranch last week. They will spend the winter in the house which was built for them last year.

The J. T. Petersons of Evanston and their daughter, Helen, expect to be at the Arizona Biltmore most of the winter.

Edmund J. Doering of Chicago and his daughter, Mrs. Harold Hartog of Paris, have taken two houses at Jokake inn for the season. Just now the twin sisters, Mrs. E. J. Doering II. [Caroline Castle] and Miss Josephine Castle, are visiting them.

Mrs. Charles H. Vial of La Grange and her sister, Mrs. J. E. Fullam of Shanghai, China, will spend the winter at Jokake. Their daughters, Betsy Vial and Margaret Fullam, are enrolled in Jokake School for Girls.

The Walter Johnsons of Chicago, who were at Jokake the last three seasons, have purchased a winter home near the Country club in Phoenix.
